THOUSANDS OF CANADIANS ARRIVE OVERSEAS

German Destroyer Sunk in Baltic, 2 Ships Damaged

Russian Air Force Claims Victories Over Land and Sea, 15 Nazis Downed

HOPKINS AT KREMLIN

(By the Canadian Press)

Hitler's invasion armies were pictured in London reports today as stalled along the whole 2,000 mile Soviet front during the past 24 hours and near the point of exhaustion and, in Moscow, Harry Hopkins expressed confidence "Hitler is going to lose."

"Battles on the east front continue to develop in our favor.

In Berlin, Nazi editors countered assertions that the German offensive had bogged down by again stressing that it is more important to destroy Russia's armies than to win ground.

Authoritative quarters in London declared there was "absolutely no indication" that the fall of Leningrad and a Soviet defeat on the vital central front at Smolensk were imminent.

Russians Take Initiative

Moscow dispatches said Soviet troops were taking the initiative at some points in the vast battleline, and a Red Army bulletin reported fierce overnight fighting in the Smolensk sector, 230 miles west of Moscow; in the Zhitomir sector, west of Kiev, the Ukraine, and in the Novorzhev sector, 200 miles south of Leningrad.

Moscow, Aug. 1 (CP)—The battle of Smolensk, gateway to Moscow, entered its 17th. day today with the Russians apparently taking the initiative to force back the Germans at some points.

The Russian air force which the Germans had announced was destroyed co-operated with land troops to counter-attack the German positions in the Smolensk direction.

The Russians asserted that Smolensk—which the Germans claimed they captured two weeks ago—was still in the defenders' hands. After fighting off 42 German attacks since July 16 the Russians took the initiative.

Sharp Fighting

This afternoon's communique said that sharp fighting had continued throughout the night in the Smolensk sector and said other battles were raging in the zones of Zhitomir, west of Kiev, and Novorzhev, 200 miles south of Leningrad.

In addition to smashing at German ground forces and communications, the Red air force was reported to have sunk a destroyer in the Baltic and severely damaged two other ships.

The communique failed to say whether the vessels were German or Finnish.

Opinion Strengthened Hitler Will Lose War

In Moscow, Harry L. Hopkins, United States Lend-Lease administrtor, talked three hours in his second interview with Premier Joseph Staling and later said his conviction that Hitler is going to lose the war had been strengthened.

Hopkins, who discussed United States supplies to aid Russia, carried his brief case into the Kremlin and it was understood he told the Rusisan leader that American

Nazi Report Says Germans May Soon Be Hammering at Gates of Leningrad

SILENT ON AIR LOSSES

Berlin, Aug. 1—(AP)—A High Command communique of extraordinary brevity reported steady progress on the eastern front today as Germans, stirred by other war advices, waited to hear that German armies might soon be hammering at the very gates of Leningrad.

Reverting again to a broad picture, barren of any detail, the bulletin from Hitler's headquarters devoted only two sentences to the whole war with Soviet Russia. It said:

"Battles on the east front continue to develop in our favor.

Leningrad Sector

The impression that things are moving to suit the German High Command in the Leningrad sector was fostered by an announcement by D.N.B., German news and propaganda agency, that a Russian regiment had been wiped out on the narrow strip of land between Lake Peipus and the Baltic while guarding that approach to the city.

The commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland, answering foreign reports that the Nazis forces had not been making much speed lately, repeated the claim that more important than winning ground at this stage were the losses being inflicted on the Russian Army in both equipment and manpower.

Little News on Smolensk

Information in morning papers concerning developments in the vital Smolensk sector was limited to a D.N.B. report that two Russian regiments recently arrived from Siberia had been annihilated south of Vyazma, which is about 130 miles west of Moscow.

The agency also claimed that the Russians had lost 112 airplanes during the past 24 hours but refrained from disclosing Nazi losses.

Tokyo, Aug. 1 (AP)—Domei, Japanese news and propaganda agency, today quoted Japanese Embassy sources in Moscow as saying that Siberian railroads were crowded with refugees from Leningrad and other cities in the path of the German offensive.

Many troop trains were reported moving eastward toward Omsk, which is about 1,300 miles from Moscow. Traffic east of Omsk was said to be mostly in a westward direction.

RESISTANCE OF RUSSIANS IS 'MAGNIFICENT'

Roosevelt Says 'Frankly Better Than Any German Expert Thought'

AID TO RUSSIA

Washington, Aug. 1 (AP)—President Roosevelt asserted today that Russia's resistance to the Axis war machine was "magnificent" and "frankly better than any military expert in Germany thought it would be."

That was his reply at a press conference— he authorized direct quotes—to an inquiry on what he thought of Russian resistance to date. He said:

"It is magnificent and frankly better than any military expert in Germany thought it would be."

When a reporter, referring to Hitler, asked whether Mr. Roosevelt included Germany's outstanding military expert, the President suggested that newsmen not spoil the story.

A laugh was his only response to another question—whether Germany had been doing some tall lying.

Not Under Lease-Lend Bill

The President said Russia did not come under the terms of the Lease-Lend bill and he saw no prospect that she would. The reason, he said, is that Russia is able to pay for the purchase in the United States of war equipment to be tossed into the battle against Germany.

No decision may be expected on an additional Lease-Lend appropriation, the President asserted until Harry L. Hopkins returns to this country. Hopkins, Lend-Lease supervisor, now is in Moscow, after having visited London.

Mr. Roosevelt said the only word he had had from Hopkins since his arrival in the Russian capital was that he had got there safely.

Mr. Roosevelt would not say whether Mr. Hopkins might return by way of China.

How Hopkins Reached Moscow

To a question on how Mr. Hopkins got to Moscow, the President smilingly replied, on his own two feet. He added that there should not be discussion of movements of both airplanes and ships in these times because the element of human safety was involved.

Mr. Roosevelt had no comment on a suggestion that July had seen a definite turn in the war with Russian resistance stiffening.

Nor did he have anything to say on conditions inthe Far East or on shipments of oil to Japan.

He said, also, he had heard nothing of the possibility of Lease-Lend aid to the Free French.

The President did say that he hoped to get away early next week and go up the coast somewhere where at least the nights would be cool. He said he wanted a week off.

Recent Japanese Thrust Into Indo-China Brings Up Question of Future Status of Islands of Philippines —Japanese Bombing of U.S. Gunboat Closed Incident on Apology from Japan

Washington, Aug. 1—(AP)—The Japanese bombing of the gunboat Tutuila was marked a closed incident in the State Department today but concern in Congress over the Far Eastern situation caused talk of delaying independence for the Philippines indefinitely.

Acting State Secretary Welles, after conferring with President Roosevelt, announced last night that the United States had accepted the official apologies of the Japanese Government for the attack on the United States gunboat near Chungking, China, Wednesday.

The apologies, he disclosed, were accompanied by an offer to pay indemnities for the damage the ship suffered and by assurances that measures would be taken to prevent the recurrence of such incidents in the future.

Welles indicated earlier in the day that nothing short of full amends would satisfy the United States, for he rejected the hurried regrets and assurances expressed in Tokyo as preliminary and inadequate.

In the Senate today, however, the recent Japanese thrust into Indo-China brought the future status of the Philippines into question. Under the present law, the Commonwealth of the Philippines would become a sovereign republic on July 4, 1946.

Senator Warren Austin (Rep.-Vt.), Acting Minority Leader, said in an interview that the entire Philippine question should be re-examined in the light of recent events. "I believe that indefinite postponement of Philippine independence would be advantageous both to us and to the islands," he declared.

Chairman Willard Tydings (Dem. Md.), of the Senate Territories Committee, who sponsored the Philippine Independence Act, had this to say: "I see no reason for any change in the present arrangement. It would cost hundreds of millions of dollars to put the Philippines in an adequate state of defence."

Senator Burton Wheeler (Dem.-Mont.) said: "The islands have always been a liability from an economic, political and military standpoint. They are so far away it would be very difficult to defend them if they were attacked."

Germans Use Series of Loud-Speakers Spread Clatter of One Machine-Gun

For example, it was said, Russian troops heard machine-gun fire rattling in a wooded sector as though Nazi gunners were busy behind every tree and bush. Russian scouts, however, could find only one machine-gun nest.

Investigation disclosed that a microphone and a series of loud-speakers had been set up to spread the clatter of the single gun throughout the woods.

MEXICO REBUKES GERMANY, REJECTS NAZI REQUEST

Tells Germany She Regards Request for Protest Over U. S. Blacklist of German Firms as Imperious and Threatening

NO INTERFERENCE

Mexico City, Aug. 1—(AP)—Mexico, rejecting with a stern rebuke a German Government request that she protest President Roosevelt's blacklist of pro-Axis firms here, provided tangible evidence today of her intention to cooperate with the United States in solving mutual problems created by the war.

Mexico told Germany she regarded the request as not only imperious but threatening, and declared she would brook no interference from abroad in the formulation of her national policies.

JAPANESE LINER'S SAILING DELAYED BY JUSTICE DEPT.

Valuable Silk Cargo is Still Aboard — Several Libel Suits Entered

GIVEN SHIPS SUPPLIES

San Francisco, Aug. 1 (AP)—Her passengers aboard and all gangplanks up but one, the crack Japanese liner Tatutu Maru was ready today to streak for home, awaiting a release by the United States Department of Justice that would permit her to sail despite libel suits against her valuable cargo.

The Niponese liner Heian Maru, meantime, was posted to sail this afternoon from Seattle, similar suits against her cargo having reportedly been settled, and the liner Asama Maru docked at Honolulu after delaying her arrival six days because of strained Japanese-Amrican relations.

TRAPPED MEN HEARD SHOUTING TO RESCUERS

Mine Manager Says 3 Men Insist They Are Safe

DIG FROM BELOW

Kirkland Lake, Ont., Aug. 1 (CP)—"We can hear the trapped men shouting to their rescuers, and they themselves insist that they are safe," A. L. Blomfield, Managing Director of Lake Shore Mines said today.

Three miners, Peter Cain, Griffith Jones and Harold MacMillan were trapped near the 4,000-foot level of the mine by a rockburst Wednesday night.

"The rescuers are cramped for space," said Mr. Blomfield. "We have about 15 men down at a time, but only two or three can do any actual digging at a time. However, we have extra men down there because you never know when we may need a gang to shift some of the fallen timber."

Problem of Locating Men

He explained that the main difficulty confronting the rescuers was that they were not sure, to within 20 feet exactly where the trapped men were.

"The men were dazed probably by the rockburst" he said, "and they cannot tell us exactly where they are either. Once we have located the men properly we will make fast progress."

"We are digging towards the men from below," he said. "We had been digging from above, but stopped that when we feared that we would cause a further fall of rock on them. The rock through which we are digging is loose but the fallen timbers make clearing it away difficult.

He would not estimate how long it would take to reach the trapped men but emphasized that once their exact location was known the task of the rescuers would be greatly simplified.

AIR RAID ON EGYPT

Cairo, Aug. 1—(AP)—Air raid alarms sounded last night in Cairo, Alexandria and several provinces in the Nile Delta.

An Egyptian Interior Ministry communique said "Bombs were dropped on the Delta causing one death and wounding one person but doing no material damage."

It was Cairo's second raid alarm of the week but there have been no reports of bombs falling on the city. Alexandria, site of a British naval base, has been raided heavily several times.

Main Body Third Canadian Division Lands in Britain

Ocean Like Mill Pond All Way—British Sea Mastery Shown

WELCOME TO TROOPS

By ROSS MUNRO

Canadian Press War Correspondent

A British Port, Aug 1—(CP Cable)— Under the command of Maj.-Gen. C. B. Price, a section of the 3rd Canadian Division arrived safely in Britain after a speedy Atlantic crossing.

They will join the Canadian Corps, now one of the most powerful military formations in Britain.

The ocean was like a mill pond all the way across as Canadian and British warships again proved sea mastery to bring the second large Canadian troop convoy in a month through the Atlantic danger zones without incident.

Thousands of cheering Canadians keen to be with their brother in arms of the 1st Division, 2nd Division and the Canadian Army Tank Brigade, lined the rails as the grey troopships eased to anchorages.

Troops Welcomed

Canadian High Commissioner Vincent Massey, David Margesson, Secretary of State for war, Maj.-General P. J. Montague, Chief of Canadian Military Headquarters, London, and several high-ranking British officers went out to the ships to welcome the troops.

The contingent was led by various 3rd Division headquarters units and included infantry regiments from Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Eastern, Central and Western Ontario, a French-Canadian regiment and certain units from the artillery, ordnance, army service corps, engineers, provost, signals and medical services.

The advance parties of several Western Canada Infantry Regiments and additional divisional troops were aboard the transports as well as several hundred Air Force personnel.

It was a cheerful, boisterous arrival. Bands played and the troops cheered as each tender came alongside and revived "Roll Out the Barrel" as the leading song of the Canadians. They intermingled this with "There'll Always Be An England" and "O Canada."

"This is a grgeat day for us and I reckon it is a bad day for Hitler," said Mr. Margesson as he stood on deck, surrounded by troops.

"Our presence here is further proof that Canada and Britain are standing firmly together and that Htler with all his boasting and bragging, has not won the Battle of the Atlantic yet."

O.S.D. Occupation Delayed for Time

Toronto, Aug. 1 (CP)—Occupation of the School for the Deaf in Belleville by the British Commonwealth Air Training Scheme has been delayed while the Ontario Department of Education seeks other quarters in Belleville for the school, it was learned this morning.

"We are now arranging to rent quarters in Belleville to see if we cannot retain most of those now at the school in rented buildings," said Dr. G. F. Rogers, deputy Minister of Education. "It may be that some of the older pupils at the school will have to be taught in their own communities, but it is the intention of the department to retain in Belleville as many of the pupils as possible."

Duke of Kent Plans Rest Day At Rideau Hall

Ottawa, Aug. 1—(CP)—The Duke of Kent today planned a quiet day around Rideau Hall, residence of the Governor-General and Princess Alice, before resuming a long round of official inspections that will take him into every province during the next few weeks.

Yesterday he inspected No. 2 Service Flying Training School of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan at nearby Uplands Airport and the Royal Canadian Air Force Station near suburban Rockcliffe.

So far as is known there are no official engagements for today, but Saturday he will fly to R.C.A.F. stations at Camp Borden and Trenton, Ont., returning here the same night and beginning his tour of Western Canada on Sunday afternoon.

Primary purpose of His Royal Highness' visit to Canada at this time is to study the Dominion's facilities for the training of airmen —activity which he described in a speech Wednesday night as "the foundation stone of victory."

Thousands of Ottawa residents and visitors saw the Duke yesterday as he drove about the city in an open car to keep engagements which made the day his busiest since he arrived in Canada last Tuesday morning after an overnight flight across the Atlantic.

U. S. Signal Corps Trains Falcons To Harry an Enemy's Carrier Pigeons

(By WILLIAM H. GLOVER, JR.)

Associated Press Staff Writer

Fort Monmouth, N.J., Aug. 1 (AP)—Falcons are on the way to the United States army's signal corps headquarters for a tryout as the newest weapon against carrier pigeons and parachute troops.

Officers emphasized that experiments with the sharp-eyed, sharp-taloned birds still are in the contemplated stage, but soldiers have been assigned for training as falconers and the first batch of feathered selectees is due Tuesday from California.

Lieut. Thomas MacClure, who springs from a long line of Scottish falconers, has been assigned to direct the experiment.

"I know I can bring them down," MacClure said today with a soft Highland brogue as he explained the anti-parachutist plans. Details are secret but circular knives will be strapped to the chests of MacClure's "First Pursuit Squadron" with the intent that they will rip descending parachutists and cause them to collapse in mid-air.

Falcons, among the fastest birds in the world, can dive at 300 miles an hour. They attack by rolling over on their backs and slashing out a drumbeat assault with their feet. They will fight thus when released to harry an opponent's carrier pigeons.

Capture Pigeon and Return

The main objective of these experiments, the lieutenant pointed out is to attack pigeons released by opposition forces that have penetrated a front line and seek to notify their headquarters.

"We can tell by seeing a pigeon in mid-air whether it's one of ours," MacClure said.

If the sighted pigeon is an unidentified stranger, the lieutenant related, front-line falconers will release a flock of pursuers trained to capture the mesesnger and return with it.

The species chosen for the experiments is the Peregrine Falcon, native throughout the country. Most of the untamed fighters are to be caught in the heart of New York. Within a few days MacClure will swing out by rope from atop some of New York's tallest buildings to set his traps, made of net and baited with live pigeons, on likely ledges.

Between 200 and 300 birds are to be used and the men will be trained to handle a dozen birds at a time. The falcons, which stand about two feet high and have an average wing spread of 44 inches, can be turned into first-class pursuers in three weeks.

Sugar Hoarding Epidemic Arouses Official Concern of U. S. Gov't

Washington, Aug. 1 —(AP)— Apparently fearful that the war may cause shortages, United States consumers have engaged in another sugar-hoarding spree but it may backfire on them.

Despite government assurances that supplies were ample, officials said today that housewives, candymakers, manufacturers of other products requiring sugar, wholesalers and retailers have bought sugar at a record-breaking rate this year to build up reserve stocks for use in case of a scarcity or stratosphere prices.

This heavy buying activity had one natural result—a sharp rise in prices. Today those prices are the highest since the war's start in 1939, when a similar epidemic of hoarding led the government to take drastic action to check the advance. Raw sugar is being quoted at about $3.60, duty-paid basis, a hundredweight at New York.

Agriculture Department officials, who ordinarily are able to control sugar prices effectively, consider present quotations excessive.

Officials said the government might have to repeat action taken in 1939. At that time President Roosevelt, acting under authority of the sugar law, suspended the quota system, thereby removing all import and marketing restrictions. Officials were sure such a step, if taken, would have the desired effect.

Canadians Prepare for Battle In Finest Tanks in World

By ROSS MUNRO

Canadian Press War Correspondent

Somewhere in England, Aug. 1—(CP)—At this barren, isolated camp of the Canadian Army Tank Brigade, Brig. F. F. Worthington is seeing a vision become reality as his troopers prepare for battle in the world's finest tanks.

For years in Canada this fiery, colorful brigade commander championed the tank as a weapon of war. Now as commander of the first tank brigade in Canada's history he leads one of the finest formations of fighting men ever to cross the ocean.

Over here they call it "Worthington's brigade." It was organized and developed by this dynamo of a man who has been a prospector, miner, sailor and soldier of fortune who fought Pancho Villa in Mexico and served in the first great war to win the Military Cross and bar and the Military Medal and bar.

Officers and men in the brigade are hand picked. The brigadier interviewed practically all of them. He knows his troops and they have spirited admiration for him.

Brig. Worthington's right-hand man is his brigade major, John Andrews of St. Thomas, Ont., who worked with the tank commander for a number of years in the permanent force.

The brigade combed the northland frontiers for recruits from trappers, hunters and caterpillar tractor drivers. These men have the endurance and vision that tankmen need. The brigade also went to the prairies for farmers who worked all their lives with track vehicles.

It's 100 to 1 the brigade won't religiously follow orthodox tank practice. The brigadier had definite ideas on tank warfare and plenty of new angles up his sleeve.

Brig. Worthington, a native of Scotland, went to California in his youth, became a prospector and miner and then went to sea for 12 years as an engineer.

His wanderings took him to Central and South America where he fought in several revolutions, then joined the forces battling Pancho Villa. The first great war took him to Canada and then to England.

In 1936 he was appointed chief instructor of the first Canadian tank school at London, Ont.

This was the start of the rise of the tank in Canada. Two years later the school was established in Camp Borden, Ont., and when armored formations were formed he received senior appointments and promotions, emerging as a brigadier commanding the present tank brigade.

His wife, son and daughter live in Barrie, Ont.

POLICE COURT IS POSTPONED

Owing to the fact Magistrate J. L. Lloyd of Northbrook was unable to attend court in Belleville today the semi-weekly session of Police Court was postponed until Saturday, Chief Kidd announced. There are several important cases to be heard locally on Saturday including two of stealing articles from the Trenton R.C.A.F. base.

Car Broken Into

A commercial traveller complained to police that his parked automobile had been broken into and ransacked on a Pinnacle Street parking lot last night. The door handles on the vehicle had been struck with a heavy instrument and broken off permitting entrance. A brief case was reported stolen, but was later recovered when found lying in an alleyway by an employee of the McCarthy theatre.

HEN LAYS EGG WITH V ON SHELL

The city "V" for Victory campaign is flourishing with the now famous three-dot-dash letter appearing in mayn store windows and other places of business. "V" on its shell.

However the latest to join the "V" ranks is a hen, the property of T. Ramsay, College Street which produced an egg which bore a distinct "V" on ints shell.

The Ramsay hen has not been interviewed by the press, because it is not known which biddy should get the honor. However, the Ramsay biddies, like their owner, do not seek the spotlight, so the honors must go to the flock.

CROP REPORT

The weekly crop report as issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture from reports submitted by agricultural representatives in the various districts states that in Hastings County the milk flow has come back remarkably well, a number of factories making as much cheese as they did during the high milk flow in June. The cutting of grain is general with spring grain being very uneven, some very poor and some very good fields of grain being harvested.

In Lennox and Addington the harvesting is also well along, practically all early being cut and late oats will be finished early next week. Threshing machines have started work with the grain turning out better than was expected from the length of the straw. The quality is very good. Second cutting of alfalfa is being cut and a better crop than usual. Corn, potatoes and tomatoes are making excellent headway despite the dry weather.

STOLEN NEW CAR FOUND AT OSHAWA

Stolen at Belleville on Wednesday a new 1941 Ford sedan was recovered at Oshawa on Thursday, Belleville police revealed today. The vehicle was found abandoned and not damaged, the Oshawa authorities revealed. When stolen there were four gallons of gasoline in the tank, Riggs' Motors employees told police after the vehicle was reported stolen from off Pinnacle Street. When the gasoline became exhausted the car thieves abandoned the vehicle.

Belleville athletes now with the 6th Anti-Aircraft Regiment at Petawawa Military Camp played no small part in the winning of several championships at a sports day held in the camp recently.

The regiment broke all records, capturing championships in softball, baseball, boxing, tug-of-war, runners-up in basketball and also annexed track and field honors when Max Smith stole the show in a sensational individual performance.

Among the Belleville boys on the various squads were Harold Reid, Leo Goyer, Bill Morgan, Lum Carson, Joe Jocko and Walt Gerow. Sergt.-Major Cecil Holway was a member of the victorious tug-of-war team while Lieut. Fred Symons organized and managed the softball champions, assisted by Sgt. M. Loucks of Napanee.

Later the trophies and crests were presented to the regimental champions by Col. Polson, C.M.O. Lieut. Col. A. B. Smith, Officer Commanding the Regiment and Captain C. D. Sills, camp sports officer, were honored guests at the meet.

JULY CUSTOMS SHOW $43,646 INCREASE

Custom returns at the Belleville Customs Office for the month of July as reported by Col. E. A. Geen this morning were $202,659.47 as compared to $159,646.83 for the corresponding month in 1940, showing an increase of $43,012.64.

2 HASTINGS OFFICERS "JOINED" NAVY WHILE AWAY ON LEAVE

At least two Hastings County officers did not wait until the Nazi invasion of Britain to get some action.

According to recent news dispatches, Captain C. S. Nickle, Madoc, and Lieutenant G. M. Davison of this city "joined" the navy temporarily to get a first hand view of what was happening in the waters off the tight little isle.

In England with their regiment the two officers who were granted leave together, spent their spare time with units of the Royal Navy operating in the English Channel. Dashing seawards on dangerous patrols, the First Canadian officers shared in several skirmishes with German craft, riding in small fast boats on hazardous forays.

Gasoline Sales Continue Normal Here Despite Appeal To Reduce Gas Consumption

There has been no appreciable reduction in gasoline consumption in the city and district since the Oil Controller's appeal went out for conservation of fuel according to a consensus of service station owners and gasoline distributors.

The majority of service station owners interviewed stated that sales have been "normal" with a natural increase in daytime business.

One prominent fuel distributor whose territory stretches from Napanee to Cobourg and all northerly points, stated that sales had decreased approximately 500 gallons in the last four days of July as compared to those of the first four days. During the latter period 14,960 gallons had been bought while during the early days of the month, 15,415 gallons were purchased in the district.

Total sales to the en dof June 1941, amounted to 471,000 gallons as compared to 399,000 gallons to the end of June a year ago.

During the first 21 days in July this year, 89,730 gallons were used as against 74,250 gallons during the corresponding period of a year ago.

Tall, rugged, his stature exemplifying an early manhood spent on athletic fields, he is, to use his own expression, "a substantial citizen."

A former well-known Belleville resident, he is visiting his native city for the first time in eleven years. "It has improved so much," he smiled, "that I may come back and live here."

He is John A. Forin, retired judge, of Vancouver, B.C. He left Belleville 52 years ago for the western province where he practised his profession and for thirty years officiated as district judge for the Kootenay District.

His age? He smiled when reporter plied the question. He leaned over and touched the newspaperman on the shoulder. "We won't go into that," he said, "but I will tell you that back in 1889 I was a city alderman here for Baldwin Ward."

He delved deeply into a remarkably retentive memory. "I remember the old baseball team we had here in the late seventies and the early eighties," he reminisced. "I was a catcher in those days and Davey Diamond was one of my second basemen. Dick Bradford was a pitcher and a very good one. He later went to the Hamilton International team. Then," he continued, "there were the Gibson boys, and Billy Thompson, another pitcher. That team was tops, and beat anything in these parts."

An ardent athletic enthusiast all his life, Judge Forin, still indulges in lawn bowling. He was honorary president of one of the largest lawn-bowling groups in British Columbia for a time. He formerly played lacrosse here and after leaving for British Columbia he took up cricket there.

Held Long-Distance Running Record

He held the long-distance running record for Canada for a number of years, covering forty-three and a fraction miles in a marathon contest.

But Judge Forin took time off from his legal and athletic activities during a long and eventful life to give considerable service to his country. He marched with the Queen's Own Rifles of Toronto in the Northwest Rebellion. He was a color-sergeant with the old 15th Regiment here and later received an ensign's commission in the Hastings Rifles.

He commanded the Kootenay Rifles which later became the 54th Battalion, C.E.F., but a particular government refused to give its permission for him to proceed overseas. He then transferred his sentiments to the artillery branch of the army and commanded the 4th Company British Columbia Garrison Artillery.

The estimable judge is in his native city as a representative of a group of British Columbia lodges of the Sovereign Grand Priory, knights Templar of Canada, which opens its convention here on August 4th.

Has Two Sons in Military Service

He has two sons, Major Douglas Forin, now in England with his regiment and Peter, who is serving with a ground-crew with the United States Air Force. Five daughters are married.

The Forin family is well known in this district. Forin Street was named after one of its early representatives. His father was a prominent architect of his day and many houses in the city still stand as a testimonial to his ability. He designed the John Bell house in the village of Wellington, now occupied by Mrs. L. Chisholm, when that village was little more than the living forest.

QUINTE MOTORS MOVE

Quinte Motors operated by Percy Dulmage have moved to their new location at 11 Moira Street West, and announce elsewhere in this paper today that they are now ready in their new location to serve their customers.

Their present quarters are the first garage west of the upper bridge formerly known as the Evans garage.

Quinte Motors were formerly located at 211 Pinnacle Street and moved because their former quarters were sold.

Mr. Dulmage is well known to the motoring public and his company are the distributors for Studebaker cars and trucks.

Obituary

GEORGE NEAL
(Mountain View)

George Neal a resident of Mountain View died suddenly in hospital at Montreal on Tuesday, July 29th. For some time he was serving in the Veterans' Guard of Canada and was stationed at Farnham, Quebec. When taken ill he was removed to hospital in Montreal.

The late George Neal, who was in his 50th year, was born in England, being a son of Mrs. Neal and the late George Neal. When at home he was associated with the Mountain View United Church and was well respected. To friends in the district his death has brought much regret.

Surviving him are his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Phyllis Blow; two daughters, Maureen and Pearl at home and his mother.

The funeral took place this Friday afternoon from his home in Mountain View and interment was in Mountain View cemetery.

Playground Softball

In the Midget series of the East and West Belleville playground softball league the East Hill 'Sluggers' defeated the West Hill 'Nifties' 7 to 3 yesterday. It was the seventh meeting of the two nines this season, the East Hill winning five and one being declared a draw.

At present Doug Burns' East Hillers have a decided margin in the series and seem almost certain to win the Midget championship of the City Playground Softball League.

Chuck Hewson started on the hilltop for the winners and hurled effectively for three inning. Bunton than talking over the pitching chore for the winners. Rollins and Holway carried the torch for the winners playing sensational ball in the field, while Mills and Sword looked the best for the losing West Hill nine. A six run splurge in the third inning cinched yesterday's game in favour of the East Belleville team.

Scarcity of Cheese Boxes Causes Concern to Producers in District

Scarcity of labor in cheese box factories throughout eastern Ontario is seriously effecting production with the result that cheese factories in the district are finding it increasingly difficult to procure boxes in which to ship their cheese, it was revealed at Thursday evening cheese board meeting when two factories were unable to board their cheese owing to lack of boxes.

When asked the reason for the shortage of boxes, Chief Grader, J. L. Irwin, replied that he did not consider that there was any shortage of material with which to manufacture the boxes but felt the trouble was the manufacturer's inability to procure labor to keep their factories operating to the required capacity. The result of this, was, he said, that stocks at the box factories were now practically used up and newly-made boxes, still green, were being shipped to cheese factories.

Mr. Irwin stated that in some instances cheese were being shipped in these "wet" boxes. Rather than permit cheese to be exported under such conditions when possible deterioration was almost a certainty, over one hundred cheese had to be taken out of the boxes to permit drying, he said.

Costs Higher

"The cheese box situation is becoming serious all over Eastern Ontario", continued Mr. Irwin, "box factories are forced to pay higher wages to their employees to retain their help and this reflects directly in higher costs of boxes. In the past year the price of boxes has raised from 26c to 28c and in the Kingston district where the box shortage is more acute than in Hastings, the price has been raised to 30c".

Other Supplies Short

Shortage of materials in other instances is causing delays in factories getting necessary equipment. Many factories are finding it difficult to get delivery when in need of new vats, while in the case of Sideny Town Hall Cheese Factory which was burned last spring, equipment for agitating vats ordered in May has still not arrived, the maker being forced to agitate vats by the hand method.

Higher Production

Cheese production in the Quinte area still maintains a slightly higher figure than at a comparative date last year as indicated by cheese boarded at Belleville. Mr. H. L. Fair, Agriculture Representative for Hastings, stated that a great many factories were making from one to two cheese more per day than they were at this time last year, while this was expected to be increased as a result of better pastures arising out of recent rainfalls.

Sees No Proof Nazis Menace Leningrad

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Berlin's insistence that the fall of Leningrad, former Czarist capital of Russia, is impending, is subject to suspicion, perhaps warranting the Moscow reply of "Nazi propaganda".

If the city is actually closely beset by the German-Finnish allies, there has been no previous indication of it from any quarter. Nor can it be wholly overlooked that Berlin claim was made at a time when planes from British aircraft carriers were launching an attack on German-held or German-used bases on the Arctic Ocean. About the same time, moreover, Harry Hopkins, the American director of aid to foes of the Axis, was in Moscow extending assurances of help to Russia.

It seems possible that Berlin felt the need of offsetting this encouragement to Russian defenders of Leningrad. At any rate, it is obvious that the front door to Leningrad from the west, the narrow 40-mile strip between Lake Peipus and the coast of the Gulf of Finland, is still held by the Russians. The main Russian defenses along the Russian-Esthonian border at that point are less than 100 miles from Leningrad. They have not yet been reached by Nazi columns, according to reports from Hitler's headquarters. These reports told of Russian forces in Esthonia being thrown back "to the north", not the east.

That means the main fighting on the extreme Baltic flank is still in Esthonia, west of Lake Peipus. That long water barrier guards the approaches to Leningrad from the west for a distance of nearly 100 miles.

Just south of the lake system, within Russian frontiers, is Pskov, the most important rail junction town on the Leningrad west front. Three routes converge there to round the lakes and fan out again eastward to Leningrad, while a fourth runs east and south to Moscow via Porkhov.

The most dangerous Nazi thrust at Leningrad up to now has been via Pskov and Porkhov. For days Moscow war bulletins have reiterated reports of violent battles in the Porkhov region, indicating Peipus lake system has been held up, still 150 miles and more, air line, from Leningrad.

There were Berlin unofficial intimations two weeks or more ago that the Nazis had fanned northward, east of Lake Peipus, and northeastward toward Leningrad from Pskov junction. They have never been confirmed and they probably referred to air attacks.

Measured out on a map, no German approach to Leningrad within 150 miles or so can be detected, whatever may be happening in Esthonia. Nor do Finnish or Finnish-German advances via the Karelian Isthmus or east of Lake Lodoga appear seriously menacing of themselves, although they are closer than any reported German stab from the west.

Thus a factual military basis for Nazi assertion that Leningrad is about to fall or be destroyed under Stalin's 'scorched earth' decree has not been established.

Capt. A. Ramsay Interned M. P., Awarded Farthing

Justice Atkinson in Passing Judgment in London Makes Comment

London, Aug. 1 (CP)—Capt. Archibald Ramsay, interned member of parliament, has been awarded one farthing (half a cent) damages in a libel action against the New York Times companies for publishing an artiele Aug. 25, 1940, calling him a fifth columnist for Hitler and saying he sent treasonable information to the German legation in Dublin.

Mr. Justice Atkinson in passing judgment yesterday said no attempt to justify the accusation of treason had been made but added: "I am convinced Hitler would call Ramsay a friend. He was disloyal in heart and soul to our King and our government and our people."

Bombs Bring Desolation To Little Corfu Island

By ROBERT ST. JOHN
A. P. Writer

(CHAPTER 3)

New York, Aug 1—Someone invited me to his home in a New York suburb the other day, so we sat in his flower garden and played with tall glasses of something cold, white women in crisp white dresses talked about what had happened at the last country club dance.

Thoughts of Corfu

But I'm afraid I didn't pay much attention. The smell of flowers made me think of Corfu, where lilacs were in bloom and olive trees were in full leaf that April day I landed on the island with three other war-weary correspondents.

They've written songs and novels and poems about romantic Corfu, but there was nothing romantic about the place in April.

It was an island of lost people. They knew that any day now the planes would start unloading their capsules of death over the island, and then the steel-helmeted troops of the invader would come, and life as they had known it would end.

The city of Corfu was a place of desolation. Normally it housed 40,000 people. Now most of them had scattered into the country. Those who were left had gone into hiding.

Open Up Catacombs

The city fathers had opened up some of the ancient catacombs which wind far down into the bowels of the earth. Men and women had taken mattresses and what food they had saved into those dark, musty tunnels and were living there most of the time, except when they came out occasionally to be sure their homes hadn't yet been occupied by the enemy.

You couldn't blame them for having only a casual interest in what was left of their city. Most of the whitewashed shops and homes were a mass of ruins.

There was a time when they had tried to haul the debris out of the streets as fast as bombs sent another building collapsing into a heap of rubble. But now they had given that up. Civic pride had vanished. No one took any more interest in anything but just existing from air raid to air raid.

You couldn't drive down many streets because of the wreckage of buildings where the streets used to be and where the building used to be perhaps only one wall stood, or a chimney that remained like a sentinal after everything else had crumbled.

A Balkan Occurrence

We were tired and we wanted to sleep and eat. When the sirens went off adn we heard the drone of planes up in the sky we pretended we weren't afraid of them and tried to go about our business, but angry Greeks grabbed our arms and forced us down into the catacombs.

That happened in all those Balkan countries during raids. It wasn't that they cared much about your safety. But they always thought that if you went right on walking down the street you would attract the bombers, and that might mean death for the rest of them. They wouldn't even let you talk above a whisper during a raid. They seemed to think the pilots were leaning out of their planes listening for voices.

But it was just as well they forced us down into the catacombs that day, because the bombs soon were falling right where we had been promenading.

Saw Boy Bugler

The air in those dark tunnels was so vile, because there was no ventilation of any kind, that we stood in the entranceway. That's how I happened to see the boy bugler of Corfu.

He stood on a parapet of an old fortress, silhouetted against the bright blue spring sky. He was only 12 or 14 years old. His face was olive-colored. His legs and arms were almost black from the sun. He was barefooted.

While older people hid, the boy bugler stood there, a hostage to fate. He kept twisting his head from side to side, watching for the planes. When he saw them approaching he put a dented old bugle to his lips and sounded a clear, loud call of warning.

I saw one bomb fall directly on the fortress. Pieces of stone flew in all directions. But the boy bugler ignored them and went on sounding his signals.

I lost sight of him after that because suddenly a bomb landed within a few rods of our tunnel. I remember I tried to steady myself with my hand against the doorway, but the next second I was flat on my back. I wasn't sure what had struck me. I jumped to my feet and looked down the tunnel.

Fall Like Ten Pins

No one had been killed or even wounded, so what I saw was just funny. I guess it was the only funny thing any of us had seen since that Yugoslav-Greek-German-Italian war began. The repercussion from the bomb—the blast of air that was forced into the tunnel—was so strong that it knocked a lot of us right off our feet. And when we fell we knocked over everyone else. Just like all the ten pins go down when the bowling ball hits the first one.

When the bombs weren't filling the air with racket that day, there were deep rumbles down in the earth. But the Corfu people told us not to worry, that it was only dynamite being set off to blast open more of those old catacombs that had been sealed up for generations but now could be used to such advantage by the bomb-scared islanders.

We had been arrested when we landed on the island, but the police became so unnerved by this last bombing that we had trouble getting them to decide what they were going to do with us for not having any of the required visas and other papers. One official explained that for months they had had to move their headquarters every few days because each time they "set up shop" somewhere, the building was invariably bombed within a few hours or a few days.

Old, Old Story

Terence Atherton of the London Daily Mail who had been with us from the start, had torn up all his British papers when we were scooting through the Italian fleet on the Adriatic. But now he wanted a new British passport. So we went with him to the British consulate on Corfu. A guard barred our way.

"The consul has warned me against admitting any parachutists" he said naively.

It was the old, old story. Either we were parachutists, or fifth columnists, or spies, or traitors.

It happened so often during that month that when I walk down Fifth Avenue today I fully expect someone to sneak up behind me, tap me on the shoulder and ask: "Parachutist?"

That day in Corfu the bombs fell mostly along the waterfront. They wrecked a large seaside hotel, made dubble out of the most modern set of port authority offices any of us had seen abroad and sank a few ships.

Had to Move Fast

After dark we stumbled around in the wreckage on the quays trying to find a ship to take us to the mainland. We hadn't been able to find communications in Corfu and it was certain that we had to continue moving fast if we wanted to stay ahead of the axis forces.

Finally we located a 20-ton Greek food ship. It was being loaded with thousands of loaves of black peasant bread for the Greek troops in Prebeza, just across the Ionian Sea from Corfu.

The skipper agreed to take us along. They would set out when the last loaf was loaded aboard. But there were still a few dozen guny sacks of bread on the dock when an excited official came running up, took the skipper by the arm and walked away with him, jabbering like mad.

The skipper came back alone. He started barking orders. We lay on the deck wondering what it was all about. Suddenly we saw the bread being hauled out of the hold and off the ship.

Solve The Mystery

We tried to talk English, French and German to someone but no one seemed to understand us. Our Greek was too limited to ask those questions which to us, then, seemed more imprtant, more vital, more a life-and-death matter than who was going to win the war.

What the devil goes on here? Why the unloading? When do we sail? Or do we?

It was nearly dawn when the last sack of bread was set down on the dock and the Spiradon Pyreaus lifted anchor and set out. Much later when we got friendly with the skipper and discovered that he did know some English, we solved the mystery of that night's strange doings.

The excited official had brought word to the skipper that axis forces had made an amazing advance that day. Prebeza probably would be occupied before we could get there. No one knew where to send the bread now. No one knew just where the retreating Greek forces would be by the time the food ship got across to the mainland. So the skipper of the Spiradon Pyreaus had better forget the bread and sail away quickly for some safe port if he wanted to save his ship from capture by the Italians, because Corfu would fall soon.

And so we sailed.

Saw Final Bombing

That morning, out on the Ionian Sea, we watched the final bombing of Corfu. The bombing that paved the way—or blasted the way—for military occupation of the island.

We kept wondering, while we leaned over the rail of the Spiradon Pyreaus and watched the flames and the smoke rising, about the boy bugler of Corfu. The black, barefooted youngster who knew no fear. We decided he was probably still blowing that battered bugle of his, unless he had been clipped off by bomb splinters or flying debris.

We were on the Spiradon Pyreaus for three nights. We tried to make ourselves useful as the five-man crew raced against capture or death. We used both sails and engines in a grim, and ultimately successful attempt to get away.

During the daytime we hid on islands, because there were always Italian seaplanes overhead and a three-masted schooner is about the neatest target a plane could ask for.

Hid on Island

One day we climbed to the top of the island of Leukas. We had to dodge behind trees and be careful no one saw us, because the natives down at the water's edge had told us the island already had been occupied by the Germans.

On top we found a crumbling monastery, in charge of an old monk whose white hair hung down his back in two braids. He spoke only Greek but he made it clear we were his guests for the day and he was honored. His three women attendants would see that we had everything we wanted. Before long they came from the kitchen with food....boiled herbs, goats' cheese, and big helpings of honey sprinkled with almonds for desert. It was the best food....almost the only real food....we had had in many a day.

War Not Mentioned

The old man talked religion and philospohy with the skipper and his tough crew. They told us later that the war..the war that was so close..was never mentioned.

While they talked we went into the little chapel with its silvered ikons and its ornate wooden altar. It was quiet in that miniature cathedral. Not a hint of sirens, or whistling bombs or screaming victims. We just stood there drinking in all this quiet.

One of us went over and put a handful of Greek drachma into a wooden box on the wall with a slit in the top, and then we lit some candles, as we had seen people do in other Greek churches. We didn't know much about Greek religious procedure, but we wanted somehow to show our appreciation of this first peace we had found since that Palm Sunday morning when planes roared out of the sunrise over Belgrade and crucified peace.

Foxboro

Foxboro — The heavy rain on Monday was greatly welcomed as a relief from the intense heat of the past week and lawns and gardens are looking very much better.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Stewart and daughter Gloria Ann of Point Anne were Sunday guests at Mr. Harold Stewart's.

Miss Marion Daniels left on Sunday for a motor trip to points in western Ontario.

Mrs. (Rev.) E. Link and son Mr. Walter Link and wife and son are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Sills.

Mrs. J. Brown of Thomasburg is staying for a time at Mr. R. A. Morton's.

Rev. and Mrs. E. M. Cook and Mr. and Mrs. S. Gay spent a few days at the summer cottage of the former's, near Peterboro.

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Wm. Cook on the death of her father, the late James Stapley and to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dafoe in the sudden death of their son, Mr. Garnet Dafoe.

Mrs. H. Scott and son Marvin, and Mrs. F. Morey spent Monday in Kingston with Mr. and Mrs. J. Gray.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Hillis and sons of Toronto were week end guests at Mr. Bert Wannamaker's.

Mrs. McCrudden of Toronto is a guest of her sister, Mrs. J. Gowsell.

Mrs. Annie Bonkin returned to her home on Sunday evening.

Mrs. (Rev.) Fanny Morey of Detroit returned home on Tuesday after spending a month with Mrs. H. Scott and other relatives.

Mr. George Belmour is ill. Friends hope he may soon recover.

Mrs. Eric Reed and family returned home after visiting relatives in the north.

Miss Doris Dafoe has secured a position in Belleville.

Melrose

Melrose — On Friday evening friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Haight in honor of the former's sister, Mrs. G. E. Simpkins, who has recently moved to Shannonville. Mr. E. Embury, Sunday School superintendent, called the assembly to order, inviting Mrs. Simpkins to the seat of honor. Mrs. J. C. Milligan read the address, Mr. W. McMeachan and Mr. Jno. Blatherwick presented the trilite lamp and chrome plated toaster to Mrs. Simpkins for which she sincerely thanked her friends for the beautiful gifts. All joined in singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds". Rev. Mr. Sterling in his remarks referred to being remembered for the good we have done was a grand tribute to any one's life in a community which applies so fittingly to Mrs. Simpkins.

Communion was observed in the United Church on Sunday morning. As the pastor Rev. W. Sterling is taking his holidays during the month of August the Sunday service is cancelled.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Pascoe have taken up residence in Mrs. E. Simpkin's house.

Mr. Grant McLaren, who has been at Ottawa has been transferred to Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. McLaren, Belleville, are spending several days with Mrs. G. McLaren.

Mrs. C. Jeffrey and Mrs. E. Simpkins, Shannonville, were Friday guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. Haight.

Mr. and Mrs. W. McCabe and Mrs. C. A. Knapp of Napanee were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. E. Badgley.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Weese and family attended the Rollins family reunion at Plainfield last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Davis, Marie and Percy spent Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. W. Marshall, Plainfield.

Everyone appreciates the lovely rain which was so greatly needed.

The W. M. S. will hold their August meeting at the parsonage, Shannonville, next Wednesday afternoon.

SON OF NAZI MINISTER KILLED

Berlin, Aug. 1 — (AP) — First Lieut. Walter Frick, 27, son of Interior Minister Wilhelm Frick, has died of wounds suffered in fighting on the eastern front, the newspaper Nachtausgabe said today.

INSPECTING GUN TURRET

The governor-general and the Princes Alice made a personal investigation of a gun turret of a Catalina long-range flying boat of the R.C.A.F. on a recent visit to the east coast. Air Commodore A. E. Godfrey, air officer commanding, eastern air command, explained the operation of the gun turret to the commander-in-chief and the Princess Alice.

Fuller Community Holds Supper for Br. War Victims

West Huntingdon — The people of Fuller community sponsored a pot luck supper on Wednesday evening and sent the proceeds which amounted to $31.00 to the British War Victims' Fund. All the ladies were highly commended for praviding so delicious a supper together with a fine program which was inspiring, patriotic and enjoyable for all present.

Rev. Mayor Merritt Price of Actinolite was the main speaker and delivered a challenging address urging greater action in the matter of loyalty and contributions to the Empire at this critical period. Rev. F. C. Beazer of the Roslin Anglican Parish gave a vivid account of some of his experiences in the Great War and also gave as a solo the marching song of his former battalion. Musical numbers were pleasingly rendered by Mrs. James Wilson, Misses Connie, June and Joyce Williams, Evelyn Emerson, Bernice McCann and Mr. Billy Roland. Mrs. Chester Sills in her very capable way asked for greater support for the Red Cross and displayed a number of finished articles. Mrs. Frank Kellar and Mrs. Sylvanus Mitts were added to the Red Cross committee. Rev. J. W. McDonald of the Presbyterian Church acted as chairman and Mr. Kenneth Stewart of the United Church was the treasurer. The supper was held in the dining hall of the Presbyterian Church.

The regular meeting of the Y. P. U. was held at the parsonage on Friday evening. Despite the heat and the business of the season, there was a very fine attendance with Mr. Harold Elliott presiding over program. A number of familiar hymns were sung and the Scripture was read by Mr. Alex McCurdy. Mr. Geo. Ashley was program leader and musical and vocal numbers were given by Irene and Marguerite Elliott and Marion and Phyliss Hammond. Mr. Kenneth Stewart gave the topic entitled — "The Bible".

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Sandy McCurdy and Joan attended the Tompkins-McQuarry wedding at Lindsay on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hewie and Clayton of Cameron were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Fargey.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Green and sons were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Brooks of Consecon.

The recent showers have been much appreciated by all the citizens here. The rapid growth of the alfalfa pasture has caused much disturbance among some of the heads. One or two of the farmers have lost an animal through bloating.

PLANE CRASHES KILLING FIVE

London, Aug. 1 — (CP) — A Royal Air Force plane crashed on houses at Dartford, Kent, Thursday, killing three of the crew and two civilians and injuring three other civilians.

Five houses were damaged seriously.

A sergeant was piloting the plane when he found he had to make a forced landing. He ordered his crew to bail out but three of the men apparently were unable to comply and they were killed. The sergeant, suffering only shock, was taken to a hospital.

Save Gasoline

Canada today is faced with an acute shortage of gasoline and fuel oil because of the diversion of tankers to vital overseas service.

You are therefore asked to step into the breach — to cut your car's gas consumption IN HALF—so that our fleets of corvettes and auxiliary ships, our mechanized army, our huge munitions plants and the Commonwealth Air Training Plan may function all-out, without interruption.

There are many practical ways in which you can help. First, pledge yourself to a 50% saving. Then, have your car tuned up regularly so that you may get the maximum of mileage from your gasoline dollar. Make fewer and shorter trips; shop on foot. Never drive solo to the office or golf club; make one car do the work of four. Other ways are shown in accompanying list.

It is also vitally important that you reduce the use of domestic and commercial fuel oil.

NATIONAL HOUSING

The Honourable J. L. Ilsley, Minister of Finance, has announced that National Housing Act loans approved during the first quarter of the fiscal year 1941-2, numbered 1,642 and aggregated $5,545,389. Of these loans, 395 were approved in April, 572 in May and 675 in June. All loans were limited to the financing of single family dwellings.

This increase now brings the total National Housing Act approvals to $73,765,334 and the number of units provided for to 22,123.

The average unit loan for the months of April, May and June was $3,134. Significantly indicating how the National Housing Act is continuing its contribution to low cost housing in Canada is the fact that of the above 1,642 dwelling units, 26% were financed by loans of $2,500 or less, 56% by loans of $3,000 or less and 77% by loans of $3,500 or less. The maximum loan was $4,000.

The National Housing Act valuation of these new single family houses averaged $3,660. Approximately 43¾ were valued from $3,000 to $4,000; 30% from $4,000 to $5,000. Only 6¾ were valued at more than $5,000; 21% at less than $3,000.

During this first quarter, 106 of the 90¾ loans were authorized. This compares with 413 such loans during the corresponding period of 1940. The decline in number is, in all probabilities, due to the rising costs of building. As of June 30, 1941, 2,322 of these 90% loans have been approved.

Ontario led with 9,345 loans, 11,869 units and 38,296,270 total.

EVENTS OF A YEAR

Many events have taken place in the last twelve months. The Hitler who was supposed to be poised for an attempt at invasion of Britain a year ago, has gone far, overridden many boundaries and by cajolery or threat forced nations into his "new order fold." He bludgeoned the Balkans the source of much raw materials and supplies and destroyed productivity to a large degree, he conquered Greece and Crete and then suddenly wheeled northward and eastward, to lunge at Russia. With Russia he is fighting today, surprised at Russia's resistance to his blitzkrieg as the greatest battle of the war is now raging between the Slavic power and the German Reich, Adolf Hitler has turned away from Britain, leaving what had been his self-appointed task —to try to invade Britain—yet to be begun. Yet Britain has been warned to be fully prepared against the possibility of an invasion attempt.

Adolf Hitler, in the opinion of many, is now in the clutch of his nemesis or fate which has caught up with him and leads him into war with Russia and to the coming defeat of his gigantic and brutal imperial plan of ruling the world.

The thing he would most avoid his actions have forced upon him. It is always so with crime, The criminal picks the lash to whip himself. Hitler is no different from other outlaws—he cannot override life, the silent working of the great laws of life and society are beginning to write on the wall the final doom of him and his fell purposes.

Once Hitler tried to fight a single front war, but he could not avoid the two-front war. He wanted to finish what he started after only a few months with his powerful military machine of which he boasted that it was the greatest power in all history, but those at whom he struck and would enslave would not allow that and today he stands finding the growing aggregation of forces strong to crush him. He wanted to beat U.S. aid and boasted that it would arrive too late. But the trend shows that British production is itself doing a magnificent work and American aid is helping to tell the story. The impetus of British-American production is writing a story in the British air raids over Germany.

Britain, according to Anthony Eden, is not to be drawn away from the final issue by any German-made appeal to peace or pledge for no pledge can be made with Hitler which he would keep. He said that Britain and the nations would see to it that not again would Germany have the power to plunge the world into another war after twenty years.

OURSELVES AND OTHERS...

A TOAST

Down at the water-front, winches a'rattling,
Battered old tramps and trim merchantmen lay,
Safely in harbor successfully battling
Perils of ocean when anchor's aweigh.
Longshoremen sweating with cargoes unladen
From points of the universe touched by the sea,
China, the Indies, Ceylon, Gulf of Aden,
Cuba, New Zealand, the Cape and Fiji.
On wharves one sees barrels, crates, bales and cases,
Bundles of hides and chests full of fine teas,
Boxes containing lamps, lanterns or laces,
Copra, corn syrup, condensed milk and cheese.
War or no war trade goes on just as ever,
Thanks to the Navy patrolling sea-lanes,
Safeguarding life-lines no Hitler can sever
As long as the old British spirit remains.
So let's drink a toast to the men of the Navy
And all the brave folk who go down to the seas,
Consign to the locker that's kept by old Davy,
Those would-be destroyers of man's liberties.

CIVIC HOLIDAY

It's going to be a grand holiday. The recent heavy rains that brought unquestioned relief to parched pasture lands and grain and hay crops, acted like a tonic to folks who contemplate taking a day off on Monday.

Many people will take advantage of the "long weekend" to indulge in their favorite holiday sports of fishing, camping, cottaging, etc., but at the same time the folks around the old home town have prepared an entertaining program for those who will conserve gasoline, etc., by staying at home or within the neighborhood, and patronizing the local program of sports.

Softball

To the softball gals of this town must go the palm for sacrifice. Loyal to the core, the greater majority of the mushball throwing femmes have signified their intentions of being here on Monday afternoon and evening and tangling war-bludgeons with the starry Sunday Morning Class, one of Toronto's outstanding softball teams, in games that should not only merit the support of thousands of Belleville softball fans, but should result in a flock of much-needed shekels going to the Red Cross War Victims's Fund.

This Toronto ladies softball squad are nobody's fools when it comes to throwing the overgrown baseball around. They are the one-time recognized champions of Toronto, remember? the town that grabs the best of everything? It did. Appearing in the uniform of the visitors, and two of their starry allstars, are Kay and Marie Genereaux, two gals who learned the elementaries of the abbreviated baseball right here in their home town.

Lots of Class

The Toronto gals will bring besides the most colorful uniforms ever worn by a ladies softball team, an ability that has earned them top-spots in metropolitan softball circles. But they will meet foemen worthy of their softball steel. The powers-that-be in Belleville have selected an aggregation composed of the cream of the softball crop here. They will be playing on their own home grounds, which, incidentally, is the Coleman Flats and not the Armouries lawn, and that should give them at least the moral advantage.

Such popular local stars as Helen Garrow, "Pee-Wee" Colden, Danny Stead, "Pete" Haslip, Irene Colden, Danny Stead, and other local softball luminaries, will pit their ability against that of the Queen City gals.

The games start at 4 and 7 p.m. and no one should miss these softball classics of the year.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

AUGUST 1, 1921.

A party of fifty boys and twenty-two girls arrived at the Marchmont Home here today from England. Homes for most of the boys and all of the girls have been secured. There are a few boys and girls around the ages of 10 and 11 still at the Home. Miss Gibson accompanied the party from England to their destination here.

The G.T.R. picnic at Massassaga was a great success. The steamers St. Lawrence and Brockville were kept busy all day and about 1,975 people were conveyed to the park; many others reached the park in automobiles, motor boats and sailing craft. Music for dancing was provided and there were foot races and a baseball game. The ball game was between the York Nationals and the G.T.R. team and resulted in a score of 2 to 1 in favor of the former team. The following composed the G.T.R. team: Ross, Meagher, Weir, W. Mills, F. Goyer, Casey, Kelliher, Smith and Symons. Umpires, bases, Bates; strikes and balls, McConnell.

The city fathers were in session until 2.15 o'clock this morning and were even then unable to complete the business necessary before adjournment can be made for holidays. The estimates were passed and the tax rate set at 24 1-2 mills which is 2 1-2 mills less than last year. The request from the school board for $35,000 was granted. A cheque for $15,000 was received from the C.N.O.R. being payment for the Isolation Hospital. As soon as the police offices and cells are moved from the city hall to the old meat market building, the quarters vacated will be put in condition to be used as offices for city officials. The following were present at the meeting: Mayor Ackerman, Aldermen Adams, Bleecker, Bogle, Caldwell, Canning, Chown, Clarke, Gibson, McGie, Parks, Sills, Vermilyea, Woodley and Marshall.

The Russian—Polish Blow to Hitler

London, Aug. 1.—The signing of the Russian-Polish friendship pact is a diplomatic military move of prime importance and indicates great sagacity on the part of the Russian Government. It leaves Adolf Hitler as the only enemy, actual or potential, of the small nations of Europe. It is a thoroughgoing repudiation of the whole Russo-German pact.

If Germany has any case whatsoever Poland and Russia have an equally good one and have had ever since 1918. The Polish frontiers were drawn after one hundred and fifty years and the division could not be established with exact ethnographic justice. Modern Poland included far more Ukrainian and White Russian racial stock than it ever did of German stock.

Objective students of ethnographic questions challenged the eastern frontier settlement at the time the division was made. Therefore, the Russian gesture will leave Germany without a scrap of ground to stand on.

Meanwhile, in the last two years since Poland became the victim of Hitler's aggression and Warsaw the first heap of rubble as the result of the Luftwaffe's activity, the Poles have justified the right to their country in the only way such a claim ever can be justified. They have demonstrated on every battle line, in every branch of service that they will die for Poland.

Some day a new Sienkiewicz will rise to write in epic form the story of the struggle of the Poles. He will record that when Poland's own military experts advised her she could not hold out three weeks against Germany's total war and Britain warned her that no immediate aid could be expected because of geographic conditions and the necessary disposition of inadequate forces, the Poles fought anyway.

It will be recorded that, defeated and scattered, they escaped to neighboring countries, there to be interned under international law. It will be recorded that from there they escaped one by one until thousands of them were working their way to France to stand in lines there against the German onslaught. It will be recorded that no legions in France stood firmer, that when the Poles were forced to retreat they marched to Switzerland in full order to be received in silent admiration by the Swiss.

It will be recorded they stand on guard 30,000 strong in Scotland, that they are fighting in the Near East, that they are among the most daring fliers and among the most undaunted men of the merchant and armed marine.

It will be recorded that Nazi guile found no Quisling in Poland. It will be recorded that the fierce, passive resistance of the people, who, beaten and imprisoned, shot, humiliated, terrorized, has made it excessively difficult for the Germans to administer their country.

It will be recorded that young men and women published secret newspapers, operated secret sending and receiving radio stations under the eyes of the Gestapo. It will be recorded that the secret, sullen warfare goes on continually, relentlessly. It will be recorded that the fiercely loyal support of the men of Polish blood in Chicago, Cleveland and Buffalo, who, working in armament factories, watch carefully to prevent sabotage in the making of arms to protect America and defeat Hitler, and that they work for Poland, too.

It will be recorded that all the fierce pride and undaunted scorn of the people of that impoverished nation who possess the noble virtue of gratitude and who, being called into a rebirth by the democracies, remain loyal to them thru' thick and thin, intending once again to raise a statue to Woodrow Wilson which the Germans have torn down.

And it will be recorded also that intelligence and realism had grown among the Polish leaders in the face of disaster, how they drew near to the Czechs, planning with them a more reasonable collaboration, recognizing that in the modern world independence is the sister of interdependence, and co-operation is the mate of liberty.

The peace move on the part of Russia is revealing in another sense. It means Russia recognizes that the pull of nationhood is stronger among the peoples of the world than international Communism and that Russia as a liberator of peoples is more powerful than Russia as the centre of the Comintern.

The ranks of Russia close under the impulse of the age-long Slavic fear of the Teuton, and Russians of all political colors rediscover that Russian soil, whether protected by Reds or Whites, is the home of Russians to be defended against any invader under any banner.

This broken but beautiful city of London has become the world centre of lost causes, homeless governments, homeless soldiers and poets. The sun of the lost causes is the cause of the future. It is the cause fought for by this sceptered isle, the home of kings, and the land of the Red Star, and the proletariat.

What will come out of it all no one can quite foresee, but certainly it will be a synthesis.

x—x

Meanwhile a journalist feels the inadequacy of his medium. Poets and novelists should write about this war, not only journalists, for the truth about it can be grasped by sensibilities and imagination more clearly than by a mere factual study of events.

The last war produced a Remarque and a Barbusse to record its futility. This war will produce a Victor Hugo, a Sienkiewicz, a Joseph Conrad to record the final triumph of the world's lost cause through the invincibility of the human spirit.

The German people know it. Led dumbly and docilely from victory to victory they have apprehended the check that will come, for they know their outlandish leader has made them into rank outsiders of the world. He is making them the pariah of mankind, even in their triumphs to be deeply pitied by the imaginative mind.

Fifty Kinds Of Insects 1,000 Feet Up

From the New York Herald Tribune

All the out-of-town visitors to the top of the Empire State Building don't get up there by the elevator, it was learned when Dr. E. Porter Felt, former New York State entomologist, said he had found more than fifty varieties of insect that had drifted on wind currents on to the eighty-sixth floor observation tower.

Dr. Felt, who has been studying the wind drift of insects from the 1000-foot height of the observation tower for the last six weeks, said both beneficial and destructive insects were found, indicating that they may drift for miles in this area in the upper air.

Caterpillar ants, the willow leaf beetle and the Japanese beetle, all considered pests, were among the insects collected. Ladybugs, which prey upon plant lice, and ground beetles, which destroy canker worms or forest tent caterpillars, were among beneficial insects found.

The ground beetles, Dr. Felt said, probably came from northern New Jersey or Rockland or Orange counties in New York. As the Empire State Building is surrounded by acres of roofs and streets unfavorable to insect life, most of the captures had to come from a distance, he said.

Insect quarantines do little good, Dr. Felt said, when the pests are carried in the air high over the heads of government inspectors to drop in new territory like attacking parachutists. Cotton moths, he said, have been known to drift 1,000 to 1,500 miles while mosquitoes have been found 3,000 feet in the air.

TEARS PRESERVE EYE TISSUES

Tears keep the eyes moist so that the delicate tissues of the eyes may be preserved. If the eyes are not constantly kept moist, the tissues of the eye become dry and then can be more easily attacked by bacteria. The tear, or lacrimal, gland lies in the bony niche on the inner side of the eye. Six or more little tubes carry the tears from this gland to the eyes. Another tube, known as the nasal tube, carries the overflow of fluid from the eyes to the nose.

Whenever a person cries, or his eyes water, his nose is affected. Most times there is just enough moisture provided by the tear ducts to keep the eye in a proper state of softness or luster.

Tears have always had a romantic interest. In 1581, a Latin physician recorded his investigations of a girl, age 16, whose tears resembled blood. Quite recently a case was described of a little girl in Pennsylvania who had bloody tears. In most instances it is found that there has been an inflammation of the eyelids with swelling of the blood vessels and exuding of blood corpuscles from these vessels. After the inflammation is healed, the bloody tears no longer appear.

Most people think that the tears are just water. The story is told of a chemist who said to wis wife, "Your tears have no effect on me. I realize they are simply salt and water."

Recently, Drs. Richard Thompson and Edward allardo of the Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center made a study of tears to find out whether or not they had any power to destroy germs. They obtained tears from a number of different people by holding a wide-necked bottle containing recently crushed onions close to the eyes. The tears were collected in a small tube; then the effects of these tears on the growth of germs was studied.

It was found that tears can inhibit the growth of staphylococci, although tears are not antiseptic like iodine, alcohol, or other antiseptic substances.

THE COUNTY FAIR

Some years back there were nearly 3,000 county, state and regional fairs held every year in the United States.

This figure has been reduced somewhat in recent years, but the local fair is still a thriving institution in America.

Fairs in the form of local markets were ancient institutions in the Old World.

Such fairs, however, are really market fairs, temporary or periodical markets where the people of a given locality or trade take their products to sell or barter them.

Similar fairs, modeled after the English and European market fairs, were held at an early date in America.

George Washington Parke Custis, adopted son of George Washington, held market fairs at Arlington across the Potomac from Washington, and in 1804, Dr. William Thornton, first patent commissioner and designer of the U.S. Capitol, promoted a fair of this kind in Washington.

But the first typically American fair as we know the institution today was organized by Elkanah Watson at Pittsfield, Massachusetts, in 1811. This first agricultural fair was held under the auspices of the Berkshire Agricultural Society.

In the course of the 19th century similar county and local fairs sprang up throughout America.

These fairs had little in common with European and even earlier American fairs except the name.

They were not held to barter or sell products, but merely to exhibit them.

The county fair, besides exhibiting and offering prizes for the choice farm and industrial products of the locality, is a social event.

It has played an important part in the cultural development of America.

As the years passed all sorts of entertainment followed the county fair, such as wrestling, catching a greased pig, climbing a slippery pole, pie-eating contests, sheep-shearings, bands, military parades, trapeze performances, horse, automobile and motor-cycle racing, shell-games, lotteries and other gambling devices, balloon and airplane ascensions and parachute jumps, sideshows and what not.

A history of the county fair, with its exhibits and entertainment, would be a complete record of the mechanical and cultural evolution of America.

HE RE—

Here is laughter night and day,
Here the schoolhouse door is wide.
Here all summer children play,
Here to work the toilers ride.
Here are books for all to read.
Here are drama, song, and mirth.
Here are choice of prayer and creed.
Here are all the joys of earth.

Here within this land of ours
Windows wear the whitest lace.
Little yards are gay with flowers.
Green the grass where youngsters race.
Here whatever men like best
Weekends find them free to do
Here no thought must be suppressed
To some tyrant point of view.

Look about the world today!
Where in any land appear
Children happier at play.
Mothers happier than here?
Here the nights are sweet with rest.
Here God's blessings richly fall.
Here is everything that's best!
Here's the happiest land of all!

On Monday afternoon the visiting ladies will be entertained at a theatre party. On Tuesday morning they will be conducted on a drive through Prince Edward and Hastings counties, with lunch served at the Country Club, where the afternoon will be spent in bridge, golf and tennis.

Wednesday morning is being reserved for a shopping tour.

Em. Kt. Garn E. Dobbs is Chairman of the General Committee, and Em. Kt. H. J. Andrews Secretary.

As the visitors will come from all over Canada and the United States it is hoped that the citizens will make them welcome and that the merchants will display their flags and dress their windows in keeping with the occasion.

Not so Generous As They Appeared

Ingersoll, Ont., Aug. 1 —(CP)— A Windsor motorist pulled his car up before a rural gasoline station outside Ingersoll just before seven in the morning to await unlocking of the pumps. Another car came up, containing two youths.

"Out of gas?" they asked.

"Oh, I have about three gallons, but thought I'd fill here, when they open."

"We could let you have three or four gallons," said the youths.

Finally, it was agreed that they would siphon out what they had into the Windsor car. "We will be around here all day and don't need it," they said.

The Windsor man pulled away. His engine sputtered. It stopped. He looked. The generous youths had taken his gasoline through their siphon instead of giving him their's.

FAMOUS EDITOR DIES

London, Aug. 1 — (CP) — Sir Emsley Carr, editor and chairman of the London "News of the World" and one of the outstanding personalities of British Journalism, died yesterday at the age of 74.

He became editor of the London Weekly in 1891 when it had a circulation of 40,000 and by 1939 he had increased its sale to 4,000,000, the largest in the world.

Prime Minister Churchill and several other cabinet ministers attended a luncheon last May celebrating Sir Emsley's completion of 50 years as editor of the "News of the World." In all that time, the editor asserted proudly, he never had discharged a member of his editorial staff.

Spanning the Atlantic in an R.A.F. bomber, Air Commodore the Duke of Kent arrived in Canada to study the air training scheme in this country. He is pictured here as he held his first press conference with Canadian newspapermen on the grounds of Rideau Hall, Ottawa.

German Gourmands a Plague On Defeated Greeks

By GEORGE WELLER

Athens—If the United States general staff wishes to imitate the Nazi blitzkrieg during its Summer war games in a harmless and pleasurable fashion it can do so by introducing the principles of military victualing tested by the Germans, in the Greek restaurants.

Much has been said of German concentrated foods, powders and juices that turn sawdust into nectar and make every Nazi soldier self-sufficient for eight days upon the hoof. But when the Greeks—whose thousands of sidearm specialists in America know plenty about food—discuss how the blitzkrieg can be stopped they answer, "Close up the restaurants." For when German meets German in Greece the first thing he does is to enter a Greek restaurant and eat.

From the experience of the Balkan campaign, the Greeks believe that the Nazi advance toward Moscow has been slowed down because there is not a lunch cart, tea room or Greek nut sundae spa in Russia.

They Bomb, Then Eat

The secret of the lightning Nazi advances, according to the Greeks, is that every moment that can be spared from strafing is used in diligent, continuous eating. It took some time for the Greeks to understand that the first thing the German Army does after bombing a city is to eat everything in it.

When they grasped this epicurean feature of the blitzkrieg it was already too late to close the restaurants. Instead they raised the prices. As a result the proprietors of Athens' most aristocratic and expensive eating places, Kostis and Maxims, both have been in jail.

They are now forced to keep their doors open, accepting Axis funny money —worthless, occupational marks printed by the millions in an Athenian suburb and phony Italian-made drachmas —for wines and foodstuffs that cost thousands of gold-backed drachmas when bought.

To some people the most disillusioning feature about the Greek campaign was the British officers, suffering continuous unprotected bombing and machine-gunning by Nazi planes on exposed roads, stubbornly continued to travel country-club styles in American-built station wagons that have no overhead visibility and whose doors invariably jam at the moment when only a quick dive into a ditch is protection against death. But the German occupation revealed an even more prosaic fact, that the deadliest weapons in the Nazi arsenal are not bombs, flame throwers and machine guns but knives, forks and spoons.

Nazi Capture the Food

While the British conscientiously imported almost all their foods from Egypt, the Germans brought almost nothing but enough ersatz to tide them over between towns. The Agoranomia, or food control section, was first captured everywhere. In Athens the Germans asked where the food administration was even before they demanded the surrender of hidden arms.

All Hellenic eating records collapsed from the time when the first German feldwebel planted his feet under a table at Zonars and pounded for attention. The record of 16 chocolate cakes consumed at a single sitting—at a time when ragged Greek officers, having marched for three weeks from Albania eating grass, were begging for food at Tthenian back doors — was seized by the infantry from the Luftwaffe gourmands, who specialized in rich, American-style sundaes.

In any occupied town it is a common occurrence to see a German blitz straight down a menu consuming double orders throughout and tripling anything really toothsome. Such Decathlon eating records would be merely a pleasantly human counterweight to Nazi aceticism if the factory girls in Athens were not fainting repeatedly at work for lack of sufficient nourishment.

Demand Costly Eggs

Every restaurant from Alexandropolis to Calamata has its own incredible German eating records. Flocas, a famous eating place in Salonika — the city whose only flour mill was burned down the night before the Nazis entered—is still talking about five Germans who demanded five orders of bacon and eggs with three eggs each. At the time only smuggled eggs were obtainable, at 12 cents each, about five times the normal price.

When the Germans finished the first order they commanded another. After that they commanded a third, still with three eggs on each plate. Before invariable successions of rounds of sundaes they insisted on having two large orders of ham apiece.

This was at a time when the market places were literally bare to the boards and the writer was unable, regardless of cost, to get anything but string beans, cherries and bread. It has been common in Tthens for civilians to be denied eggs with the proprietor's answer, "Must save all my eggs for the Germans or I will be arrested."

They Levy on Wholesalers

For several weeks it was impossible for restaurateurs even under threat of imprisonment to supply all the food the Germans wished to eat. In order to be sure the Reichswehr's strength did not fade the Stadthommandatur farmed out wholesale orders to the Greek middlemen. The writer has studied several such wholesale orders. They say nothing about price. Price is never an object to the Reichswehr, because they print their own money wherever they go and their bayonets do the legalizing.

The orders I read stated merely that a given quantity of certain food articles would be obtained by a given date and the Germans would pay the cost of purchase, upkeep and transport en route to Athens and cost of delivery and distribution. The eventual total of all the charges was airily left unmentioned. Whatever it was it would be met — from piles of freshly printed Reichskassenscheine.

Take U.S. Red Cross Food

The large supply of tinned beef and other food left behind by the retreating British for the American Red Cross was taken away from the custody of Director Paul Thorn by the clique of Germanophile Greek generals who preceded the Tsokaloglou government. When the American relief man tried to recover the food for distribution in refugee quarters in Piraeus and Athens, where rickets and malnutrition are rampant, he was turned down with the bluntest discourtesy. Later two truckloads of the same food were distributed by the Germans in the same suburbs while Nazi cameramen ground busily.

A telegram was sent by the American Red Cross to Thorn, stating among other orders that the contents of the food ship en route should not be distributed pending further orders. The telegram passed through German censorship by way of the foreign office and the legation in Athens. As checkup by mail later showed, this paragraph was removed from the telegram en route.

Germans Seize Grain Stores

A major crisis between Tsokaloglou's Government and Gen. Sigismund Wilhelm von List, who selected him, arose when the Germans seized all the wheat and corn in the co-operative storehouses of Thessaly. They also claimed for the army all unripe crops still standing in the grain fields of the war-ridden western provinces of Aetolia and Acharnania. The Premier learned that the wheat in the storehouses would last only until June 10 and, unable to face longer the importunities of the starving Greeks, told Von List that he must resign. The German High Command thereupon issued a proclamation stating:

Worker's One-Sixth Ration

Present prospects are that at the present ration of approximately five ounces daily per person—about one-sixth the normal diet of the Greek laborer— wheat stocks mixed with corn meal will hold until the arrival of the new crop late this month. But the ration cannot be extended and the workman must simply tighten his belt over the hollow place caused by lack of his most essential food.

When German officers, suspicious that they are not to get everything on hand, insist on visiting kitchens, ice chests, Greek cooks receive them with scant courtesy. But simply by ignoring politics and fighting with the Greeks strictly about food, many members of the Reichswehr have picked up a surprising command of the Greek language. Three sitting in a tavern below the Acropolis the other night ordered in German, as the cap to an enormous meal, "Three coffees, bitter." "Three poisons," yelled the waiter in Greek with a malevolent look. One Nazi raised his head:

"Make that two poisons and one coffee," he said in perfect Greek. "I happen to be Austrian."

In another excellent story by the author of "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," the above two screen favorites, Herbert Marshall and Virginia Bruce, head the important cast appearing in the outstanding production, "Adventure in Washington," which starts Sunday midnight at the McCarthy Theatre. The feature that sets a new high for hilarity, "Two in a Taxi," featuring Anita Louise and Russell Hayden, opens on the same program.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was sitting on my front steps with Reddy Merfy and Shorty Judge talking about different subjects, and Shorty said G, there's the Berk Streeters.

Wich they were, about 5 of them, standing up at the corner, waving sticks and smacking them against the payment the way they generally do, and I said, Look, Whitey Dorgan is with them.

Whitey Dorgan being the tuffest of all of them, and Reddy Merfy said, Well what of it, who's he any different from anybody elts?

Well G. Reddy, would you offer to fight him? I said, and Reddy said, O, I dont know, I might, I never thought about it. Why, what's a matter, would you offer to challence the winner? he said.

Who, me? I said, I wasn't talking about myself, I said, and Reddy said, Then shut up before somebody pushes your face in.

Meaning him, and Shorty said, Hay, they're starting to come down this way.

Wich they were, and Shorty's mother stuck her head out their front window and stuck it back again like somebody not wanting anything special, and Shorty said, Hay, my mother's looking for me, maybe it's important.

And he quick ran home, and the Berk Streeters kept on coming down talking loud and banging their sticks, and I said, Well, I guess I think maybe I'll go in.

What's a matter, are you scared or something? Reddy said, and I said, Why, cant a guy go in his own house without having a special reason?

Being a good answer, and I went in and peeked through the front window just in time to see Reddy quick going away as fast as he could walk without running.

AT THE BELLE

"A Woman's Face"

Thrills, excitement and stark drama mingle with heart-interest in "A Woman's Face," story of a woman turned criminal through ugliness, who works out her regeneration with a new-found beauty. Starring Joan Crawford and Melvyn Douglas, with Conrad Veidt in a powerful supporting role, to be presented at the Belle tonight for the last times.

"Thieves Fall Out," Comedy

A film that bubbles with romance and laughter is announced as the companion feature in Warner Bros. "Thieves Fall Out." The picture stars the sparkling Joan Leslie-Eddie Albert team in a heart-warming tale of young love.

The last complete show starts at 8.30 p.m.

"Moon Over Miami," Color

All the lavishness of "that Night In Rio," the melody of "Tin Pan Alley," and the eye-appeal of "Down Argentine Way" have been brought together in the latest 20th Century-Fox Technicolor musical, "Moon Over Miami," which opens next at the Belle Theatre.

Framed against the lush tropical beauty of Miami, the glamour city of the South, "Moon Over Miami," features Don Ameche, Betty Grable and Robert Cummings in their most delightful and entertaining roles. The stars more than live up to their parts by giving outstanding performances. Charlotte Greenwood, Jack Haley, Carole Landis and Cobina Wright, Jr., are other members of the star-studded cast whose acting merits orchids.

This amusing film is the gay, tune-filled tale of how to invest an inheritance. Two sisters, Betty Grable and Carole Landis, induce their aunt, Charlotte Greenwood, to accompany them to Miami. All three have just inherited $5,000, and Betty decides to invest it in clothes and a lavish suite at one of Miami's ritziest hotels. Her purpose is to hook a millionaire by looking like a millionairess. Carole poses as her secretary and Miss Greenwood as her personal maid. Betty is so convincing as an heiress that she not only hooks a millionaire, Robert Cummings, but another fortune hunter like herself, Don Ameche. Unfortunately she falls in love with Don before she disvorers her mistake. Down to her last dollar, she accepts Bob's proposal, but before she can marry him, cupid sets things topsy-turvey for a madcap climax.

We predict that "Moon Over Miami" will make musical history and theatre patrons will be whistling Leo Robin's and Ralph Rainger's hit tunes, "Kindergarten Conga," "Hurrah For Today," "Miami," "I've Got You All To Myself," "Loveliness and Love," "You Started Something," "Is That Good," and "Solitary Seminole."

"Modern Highway" is the title of a new and thrilling adventures of a newsreel cameraman, to be presented on the same program with "Early to Bed" a funny Walt Disney color fun cartoon and the Belle Latest World News Events. On Saturday matinee, the latest chapter of the popular "Winners of the West" serial will be exhibited.

Sunday Midnight Show

Paramount pictures, which apparently knows a good thing when it sees one, has fetched that bouncing, buoyant Broadway comedy "Kiss the Boys Goodbye" to Hollywood for screen treatment, and the result of that transfer from stage to sceren will be on view for a preview presentation at the Belle Theatre Sunday after midnight 12.05, where it will be shown for the first times locally. It's been embellished by stars and hit tunes.

Starring Don Ameche and lovely, gifted Mary Martin, and featuring that effervescent musical know-it-all, Oscar Levant, of the "Information Please" radio program; Connie Boswell, the radio songstress, and Rochester, this time a fugitive from Jack Benny, the lineup of the new comedy with music is a welcome augury of a perfectly swell time for us film fans. Especially is it a good omen when Victor Schertzinger is at the directorial helm.

Not only is Schertzinger one of Hollywood's most succesful directors, with "Road to Singapore" and "Road to Zanzibar" to his credit, but he is also one of the most brilliant composers of Tin Pan Alley, with scores of hit songs to his credit. For "Kiss the Boys Goodbye," he has written the music for five brand new songs.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Round Up"

Last night, we sat back breathlessly and watched "The Round Up" thunder its way across the screen at the Capitol Theatre. If you enjoy a real he-man, six-gun drama loaded with suspense, spectacle and something new in romance, don't miss this one.

The picture is perfectly cast and backed up by a story that's full of surprises. Drama begins in the very first scene when Richard Dix, prosperous rancher, is being married to lovely Patricia Morison. Preston Foster, a one-time admirer of Patricia's, swaggers in and kisses the new bride. She had been in love with this reckless cowboy for years, but all this was over when word reached her that he had been reported killed in a gun-fight.

The bewildered beauty remains torn between loyalty to her husband and desire for Foster whom she still loves. But in the end, Foster sacrifices his life to save Dix during a battle between gunrunning Indians and U.S. troops.

When the shooting is over and law and order once more restored, Don Wilson, Jack Benny's radio announcer, who plays the 300-lb. Sheriff, winds up in the arms of his comedy mate, Ruth Donnelly, a woman with marital designs on the coy but ponderous Sheriff.

Richard Dix, Patricia Morison and Preston Foster star while popular Don Wilson, thirteen-year-old Betty Brewer, Ruth Donnelly, Jerome Cowan, Douglass Dumbrille, and The King's Men, melodious singers of Western tunes, round out the unusal cast gathered together for "The Round Up." Producer Harry Sherman and Director Lesley Selander are to be congratulated for this thrilling Western spectacle drama.

"Sleepers West"

"Sleepers West," the new 20th Century-Fox picture which opened last night at the Capitol Theatre as the added attraction, is an exciting mystery thriller which continues the adventures of Private Detective Michael Shayne. Lloyd Nolan again portrays the two-fisted, fast-talking sleuth and brunette Lynn Bari, blonde Mary Beth Hughes, Edward Brophy and Ben "Shadrach" Carter are featured with him in the swift-moving production.

On board the crash-bound Comanche Limited, Michael Shayne is escorting an important witness to a murder trial. Shayne has the situation well in hand, however, and it's grand entertainment. Don't miss it. The latest News Events and fourth chapter of the thrilling serial, "The Mysterious Dr. Satan" closes the bill.

THE WAR TODAY

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

German intrigue is finding Mexico much less fertile ground in this war than in the struggle of 1914-18 when German agents were able to exploit anti-United States feeling in the Central American Republic.

The latest Mexican rebuff to German meddling came last night when the Mexican Foreign Minister, using forceful language, rejected a German note suggesting that Mexico protest the blacklisting by the United States of pro-Nazi commercial organizations operating in Central and South America.

In the First Great War the Germans, as in the present conflict, were lavishly promising various nations territories and other things which did not belong to Germany, and to Mexico it was suggested that in return for her co-operation with Germany she would receive a strip of United States territory along the Mexican border.

The British Government intercepted the famous "Zimmerman note" from the German Foreign Office to Mexico and the unmasking of the German intrigue proved a notable factor in bringing the United States into the war.

In the present case the best, or the worst, the Germans could offer was a threat that Mexico's attitude now "could not but influence the decisions of the German Government upon renewing commercial relations after the war."

Incidentally, this lapse to talk of "after the war" in commercial matters is a sorry come down from the ebullient promises of "fall delivery" made on all sides by German agents in South America a year ago when they believed Britain's defeat was only a few weeks away.

In rejecting the German note, the Mexican Foreign Minister, Ezequiel Padilla, made it clear that in this war Mexico is all for hemispheric solidarity and co-operation with her neighbor to the north. He said Mexico could not 'permit a foreign diplomat to call its attention' to questions concerning Mexican Sovereignty.

The Germans also are finding the going hard in Argentina, which hitherto has handled its relations with the belligerents with great care because of its dependence on European markets in peactime.

The German ambassador in Buenos Aires, Edmund Von Thermann, is under fire for his part in attempting to use diplomatic privileges to ship a high-power portable radio transmitter across Argentina to the German legation in Peru, where it undoubtedly would have been used for propaganda purposes.

Earlier in the week the German Minister in Bolivia, Ernst Wendler, was expelled for plotting the overthrow of the Bolivian government in favor of a pro-Nazi group.

Picton and District

Picton (Special)—Sergt. B. Adams and Mrs. Adams returned to Ottawa on Tuesday after spending two weeks' leave with their parents Mr. and Mrs. Adams Sr. of Mount Albert and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Williams of Picton.

The body of Mr. Wash. Gordon of Norwood, a former resident of Picton, and for many years an employee of A. Bristol and Son, was brought to Picton for burial on Monday where a short service at Glenwood chapel was attended by many friends.

Mrs. Wm. Cavers and son, Tony are spending this week with relatives in Toronto. Misses Darell and Suzanne Cavers who have been some time in the city will return with them on Sunday.

Mrs. Chas. Wycott, Mrs. Irvine Miller, Mrs. Chas. Daubney, Miss Vera Miller and Miss W. Wycott returned on Tuesday from a week's motor trip to Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara Falls.

A number from Picton attended the regatta in Kingston on Wednesday.

DRUGGIST RECOVERING

Hamilton, Aug. 1 (CP)—The condition of Edwin Isard, who suffered severe burns in an explosion at his drug store in nearby Burlington Wednesday night is "very satisfactory," hospital authorities said today.

Miss Barnice Connell, 17, Burlington, died from injuries received in the same explosion.

Washington, Aug. 1 —(AP)— Senator "Cotton Ed" Smith (Dem.-SC) was 77 years old today but the dean of the senate declared that he felt like "16 years old." Smith, who has been a member of the senate since 1908, said he would spend the day on the job, going to "the Cave of the Winds and listen to the winds blow."

Bonarlaw

Bonarlaw— The Rawdon Branch Canadian Red Cross Society shipped a number of articles to headquarters last week.

Donations were handed in by Ward Chairmen as follows,— Mrs. Lindsay Tanner, Ward 4, $2.00 from Minto School; $16.00 raised by quilting and dinners; Mrs. G. S. Eastwood, Ward 6, $10.00, donated by Springbrook W. I. for buying flannelette; Mrs. F. Bateman, Ward 5, accepted quota clothing British civilians, 30 garments.

Gunner Angus Cole of 5th, L.A. A., R.C.A., Petawawa, and his brother Alex Cole of Belleville were visiting friends in this vicinity on Saturday.

Jack Eastwood, Jr., of Toronto, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Eastwood, this week.

Pte. Chas. Barnard of The Home Guard recently of Ottawa, is now stationed at Maligne, Que.

Messrs. M. Fitzgerald and J. Davidson shipped a large quantity of livestock from here this week.

Sidney Crossing

Sidney Crossing — Master Garnet May accompanied by Master Arnold Ketcheson spent the week end at his home, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. George Millard spent Saturday night and Sunday with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Hogle. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Jeffery and Grace also called at their home in the afternoon on Sunday.

Mrs. Rogers of Wooler is visiting at the home of her son, Mr. Lorne Rogers and Mrs. Rogers.

Miss Loreen May has returned to her home, Belleville, after spending the past week with her grandparents.

Several ladies of the second line attended the Red Cross sewing day on Tuesday in connection with the Bay of Quinte Institute at the home of Mrs. George Bush, Belleville Road. A quilt was quilted and much more sewing underway.

Many silos were blown down, fruit and shade trees were lowered to the ground along all lines in the neighboring vicinities with the severe wind storm that swept thru here on Monday last.

Many families of the neighborhood have been suffering from stomach 'flu.

The many friends of Mr. Lee Grills will be glad to know he is progressing favorably after being a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. Barton Hogle is much improved after undergoing an operation in the Belleville General Hospital and is convalescing at her sister's, Mrs. Manly Fox, Trenton, before returning to her home here.

Runaway Team With Mower Crashes Into Car From Picton

Picton, Aug. 1—A freak accident occurred at South Bay this week when a team of runaway horses attached to a mower, crashed into a car driven by Mrs. Blake Branscombe of Picton. Though Mrs. Branscombe pulled the car to a halt on the side of the road the horses swerved and came straight at it. They attempted to straddle the car, the horses piling up on each fender and the tongue of the mower going through the car window narrowly missing the occupants.

Mrs. Branscombe and children escaped injury but her sisters, Mrs. A. Slater of Vancouver and Mrs. E. Reid of Chicago suffered slight cuts from flying glass. The car was damaged about the front.

The team was owned by Howard Dulmage of South Bay and had taken fright while the owner had gone to inspect a field of grain.

Tired, Aching, Perspiring Feet

Relieves Pain and Soreness Great for Offensive Odors

One application of Emerald Oil and you'll get the surprise of your life. Your tired, tender, smarting burning feet will literally jump for joy.

No fuss, no trouble; you just apply a few drops of the oil over the surface of the feet night and morning, or when occasion requires. Just a little and rub it in. It's simply wonderful the way it acts, while for feet that sweat and give off an offensive odor, there's nothing better.

It's a wonderful formula—this combination of essential oils with camphor and other antiseptics—so marvelous that thousands of bottles are sold annually.

CHILD SUFFOCATES

Cornwall, Ont., Aug. 1 (CP)—Mrs. Gordon St. Louis tucked in her five-year-old girl, and went to the funeral of Robert Trudel, her small nephew who was drowned last Tuesday.

When she reached home her own child was dead, apparently suffocated as he slept.

Coroner C. A. Stewart decided no inquest will be held.

Prof. Carscallen himself spent some time in Ivanhoe and takes great pleasure in visiting that community while in Canada.

A Back-Buttoned Cotton Style

By ANNE ADAMS

A truly well-dressed woman looks crisp, fresh and pretty the clock 'round. That's why this little Anne Adams frock, Pattern 4806, is so indispensable! It's neat and takes to laundering like a duck to water. In front there's a wide bodice panel that continues right down into the shapely waist-girdle. The neckline is cut in a sweetheart shape; "handangle" pockets are optional but smart. That back buttoning is not only a saucy style note, but it's also convenient for dressing. Make tiny cap sleeves in-one with the bodice, have straight set-in sleeves, or omit the sleeves entirely. For gay flashes of color, use ric-rac edging—or have the bodice panel and girdle in sprightly contrast!

Pattern 4806 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3 3-8 yards 35-inch fabric and 3 1-8 yards ric-rac.

Send twenty cents (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

Send your order to The Ontario Intelligencer Pattern Department, 166 Front St., Belleville, Ont.

Weddings

WANAMAKER—REID

In a quiet ceremony Monday evening, July 28, at the Rectory of St. Peter's Anglican Church, Cobourg, Luella Emma Katherine Reid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Reid of Trenton, was married to Vernon Joseph Wanamaker, member of the Canadian Active Army, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wanamaker of Trenton. The ceremony was performed by the Very Rev. W. L. Armitage, M.A., D.D., with Miss Mary C. Reynar and Miss Helen E. Armitage as witnesses.

SHIPP—WALTERS

Historic St. Mary's Anglican Church in Bramshott, England, was the setting for a wedding ceremony, when Miss Margaret Elizabeth Walters only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Walters, of Napanee, Ont., became the bride of Captain Frank Loudon W. Shipp, son of Mrs. Charles J. McDonald, of Forest Hill Village, Toronto. Captain Shipp had gone from Toronto General Hospital to the orthopedic staff of the Lahey Clinic at Boston, but when war was declared returned immediately to join the surgical staff of the 15th Canadian General Hospital, Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps.

The wedding service was conducted by Captain the Rev. William Prior. The bride, given in marriage by Colonel Farmer, Officer Commanding the 15th General Hospital, R.C.A.M.C., was in a pleated gown of powder blue crepe. Her matching hat had a shoulder-length veil caught with pink rose buds. Her bouquet was of Briarhill roses and cornflowers.

Nursing Sister Margaret Dewar, P.C.A.M.C., was maid of honor.

Captain Andrew Henderson, who attended the bridegroom, and the four ushers, Major Douglas Cannell, Captain Austin Walters, cousin of the bride, Major Robert Dickson and Major Timothy Till, are all fellow officers of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, with the exception of Major Till, who is with the Royal Army Medical Corps of England. Eight of the bridegroom's brother officers formed a guard of honor.

A reception was held in the officer's mess of the 15th Canadian General Hospital. Among a large gathering of guests were: Brigadier-General and Mrs. A. G. L. McNaughton, Brigadier and Mrs. R. M. Luton, Col. Cecil Rae and Colonel Fenwick, all of Headquarters Staff, London. After the bride had cut the wedding cake with a sword, which was decorated with a sword-knot of ribbons in regimental colors, the couple left for Scotland, the bride wearing a blue polka-dot dress with redingote and cranberry accessories. Their new home "Maycroft" is situated in Headley, Bordon, Hants, England.

WESTLAKE—STORR

The wedding took place at 183 William Street, yesterday, Rev. L. S. Wight officiating, of Wilma Anna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert S. Storr, Selby, and Frank Westlake son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Westlake, Belleville. The attendants were Miss Leola Storr, sister of the bride and Mr. Ray Steward.

PRESENTATION

On July 9th a number of friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy MacMurter to honor their daughter, Flossie who was recently married.

The first part of the evening was spent in contests conducted by Mrs. Frank Tucker.

The gathering was called to order by the chairman Mr. Wm. Holmes, who invited Mr. and Mrs. William Freeman to take a seat of honor. An appropriate address was read by L. Detlor. At this time Lela Woods and Alberta Vermilyea presented the bride and groom with a large basket of gifts, signed on behalf of the community Liera Detlor, Lela Woods.

The bride and groom unwrapped their presents and thanked everyone for their lovely gifts. "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" was sung and lunch was served.

Wife Warned Him But He Raced

Hershey, Pa., Aug. 1—(AP)—Tom Balmer's failure to heed the warning of his ill wife put him in a hospital with her. The Lancaster, Pa., midget automobile racer suffered serious injuries last night when a wheel came off his speedster and it crashed on the last lap of a consolation race. Balmer told attending physicians his wife, rushed to the hospital a few hours earlier, had insisted he not race and he promised he wouldn't.

CORNED BEEF
Makes Delicious British
HAMBURGER

BREAK 1 lb. of corned beef into small pieces, mix it with 2 to 3 cups of fine breadcrumbs, a beaten egg, a little grated onion and a tablespoonful of H. P. Sauce. Thoroughly grease a shallow baking dish and spread the mixture out, about half an inch thick. Cover with well-greased paper and bake until brown. Serve with a garnish of chopped pickles and beets; or cut slices, place between bread on plates and serve with gravy. One tablespoonful of H. P. Sauce will be all that you need to impart a distinctly relishable flavour. H. P. is a thick, fruity sauce of considerable flavouring power. It is a grand appetizer for Canadian foods of all kinds. Use it in the kitchen and on the table.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Entertaining Bride-Elect

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A cousin of mine is going to be married, and I want to entertain for his bride-to-be. I am contemplating having a luncheon in a private dining room in a hotel. I am planning to invite her close relatives and a few of her close friends—about twenty guests.

1. Should I have a corsage for the guest of honor? A corsage for her mother?

2. How should the guests be seated at table? Should I have place cards?

3. Where should I have the guests meet — in the lobby of the hotel or in the dining room?

4. What is the proper time to have a luncheon — twelve o'clock, twelve-thirty, or one o'clock?

5. What is the proper time to entertain for a bride-to-be? Is two weeks before the wedding too early?

6. For a formal wedding that takes place in the summer at six o'clock, should the groom and best man wear tails or a summer formal? Must the ushers wear the same type of attire as the groom and best man?

7. Should all the bridesmaids wear the same type of dresses in the same color, or is it correct for each to wear a different style of dress in different pastel shades that will combine harmoniously?

Peggy

1. At this important kind of luncheon the hostess usually provides a corsage for the guest of honor. The corsage is a charming addition to the gala mood of such a party. It would be graciously generous for you to have a corsage for the bride-elect's mother.

2. On your right would be the guest of honor, and on your left her mother. Opposite you, you might seat her next closest relative, and at her right and left other close relatives.

For this number of guests I suggest you have place cards — this will be of great convenience to you at a time when you will have a good many details on your mind. For this occasion you can buy charmingly appropriate cards with a design suggesting the bridal occasion.

3. Plan to have the guests meet in the private dining room — this will give so much more home atmosphere than having them meet in the public lobby.

4. For a luncheon of the kind you are planning, one o'clock is an excellent hour.

5. If the wedding is to be a large one, with the bride-elect rushed with the many final details, two weeks before the wedding or between two weeks and one week before is a good time for wedding parties.

6. If the six o'clock wedding is to be strictly formal, with the bride in white satin and a long veil, the men in the wedding party dress in formal evening clothes. If the wedding is not so formal (the bride wearing a white dress of an informal material and simple design), the men may wear Tuxedo trousers and double-breasted white dinner jacket. The ushers should wear the same type of attire as is worn by the groom and best man.

7. The dresses of the bridesmaids should be made exactly alike. Usually they all wear the same color, differing from the color of the maid of honor's dress. Although it is considered smarter to have all the bridesmaids dressed in the same color, sometimes, in a summer wedding, pastel shades are combined. However, the two bridesmaids who walk together should wear dresses of the same shade. For example, the first pair might wear pale pink; the next pair, pale yellow; the next, very light green.

COURTESY TIP TO THE VISITOR

If, when you are visiting, you must make a long distance telephone call (don't do this, unless it is really necessary), find out the charges from the operator and either give the amount to your hostess or leave a note by the telephone, with the date of the call, the place called, and the money for the charge.

Wallbridge

The recent rains will help the later crops and also moderate the weather some.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Hinchliffe and Mrs. John Hinchliffe attended the North Hastings picnic at Oak Lake on Tuesday of this week.

Miss Ruby Armstrong of Tamworth is spending some holidays with Mrs. A. Moore.

Mr. A. Moon has received word from his son Pte. George Moon, who has reached England safely and enjoyed first leave.

Rev. D. Demille conducted service at the United Church here Sunday evening and preached a sermon in the interests of temperance.

Marmora

Marmora — Mrs. K. Price and Mr. D. Murphy of Toronto spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. James Brady.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Wenn of Toronto have returned home after a holiday spent with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Buskard at Crowe Lake.

At a miscellaneous shower tendered them by Marmora friends in the White Hall on Tuesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Claud Nichol were the recipients of many useful gifts. A pleasant social evening was enjoyed by those present.

Smart Fall Slip Cover Even Amateurs Can Make

You can make it easily the pin-on way—in time for your fall fixing up. You'll match your room colors, of course, but for a year-round cover green-striped sateen with a rust wheat pattern would be lovely.

To start your cover, remove cushion and pin fabric to top of chair; then smooth and pin it over the inside back and seat, allowing a 4-inch tuck-in between. Cut 1½ inches around pins for seams.

In the same way, fit and pin fabric to arms, front, back, sides and cushion, and cut out the underskirt, 4 straight panels joined with inverted pleats.

For each solid-color swag, cut a piece of fabric about 12 inches longer than the chair is wide and 1½ times as deep as the underskirt. Fold width-wise B-B, as shown in our diagram, and cut where indicated from B to C and from A to C; then drape.

Our 32-page booklet has diagramed instructions for fitting all kinds f chairs and sofas the pin-on way. Tells how to estimate material, fit, sew, finish and trim.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of HOW TO MAKE SLIP COVERS to The Ontario Intelligencer Home Service, 166 Front St., Belleville, Ont. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

The Stars Say—

For Saturday, August 2

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

EXCEPTIONALLY propitious astral forces are found to dominate on this day, holding promise for all sorts of advancements, favors, honors, public acclaim. It should be a time for pushing to the goal of heart's desire, in both public and private ambitions, and with financial expansion, social popularity, public friendships and prestige assured.

Those whose birthday it is may hit the high mark of achievement, preferment, expansion and growth in whatever direction the forces of talent, desire and inclination may lead. This in business, cultural, social, public and financial aspiration, with the assistance and friendly recognition of those in high places to be counted upon. The elements of "luck" as well as pluck and personal prestige are considerable and to be utilized if not carried to excess.

A child born on this day should be not only assisted and elevated by Lady Luck, but its cherished hopes and wishes may be spurred by efficiency, sound character and logical ambitions.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Double Careers No Bar to Happy Marriage

When one is an out-and-out glamour girl with a supreme gift which has landed her before the footlights of the Metropolitan Opera House, then three years of marriage without a hint of divorce or even disagreement is a record.

That's the story of Lily Pons and her husband, Andre Kostelanetz, who cut a huge cake the other day at their country place in Connecticut, in celebration of their third anniversary of wedded bliss. The triumph of amity between these two is the more remarkable because their careers have been close enough to cause possible professional jealousy.

Kosty is happy in the thought that his Lily sings with the voice of an angel, and Lily agrees that no one has ever played her accompaniments or made as much of some of her vocal arrangements as Kosty. The worm in the apple of this true Garden of Eden is that these wedded lovers are so often separated by professional engagements.

Lily is on tour about nine months of the year, and Kosty is tied down to his New York broadcasting. Both insist, with some degree of warmth, that that is not at all the reason they find themselves so happily married.

Their particular recipe for "How to be happy though married" would not have been possible even a generation ago. Perhaps like so many other prima donnas and orchestral conductors, these two might have found life anything but a bed of roses had it not been for the invention of the Wright Brothers that laughs at space even as love is said to laugh at locksmiths.

For Kosty has been known to dash from New York to Texas, New Orleans, Florida and California for a few hours visit with Lily.

In spite of being a prima donna, Lily is open to reason. Take the matter of that pet ocelot, for example, a tigerish sort of beast that goes through life with a chip on its shoulder. There was no mutual love between Kosty and the ocelot which, like the leopard, declined to change its spots. Kosty didn't like to have him around, bouncing out of dark corners, so Lily sent him to the Bronx zoo.

They share a mutual affection for many other animals. They have ten tropical birds, one of which is a parrot who has the conceit to imagine he can sing. There are three dogs — a big English sheepdog, a West Highland terrier, a French bull-dog — and a Persian cast which has just had quintuplets.

They have one theory which, with profit, might be adopted by every husband and wife in these United States. It is that at least once a year they should make a pilgrimage to some new point of interest.

This year's jaunt was a four days' trip to Colonial Williamsburg, where they travelled around unrecognized by fellow tourists.

Girl Must Resort to Street-Corner Dates

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 16 years of age, a junior in high school. I have a boy friend who is in Camp at present. I love him very much and he tells me he loves me.

My parents do not allow me to go with boys, so I have been meeting him on corners when he comes home. He will be home soon again, and I would like to have him call for me at my house. But how can I tell my parents about him? Please tell me what to do, as I will do almost anything to have him meet my parents.

"Patsy"

If you follow this column, my dear girl, you know that I beg parents with all the earnestness at my command to let their daughters see their boy friends under the parental roof, even if the girl is only Sweet Sixteen. It seems to me destructive of self-respect to wait for a boy on a street corner.

In your place, I'd take this question up with my parents and try and persuade them to become acquainted with this young soldier boy.

Going to Have a Birthday Party

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm going to be 16 very soon, and my parents are giving me a party at a night club. I'm wondering if you could help me with a problem or two:

1. Should the table for dinner be round or rectangular?

2. Should my mother and father come with us?

3. Hoy can I invite boys and ask them to bring girls, and vice versa, on printed invitations?

4. Do my friends meet at my home, or do they go directly to the club? Do they show invitations at the door?

Alice

It really doesn't make any difference about the shape of the table. The club manager will pick out one large enough to accommodate your guests.

It will be better form if your mother and father go with you and help to introduce the guests and see that everyone has a good time. Sixteen is rather young to assume these responsibilities.

Why have printed invitations at all? Hand-written notes or invitations issued over the telephone are good form.

A Man's Party

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My husband and I are interested to know if you can help us solve this problem. We live in a three-room apartment. Occasionally, my husband invites a couple of his men friends in to just sit and talk, or have a few drinks. He tells me it isn't proper for me to stay in the same room, but that I should make a graceful exit after I have greeted them. What do you think?

L.M.C.

In a party such as you describe, where the men get together to talk, perhaps play cards and have some refreshments, it's really a man's party, and the presence of one woman throws it out of gear. It's a different type of party when there is an equal number of both sexes.

In your place I should put out the refreshments; see there are plenty of good, appetizing sandwiches, things like stuffed celery, cheese and olives and the drinks your husband may have selected, and then say something like 'you boys probably have plenty to talk about,' or remember an engagement, or just disappear after the last plate and glass have been set out.

Could You Pass The Army Test or Physical Fitness?

When an individual passes a life insurance physical examination, he has reason to be grateful because it shows that, from the standpoint of sickness and death, he is sound. However, despite his soundness, he may have a number of defects which prevent him from doing his best work—mental and physical.

A recent examination of the so-called second million men called up by the United States government, showed that 21.3 per cent (about one in every five) of drafted men were rejected as unfit for any branch of the service and 9.9 per cent were placed in "limited" service, that is, not front line duty. That is, one-third of the men were not fit for general military duty. Of the entire number over 50 per cent, over one-half were found to have defects.

What are the defects that are keeping so many men from being fit for general military duty? The most frequent cause for rejection was poor or defective eyesight, next in order came flat feet, underweight, heart disease, tuberculosis, defective and deficient number of teeth, hernia (rupture) and mental defects.

Other defects, but not in such numbers, are blindness in one or both eyes, venereal diseases, defective hearing, middle ear disease, curvature of the spine, varicose veins, goitre enlarged tonsils, threatened hernia and rapid heart.

I am mentioning all these defects because such a large number of them can be corrected, particularly defective eyesight, underweight, tuberculosis, defective and deficient teeth, hernia and venereal diseases.

The thought then is that while many individuals think themselves sound (and they are sound as far as life is concerned) they are not really "fit". Not being fit for army duty is not much different from being fit for the every day duties of life if these duties are to be performed in the best way possible for any individual.

So, whether you are a man or a woman, why not get examined by your physician and dentist? The examination gives you the opportunity to learn your actual physical condition. You will thus have the knowledge of why you are not at your best and can correct, wholly or in part, the defects present.

Belleville Girls All-Star Teams Are Selected to Play In Red Cross Charity Game

Will Meet Famed Sunday Morning Class Senior Girls Team at Coleman Flats

NAMES ANNOUNCED

Teams to Reverse Batteries to Assure Fans of Fine Exhibition of Girls' Softball

The personnel of the two "All-Star" teams selected from the five clubs in the Belleville Ladies' Softball League and who will play against the heralded Sunday Morning Class senior girls team from Toronto in a double-header of girls' softball at Coleman Flats on Civic Holiday afternoon and evening, were announced by the local league executive today.

The complete teams were selected from the personnel of the five local clubs to compete against the famed Sunday Morning Class, headed by Marie and Kay Genereaux, formerly of Belleville. However, the batteries of the contesting clubs will be exchanged, with the S.M.C. pitchers and catchers forming the battery for the Belleville girls' teams, while local pitchers and catchers will perform on the visiting Toronto club's line-up.

Afternoon Club

In the afternoon game Rita Rabbi, of Vikings, Flossie McMurter of Deacons and Evelyn Reid of Corbins will pitch for the S.M.C. with Marg Zebedee, of Vikings and Pudgy Donovan of Zellers carrying out the receiving duties.

The players to make up the Belleville team, headed by a Toronto battery, for the afternoon game and who will be managed by Secretary Barney Smith of the local league, will be: First base, Jean Sherry (Zellers); Second base, "Stewie" Stewart (Zellers); Third base, Irene Colden (SWACO); Shortstop, Helen Richardson (SWACO); Left field, Dot Ronsky (SWACO); Centre field, Burgess (Corbins); Right field, S. Adams (Vikings); Utility infielders, "Toots" Sharpe (Deacons) and Betty Marsh (Corbins); Utility outfielders, W. Blake (Corbins) and M. Chambers (Vikings).

Evening Team

In the evening game when the local girls' team will be managed by President Ted Schwab, pitchers Danny Stead (SWACO), "Lofty" Colden and Bessie Doolittle of (Zellers) will do the pitching for the Sunday Morning Class, while Joyce Woodhouse (Deacons) and Twila Langman (SWACO), will look after the Toronto club's catching duties. The players to make up the second Belleville team, which will also have the benefit of a Toronto senior girls' battery in the reversing of pitchers and catchers, are as follows: First base, "Pete" Haslip (Corbins); Second base, Norma Maker (Vikings); Third base, Gwen Bennett (Zellers); Shortstop, Helen Garrow (Zellers); Left field, Douglas (Zellers); Centre field, M. Hunter (Zellers); Right field, Jean Corneal (Deacons); Utility infielders, Peg Rowbotham (SWACO) and M. Tummon (Vikings); Utility outfielders, Norma Corneal and M. Kelleher of SWACO.

The players selected are requested to report at Coleman Flats 30 minutes before game time on Monday. The girls composing the afternoon team are asked to report to Secretary Barney Smith at 3.30 p.m. while the lassies selected for the evening tusale should be at the Flats in uniform and report to President Ted Schwab not later than 6.30 p.m.

Red Cross on Hand

Mrs. Stuart Lazier, President of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross, announced today that a bevy of Belleville beauties, dressed in official Red Cross uniforms, would be on hand to assist in the collections. As all proceeds go to the Red Cross British Bomb Victims' Fund the patrons are asked to contribute freely, as there are no expenses connected with the games, the Sunday Morning Class club even paying their own travelling expenses to come to Belleville.

Arm about to enter the water

THE BACKSTROKE

The backstroke should not be attempted by anyone until he has mastered at least one other stroke. Mastery of one other stroke will give you the poise, the sense of rhythm and the familiarity with water that is necessary in learning the backstroke.

The following steps should be observed in learning this stroke:

1. Face the edge of the pool at the shallow end.
2. Grasp the overflow trough with both hands.
3. Draw up your legs and place the soles of your feet flat against the wall of the pool.
4. Simultaneously, push yourself backward along the surface of the water by straightening your legs, and fling your arms up above your head just as if you were doing the "arms above head" stretch.
5. Bring your right arm down into the water, palm facing away from your head, making a pushing downward stroke until your hand is opposite your hip.
6. Alternate with your left arm and at the finish of each stroke, bring your arm out of the water from its fully extended position at your side and raise it above your head in windmill fashion.
7. Use the flutter kick, pointing your feet as if you were standing on tiptoe.

When you have learned to do the backstroke you will find it a restful stroke and it will increase your enjoyment in swimming.

Next: The Breaststroke.

CARDS TWO UP

Yankees Win Doubleheader From Detroit, Giants Lose Fifth Straight

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Brooklyn Dodgers may have their shortcomings, but they aren't lacking in determination.

They were backed up against the well yesterday, tottering, ready for a kill by St. Louis, but they bounced back with a 15-hit assault, including three home runs, to trounce Cardinals 9-5.

This left the National League race in the same chaotic condition it was in when the two rivals first came together Tuesday. Redbirds still have a two-game lead and are three days nearer the end of the season.

Their series was as explosive and as dramatic as any the season has spawned, and the finale matched the two previous tussles. Dolph Camilli hit his 19th home run and Lew Riggs his third to pelt Harry Gumbert from the mound in the second inning. Cards came back to drive Whitlow Wyatt out of the game in the third.

In spite of all the robust hitting produced by the Dodgers, their hero was ponderous old Fred Fitzsimmons who pitched six innings in his first relief chore of the season and held Cards to three hits.

Yanks Win Two

New York Yankees took a tighter grip on the American League, meanwhile, by sweeping a doubleheader from Detroit Tigers, 6-3 and 5-0.

The first game went 13 innings when Charley Keller hit his 26th home run with two on to win the game.

Darkness curtailed the second session to eight innings.

The speeding Philadelphia Athletics crushed Chicago White Sox 9-2 to take over fourth place with Benny McCoy's grand slam homer in the fourth providing the big impetus. It was the first time in 10 years the A's had been in the first division at this late date.

Boston Red Sox divided a doubleheader with St. Louis Browns. The first affair was a wild hitting demonstration with each team getting 14 safeties and St. Louis winning out 16-11. Tex Hughson pitched six-hit ball to give Boston the nightcap 4-1.

Cleveland and Washington were rained out.

Cincinnati Reds nipped New York Giants 6-3 on Chuck Aleno's pinch single with the bases loaded in the ninth inning, scoring two runs.

Pittsburgh managed to keep right behind by nosing out Boston Braves 9-8 in a free-hitting spectacle and Phillies crushed Chicago Cubs again 7-2.

FREE-FOR-ALL FIGHT PROMISED IN GOLF MATCH

United States Amateur Golf Championship Looks Like Wide-Open Affair

BY BILL BONI
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Aug. 1—(AP)—Entries close late today for the U.S. Golf Association's annual amateur championship, and, this far in advance, it already is shaping into a free-for-all fight for the title won last year by Dick Chapman, now an athletic instructor at an army air field in Alabama.

Little has been heard from Chapman for the past two months, but some of his more prominent rivals have been hitting the ball well enough to get it noised about generally. In addition, there are a few up-and-coming youngsters who may be in the thick of the battle Aug 25-30 at the Omaha Field Club.

Chief among these are 18-year-old Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, and 19-year-old Mario Gonzales, the slender Brazilian. Stranahan this year has won the Ohio and trans-Mississippi championships.

Gonzales played handsomely in the recent Chicago and St. Paul opens and might have done even better but for a lame left wrist. He's gone to California now to rest up.

At the U.S.G.A. offices executive secretary Joseph C. Dey, Jr., said the entry list probably would close with a field of 650. Sectional eliminations, involving all but the former titleholders and Yates, will be held at Denver Aug. 11 and elsewhere Aug. 14.

CHERISHED GIFT PRESENTED TO CONNIE MACK

Unique Settee Built of Baseball Souvenirs Given Veteran Managers

Williamsport, Pa., Aug. 1.—A gift he'll surely cherish as much, if not more, than any other in his possession, was presented to Connie Mack, revered president-manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, by Eastern League President Thomas H. Richardson, the night of July 21. It is a unique settee constructed from replicas of the bats and autographed baseballs used by members of Mack's memorable teams of the 1929, '30 and '31 championship era.

Twenty bats and eleven baseballs, the latter provided from the personal collection of Richardson, who travelled with the championship A's during their World's Series competition as an ambassador of cheer, were used in the construction of the unusual piece of furniture. For cushions on the odd settee, there is a set of bases covered with bright leather.

The presentation, which attracted widespread attention hereabouts was made at home plate at Bowman Field prior to the start of the annual exhibition contest between the Grays and Athletics.

After formally accepting the settee, Mack paid a glowing tribute to the work of Spencer Abbott, veteran manager of the Williamsport team, and urged support of the Grays, who have been in first place or hovering around that spot all season.

The A's, with Lovill (Chubby) Dean going the route despite the fact he was found for 15 hits, beat the Grays, 8 to 7.

"Cardinals Will Win Flag" Says Manager Southworth

St. Louis, Aug. 1—(AP)—If the Cardinals can dodge the injury jinx the rest of the season the club will win the National League pennant, says Manager Billy Southworth.

The team entered the Brooklyn series, which they split to retain their two-game lead, with the line-up at full strength for the first time since opening day when Catcher Gus Mancuso was removed with a badly bruised and sprained finger.

Mancuso went out at just the time his experience behind the plate was necessary to balance the roster of young hurlers carried by the club. He was out 11 days.

Before Gus could get back in action, Pitcher Clyde Shoun, veteran workhorse of whom much was expected, jammed his ankle sliding into third base and he limped on the sidelines until May 15.

The next victim was Morton Cooper, pitching mainstay. He was removed June 18 for an elbow operation. On July 21 Don Padgett, utility outfielder, catcher and hitter de luxe, checked out with tonsilitis.

Captain Terry Moore, centrefielder, joined the ranks of the injured July 19 with a sprained shoulder. He got back just three days before his replacement, Estel Crabtree, made his exit with a badly bruised hand.

So now you can understand why Southworth considers a pennant a cinch for his Cardinals, barring further injuries.

GOSSIP NEWS COMMENT

That big handsome chap local softball fans saw take to the Reliance mound after Ray Smith and Archie Major had been pounded unmercifully by Corby batters Wednesday night, was none other than Craig McClelland, former Cornwall Flier goalkeeper deluxe. McClelland was with the Fliers in 1940 when that club advanced to the Canadian senior puck championships as Allan Cup finalists. McClelland arrived in Belleville on Monday and immediately commenced on a war working enterprise. While speaking about McClelland, however, it might be interesting to repeat Bubby Gaulin's viewpoint on Craig's pitching here. "If Reliance should happen to win over Corby's, our Canada Cement team will not play against McClelland. Not that we are afraid of his pitching, but if the Reliance can bring in players for the playoffs like that, we might run into Cam Ecclestone or Russ Johnson some fine night," commented Manager Gaulin, who is noted for his fair dealings at all times.

Elsewhere in today's issue is the personnel of the two Belleville "all-star" girls' teams to oppose the Sunday Morning Class girls from Toronto at Coleman Flats here on Civic Holiday. Fans are reminded that the games will be played at the Coleman Flats instead of the Armouries Lawn, President Ted Schwab stating the patrons would doubtless be better pleased with the S. M. C. performance on the open Flats diamond. Manager Frank Doughty of the Sunday Morners, wrote your reporter to say his full team, including the two Genereaux sisters, Bea Hughey, their big hitter, Marge McDonald, their ace pitcher, Thelma McRae and all the other Sunnyside celebrities would be in Belleville for this Red Cross charity game. Local players selected are requested to report thirty minutes before game time. The girls chosen to play in the afternoon game, as published elsewhere, should report to Barney Smith at 3.30 p.m., while those selected for the evening game are requested to report to President Schwab at 6.30 p.m. at the Flats.

Do you remember when Robert (Lefty) Grove, pitching for Philadelphia Athletics, shut out New York Yankees for the first time in 308 games when he blanked them 7-0 eight years ago today in an American League game? The Yankees' record comprised 56 games in 1931, 155 in 1932 and 97 in the following year. Grove now is with Boston Red Sox.

All is in readiness for the City softball finals and championship series for the Bank of Commerce trophy. Last night the league executive met and voted Corby's A.C. into the finals versus the Point Anne "Cementmen" the series to open next Tuesday. After hearing all sides of the question, following the umpires calling "no contest" on Wednesday night, President Clem Bowler and his contemporaries voted to give Corby's the right to advance into the finals. There were many angles to take into consideration, the main one being the fact the Reliance management had repeatedly failed to cooperate with the league executive on matters of committee room questions and legislation. The fact Skipper Wilkins and his hired help injected McClelland into Wednesday's game, after the said player had only been in Belleville a matter of hours, did not help the situation any either. However, it's Point Anne and Corby's A.C. in the finals now.

South Hastings baseball semi-finals between Cannifton and Shannonville, scheduled to get under way on Monday of this week, ran into postponements and other difficulties and the first game of the best of three series remains still to be played. On Monday the game at Cannifton was rained out and on Wednesday evening the Shannonville Hawks refused to journey to riverside village, claiming that the original schedule called for the game being played on their own diamond. However, the executive of the league has stepped in and ordered the series to commence at Cannifton on Friday evening.

LEAFS BEAT BEARS 5 TO 4

Bisons Trounce Syracuse to Gain on League Leaders

Newark Bears, leading the International League all season, have run into some unexpected opposition from the last-place Toronto Maple Leafs and as a result their margin over the Buffalo Bisons is only four games today.

The cellar-dwellers handed the Bears a 5-4 setback last night in the opening game of the series and Buffalo took full advantage of it by downing the Syracuse Chiefs 2-1.

Walter Lanfranconi humbled the pacesetters with six hits, while his mates collected 10 from a trio of Newark hurlers. Singles by Merullo and Morgan plus Johnny Hill's long fly provided the winning margin in the ninth inning, after the [illegible] had tied the score in their half.

Charley Fuchs tossed a four-hitter against Syracuse to extend the Bison's latest winning streak to seven games and win a pitching duel from Tom Sunkel.

The third-place Montreal Royals cut Roy Henshaw's six game winning streak short with a 5-3 victory over the Jersey City Giants and the Rochester Red Wings banged out a 10-8 decision over the Baltimore Orioles in the other games.

Del Baker Pays Tribute To The Mighty Yankees; Especially Dimag, Gordon

BY GAYLE TALBOT

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Aug. 1.—Del Baker, who manages Detroit Tigers, admits to a tremendous respect for the present New York Yankee run-making machine. He thinks it's a beauty, that it possesses two of the greatest players he ever saw in outfielder Joe DiMaggio and second-baseman Joe Gordon, and that it probably will win the American League pennant.

But does it compare with those Yankee bone-crushers of '32 and '33, when Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig and Bill Dickey and Lefty Gomez and Red Ruffing were in their prime? When murderers row gave rival pitchers nightmares? Never, says Del.

"Understand," he inserted hurriedly, "I'm not saying these boys can't knock your head off. They can, and do. They all hit that long ball, with the possible exception of Johnny Sturm at first base. But those old Yankee clubs I'm talking about could do that, too, and they had wonderful pitching to go with it. That's difference, and if you had tried to hit against Ruffing and Gomez in those days you would know what I mean".

Sitting out a rainy afternoon, Del was a little jumpy and curious about a vague report from out West that Jimmy Dykes might take over the Detroit management next season. Said he didn't know a thing about it, except what he had heard second-hand.

The conversation turned to the terrific batting race going on between Joe DiMaggio and Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox. Both Baker and his veteran pitcher, Tommy Bridges, said they would have to vote for DiMaggio as the greatest player in the game today, but couldn't agree as to which was the more dangerous batter in a pinch.

Cochrane Called By Draft Board

Hillside, N.J., Aug. 1 — Freddie (Red) Cochrane, new welterweight boxing champion, was notified this week by his local draft board to appear for physical examination.

With the plaudits of his neighbors still ringing in his ears after Tuesday night's surprise victory over Fritzie Zivic of Pittsburgh, Freddie declared: "I'll claim no exemption and I am ready to do the same kind of a job for Uncle Sam as I did for the New Jersey boxing fans in Ruppert Stadium, Newark."

Arrangements made before the fight call for a return match with Zivic within 60 days, unless a call to Army service should intervene. Cochrane operates a tavern here.

Gold Secret Safe As Mountain Storm Traps Old Prospector

Great Falls, Mont., Aug. 1—(AP)—For 30 years old Henrickson fought to wrest from Chommay Mountain the gold he believed it hid. But the secret is safe. The body of the grizzled 76-year-old prospector was found last night in Teton canyon. A mountain storm trapped him there Monday.

TOOK MUD BATH AT SPA

Allen Sold To Dodgers

St. Louis, Aug. 1—The St. Louis Browns announces the sale of Johnny Allen, pitcher, for whom they were reported to have paid $25,000 last winter, to the Brooklyn Dodgers for the waiver price of $7,500. All other American League clubs had to waive on Allen before he could be sold to the National League pennant challengers.

He has won only two games and lost five for the Browns this season. His best years were 1936, when he won 20 and lost 10, and 1937, when he won 15 and lost 1, for the Cleveland Indians.

Death Takes Mickey Welch Of "300 Club"

Nashua, N.H., Aug. 1 — Michael (Smiling Mickey) Welch, 82 years old, of Holyoke, Mass. an old-time baseball star and one of 12 Major League pitchers to win more than 300 games, died Wednesday at a hospital.

Only last Friday Welch's record of 309 victories was recalled by newspapers when Lefty Grove, of the Boston Red Sox, pitched his 300th victory.

Baseball's Gift To the U.S.O.

Chicago, Aug. 1—The Major Leagues today presented the United Service Organizations with a cheque for $53,226.27, representing the net profit on the All-Star baseball game in Detroit, July 8.

Commissioner K. M. Landis announced the crowd of 54,674 controbuted to a gross gate of $63,267.08. The U.S.O. received all except $10,040.81 consumed by game expenses, such as travelling expenses of players and umpires, tickets, ushers, etc.

LITTLE KNOWN MINOR LEAGUERS STAR IN MAJORS; PUBLICIZED PLAYERS SLIP

Nick Etten
Herman Triplett
Dan Litwhiler
Phil Rizzuto
Pete Reiser
Frank Crespi
Cecil Hughson
Heber Newsome
Pat Mullin

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

New York, July 31 — No rave publicity notices accompanied the entrance of Heber Newsome, Nick Etten, Walter Mullin, Howard Krist and Lester McCrabb into the major league whirl in April, but today these five, plus several others who marched in with big buildups, have emerged as the rookie stars of the year.

And so often happens, the minor league sensations with the murderous batting averages, the Lou Novikoffs, the Murray Howells and the Alex Kampourises are back again in the minors, building up for another chance and, they hope, not another letdown.

Saddest plight is that of Novikoff the "Mad Russian" of the Chicago Cubs, now with the Milwaukee Brewers. Boasting a mighty .463 bat mark, a colorful personality and a home-run war club, Novikoff came upon the scene with the biggest sports writers' "field day" in many years.

Novikoff Fails

But Novikoff, given many chances by the Cubs, couldn't hit big league pitching and away he went to the minors.

Murray Howell, who batted .359 for Baltimore to lead that loop, was tried by the Cleveland Indians. He's back in the minors. For Howell, however, it can be said that he didn't get much chance to show what he could do, for he was used only as a pinch hitter.

Alex Kampouris, once a Cincinnati Red, blasted out 36 home runs for Newark last year. The Dodgers gave him a trial but he didn't live up to expectations and like the other "stars," he's a minor leaguer again.

There's a long list of rookie failures, of highly-publicized youths who either let their press notices affect their work or who still need more seasoning for the big show.

Stringer Misses, Too

Johnny Gee, the Pirates' big pitcher, failed again this year. The Yankees' Gerald Priddy, billed as one-half of the "greatest second base combination in the minors," was batting a weak .204 when benched after 39 games. Floyd Giebell, the young Tiger pitcher who bested Bob Feller in the stretch last year, was expected to be a big help to the faltering Detroit mound staff. Giebell wasn't a big help. Dick Conger pitched remarkable ball in spring training for the Pirates. He's another who couldn't make the grade.

Among others who were expected to be the big stars but turned out to be lesser lights are Dewey Atkins, Cleveland pitcher; Tommy Holmes, Yankee outfielder; Bob Logan, Reds' pitcher; Buster Maynard, Giants' outfieledr; Gene Stringer, Cub infielder, and Eddie Collins, Jr., Athletics' outfielder. Collins hasn't been able to hit as well as expected, being yanked after batting .262 in 49 games.

Honor of being the No. 1 rookie star of the year probably is a toss-up between Pete Reiser, youthful Dodger outfielder, and the much-publicized Phil Rizzuto, the other half of the Yankee' 1940 Kansas City infield combination of Rizzuto and Priddy.

Others who have their share of backers are the five mentioned at the start of this piece plus Frank (Creepy) Crespi, Walker Cooper, Sam Nahem, Ernie White and Claker Triplett of the Cards; Cecil Hughson, of the Red Sox; Steve Peek, Charley Shanceau and Norman Branch of the Yanks; Phil Marchildon, Tom Ferrick and Pete Suder of the Athletics; Bob Muncrief and Johnny Lucadello of the Browns; Jim Vernon of the Nats; Jack Hallett of the White Sox; Dan Litwhiler, Hal Marnie and Tom Hughes of the Phillies; Chuck Aleno and Dick West of the Reds and Ace Adams of the Giants.

Reiser Standout

Reiser, a reformed infielder, came up to the Dodgers late last August from Elmira. He has been hitting and fielding well, his batting mark of .338 leading the National league race. Rizzuto, a classy shortstop, benched with Priddy when the Yanks weren't clicking, soon was forced back into the breach when Frank Crosetti was forced out and since the peppery little Italian has been hitting at a better than .300 clip and fielding sensationally.

Newsome, Red Sox pitched, has won nine games against five losses and has been a regular starter. He came up from San Diego where he won 23 games last year.

Etten, a former Athletic rookie, is batting a hefty .321 for the lowly Phils and has played in every game at first base. He was with Baltimore last year. Mullin, Tiger outfielder sent into Hank Greenberg's left field spot, batted a terrific .354 for 54 games before he was injured. He is expected to be out for the season.

Krist, Cardinal pitcher and a Houston star last year, had a fine record of seven wins and no losses up to mid-July. Nahem, another Cardinal rookie hurler, started out with five straight victories and Ernie White, still another Card tosser, won six games before he was slapped with a defeat. Nahem is from Houston and White from Columbus.

McCrabb, from Toronto, pitched several good games for the Athletics and has won more than he's lost.

Crespi, Cardinal infielder, is batting better than .300 as is Triplett, Cards' utility man.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

The Clarco [illegible]

Al did a rocket and came down fizzing.

"Clarco Company! Why they're in New York."

"Yes, they are. The main offices are on Fifth avenue."

"Perhaps. It depends on whether they'll still want me after they talk to me. I want to see them today, as soon as I can."

"The Duchess — here in New York! On the campus! In circulation!" Al danced around in a seventh heaven of delight. "My salutations, Smartypie. And don't forget, when you're a big shot promotion man, that I am the lug who saw you first, in Millville."

• • •

The offices of Clarco Company were impressive. Spacious, smooth, easy on the eyes.

"The work will be intensive, what we call high-pressure these days," he said, "but I think you will find it interesting, absorbing. The hours are from nine until four, with an hour for lunch. We observe the five-day week. Your immediate superior will be one of the cleverest women in the promotion field, one of the most efficient and—one of the most exacting. Service under her should be invaluable, if you are anxious to learn and willing to accept discipline. Miss Edna Cook — the woman of whom I speak—agreed that your single line completing Clarco's jingle was highly original and much beyond any other entry in aptness. She will be pleased to welcome you into her department. As I wrote you, the salary will be fifty dollars a week, in return for which Clarco shall want more lines of the kind you submitted, in addition to other promotion material which will be explained to you. Have I made myself clear, Miss Marsh?"

"Perfectly, and thank you. When shall I report for work?"

Marilyn discovered she was trembling. It all seemed so unreal. She in New York, reporting for work! Might she wake up and find herself behind the book counter in the Bon Ton, in Millville, Sally shaking her and saying. "Snap out of it, Lynn! Time to homeward wend our weary way." A nostalgia for the end of that homeward way swept over her in a great wave that left her empty, poignantly lonely.

"Let's see." Mr. Dawson consulted a sheet of names and figures. "Tomorrow morning, if you can come that soon."

"Thank you. I'll be here at nine o'clock. I'll try very hard to justify your belief in me."

"Report to the young man at the information desk as you come in. He will show you to your departent and introduce you to Miss Cook."

• • •

Al called for Marilyn at six o'clock that evening, elated at her decision to accept Clarco's offer.

"The event calls for a celebration," he declared. "Call your number, Heartbeat. Shall it be a swish spot in one of our better hotels? Or a steak and choppery with food the business of the evening? Or a lobster palace with swing band attachment? Call your number; I'll spin the wheel."

"They all sound thrilling—but—may I tell you where I'd really love to go?"

"If you don't—"

"To one of the little foreign restaurants I've read about, Italian or French or Chinese—any kind just so it's foreign. I've never been to any place like that—it would be like taking a trip to another country."

"Hardly, but it'll give you a rough idea of what goes on around mealtime. Now for a start—let's say—Italino. Spaghetti wrestlers. Have just the spot. Down in Mulberry street. Pop Monetas. Pop serves Italian food that makes you warble 'O Sole Mia.' Get your hat, duchess. The festive board awaits."

"Al, you idiot," Marilyn laughed. "Don't you ever talk straight?"

"Me? Madame, I'll have you know my English is as pure as the riven—I mean driven snow. As my professor at deah old Ha'vahd said to me, he said, "Al, my man—"

"Suppose you save what he said until we get where we're going. I'm being eaten by curiosity."

"And I'm sure curiosity finds you a very palatable dish. Next stop Mulberry street!"

Monetas, famed among devotees of good eating for the foods of Italy, faces a small island of public park in downtown New York. The Bowery bounds it on the east, Chinatown on the north, the pushcart district on the west and towering municipal buildings, monuments to law and order, on the south. All around and about Monetas' the melting pot boils and bubbles, reducing its strange admixture of races and creeds to a plastic and unpredictable bulk known as John Q. Citizen.

Within Monetas' a quiet atmosphere of peace and plenty reigns. There are aromas to tickle the nostrils and tastes to tantalize the palates. The setting is commonplace, but the viands are masterpieces of culinary art in Italy.

"We'll start at the top and go right down the line," Al said. "These bambinos can't scare us with their heaping platters." He ordered, leaned back in his chair with an air of accomplishment, was reminded suddenly of an important omission.

"I forgot to tell you, H.B., that red wine goes with an Italian dinner. The juice of the grape. Vino. Sort of like bacon and eggs, chicken and gravy, Amos 'n Andy. Woulds't sip a beaker of grape with the eatables?"

"I'll sip it if you'll ask the waiter for plain grape juice without any 'vino' in it," Marilyn agreed.

"It's mighty potent that way. Sure it won't knock you over?"

"Never has. I take it practically every morning for breakfast."

"Then I'll give it a try. Heaven help me if the boys in the Stork Club ever hear about this. Why so serious, Little One?"

"I was thinking—wouldn't it have been better, Al, if we'd tried to find Clara? Walk in as though our being there was merely an accident? Perhaps she'd relent and ask us to join her. She might tame down with me present. It isn't too late, even now—."

"Oh yes it is." Al was certain. "I give you twenty to one I know exactly where Blondie is and where she'll be later on. Never have I seen a gal become an habitue as fast as she does. She's expecting us, lying in wait for us. She has it all cooked up how she's going to handle us. If we don't show up, she'll feel cheated. She'll think maybe we don't care how wild she runs. That will annoy her no little. She wants to be the big squash, with one and all at her mercy."

"You may be right. Still, I feel so terribly inadequate—"

"Let her thrash around of a couple of days. We'll run up on her when she thinks we've gone bye-bye, like she told us to do. Get set, Juliet, here comes the first round. Antipasto. A selection of whatnots doused in oil and vinegar. We go in there fighting and we stay with the cutlery until the last plate is licked clean."

Antipasto. Minestrone. Spaghetti Veneziana. Pollo Cacciatora. Zabaglione. Bel Paese. Caffe.

Never had Marilyn tasted such food!

"My eyes are plain popping out of my head," Marilyn groaned. "Do you suppose the Italian people eat this way all the time?"

Al looked rather beaten himself, " I suppose they do," he said, "when they can get it at Papa Monetas."

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Aug. 1—(CP) — Gold shares weakened on Toronto Exchange today. Selling dried up to a small dribble by early afternoon. Base metals gained slightly. Volume was 160,000 shares.

Preston, Aunor and Teck-Hughes weakened 7 to 10 and Wright-Hargreaves, MacLeod - Cockshutt, Toburn, Chesterville and Pickle Crow weakened about 5. Wide gains appeared for O'Brien and Mining Corporation.

In Base Metals prices were narrowly higher for Steep Rock, Hudson Bay, Normetal, Pend. Oreille and Sherritt while Ventures, Waite-Amulet and Noranda were lower.

Industrials posted few changes. C.P.R. firmed a fraction in heavy trading and the Foods and Utilities averaged narrowly higher.

WALL STREET

A flop of 2 points by Bethlehem Steel at the opening, blamed on a somewhat disappointing earnings report, tendered to chill bullishness elsewhere. The stock never made much of a comeback.

Among backward stocks were Allied Chemical, Goodyear, Kennecott, Eastman Kodak, Chrysler, General Motors, U.S. Steel, Glenn Martin, Texas Corp., Sears Roebuck and Chesapeake and Ohio.

Southern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Northern Pacific, Warner Bros. and Montgomery Ward attracted support.

Among the Canadian issues, International Nickel gained 1-4 and Canadian Pacific 1-8 point while Dome lost 3-8. In the Bond Market Canada 4s were unquoted.

Dressedweight: Barrie $15.50, Brantford $14.25 plus transportation, Chatham $14.50; Hull $14.50 plus transportation, London $14.35 delivered, Stratford $14.25 plus transportation.

Eastern Ontario Cheese Boards

Campbellford, Aug. 1 — (CP) — Campbellford boarded today 2,185 boxes white cheese. All sold at 15 5-8 cents.

Kemptville—Boarded 4,203 boxes. All sold 15 5-8 cents.

Egg Prices Gain

Toronto, Aug. 1—Prevailing small available supplies on the Toronto open produce market yesterday resulted in fresh modest gains in eggs and kept butter prices steady to firm.

Although buyers on the egg market turned a little cautious in view of the continued strength in prices, arrivals of fresh receipts cleared well. Prices to shipper on the three top grades improved 1-2 cent a dozen while in the retail section of trading grade B firmed 1 cent.

The situation on the butter market was unchanged from the two days preceding. Offerings and receipts remained very light and though demand was not keen, enough buying appeared to keep these supplies cleaned up. No. 1 grade Ontario creamery solids turned over at the previous quotation of 36 1-4 cents a pound.

Eggs—Graded shipments selling at: A-large, 35 1-2c to 36c; A-medium, 34 1-2c; B-grade, 27c to 27 1-2c; C-grade, 23 1-2c. Receipts, 3,490 cases.

NEW DIRECTOR BANK OF CANADA

Ottawa, Aug. 1 (CP)—Edwin George Baker, Toronto industrialist and business executive, has been appointed a Director of the Bank of Canada, Finance Minister Ilsley announced today.

Mr. Baker fills the vacancy created by the death of Col. Claude Brown of London, Ont.

Weekly Livestock Report

Toronto, Aug. 1—(CP) — Lambs were down $1.50 cwt., hogs opened 10 cents higher and closed with a loss of 15 cents, cattle prices were generally unchanged and sheep were steady in trade on the Livestock Market here this week.

About 400 plain killers and stockers were unsold in cattle trade at the close. Weighty steers sold at a top of $9.25 with common downward to $8.25. Butcher steers and heifers were $6.75 after minor fluctuations. Canners and cutters were $3.50 to $4.75. Bulls ranged from $5.50 for light bolognas up to $7.50 for good butchers. Fed calves were $9 to $11. Stockers opened fairly active at $6.50 to $8.25 with stock calves up to $8.50. The close on stockers was dull at $5.50 to $7.75 with some unsold. Good milkers and springers were firm at $90 to $95 each.

Calves opened firm but weakened at the close. Tops were generally at $12 with a few up to $12.50. Common vealers sold downward to $7.50. Grass calves sold at $6.50 to $7 cwt.

Hogs opened 10 cents higher at $15 dressed but dropped to $14.75 at the close. Sows were 25 cents lower at $10 to $10.50 dressed. A premium of $1 per head was paid for grade A in addition to provincial bonus.

Lambs opened 50 cents lower at $13.50 for good ewes and wethers and closed $1.00 lower at $12.50. Bucks sold at a discount of $1 to $2 cwt. Sheep were steady at from $3 to $6 cwt. with a few light ewes up to $6.50.

The Canadians whooped applause at the words of this raw-boned, tough-speaking Cabinet Minister, particularly when he said that Canada's contribution of men in overseas service "is a magnificent achievement."

You Give Us Sense of Security

"We feel better for your presence here," the War Secretary went on. "You give us a sense of security. We like your faces. We like your toughness.

"Oddly enough, I don't think Hitler and his gang like you at all.

"The Germans had a taste of Canadian fighting prowess in the last war and by God they'll get it again this time."

An East Coast Canadian Port, Aug. 1 (CP)—Their safe arrival announced today, transports carrying part of the Third Division of Canadian troops slipped out of this harbor almost unnoticed and with little or no fanfare headed into the Atlantic for Britain and the great adventure.

Bade farewell by whistles of other vessels in the harbor, the convoy picked up speed and was soon out of sight, protected by great men-o'-war and darting destroyers.

Just before sailing Maj.-Gen. C. B. Price, the contingent's commander, met newsmen and said he was proud of his men who were so anxious and impatient to get to Britain and carry out whatever duties they may be assigned.

"It is our aim," he said, "to be worthy to take our place beside our brothers of the Canadian Corps and the armies of the Empire and be a credit to Canada."

A few hours before the huge liners cast off their moorings the troops were given a respite from incessant lifeboat drill and lined the decks for a final inspection by Defence Minister Ralston.

Inspection

With Minister of Justice LaPointe and flanked by his chief of staff, Maj.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, and Maj.-Gen. Price, Col. Ralston took hours to inspect the thousands of men. He stopped often to chat with veterans of the First Great War and young soldiers who caught his eye. Many he called by name.

"Great Adventure"

This was the message addressed to all ranks by Col. Ralston on sail-

As a swaggering, rough cowboy, Preston Foster keeps inviting trouble in "The Round Up," now showing at the Capitol Theatre. He shares top honors with lovely Patricia Morison, Paramount's new star, and popular Richard Dix. On the same program "Sleepers West," with Lloyd Nolan and Lynn Bari.

dian shore on a great adventure. I dian store o na great adventure. I only wish all your fellow citizens could have seen you as you set out on your great crusade, fit in body and strong in heart. They would not only be cheered but challenged as I have been. You can rely on this, that you have our support to the uttermost. We are grateful for your courage and your fine spirit of service. We know that Canada can cont on you whatever may come. You carry with you our admiration and our confidence. May you have good health, good heart and good success."

Count On Third Division

Mr. Massey and Maj.-Gen. Price paid tribute to the navies for bringing the contingent over safely and Maj.-Gen. Montague on the mess deck with the troops while they were sitting down to a meal welcomed them into the Canadian Corps on behalf of Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton the Commander.

"We are counting on the 3rd Division to maintain the high traditions built up by the 1st and 2nd Divisions" Maj.-Gen. Price said, adding, "now, get on with your food."

The War Secretary, an old soldier himself, made a hit with the troops, walking freely among them and handing out cigarets from his own package. He spent the longest time with the gunners, chatting with a group including Gnr. Talex Harper, Lt. A. W. Goodman, both of Montreal; Gnr. Duncan McLaren, Pembroke, Ont., and L. Bmbdr. Charles Sager, Belleville, Ont.

The French Canadian regiment was welcomed by Mr. Margesson and Mr. Massey and the War Secretary startled Cpl. Maurice Chevrette of Quebec City, a sentry at the gangway, by speaking to him in French as he was leaving the ship.

Visitors Lunched with Gen Price

The visitors lunched with Gen. Price aboard the flagship and talked with C.M.H.Q. officers who inclued Majors F. E. D. Wallace, Brantford, Ont.

Maj. N. A. Armstrong, Ottawa, led the Army Service Corps Supply column and some of his officers were Capt. Don. Jacques and Lieut. Fred Jacques, Ottawa brothers; Leut. J. M. Berry, Ottawa.

The Acting Officer Commanding the French Canadian Infantrymen was Maj. J. G. Power of Quebec City, a nephew of the Canadian Air Minister. The officers included Lieut. Hugues Lapointe, son of the Minister of Justice and Liberal Member for Litbiniere.

Privates came from all over Quebec Province.

Central Ontario Unit First Off Boat

A Central Ontario regiment was first off the ships and was whisked away to camp in one of a score of troop trains that lined the siding awaiting the Canadian debarkation.

With this regiment were Maj. W. R. Taylor, paymaster and member of the unit for forty years, and Maj. W. T. Barnard and Sgt. Dick Blue all of Toronto, and Lieuts. A. J. Greathed, Weston, Ont., and J. L. Dampier, London, Ont.

Busy members of a Western Ontario regiment as they got their kit together before leaving the ship were Lieut. William Conochie and Pte. Bert Bass, both of Galt, Lieut. R. D. Hodgins and Pte. Hugh Brown, both of Preston; Pte. Bill Hagen of Kitchener and Pte. Jimmy Whittle of Guelph.

Lt. Lapointe in Contingent

For the Minister of Justice the Inspection was of special significance. His son, Lt. Hugues Lapointe, Member of Parliament for Lotbiniere, Que., was among the men drawn from every part of the Dominion.

The contingent was accompanied by other branches of the Empire's armed forces. There were also prisoners-of-war.

Officers said one ship carried 1,000 Italian prisoners from Libya who were going to Britain to work in the fields and help grow crops needed to feed the people of democracy's frontier towns.

Also in evidence were airmen from New Zealand, Australia, Norway and Canada, naval officers and ratings, and even Free French soldiers and sailors.

U.S. Construction Men

Several hundred construction men from the United States made the voyage with the fighting men. It was understood their work would be in connection with building harbor facilities overseas. They were a self-contained unit with their own police and medical service and carrying their own food and clothing, a move taken so they would not be a drain in any way on British resources.

The two days preceding the convoy's sailing were busy ones. Troop trains rolled up to the waterfront almost continuously to disgorge troops and equipment.

Despite no shore leave, life aboard the transports before sailing was interesting for the men. Many had never seen ships of such size and after making themselves comfortable in their quarters wandered about asking questions of the crews.

Poker was much in evidence. It was an ordinary sight to see groups of men shielding their pairs and betting their nickles in the luxurious lounges where once civilians danced and played while cruising in the tropics.

Description of Contingent
By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A British Port, Aug. 1—(CP Cable)— Lumberjacks and fishermen from the Maritimes and Gaspe and the men from busy towns and cities of Ontario and the West were among the thousands of recruits who have arrived in England to join Canada's overseas army.

Described by medical officers at the pier to meet them as "some of the fittest Canadians ever to come to England" and by their own commanding officers as the best in the world, these young soldiers appeared to be in fighting trim as they ended their uneventful ocean crossing.

Not a Patient for Doctors

A doctor who met the ship, which brought several thousand Canadians, including two 3rd Division regiments, a New Brunswick infantry unit and a Royal Canadian Engineers unit and Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps and Royal Canadian Army Service Corps reinforcements, had not a patient to handle.

Lord Beaverbrook, British Minister of Supply, is honorary colonel in chief of the New Brunswick regiment, which was commanded by a lieutenant colonel from St. Stephen, N.B., and comprised about 40 per cent of French Canadians, some of whom are veterans of the last war.

"Good News"

Ottawa Aug. 1 (CP)—A troop convoy comprising the bulk of the 3rd Canadian Division under the command of Major-General C. B. Price D.S.O., D.C.M., E.D., together with certain non-divisional units and reinforcements for the Canadian Corps has arrived in the United Kingdom, Defence Minister Ralston announced today.

"I am very happy to be able to make this statement," Col. Ralston said. "It will be good news all over Canada and particularly in the many homes represented in this large contingent.

"I was proud to be able to bid the men of this contingent Godspeed, and to give them the heartfelt best wishes of every Canadian. They in turn were eager to be on their way to do whatever task needed doing.

"This is another step, and a long one, in carrying out Canada's program for overseas troops this year. We were to send an army tank brigade, the 3rd Division, an armored Division, and numerous corps troops and reinforcements. The army tank brigade and many corps troops are already there. This big contingent has followed to take its part in the defence of Britain r whatever duty may require.

"I am sure they will be most heartily welcomed in England not only by their comrades of the corps, but also by the stout-hearted people of the British Isles. This Dominion can be confident that they will do well."

Barefaced Nazi Impudence! Says Welles

Washington, Aug. 1 —(AP)— Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, accused Germany today of barefaced impudence in urging Mexico to protest to the United States over the blacklisting of Latin American firms catalogued as pro-Axis.

Welles asserted the German government had violated and destroyed the sovereignty of many countries.

Therefore, he said, it was nothing more or less than barefaced impudence for Germany to try to tell Mexico or any other country what it should do to protect its sovereign rights.

Moreover, he declared that Mexico did not require any advice from Germany.

Welles made this press conference comment on the action of Mexico in strongly rejecting a German request that it protest the United States action of blacklisting hundreds of firms in Latin America deemed to be operating for the benefit of the Axis.

JAPANESE LINER'S

Aboard the Tatutu Maru was a $2,500,000 cargo of raw silk, which the ship arranged to carry back to Japan. Stowed beneath these 5,568 bales were such goods as tea, furs, egg yolks, albumen and straw braid.

A $15,000 libel suit was first filed against the cargo by Arnhold & Co., New York City, and a $30,000 bond was demanded.

Frozen Credits

Other actions followed quickly. There was the question of how the Japanese could raise the money in view of frozen credits.

The Heian Maru, scheduled to sail at noon today, carried a cargo of goat and horse hair. A much larger bond of $300,000 was demanded.

It was a hectic day for the Tatuta Maru.

She was granted fuel oil, ships stores and clearance for noon today. During the afternoon she was picketed by anti-Japanese war organizations.

At five o'clock United States Marshal George Vice and three deputies climbed aboard with notices of attachment. Captain Toichi Takahata and his first officer were informed their ship would be held.

Release Expected

U. S. customs collector Paul Peake later announced that the Treasury Department had granted the ship clearance and that it was up to the justice department. This led to the belief a release might be forthcoming momentarily.

GERMAN

He talked earlier with Vyacheslav Molotov, commissar for foreign affairs.

United States ambassador Laurence Steinhardt accompanied Hopkins on his visit to Molotov but the Stalin-Hopkins meeting was attended only by interpreters.

Nazi Airmen Forced Back from Moscow

German planes made their eighth nightly foray in 11 nights against Moscow and, as on previous nights, Russians said they were forced back.

Russians claimed victories over sea and land for their planes, saying one flight of dive-bombers attacked two German patrol ships in the Baltic and brought down 15 German to eight Soviet planes.

S. A. Lozovsky, vice-commissar of foreign affairs, told a press conference that Hopkins' visit "demonstrates once more the determination of the United States to help all peoples fighting for their independence against Nazi barbarism."

CONFERENCE AT ARVIDA PLANT TO BE RESUMED

Arvida, Que., Aug. 1—(CP)—Conferences that might lead to establishment of a basis of negotiation in a dispute between the Aluminum Company of Canada and its employees here were expected to be resumed today by company officials and representatives of the National Catholic Sydnicate of Aluminum Workers.

First conference was held yesterday between the company and the union which 5,000 employees of the big plant asked to represent them when they decided to return to work Tuesday after a five-day strike. No announcement was made following the meeting but it was believed conferences would continue for several days.

Gerard Picard, Secretary of the National Federation of Catholic Workers, parent body of the N.C.S.A.W. said in an interview that if Munitions Minister Howe "has special information showing that sabotage was in any way involved he should tell the public about it."

(In his Ottawa statement, first public announcement of the tie-up, Mr. Howe added: "So far as I know there was no sabotage of any kind attempted except insofar as the loss of production caused by the shutdown concerned.")

"I cannot understand this case of Mr. Howe and his statement at all," Picard said. "If he is able to prove anything about sabotage he should do so. Otherwise he should remain silent. If he cannot prove it, then his statement is a most dangerous statement for a minister to make in wartime."

Picard said that the N.C.S.A.W. realized that the strike was illegal. Majority of the workers when the strike started were not members of the syndicate, which had held negotiations several months ago with the company concerning "some points" of employer-employee relations.

"However, I fail to see where 'sabotage' comes in. As far as I am aware, the strike was for higher pay and better working conditions and if there were any individuals who participated for any other reason of their own, I certainly do not know about them."

PERU'S 'CHUTISTS SAID TO HAVE CAPTURED CITIES

Puerto Bolivar And Machala Taken Few Hours Before Truce

Lima, Peru, Aug. 1—(AP)—Peruvian parachute troops were reported today to have captured the Ecuadorean cities of Puerto Bolivar and Machala only a few hours before a truce ended three weeks of border war between the two countries at six o'clock last night.

Introduction of German tactics for the first time in the western hemisphere was disclosed in a Peruvian communique which claimed a brilliant victory over Ecuador's armed forces.

Before the cease-fire order was given, the communique said, Peruvian troops had regained all territory seized by the Ecuadorian army since July 6, when a 100-year-old boundary dispute flared into open war.

Consent to Truce

Consent to the truce, which representatives of Argentina, Brazil and the United States have been seeking to arrange for some time, was given by the Lima Government after Ecuador rescinded a mobilization order calling 40,000 men of the 1916-19 classes to arms, the communique added.

(Dispatches from Buenos Aires said the Ambassadors of Peru and Ecuador were expected to meet Argentine, Brazilian and United States representatives there later this month in an attempt to negotiate a non-aggression treaty and reach a permanent settlement of the border dispute."

Mechanized forces as well as parachutists were said to have played an important part in the final day's fighting, during which the Peruvians said they had advanced more than 40 miles and occupied approximately 380 square miles of territory.

At one point airborne Peruvian troops landed in the rear of the Ecuadorian lines while they were being attacked from the front by tanks and forced the encircled Ecuadoreans to capitulate, the communique declared.

14 Canadian Officers Observe U.S. Training

GREATLY IMPRESSED

Fort Benning, Ga., Aug. 1 (AP)—Sent here to "see an American armored division in action on manoeuvres," 14 officers of the Royal Canadian armored corps arrived at this big army base yesterday for a month's duty as observers with the second armored division.

"We have been wonderfully impressed by the state of training in the second armored division," said Maj. C. M. Drury, Assistant Military Attache of the Canadian Legation in Washington. He accompanied the officers and made this statement after inspection of a panzer unit.

Canada now has one armored division and is forming another, Maj. Drury said. The visiting officers have been assigned to Benning organizations similar to units in which they serve in the Canadian armored corps. They will participate in third army manoeuvres in Louisiana beginning Aug. 10.

Shower is Held For Bridal Couple

On Thursday evening, July 24th, a large number of neighbors and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Purdy, 1st. concession of Thurlow in honor of their son, Pte. Ted W. Purdy and his bride (nee Miss Lillian Perrow) of Carrying Place, who were married Saturday July 19th. The early part of the evening was spent in music, card playing and other enjoyments. Later the bride and groom were seated and an address was read by Miss Hazel Reid. Two large baskets of presents were carried in and unwrapped amidst much merriment. The presents, both beautiful and useful, consisted of glassware, china, silver, linen and bedding etc.

In a few well chosen words the bride and groom thanked the donors for their gifts, asking all to visit them in the near future. After singing "For they are Jolly Good Fellows" the ladies of the community served refreshments and all departed for their various homes wishing Ted and Lillian the best of luck, prosperity and happiness.

Actress Takes Lion Cub To Zoo and Gets Bitten By Baby Chimpanzee

New York, Aug. 1 —(AP)— Actress Tallulah Bankhead took her 11 months old lion cub "Winston Churchill" to the Bronx Zoo yesterday and got bitten by a chimpanzee.

Restaurant and Hotel Men Co-operate To Supply Less Pork

Ottawa, Aug. 1 — (CP) — A growing collection of letters at the Agriculture department offices today indicated the men and women who provide tens of thousands of restaurant meals for Canadians each day are co-operating in reducing the use of pork products required for Britain.

The department sent out 18,000 circular letters to restaurants, lunch rooms, hotels and other eating places suggesting that they place on their menus a memo asking clients to select meats other than pork products and thus assist the shipment of essential bacon supplies to Britain.

A Halifax hotel manager told the department he had already reduced to three days a week the serving of both pork and bacon and had allowed none to be used by his own family for six months.

He suggested that all civil servants and railway employees should be instructed to do likewise and then Canada would have so much pork available that it could not find the cargo space to carry it overseas.

Department officials said the pork economy campaign was likely to be sustained for several months at least. The Dominion plans to supply United Kingdom with 450,000,000 pounds of bacon in the period ended Sept. 15 under agreement with the British authorities. The prospects are that an even larger supply of 600,000,000 pounds will be required under the next agreement with Britain.

An increase in hog marketing is expected in October but the increase will have to be extraordinarily large to meet the greater supplies wanted by Britain and the normal requirements of Canada as well, officials said.

Settlement of Six Strikes Appears More Favorable

Hamilton, Aug. 1—(CP)—National Steel Car strikers decided today to resume work at seven a.m. tomorrow morning, adopting the advice of union executive.

Prospects of settlement of Canada's labor difficulties seemed somewhat brighter today although six strikes were still in progress.

In Hamilton, Ont., National Steel Car Corporation strikers advised that the Dominion Government had agreed to their demands for a conference between management and union officials, today awaited a first-hand account of the discussions which took place in Ottawa yesterday between their union officials and federal labor officials before going back to the munitions plant.

A second strike in Hamilton started yesterday when 500 employees of the Canada Cotton Company walked out, reportedly because they misunderstood an agreement signed by their company and their union representatives last Sunday.

At Kitchener, Ont., the strike at Dumart's Limited, a packing plant, went into its 3rd day today. Three hundred employees are involved in the strike, second at the plant within three months.

The Canadian Car and Foundry Company's plant at Brantford, Ont., engaged in war industries, was idle today, with a wage issue between employees and management still unsettled. The dispute arose when 28 grinders protested against having to carry molten lead for a 44-cents-an-hour wage. Two hundred and seventy-two other employees struck Monday in sympathy with the grinders.

However, the men voted last night to return to work Tuesday. They said the decision had been reached in order not to embarrass the Department of Labor more than necessary. They had walked out last Friday.

Most in Ontario

Although most Canadian strikes centre in Ontario, the far west and the Maritimes have one each.

At Dawson, Yukon Territory, 700 placer miners employed by the Yukon Consolidated Gold Corporation walked out Monday when the firm refused to grant a $1-a-day wage increase.

Today is the third day of the strike at the Princess Colliery of the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company. Company officials have refused to meet labor officials until the 1,200 striking miners return to their jobs.

Conferences that might lead to establishment of a basis of negotiation in the dispute between the Aluminum Company of Canada and is employees were expected to be resumed at Arvida, Que., today between company officials and repre-
Syndicate of Aluminum Workers.

SIT-DOWN STRIKES MUST BE STOPPED BY GOV'T-HANSON

Conservative House Leader Declares Federal Authorities Must Decide on Action to Take

Edmonton, Aug. 1—(CP)—Conservative House Leader Hanson said in an interview here last night that the Dominion Government "must stop these sit-down strikes. The Government must decide on what action to take."

Commenting on the strike situation at Arvida, Que., Mr. Hanson said: "The whole trouble with Labor today is that the government laid down principles which had no compulsion-effect, although Labor thought they had, and Labor now is distrustful of the government."

The Conservative House Leader added that if the situation at Arvida is what Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply "said it was, then the Government ought to take action."

Mr. Hanson and his party are nearing the end of a "listening trip" to ascertain the views of the people of Western Canada. He is scheduled to make two speeches today.

Discussion of Post-War Problems

The first address at an Edmonton Chamber of Commerce luncheon at four p.m. EDT., will deal with post-war problems and Mr. Hanson said it will not include any political subjects. The second will be at a private dinner attended by Conservatives.

Mr. Hanson leaves tonight for Saskatoon where he will address the Canadian Club Saturday. He will conclude his tour with addresses at Fort William and Port Arthur Monday.

Mr. Hanson remarked that he has found that in the larger cities in the west there is a "large, growing body in favor of conscription."

"A lot of people don't know there's a war on," he said. "How are we going to scare them out of it?"

He quoted Prime Minister Mackenzie King as saying that young people have to be taught responsibility. Mr. Hanson said there has been "25 years of mal-education of the young men of Canada by Mackenzie King and Lapointe (Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice.)."

The Conservative Leader predicted conscription will come when public opinion supports it—"that is the whole issue."

Highlighting the fun and merriment in the technicolor musical, "Moon Over Miami," is the romance between stars Betty Grable and Don Ameche. Charlotte Greenwood and Jack Haley provide many laughs in the eventful film coming next to the Belle Theatre.

JAPAN DEMANDS MILITARY BASES IN THAILAND

Also Wants Control of That Country's Rubber, Rice and Tin

THREATENS BURMA

London, Aug. 1—(CP)—Japan has demanded military bases in Thailand and control of that country's rubber, rice and tin production, it was reported here today.

Japan was said to have offered in exchange restoration of the province of Laos and the ancient city of Angkor both in Japanese-dominated French Indo-China.

It was believed in London that Thailand's only alternative to granting bases would be forcible Japanese occupation of them.

(Tokyo announced today an agreement between Japan and Thailand under which Japan gained a large credit for purchases in Thailand, mostly price, it is presumed.)

Thailand lies partly on the Malay Peninsula, which is tipped by Britain's Singapore fortress, and shares the peninsula for a stretch between Burma and Singapore.

Since Thailand extends to within 400 miles of Singapore the danger of such concessions, in the British view, is easily seen. By occupation of Thailand's part of the Malay Peninsula, the Japanese could isolate Singapore from any assistance by land from Burma and India.

By creating bases on the western shore of the peninsula the Japanese could threaten Burma and India herself by air. There, however, Japanese planes would have to cross the broad Bay of Bengal to reach India proper.

The Royal Air Force has been strengthened in Burma, one Air Ministry announced today, with construction of airdromes "for both offensive and defensive actions."

The new fields, the announcement said, "are so located that they give Burma protection from any quarter."

Considerable reinforcements were said to be arriving, including numbers of United States-made Buffalo planes.

Thousands of workers have been busy for months laying out additional airfields midway between the Burma coast and the frontiers of China and Thailand (Siam), stretching from Lashio in upper Burma to the Morgui Archipelago in the south.

The fields are now completed, the Ministry said, and are suitable for use by fully-loaded bombers.

Will Abandon Dependance on Britain

Domei, Japanese news agency, predicted in a Bangkok dispatch that the agreement with Japan would be "followed sooner or later by Thailand's abandonment of her policy of economic dependence on Britain in favor of voluntary economic co-operation in east Asia with Japan."

Domei also reported that the Thai government had formally recognized Manchoukuo, the puppet state that Japan carved out of China's Manchurian provinces nearly 10 years ago.

A Domei dispatch from Saigon reported the landing there of Lt.-Gen. Shojiro Iida, commander-in-chief of Japan's army of occupation in French Indo-China. It said Japanese army and navy commanders had expressed "warm appreciation" to the government and people of French Indo-China "for the enthusiastic welcome and many facilities given the Japanese armed forces in their landing at Saigon."

MEXICO REBUKES

She took exception particularly to the German assertion that "resigned acceptance" of Washington's anti-Axis measures could not fail to influence the attitude of the Berlin Government in renewing commercial relations with Mexico after the war.

Pressure Imperious

This warning, declared Mexican Foreign Minister Ezequiel Padilla, "reveals by the sole fact of its being formulated a position of pressure, imperious and unjustifiable, which constitutes an open contradiction to the spirit of reciprocal respect which governs the foreign relations of the Mexican Republic."

Rejection of the German request constituted the second rebuff Mexico has delivered to the Reich Government within four months. In April President Manuel Avila Camacho's administration rejected a protest against expropriation of German ships in Mexican ports—a measure which paralleled action taken by the United States.

The German request on the Washington blacklist and Mexico's answer were disclosed last night with the publication of notes exchanged between Padilla and the Nazi minister, Rudt Von Collenberg.

Von Collenberg's Claim

In his note, dated July 28, Von Collenberg referred to the blacklist as "unjust and transcendental," asserted it violated "the liberty of commerce and even the sovereignty of Mexico" and declared it is the duty of the Mexican Government to protect the firms in question.

Padilla, in his answer, said curtly the Mexican Government "alone is competent, in absolute fashion, to note on what occasions the liberty of commerce and the sovereignty of Mexico are injured," and asserted it can not "permit a foreign diplomat to call its attention to those cases in which it should intervene in defence of such lofty and precious values.

Outspoken Reply

To the proposal that Mexico protest to Washington, the Foreign Minister replied:

"I can assure Your Excellency that the road Mexico will take will be that which it esteems most appropriate without need of receiving or carrying out instructions of other authorities conveyed by any of the accredited diplomats in this capital.

"......In this matter, as in all those of mutual interest to the western hemisphere, the policy of my Government......will continue to be inspired by the principles of inter-American co-operation and will have as a basis the common criteria with which America is trying to resolve the problems created by the present international conflict."

The blacklist, which was announced July 17, prohibited exports from the United States to approximately 1,800 Latin-American firms suspected of doing business with the Axis, including about 190 in Mexico.

TRAPPED MEN

Fair Sized Air Chamber

Miners believe that there is a fair-sized air chamber within the rubble and that it contains water for the trapped miners to drink. It has been impossible, however, to get any food to them.

Mr. Blomfield said he believed that the men were not injured seriously in the rockburst. "Dr. T. P. Kelly was here throughout the night and he believes that the men must be in good shape or they would have succumbed long before this."

Outside the mine, people pass back and forth in an orderly manner. There is no big crowd, such as is often seen at mine-heads where disasters have taken place.

Nothing is allowed to interfere with rescue efforts and relatives of the trapped men are waiting for news of them at home.

Sleepless Wives Wait

Kirkland Lake, Ont., Aug. 1—(CP)—Sleepless for the past 36 hours, the wives of the three miners trapped near the 4,000-foot level of the Lake Shore gold mine here are still awaiting decisive news from the rescue parties digging towards the men.

While rescuers say they can hear the muffled shouts of Peter Cain, Harold MacMillan and Griffin Jones coming through the ruffle which blocks their escape, their wives are maintaining a cheerful attitude.

Mrs. MacMillan and Mrs. Jones never gave up hope that their husbands were not alive. When word came from the mine Thursday that the men were given up as dead, Mrs. MacMillan broke down and sobbed for a minute. Then she said: "I don't believe it. I have a feeling that he is still alive".

Mrs. Jones Confident

Mrs. Jones, whose husband has been involved in three rockbursts, on one of which he was seriously injured while four companions were killed, said: "He will come through all right".

Mrs. Cain was resigned to learning that the miners had been killed before news came from the mine that rescuers had heard their voices and were hopeful that a rescue could be made.

Following the rock burst that shook Kirkland Lake homes, there was no rush to the mine gates. The mining folk remained cool.

Even today when the release of the men is imminent there are no throngs before the gates.

There are only the cars of workers employed at the mine, either in the rescue crews or at other mine activities. At the great iron gate stands a watchman, no one may pass him who has not business at the mine.

Out of the gateway comes miners off shift. Ask them about the burst, what is happening beyond the gate, and they merely shake their heads and say—"Give them time, they'll soon have them out".

RUSSIANS DRIVE WEDGES INTO NAZI WEAK SPOTS

ROOSEVELT STRIKES ECONOMIC BLOW AT JAPAN

Reds Wipe Out 137th Nazi Division In Smolensk Area

Soviet 99th Division Smashes 3 German Divisions by Opening Gaps for Flanking Attacks

GIVE SUNDAY'S WORST

Moscow, Aug. 2 (AP).—The Russians reported today they had wiped out the 137th German infantry division in the vital Smolensk sector and said crack Red army units were driving wedges into weak spots in the Nazi forward wall.

(German military dispatches reported infantry had moved up to advanced lines in the Smolensk area, freezing mechanised forces for a new attack.)

A Moscow communique said fighting continued overnight near Smolensk, Nevel and Zhitomir—scenes of hotly-contested action for days—but that "no major engagements took place".

That report pictured the Russian lines holding firm and the force of German thrusts weakening as the sixth week of the war drew to a close.

The communique said the 137th division was rushed to the Smolensk front by the Germans in an attempt to stem a Soviet push that had shoved the German lines back.

Before the infantrymen could get from march into action, the Russian account said, they were attacked from the flank and cut off from support.

The Red army's field guns battered the encircled division, causing casualties by the hundreds, the communique reported. Then the encircling troops drove in.

Moscow underwent its ninth air raid of the war during the night but the attack was described as frustrated with only three or four raiders breaking through the city's defences. Incendiary bombs were dropped and a few fires broke out.

The Soviet 99th Division, a veteran organization of picked men, was cited in Russian military dispatches as an example of the forces stabbing at the German forward wall. The 99th was said to have smashed three German divisions by opening gaps for flanking attacks.

Red army tank forces also were credited with destroying smaller German units. A Moscow communique reported, too, that Soviet tank units on several sectors of the front encountered and smashed manned but immobilized German tanks. Some of these, the communique asserted had been partly buried and were used as pillboxes.

The communique said the tanks were being put to such use by the Germans because the war was draining oil supplies so fast many advanced tank units were running out of fuel.

Working to keep military supplies moving behind her own lines, Russia declared Sunday "a Voskresnik", or day of voluntary work on all railroads. Workers will do without the day off and their wages for the day will be contributed to defence funds.

GERMAN GIRLS IN 'AUXILIARY WAR SERVICE'

Berlin, Aug. 2 (AP)— German girls must spend a half-year in "auxiliary war service" after completing six months in the Reich labor service, the government decreed today. The auxiliary service includes work in army and civil administration offices, hospitals and social organizations.

CLAIM 35,000 PRISONERS

Berlin, Aug. 2 (AP)—Reports of German troop movements in the Smolensk salient toward Moscow suggested today that a new attempt attack by mechanized divisions was in preparation.

Nazi infantry was said to have reached advance lines after destroying thousands of Russians, releasing mechanized troops for a fresh thrust toward the Soviet capital, Nazis claimed.

D.N.B., German news and propaganda agency said Nevel, Novorzhev, Smolensk and Zhitomir, towns used by Soviet communiques to identify battle sectors have been in German hands for a long time.

At Smolensk Germans said they captured 35,000 prisoners and 245 cannon in the clean-up of a pocket of resistance. A second encircled group of Russians is still fighting, however, northeast of the city but is well under control, it was said.

(The Russians said the situation in the four areas was not materially changed.)

No News From Northern Sector

There was no news of the northern sector where, unofficially, Germans had claimed that Leningrad was in a precarious position.

In the south Germans admitted a temporary Soviet success in splitting German and Rumanian troops, but claimed the Russians were driven back with bloody losses after a German and Rumanian mounterattack which destroyed a Red division.

More Russian losses were claimed in the Kiev area after German guns allegedly halted a troop train and forced the soldiers to make hurried defensive preparations. Thousands of prisoners were claimed.

Nazis Claim Russian Air Force Broken

Germany contended the power of the Russian air force had been broken and that Soviet planes were being used only on the defensive.

(Russia said its air force was cooperating actively with offensive army action.)

Meanwhile, in the very thick of battle, German engineers worked to strengthen long communication lines by changing the gauge of Russian railway lines to the standard European width.

(Russia has maintained broad gaue railways as a defence measure.)

The Germans in some cases moved one rail and in others installed a third so that captured Russian equipment as well as German could be used to haul men and supplise.

HERO OF EXPLOSION IN 1926 IS KILLED IN CAVE-IN

Coleman, Alta., Aug. 2 (CP)—Frank Serak, hero of the McGillivray Mine explosion here in 1926, was instantly killed yesterday when crushed under tons of rock and coal in a cave in at the International Mine in this Crow's Nest Pass town. Serak led a number of men to safety through the fume-filled corridors of the McGillivray Mine in 1926 after a severe explosion killed seven miners.

Time Has Come for 'V' Army to Equip For Struggle Says Col. Britton

New York, Aug. 2 (CP)— Col. Britton, BBC's mysterious spokesman to the "V for victory" army of the occupied countries, told his followers last night that the time had come for the V army to "equip itself for the struggle, and in doing so strike an important blow at the Germans."

In his broadcast, heard here by CBS, Col. Britton urged his listeners to "empty the shops before the Germans empty them" and to protect health by laying in stocks of food, fuel and clothing for the winter.

He urged that no attempt be made to save money since it is German-controlled money and that it is better to "buy whatever you can get."

3 MINERS RESCUED FROM 4,000 FEET UNDERGROUND

First Hours Worst After Rockburst at Lake Shore Gold Mine Imprisoned Them

MEN ARE UNHURT

Kirkland Lake, Ont., Aug. 2 (CP)—Laughing and joking with their rescuers, three miners trapped nearly 4,000 feet underground in the Lake Shore Gold Mine for more than 48 hours, were brought to the surface early today. They were taken immediately to the first-aid station at the mine and later today will be removed to hospital.

The men—Peter Cain, 37-year-old shift boss, Harry McMillan, 37, and Griffith Jones, 38—told officials that the first few hours were the worst after the rockburst imprisoned them. They could hear no sounds and just sat in their "prison" waiting for sounds that would tell them rescue squads were at work.

Visible injuries only were a scratched hand suffered by Jones and a cut finger by Cain. Their wives were the only persons allowed to see the men as they were treated by Dr. T. F. Kelly, mine doctor.

Marks "Noughts and Crosses" on Timbers

To pass the time away they kept busy playing "noughts and crosses" on the timbers, using chalk as a pencil. Their first hope of being saved arose Thursday night when they heard rescuers working through muck, rocks and timbers. They talked to rescuers and officials believed then that at least two of the men were alive.

Late last night mine manager A. L. Blomfield brought out word that the three men were "alive and unhurt" and that a diamond drill had pierced a hole through the rock and muck and shattered timbers to the men's chamber. They were fed soup and coffee "piped down the hole."

Heard by Comrades

The miners could be heard plainly by their comrades and from that point on it was just a matter of when rescuers would reach them. The men had exhausted their supply of cigarettes and these and chewing tobacco were sent down to them.

They conserved their battery lights by using only one flashlight at a time. The last flashlight lasted until 7 p.m. last night.

Shortly before the rescue the trapped miners asked for tools so that they too could "go to work."

Royal Visitor Greeted By Officers And Staff—Spends Two Hours at Camp And Has Lunch in Officers' Mess

CHATS WITH CPL. TOMBS, V. C.

TRENTON AIR STATION, Aug. 2 (Staff)—Smiling, handsome, debonair, the Duke of Kent, youngest son of His late Majesty King George V, and brother of the present King, stepped from a Royal Canadian Air Force plane here this morning at 10.50, on the first step of an inspection tour of air stations operating in the Dominion under the Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

The morning sun glinting on its wings, the plane glided to a stop on the tarmac in front of the Central Flying School hangars.

As the Royal visitor, looking tanned and fresh, stepped from the plane with his aides-de-camp and other personnel, he was greeted by Air Commodore G. E. Brookes, O.C., No. 1 Training Command; Group-Captain T. A. Lawrence, officer commanding the station and members of his staff Standing smartly at attention, their rifles at "the present", a guard of honor of 100 picked airmen received glances of approval from the Duke as he chatted with the air station officers

Accompanying the Duke of Kent, who wore the uniform of an air-commodore, were Group-Captain Sir Louis Greig, R.A.F., chief aide; Flight-Lieutenant P. J. Ferguson, R.A.F., aide-de-camp; J. A. Lowther, private secretary to His Royal Highness; Inspector Evans, Scotland Yard, and Wing Commander Lawrence E. Wray, Royal Canadian Air Force

Prior to inspecting the guard of honor the Royal party stood at attention while the crack band of the station played the National Anthem and His Royal Highness received the Royal Salute.

In a two-hour inspection, the Duke saw the workshops, barracks, hangars and other places of interest. He saw Canadian, Australian and other pilots of the Empire.

Meets Winner of V. C.

Perhaps the highlight of the visit came unexpected when Corporal J. H. Tombs, V.C., was presented to His Highness, who chatted freely with the holder of the Victoria Cross. Later it was disclosed that the Duke of Kent had previously known Corporal Tombs and had had conversations with this distinguished airman in England.

Some of the visiting senior officers present for the Royal visit were Group Captain W. C. Keddie, Picton, Group Captain F. Waite, Mountain View, Wing Commander L. Trethervey, of 6 A.R.D. while the welcoming committee was composed of Wing Commander G. P. Dunlop, Squadron Leader A. K. Aspden. Flt. Lt. J. W. Reid was in charge of the guard of honour.

Ottawa, Aug. 2 (CP)—Death of 12 members of the Royal Canadian Air Force in action or by accident was reported today in the 60th R. C. A. F. casualty list of the war which also listed one man as missing and believed killed overseas and 20 as missing on overseas air operations.

RETIRED ENGINEER CAUGHT BETWEEN FREIGHTS, KILLED

Smiths Falls, Ont., Aug. 2 (CP)—Caleb Luks, retired Canadian Pacific Railway engineer, was killed instantly early today when caught between two freight cars when crossing the west end of the C.P.R. yard.

Information to police said he stepped between the cars during shunting operations as a train was being made up. In inquest will be held.

Two sons, Austin and Roy, live in Smiths Falls.

Epic of Human Courage Revealed As Charred Bomber Staggers Home

London, Aug. 2 —(CP)— The story was told today how a big Wellington bomber, looking like "little more than a charred skeleton," staggered home from last week's raid on the German battleship Gneisenau at Brest.

The plane's navigator had been killed. The rear gunner was saved from bleeding to death by quick application of a tourniquet around one of his legs.

The retractable undercarriage would not descend to landing position and the captain, squadron leader who has earned the Distinguished Flying Cross, invited his crew to bale out only to get the answer, "No, sir, we'll stick with you."

He made a belly landing without doing any further damage.

The rugged bomber had recovered from a flaming 9,000 foot dive over Brest, both engines had died and the skipper's parachute harness had become entangled with the control column.

This is the captain's story:—

"I had just put my nose down to join another Wellington which I saw below me when we were attacked by an enemy fighter.

"Bullets whizzed between my legs and went out through the cabin. They just missed the second pilot too. They had apparently come all the way through the rear turret, for the rear gunner was wounded and an oil pipe severed.

"Flames enveloped the turret but the rear gunner, despite his wound, beat them out and then scrambled back into his perch. Oil was all over the turret and, though he could hardly see out, he started firing bursts at a fighter trying to attack.

"The rear gunner was wounded again and the turret caught fire again.

"The rear gunner crawled back into the fuselage with the help of the second pilot."

By this time the whole plane seemed to be on fire, the Captain said. In addition to the flaming turret there was a fire in the bomb bay caused when incendiary bullets set the doors alight.

The second pilot and the radio operator fought the flames with everything they could lay hands on. Fire extinguishers, gloves and cushions. What was burning and detachable they threw out of the windows.

Then both engines cut out and the plane went into a spin, out of control. She was flying at 10,000 feet. The Captain was thrown forward and the hook of his parachute harness caught in the control column. As the Wellington sank in the spin the German fighter followed it down.

The navigator went to the Captain's aid and as she was trying to unhook the parachute harness from the control column suffered a bullet wound that sagged him on top of his chief.

After the machine fell 9,000 feet the Captain disentangled himself and levelled off.

"The starboard engine by some miracle came on," his story said. "Then the port engine. Then we started to clean up the mess."

The second pilot and wireless operator removed the navigator from the control cabin and sought to save his life but he died in their arms.

EMBARGO ORDERED ON U.S. AVIATION GASOLINE EXPORTS

Other Fuel Exports Also Drastically Cut—Silk Stocks Frozen—British Empire Exempted

SILK RESTRICTED

By LLOYD LEHRBAS
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Washington, Aug. 2 (AP)—Japan faced a showdown today in her program to expansion southward as President Roosevelt acted to embargo aviation fuel and drastically reduce other oil exports on which Japan depends for more than two-thirds of the gasoline and lubricants that she needs.

Since Britain and The Netherlands East Indies—the only other available major sources—have imposed stringent export control and financial restrictions on oil and other military necessities, petroleum authorities consider that Japan's war machine and industries must now run principally on hoarded and diminishing oil stocks.

The United States struck another severe economic blow at Japan when all silk stocks in the United States were frozen, presumably for defence production, indicating that import control restrictions would severely cut down United States silk imports which have provided Japan with $100,000,000 cash or credits annually.

The President had previously set the stage for the drastic oil and silk orders by ordering the freezing of all Japanese assets in American territory, crippling Japan's trade with one of its last and biggest cash customers.

A week ago President Roosevelt had hinted that an oil embargo might be imposed—a move which he said had not been taken in the past because it would tend to force Japan to go to the East Indies for a new supply.

STATE CIVIL SIEGE IS PROCLAIMED IN NAZI NORWAY

Swedish Papers Report German Police Have Taken Over All Power In Norway

RIOTS IN BELGIUM

Stockholm, Aug. 2—(AP)—Swedish morning newspapers reported today that German police have taken over all power in Norway and that a state of civil siege has been proclaimed throughout the Nazi-occupied country.

Inhabitants of a great many districts, especially those along the coasts, have been ordered to deliver all radio receiving sets to the police, the papers said.

No reason for the reported German action were given by the papers.

The Scandinavian radio said Thursday night, however, that it had received information of a clash between German marines and civilians at Alesund, Norway. The civilians tried to halt deportation of about 70 hostages collected in the city and its environs, the radio reported.

Anti-German Demonstrations in Belgium

London, Aug. 2—(CP)—Belgium's independence day, July 21, was the occasion of numerous anti-German demonstrations in many parts of that Nazi-occupied country and street fighting broke out in several places, a Belgian source declared today.

"In Brussels demonstrations went on all day long," this source said. "Large numbers paraded in boulevards and the principal streets.

"As they marched along some of them dared to shout insults at the Nazis and Belgian fifth columnists. At various interesections there was fighting.

"German authorities were obliged once more to reproach Belgian police for not having dispersed the demonstrators, particularly for not saving Rexists and Flemish extremists from manhandling."

FINLAND DECLARED ENEMY-OCCUPIED TERRITORY BY U.K.

Britain and Finland Are However Not at War—Break Due to Finland's Association With Axis

SHIPPING UNAFFECTED

All goods destined for Finland were declared liable to seizure and a government order cut off all commercial and financial transactions between the countries.

Finland was held formally an "enemy destination for contraband purposes."

An authoritative source said all communications with Finland were interrupted last night when Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden was notified of the diplomatic break.

The source emphasized the two countries were not at war with one another and said Britain still considered the break the result of "an unfortunate association of Finland with the Axis."

Designating Finland as German-occupied territory would not affect Finnish shipping because the recent occupation of the country by Nazi troops made impossible issuance of navicerts to vessels en route to Finland this source said.

POLICE-BLOTTER

Following continued complaints from apartment residents residing along Front St., City Police were asked to check the loud playing of music or "juke" boxes late at night and thereby disturbing the peaceful slumbers of residents. Constables Arnott and Evans investigated the matter late Friday night and requested restaurant owners, in which places of business these music boxes are placed, to have consideration for others and lower the tone of their machines.

Licence Plate Stolen

Percy Dulmage, 11 West Moira St., reported the theft of a trailer licence plate that was stolen from off his parked trailer sometime Thursday night. The number of the licence was given as 44754T.

Robbers entered Dulmage's Service Station on Cannifton Road sometime Friday night and stole a quantity of cigarettes. The firm's cash register was broken open but there was no money left in cash box.

Entrance was gained by climbing a ladder at the rear of the premises and forcing a window. The ladder had been placed behind the building yesterday by an employee who was engaged placing a screen over the window. The employee neglected to remove the ladder after completing his work. P. C. Wright was informd upon his investigation today.

Five persons were injured, two seriously, when the automobile in which they were riding left the highway, collided with a guard rail and Hydro pole on the Cannifton Road a few hundred yards north of Belleville shortly before midnight last night. The car, driven by Herbert H. Day, R.R. No. 6 Belleville, failed to negotiate a curve and was practically demolished.

The other occupants of the vehicle were Gnr. Donald Baxter, of the R.C.A., Petawawa and formerly of 316 Station St., Belleville, who is suffering from deep head lacerations and a spinal injury that paralyzed him from the shoulders down. William Bellis, Cannifton Road, sustained face lacerations and severe eye injury. Baxter and Bellis were taken to the Belleville General Hospital: Others in the car were Walter Way, Station P.O. and Jack Boyle, 18 Olive St., who lost three teeth and was cut about the face.

The quintette was proceeding on the Cannifton Road when, it is alleged by police, the car failed to negotiate a curve. The vehicle broke off two guard rail posts and continued along the shoulder of the road until it struck a reinforced Hydro pole with such force the car was practically demolished.

Provincial Constables Patterson and Hatch investigated the accident.

"Pop" Cooper Famous Power Boat Racer Arrives for Regatta

On an elaborate trailer complete with air brakes he brought with him two boats "Tops III" and "Tops Pup" a new 91 cu in. boat, designed and built by himself. The small boat is carried on top of the large one.

With Tops Pup, Pop Cooper will try to set the world's record for 91 cu in. boats on Picton course next Tuesday morning. Recently in Quebec with this new boat, Pop started nine times and won nine times, racing against a boat in the 135 cu in. class with a speed of 63 M.P.H. which he beat.

Bob Schelling, executive of the American Power Boat Association with Mrs. Schelling of Niagara Falls, N.Y., is in town for the regatta, also Mr. Inch of London with his boat, and the owner of Sea Biscuit with that fine boat.

Airmen's Canteen Opened

Lady A. Seton officially opened the airmen's canteen at Picton Bombing and Gunnery School Friday afternoon. This is a recreational centre for the men where the surroundings are very homelike. The building is attractively decorated and the lounge section equipped with easy chairs, rugs, radio, piano, tables for writing. The other section is a wet canteen.

Lady Seton, wife of Squadron Leader Seton, was introduced by Group Captain C. H. Keith, C. O., and she complimented the men of the work they are doing. One of the airmen made the presentation of a lovely bouquet of flowers.

Following the opening ceremonies the visitors and entertainers enjoyed a social time in the new centre.

Class Holds Wiener Roast

Members of the Blue Bird Class of Cherry Valley enjoyed a wiener roast at Point Petre lighthouse Thursday night. Philip Dodds had charge and an impromptu program included several numbers by members of the army camping at the Point.

The nurses' residence of Prince Edward County Hospital is being improved with a coat of paint. It was recently opened, being a separate building. This provides more room for patients in the hospital.

Miss Beatrice Delaney of Black Creek left on Friday for Ottawa where she has accepted a civil service position.

Mrs. Wm. Rankin and children of Belleville have moved to Picton where they will occupy an apartment in the home of her mother, Mrs. Edward Boulter, Centre St.

NATIONAL DEFENCE AWARDS MADE

One Hundred and Fifty-Seven Given Officers, N.C.O.'S and Men of Permanent Army and Reserve

Ottawa, Aug. 2 (CP)—National Defence Headquarters today announced 157 long service awards to officers, non-commissioned officers and men of Canada's permament army and the reserve.

Department spokesmen said many of the awards for reserve army service went to men who now have volunteered for active service.

The Canadian efficiency decoration was awarded to 38 officers. This award is granted to reserve army officers after 20 years, efficient service. Officers who rose from the ranks may add half the length of time they were in the ranks to the time they have been officers in calculating their years of service to quasaper the decoration.

The Canadian efficiency medal, awarded to non-commissioned officers and men of the reserve army after 12 years of training, was granted to 83 persons. Twelve others were awarded a clasp to the medal, signifying an additional six years' service.

Eighteen non-commissioned officers and men were awarded the Canadian medal for long service and good conduct (military). This award, made only to non-commissioned officers and men of the permanent army, signifies 18 years of service.

Four officers were awarded the colonial auxiliary forces officers' decoration for 20 years' service in the reserve army completed prior to Sept. 22, 1931, when this decoration was replaced by the efficiency decoration.

The number of post offices in Canada has increased from 3,470 at Confederation to more than 12,000.

Life insurance was first sold in Canada about the middle of the 19th century.

Who Are the Boys of the Third Division?

Young Men With Smattering of Veterans Hailing from Cities, Farms, Mines, Forests — C.P. Correspondent Describes

By ANDY ROSS

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

An East Coast Canadian Port, Aug. 2—(CP)—What manner of men make up Canada's Third Division? Who are the boys who, in the words of Defence Minister Ralston, will help "wipe this man Hitler from the face of the earth?"

Young men, with a smattering of veterans, hailing from cities, farms, mines and forests—they crowded around Col. Ralston after he inspected units aboard one of the great liners in this port.

They climbed to every conceivable vantage point, even to the rigging, as he stood bare-headed atop a hatch cover to wish them luck and "God Speed" on their "great adventure."

Artillery Unit Sub-Section

Talking to the members of an artillery unit sub-section gives you some idea of the "manner of men" they are. This group is fairly representative of the hundreds of other small segments in the mighty troop movement.

The sub-section leader was Bombardier Montrealer, who was kinky-haired Montrealer who was a militiaman before the outbreak of war. Bdr. McCaskill thinks the world of his men—and the feeling is mutual.

"Most of us have trained hard and waited a long time," he said. "This is what we've been waiting for." His men grinned approval.

Although his sub-section had not been together as a unit as long as some, he said they were getting along well.

"But, this morning they threatened to throw me overboard when I came around at 5 a.m. to wake 'em up".

Some of the Men

Here are some of his men:—Gnr. H. J. Shepherd, 36, Brockville, Ont., former hat and glove maker, married three children; Gnr. A. R. Borland, 30, Kingston, Ont., single, miner in Northern Ontario; Gnr. R. J. Boyle, 22, Delta, Ont., farmer, married one child; Gnr. A. G. Cannons 21, Belleville, Ont., farmer, single; Gnr. O. W. Burtch, 20, Seeley's Bay Ont., farmer, single; Gnr. H. Spinks, 41, Havelock, Ont., farmer single; Gnr. H. E. Laycock, 19 Walter's Falls, Ont., student; Gnr. W. R. Chapman, plumbing and heating single; Gnr. B. S. R. Rogers, 21, Camden East, Ont., mechanic, single; Gnr. T. G. Anderss, 21, Rockport, Ont., garageman, married.

Gunner Cannons' Reason

"What else could I join but the artillery?" said Gnr. Cannons. He would like to get back to Southampton where he lived for 14 years before coming to Canada. He also said he hoped he would "be able to recognize the old place after all the blitzing".

Anderss said the orders to move came as a surprise to him. Although his three-month-old marriage was "too short", he said he was "glad we're finally going".

There was quite a sprinkling of Americans in some of the other sections of this artillery unit. One of them, Gnr. W. R. Goldfein, 22, year-old adventurer from New York's Bronx, enlisted at Montreal five months ago.

'Beating the Draft'

Asked why he joined the Canadian army, the strapping Yank said:

"Well, it was this way—my number was due to come up and this is one way to beat the draft".

Another American, who everyone called 'Pop' was Gnr. J. W. Doyle, 41, a member of the Air Service with the American Expeditionary Force in France in the First Great War.

A real fighting-man's man, 'Pop' joined the Canadian Army to "get back into it" more quickly than he would in the U.S. he said he thought Canadian Army training "too long" and "too much" for the good of morale. After a year the boys were beginning to get stale", he said, "but we're O.K. now".

"Pop" apparently had other accomplishments for his pals kept saying tell him how you rolled a buck into a ten".

Former Imperial

RSM. A. Morgan of Napanee, Ont., a native of England and formerly of the Imperial Army, agreed with "Pop" about morale.

"Yes, the lads were beginning to go a bit stale", he said. "But the morale of the entire outfit increased 100 per cent. when the orders to move came.

"They're all eager to get overseas and take their place with the other Canadian troops. Why, you should have seen their faces when they first saw these ships. Some of 'em never saw anything larger than a rowboat before. They actually couldn't believe such a monster of steel, iron and concrete would float.

"Ah, but they're a fine bunch—as fine as any soldiers anywhere in the world".

RSM. Morgan's eyes sparkled with such a light that you believed him.

TO THE EMPIRE'S DEFENCE

The main body of the third division of the Canadian army landed overseas a few days ago. It was a typical Canadian army, young men mostly of the high mettle which inspired the foundation of this nation. It contains men from a good many of the communities of the Dominion and they join the great army of Canadians overseas.

This is one of the finest tributes to the British Empire, the enlistment of the Dominions to defend the Empire and Britain. It is a proof of Britain as the seat of democracy and of the ties, that bind Dominions and Motherland, ties not only of trade but more, the ties of race and of kindred free spirit.

Just as Canadians go to the seat of Empire, the world itself looks to it for it is from there that the mighty decisions are made and it is from it that there is being waged the war of Europe and the world against Hitler the Hun.

Canadians are proud of their young men who have taken the responsibility of correcting the great wrong which Germany has done the world.

Proof of the great service of the Royal Navy is given in the safe crossing of two great contingents from Canada within a month.

REBUKING THE HUN

A healthy sign of the attitude of the free peoples in America is shown in the attitude which Mexico took towards Hitler's government's request that Mexico protest President Roosevelt's blacklist of pro-Axis firms in Mexico. She told the German government that she thought the request "imperious" and "threatening" and stated that she would not brook any interference from abroad in the formation of her national policies.

The German government so accustomed to bulldozing, could not make a "request" without the threat that "resigned acceptance" of Washington's anti-Axis measures could not fail to influence the German government in renewing commercial relations with Mexico after the war.

It was the old German trick of threat and pressure. Mexico, like all the rest of the world, knows the deadly course the German government has taken in destroying liberty of nations.

Mexico's reply was justly blunt and carried a stinging rebuke that Mexico will follow the road it esteems most appropriate without need of instructions of other authorities. There spoke a state that did not fear to criticize the Reich.

"Barefaced impudence" on the part of Germany was the comment of U.S. Acting Secretary of State on Germany's action in trying to tell another nation what it should do to protect its sovereign rights in blunt words even a Hun could understand.

Mexico did not hesitate to rebuke the government of which Hitler is chief.

WHAT U.S. WOMEN HAVE DONE

British people will never forget what has been done for them by people of other nations, particularly the women of the United States. In ever-increasing volume there go from every part of the great United States "bundles" for Britain. Now there is a new organization "Bundles for Bluejackets" which will provide knitted garments, radios, cigarettes, candy and games for the men of the merchant marine in the front line of the Battle of the Atlantic. Officers and men of no fewer than thirty ships, merchant and naval, have been so outfitted in the last few months, says the New York Times.

The Bundles for Britain organization, beginning in the early days of the war, has now 1,135 branches throughout the United States, managed mostly by volunteers who give their time and energies to the cause. More than half a million dollars was spent last year in goods and cash to mitigate the hardships of the people in bombed areas of Britain.

The sympathetic heart of womankind in the United States cannot but feel the most intense sympathy for their cousins who live in the British Isles and bear what they are called upon to bear. Their feelings have been translated into good works.

OURSELVES AND OTHERS...

BY

VALE AND FAREWELL

Your sorrows, pleasure, passions, pomp and noise.
I leave you now, for the eternal silence of the stars—
The deafness of unbounded space,
Where bars no longer hold the soul in durance vile.
Where naught can wound and nothing can defile,
Where the pure spirit shall despise the things
That sense on earth hath loved on wings
Bathed in the ether of eternity,
How sweet to feel from every passion free!
And yet, it is an awful leap to take
Into the great unknown! Perchance to wake
To greater woes indeed than we have
And hoped to bury in the silent grave.
But still, the great majority is there!
Or tremble when the hour supreme has come.
And may we hope for sweet oblivion there.
Ho, Charon, come! I signal thee tonight!
Come, row me o'er the Styx! I've lost the fight.

A SCARLET COMPLEXION

We twitted all those lads and lassies
At Stoney Point, re five-pound "basses"
We little knew prediction lay,
Within those lines, for lackaday,
The ink had scarcely dried, when lo
They hauled two in—five pounds or so,
The story's ended, enuff's been said,
Suffice to say—Is our face red?

V V V V

Remember Bob Edward's famous prayer. Here 'tis:—

Lord let me keep a straight way in the path of honor—and a straight face in the presence of solemn asses. Let me not truckle to the high, nor bulldoze the low: Let me frolic with the jack and the joker and win the game. Lead me into truth and beauty—and tell me her name. Keep me sane, but not too sane. Let me not take the world or myself too seriously, and grant more people to laugh with and fewer to laugh at. Let me condemn no man because of his grammar and no woman on account of her morals, neither being responsible for either. Preserve my sense of humor and of values and proportions. Let me be helpful while I live, but not live too long. Which is about all today.

Lord, Amen.

CIVIC HOLIDAY

Monday is Civic Holiday. In street parlance, the general public is faced with a "long weekend." While many essential industries will not observe the occasion, a great many people will seek diversion from their ordinary pursuits. The weather has been hot. There is every probability that it will continue to remain so. And that will mean a large exodus to camp, cottage and summer resort. Automobiles, motor and other boats will be in demand. Swimmers will follow their favorite summer recreation. Little children will play on beaches and around summer resorts.

In the background lurks the grim spectre of accident and death. Beside them are their fifth columnists, carelessness and forgetfullness. Arrayed against them are common sense and foresight.

Accidents can and will happen. By Tuesday morning people will have died or will be in hospital with serious injury. These things apparently are holiday inevitabilities. But common sense and foresight can reduce the number of deaths and accidents to a minimum. A little care can forestall a lifetime of remorse.

Resolve to use common sense and thoughtlessness today or tomorrow when you leave for the holiday. Exercise care at all times, and you will assist in a great measure to reduce the holiday catastrophes that are increasing at an alarming rate in this fair Dominion.

Dying Aussies Laugh While German Raiders Bomb Their Hospital

(War Correspondent Robert St. John of The Associated Press pictures the bombings he underwent in Greece, in this fifth of six chapters of his Balkan odyssey.)

By ROBERT ST. JOHN

New York (AP) — When you think of hospitals, you probably think of walls and operating rooms and efficient doctors and all that sort of thing. But the hospitals in Greece weren't like that.

Yet the lives of thousands of maimed air raid victims were probably saved this spring because inside the small, badly-lighted, badly-ventilated places they called hospitals in Greece, gritty young Greek nurses went on tying bandages around arms and legs, even though the bombs kept dropping from the sky.

When we arrived at the hospital in Corinth, Greece, we found there was no doctor in town. They had all gone off with the army. But several nurses agreed to look over Leigh White of C.B.S., who had been badly wounded when the train on which we had been riding was machine-gunned by a Messerschmitt.

Dying Soldiers Cheerful

While they were hauling him inside the building, a grey-haired woman, who spoke a little English, grabbed the rest of us by our arms and begged us to "say just a word to the Australian boys in here."

So we went into the big ward room. The boys all grinned when we offered them cigarets. They were a cheerful lot, even though many of them were going to live only a few hours or a few days.

Just then hell broke loose. A swarm of dive bombers roared over Corinth. The hospital shook like those big buildings back in Rumania during the earthquake.

But the bombs really were dropping quite a way off, at least a mile. We ran out and saw the planes roar down from the clouds, one after another. The target was a thirty-car train.

We knew then that neither Leigh White nor any of the rest of us would get any attention in Corinth.

That train had just pulled into town. The planes probably had been following it. The cars were full of wounded soldiers. In a few minutes they would be hauling them into this hospital. The grit of those pretty Greek nurses was soon going to be tested as it never had been tested before. Naturally they would have no time for a couple of newspapermen with a few bullets scattered through their legs.

So we started looking for transportation.

Continuous Parade of Stretchers

While we hunted we could see flames shooting up out of the train. And we could hear faint explosions as the bullets in the rifles on board the train got hot and went off. It sounded like muffled machine-gun fire from hundreds of guns.

Then we began to hear worse noises . . . the moans of the men being hauled through the streets on stretchers. The parade of stretcher-bearers was continuous . . . all afternoon. The men were in bad shape. Bombs, then fire, had done a nasty job.

At the hospital they hauled them right into the big hall and rolled them onto the floor and then went back for more.

The hospital attendants took one quick look at each victim. Then he was either put aside for possible attention when and if the red-eyed nurses got around to him, or he was hauled out into the courtyard.

We finally found transportation. It was just at sundown. I stood on the edge of the Gulf of Corinth looking over the smooth water, while the other boys loaded White on the British lorry whose driver had agreed to help us.

Bombers Cut Out Engines

It was calm and quiet over that water. I stood therethinking how water. I stood there thinking how the planes stay out of the sky.

I didn't hear the planes come. Nobody did. They weren't making any noise. Their engines seemed to be cut off entirely. But I did see them. There were eight or ten of them. They were monsters. Three or four engines apiece. They were just skimming the water.

I remember that I wondered whether they were Greek or British planes. And where had they suddenly come from? We hadn't been seeing any Greek or British planes. They couldn't be enemy planes, because they were just gliding in as though they were going to land, and no one was paying any attention to them.

Right across the gulf there were half a dozen machine-gun nests. I had watched them firing all afternoon at enemy machines. Of course they weren't firing at these planes, I thought, because they're friendly machines.

Fooled All But One Gunner

The eight or ten bombers passed all the nests except the last one without anything happening. Then the last gun starting spitting out its message of steel. I don't believe any of the bombers were even hit, because they went right on.

When thelast machine gun went off, I realized for the first time that they were German planes. They had fooled everyone, because it was sunset. And the Greeks always said that asunset was a safe time, because all the enemy planes always went home at sunset.

But the men in that last machine-gun nest hadn't been fooled. After their gun went off, a lot of other gunners woke up and started firing. But it was too late.

A minute later these planes were right over the bridge leading across the Corinth Canal And they were flying so low that they hit everything they wanted to hit. That meant, principally, the bridge itself and then the canal.

The British truck driver said we'd have to change our plans now. We couldn't go on to Athens, where we knew we could find a real hospital for White and communications for ourselves. He said there wasn't any way of getting to Athens except across that bridge, which wasn't a bridge any more.

So Athens was out. And we decided to head south for Argos.

We got there early in the morning. One or two o'clock. The hospital was just like the one at Corinth, only smaller. But they said there was a doctor in Argos, except that he couldn't be disturbed until morning. So we put White right in the operating room. Then there wouldn't be any question of his being the first to be operated on in the morning. After that we tried to get some sleep in the big ward room.

But there had been planes over Argos already, and the people lying around the ward room were making funny noises, like you do after you've been hit by bombs, so I guess nobody slept that night.

The Stukas came over as soon as the sun cracked the horizon. They kept coming and going all day. The hospital was near a railroad yard. Maybe that was the reason the hospital kept being bombed.

Anyway, we spent most of that day carrying cots out of the hospital when it looked as though the place would be wrecked by the bombs. We carried them out under the trees. Most of the men in the cots were Australians. Some of them were dying, but they joked with us all the time we were there.

By that time there wasn't much left of the hospital. There never was a direct hit on the building, but you don't have to land one of those big bombs on a roof to destroy a building.

In the afternoon we asked the doctor whether he couldn't find some place to put all those wounded men where they wouldn't have to be moved every time a plane came over. He scouted around and found a big basement air raid shelter, so we moved them all down there.

Terence Atheron of the London Daily Mail and I were just going back into the hospital to try to find White's passport and other papers, which had all been lost in the shuffle, when a cluster of planes over the hospital started down.

We jumped into a trench outside the hospital just in time. It was ten feet deep and very narrow. We crouched on the bottom when the bombs started landing. One of them hit an R.A.F. truck full of oxygen tanks, about ten feet away from the trench. We could hear and see pieces of the engine and the body and the oxygen tanks flying all around. Some went through the windows of the hospital. What was left of the hospital. We were glad then we had got all the patients out.

Buried Alive in Trench

Then something else happened that wasn't so pleasant. Something hit me in the back of the neck and flattened me out like a pancake. I thought it was a piece of a bomb. I tried to put my hand to the back of my neck to feel if it had made a hole. But I couldn't move my hands and I could hardly breathe. Then I realized what had happened . . .

One of the bombs had filled the trench with rubble . . . with the rocks and dirt they had piled up when they dug this slit in the ground. That blow on the neck was probably just from a big rock.

Atherton was half buried, too. But before we could dig each other out, some of the people in the trench go panicky and started running back and forth. Of course, they didn't notice us. We were all mixed up with the stones and dirt. Some of them had on hobnailed boots, so I guess they were all soldiers. Hobnailed boots on the back of your neck aren't fun.

Parachutists Land

I guess that's why I was what Atherton called "goofy" the rest of the day. Atherton finally took me down to the basement air-raid shelter that was a hospital now. I stayed there most of the afternoon talking about crazy things, like my farm in New Hampshire and how we had better steal an airplane to get all this news to The Associated Press in New York.

But I snapped out of it late that afternoon. Which is more than some of those poor people in Argos ever did.

It was just as well the rock did hit me on the back of the head and did do things so I couldn't sleep, because I was the one who saw the big German transport planes circling around the other side of the mountain, where they dropped parachutists.

I woke up Atherton and Russell Hill of the New York Herald Tribune, and we agreed it was time to get moving again.

I guess we got going just in time, because in an hour or two there were Germans everywhere, and Greece was just about done for.

Because of his services as soldier and statesman Clinton was known as "The Father of the State of New York."

When Lafayette returned to the United States in 1824 he was given a reception by Congress. On that occasion Speaker Henry Clay paid the distinguished Frenchman a glowing tribute in an eloquent speech, and Lafayette replied with a speech of equal eloquence and grace.

The famous American writer had been so hurt by what critics, reviewers and others had written about him during his life that he was determined to have nothing written about him after death if he could help it.

Cooper never wrote a line for publication until he was 30 years old.

One day while reading aloud to his wife he made what appeared to be a reckless boast that he could write a better book than that himself.

His wife challenged him to do it, and she harped on the subject until Cooper wrote and published a book entitled "Precaution," which wasn't so hot and which did not sell. That was in 1820.

Undaunted by the failure of his first effort, Cooper followed up with "The Spy," which was tremendously successful in both America and England and was the first outstanding American novel.

"POOR, FOOLISH BOY!"

Oh many there are who have judgment sound,
Know high from low and the square from round.
They weigh and measure and count the cost
Lest they pay too much or a bit be lost.
They've ears to listen and eyes to see.
Whatever they buy must a bargain be.
Their motto from dawn to the fall of night:
"Don't take one step till you're sure you're right!"

I remember my mother's: "Poor, foolish boy!"
As I went to her with a broken toy,
Or spent my pennies for trifling things.
"Poor foolish boy!" and the phrase still clings!

My father said in his manner sad:
"Will never you come to good sense, my lad?
Will never you learn the dear from the cheap?
Will never you look before you leap?"

Reason is rigid and stern and cold,
Knows to the drop what the pint should hold;
Measures the inch lest a bit be lost;
Gives thought to value and counts the cost.
Reason thinks clearly, is keen of sight;
Holds nothing is better than being right!

But it's all come true as my father said.
Sense never will dwell in a foolish head.

GIVEN SUSPENDED SENTENCE FOR FORGING MILITARY PAPER

Samuel Kornbloom, Belleville, appeared before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in city police court here today charged with forging a military discharge paper. Kornbloom was convicted on his own admission and given a year's suspended sentence upon the payment of $14.45 costs.

"This man was dishonourably discharged from the army and he erased the letters "D-I-S" from in front of the word "dishonourably" and then presented his discharge papers as credentials to procure employment by representing himself as an honourably discharged soldier," revealed Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C.

The court was held on Saturday owing to the fact Magistrate Lloyd was unable to be present on the conventional Friday date. There will be no session of police court on Monday (Civic Holiday) in Belleville.

Meagre Reports On Shipping Losses

(By the Canadian Press)

News of the war at sea was meagre in the week ended August 1.

The 3,237 ton British freighter Kantara was reported overdue and presumed lost. The 3,443 ton British steamship Holmside was torpedoed off the Cape Verde Islands and survivors were landed as Lisbon.

The biggest German claim of the week was on July 29, when it was asserted German submarines attacking a convoy in the Middle Atlantic had sunk 19 ships aggregating 116,500 tons, in addition to a destroyer and a corvette. The claim lacks any confirmation from British or neutral sources.

Prime Minister Churchill gave an indication of the shipping position in his parliamentary statement of July 29 when he said: "It is a fact that the Battle of the Atlantic, although far from being won, is—partly from American intervention—moving progressively in our favour."

Wide Variety Fruits Offered On Satur. Market

Initial offerings of plums and gages featured the local produce market this morning as possibly the greatest range of produce seen this season was displayed to a crowded market. Higher butter prices predominated while an influx of ripe tomatoes forced prices of this table delicacy to a new low for the season.

Shiro plums sold at 45 to 55c per basket according to grade while June plums retailed at the higher figure. Peaches were offered at 70c per basket. Raspberries held at previous quotations of 25c per box for both red and blue varieties although a few sold the latter variety at 20c per box. Huckleberries brought 25c per quart or $1 and $1.45 for six and eleven quart baskets with currants ranging up to 25 cents per box. Increased quantities of harvest apples were offered at 40c to 50c per peck with several vendors displaying red Altrachans at 40c the half peck. Sweet cherries were $1 per basket and pears 45c.

Fresh butter was firm at 40c per pound with several vendors asking 75c for two-pound rolls. Chicken and fowl held at previous quotations of 25c per pound with broilers bringing from 75c to $1.25 per pair. Eggs also held firm at 35c for grade "A" large, mediums at 33c and pullets at 30c per dozen.

Corn 30 Cents Dozen

Tomatoes headed the vegetable list with increased offering forcing prices down to 40c per six-quart basket. Fresh corn on the cob was 30c in most instances with a few asking 35c per dozen ears. Potatoes were 40c to 45c the peck with cauliflower and muskmelons ranging from 10c to 25c each. Vegetable marrow was 5c to 10c each with vegetables bunched at 5c.

Home cooking stands as usual did a land office business while the appearance of the market was generally enhanced by many beautiful displays of gladiolias at 25c the bunch.

Only a few fish were offered with trout retailing at 25c the pound, whole, or 30c in pieces, while whitefish went at 22c per pound. Young porkers were also quite scarce, ranging in price from $5 to $6 according to size and quality.

British Empire Exempted

1. Prohibit the export of motor fuels and oils suitable for use in aircraft to any country except the British Empire, westernhemisphere countries, and unoccupied territories in other countries engaged in resisting aggression, which was interpreted here to include Russia and China.

2. Prohibit the export of certain raw stocks from which aviation type fuel and lubricants might be derived, except to the same American and aggressor-resisting nations.

(That instruction was interpreted as embargoing the export of some grades of gasoline and oils which, while not of high octane rating by American standards, have proved useable in planes, sometimes with the addition of other ingredients.)

3. Place all other gasoline, oil and petroleum products under export licence control on a quota basis limiting issuance of licences "to usual or pre-war quantities."

Designed Against Japan

While the President's order did not specifically mention Japan it was so worded as to embargo exports of aviation oil and fuel to any country outside the Western Hemisphere except the British Empire, Russia and China and was interpreted as another smashing economic blow designed to block any Japanese move against Singapore and the East Indies.

Japan's occupation of French Indo-China was designated recently by Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, as a threat to American territory and to sources of supply of vital raw materials in the South Pacific.

China—to whom the United States is extending moral, economic and financial aid—has long pleaded for an embargo on shipments of American oil used to fuel Japanese planes for the bombing of Chinese cities and towns and the Burma Road, lifeline for China's war supplies.

Since July 26, 1940, licences have been required for exports of aviation gasoline and oil, but officials said today no licences have been issued for such exports to Japan.

Japan, however, has been a large purchaser of other gasoline, oil and petroleum products, such American exports to her totalling $54,600,000 in 1940 and $45,265,000 in 1939.

Licences Now Required

Licences will be required hereafter for all petroleum products and will be issued by the export control administration on the basis of "pre-war or usual quantities" of the country. However, the official order gave no formula on which to base pre-war or usual quantities.

Commerce department figures show that Japan's past purchases have been consideraby under 1939 and 1940 exports.

In 1936, before Japan attacked China, American petroleum exports to Japan were $28,873,000, of which approximately half was for crude petroleum.

After Japan on July 7, 1937 launched an invasion of North China, Japanese oil purchases here soared to $43,279,000.

Conference Begins.

Mills having stocks of "thrown" silk—semi-processed fibre, ready for weaving—may continue to function, but only until their supply of thrown silk is used up. Otherwise only firms which hold army and navy orders and which obtain specific permission from Stettinius may operate.

Representatives of management and employees alike, who were gathered in Washington yesterday for a conference on the heightening emergency, threw their support generally behind a union-conceived plan for reorganization of the industry with liberal use of federal funds.

It was advanced by Emil Rieve, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations Textile Workers Union of America, and provided:

That rayon and other synthetic fibre production be increased about 50,000,000 pounds a year, through federal financing of plant expansion, to make up the loss of the 35,000,000 to 50,000,000 pounds of silk normally imported.

That existing and future stocks of synthetics and fine cotton yarn be allocated under government control among all processors.

That the government provide relief funds to support workers and their families through the readjustment period; provide works progress administration retraining programs "at good wages" to fit workers for new defence jobs; and furnish transportation from idle silk areas to areas of defence production.

Rieve suggested that O.P.M. create a committee composed of management, labor and government representatives to effectuate the plan.

While official comment was lacking, it was learned that Sidney Hillman, associate director of the O.P.M. was preparing to appoint some such committee to be made perhaps early next week.

THE WAR TODAY

By DON GILBERT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Russian defence forces reached a milestone, and perhaps a turning point, today in their struggle to beat back the German invasion. Six weeks of fighting ended, spiking Nazi boasts and predicting that in six weeks the Red Army would be broken and Moscow occupied.

Such claims were never made officially, but six weeks was a favorite time estimate for the campaign when the invasion began, and as recently as July 15 the Berlin correspondent of the Swedish newspaper Stockholms Tidningen wrote "it is expected in Berlin that the eastern campaign will be essentially completed by Aug. 1."

The feeling that perhaps a turning point has been reached is based on indications that the German Army's striking power has been blunted by the tenacious resistance of the Soviet forces and that after a month and a half of the heaviest kind of fighting the energies of the German soldier are running low.

All depends on the Red army's ability to maintain for another six weeks the virile fighting qualities it has so far displayed. By that time the blustery winds and rain of autumn will be sweeping the Russian plains and the first snows of winter will not be far away. Six weeks more successful resistance and Hitler will be assured a two-front war into 1942.

Soviet morale goes up as the Red army continues its struggle to prove Stalin's statement that "there are no invincible armies.." On the other hand German morale, inflated by the lightning victories in Poland, the low countries, France and the Balkans, steadily declines as the possibility of a stalemate increases with each week of fighting. A returning United States Consul described Germany as a country of "restraint, discouragement and depression."

The sixth Saturday of the war finds the Soviet forces counter-attacking, driving salients in gaps along the 2,000-mile front, and denying the German air force control of the skies. No large Russian city has been occupied; weeks have passed since the German high command declared Kiev and Leningrad in immediate danger.

The Soviet communiques placed the fighting at the end of the sixth week in the same zones as a week ago, and information from Berlin seemed to deny this in no important respect. In the Kiev direction the battle continues around Zhitomir, 75 miles from the Ukrainian capital. Fully 150 miles seems to separate the German vanguards from Leningrad. In the central sector the Russians claim still to be in possession of Smolensk, 230 miles southwest of Moscow.

Last Tuesday Prime Minister Churchill gave this well-tempered estimate of the fighting: 'It is a fact that mighty Russia, so treacherously assaulted, has struck back with such magnificent strength and courage and brought prodigious and well-deserved slaughter on the Nazi armies." Yesterday President Roosevelt said in Washington that Russian resistance "is magnificent and frankly better than any military expert in Germany thought it would be."

German Liners Bremen, Europa, 'Burned Out Inside by Saboteurs', Report Along North German Coast

Alfred R. Thomson U.S. Consul General From Hamburg Tells of Reports in Germany and of Bombing of Hamburg

New York, Aug. 2 (CP)—Alfred R. Thomson, ousted United States Consul-General in Hamburg, said today he understood that both the Bremen and Europa, famous German passenger lines, had been "completely burned out inside by saboteurs."

Thomson arrived here Friday on the U. S. liner West Point from Lisbon, Portugal, with 687 other passengers, mostly consular service employees, amid scenes reminiscent of the first returns of American soldiers from the First Great War.

"While I have no high authority for this information," said Thomson, "it is spoken of by everyone along the north German seaboard. The Bremen is understood to be in Bremen. I don't know where the ~~Europa is.~~" He went on:

"There are very few large ships in the Hamburg harbor. I took a tour around the waterfront recently and all I could see were smaller ships, the neutral ones brilliantly lighted.

Damage at Hamburg Harbor

"Whatever damage is done to the Hamburg harbor is quickly cleared up as it is in Hamburg proper. Within days, even within hours, squads clean up all the debris. And if an entire building is shattered within a short time there remains only a cleared vacant lot. None of my staff has been injured.

"It is difficult to ascertain the morale of the German people because they are non-vocal.

Thomson said Royal Air Force planes fly high over Hamburg and that on the few occasions when they have flown low the losses of bombers and pilots were great.

He said the true situation of the damage done in Hamburg "lies somewhere in the middle of assertions made in German and British communiques."

"Hitler's popularity shows no decline in Germany that I could notice," he said. "My German friends hope we do not come into the war. So far as I can see there is no antipathy toward America."

Roy Colcord, British-American ambulance driver and survivor of the sunken Egyptian liner Zamzam, who escaped from an internment camp in occupied France, said he and another American ambulance driver, Donald King "walked out the front door of our hotel on July 8 and escaped into the darkness."

Thomas D. Bowman, Consul-General at Rome, said he did not see many German soldiers in Rome and while he did see a large number of German civilians there "I wouldn't say they were overrunning the city."

'Lot of Italians Thinking'

He was asked whether the Italians felt that the Germans were taking over their country.

"I wouldn't say that," he replied, "but a lot of Italian people seemed to be thinking along those lines."

He said the Italians were better off in food supplies than other countries.

He was asked whether the Italians seemed to be enthusiastic about the war.

"The results of their attempt at war couldn't make them very eager for it," h esaid. "As for their morale that is a matter I have been advised by Washington to keep quiet about."

German and Italian Diplomats Don't Mix

M. C. Duguid, steward manager, said the German and Italian diplomats who made the eastward crossing and were exchanged for Americans at Lisbon "simply didn't mix."

"There was no disturbance," he said, "but it was obvious to anyone that the Germans stayed in their own groups, as did the Italians."

Approximately 2,400 relatives and friends lined the pier as the huge camouflaged ship was tied up and a tumultuous cheer arose as soon as those on board were allowed on the pier.

Among the consular officials returning from Europe was Frederick A. Sterling, Minister to Sweden, whose ill health caused him to seek a three-month leave of absence.

With Sterling was Prince Carl Bernadotte of Sweden who said he was on a business mission. Both denied they were here in connection with reports that Sweden was about to enter the war.

The trip, passengers said, was without untoward incident and made in calm weather and seas.

DUKE OF KENT

The Royal visit did not interfere with the daily training schedule of the station. Overhead training planes roared a welcome as they zoomed in salute to the King's flying brother. The everyday life of the station went on unabated.

The Royal visitor and his entourage were guests of the officers of the station at a luncheon in the officers' mess following the inspection. At one-thirty the Royal Canadian Air Force plane carrying the Royal party zoomed into the air and headed directly west for Camp Borden where His Royal Highness inspected that training centre this afternoon. At six o'clock tonight he will return to Ottawa.

The Royal party will leave later for Winnipeg to open an inspection tour of the west.

To Go to Borden

Trenton was the first large Air Force School His Royal Highness has visited which existed in the days of peace. Here the big white barracks blocks contrasted with the temporary buildings he saw at the Service Flying Training School at Uplands near Ottawa.

When he goes to Camp Borden this afternoon he will see an air establishment originated in the days of the First Great War but which did not figure as largely as Trenton in Canada's small permanent air establishment prior to the start of the present war. There also he will get his first glimpse of the Canadian Army in training on Canadian soil when he visits the tank training centre.

FRENCH-CANADA DEMONSTRATES HEROIC SPIRIT

51 Answer Call for Replacements in Infantry Unit, One Gives Up Commission 11 NCO'S Doff Stripes, One Gets Out of Hospital to Go

By ANDY ROSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

An East Coast Canadian Port, Aug. 2—(CP) — One of the finest illustrations of the spirit of French-Canada in this war took place shortly before part of the third Canadian Army Division embarked at this port for Britain. Arrival in England of many divisions was announced on Friday.

An infantry battalion lost 45 men in a medical check-up and a rush call was sent to one of Montreal's famous units for volunteer replacements to go overseas.

Within a few hours, 51 of the many who offered themselves were aboard a train speeding toward the Atlantic.

Gives Up Commission

One man, Sgt. Gilles Sirois, of Quebec City, gave up a commission which he knew was en route from Ottawa at the very time to volunteer. He is a native of Grande Riviere on the Gaspe Peninsula. Eleven non-commissioned officers shunned their corporal's stripes to "do their duty."

Pte. G. Gallant and his two brothers, Adolphe and Alonzo, all of Atholville, N.B., insisted it was all or nothing and they finally got the OC's permission for Alonzo's discharge from hospital so he could come along too.

Lieut. T. L. Bullock of Montreal, who brought the men to this port, got all choked up trying to put into words how he felt about them.

"Cream of the Unit in Canada"

"Why, they're the cream of the unit in Canada," Lt. Bullock said. "Every one of these 51 men left good jobs to volunteer at the time of the fall of France. They believed it was time they did something about Hitler."

Lieut. Bullock said he tried to volunteer too when the rush call came but the colonel "practically pushed my face in."

Defence Minister Ralston and Justice Minister Lapointe were just coming down the gangplank after an inspection of troops on one of the liners when the reinforcement detachment came marching through the great dock shed, singing lustily.

An aide-de-camp told the Justice Minister who they were and the unit hastily was drawn up for inspection. Mr. Lapointe passed slowly through their ranks, stopping to talk with many of them. He was obviously pleased.

Corporals Reverted to Ranks

The corporals who reverted to the ranks were: Cpl. L. Brosseau, Montreal; Cpl. P. B. Lebel, Montreal; Cpl. P. E. Lebel, Cabano, Que. (no relation); Cpl. E. Gignac, Grand Mere, Que.; Cpl. G. Legace, Lachine, Que.; Cpl. V. Maille, Montreal; Cpl. L. Sheehy, Montreal; Cpl. R. Trudel, Montreal; Cpl. L. Duke, St. Just Du Lac, Que.; Cpl. A. Verrette, Atholville, N.B. and L.-Cpl. H. Boucher, Montreal; L.-Cpl. Boucher and Sgt. R. Fortier of Sherbrooke, Que., served with the regiment during the First Great War.

Detect Symptoms Of Exhaustion In Nazi Armies

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, Aug. 2 (AP).—London's military observers, recently openly pessimistic about Russia's chances of stemming the Nazi blitzkrieg, show a marked change in tone as the sixth week of the titanic struggle draws to an end. They now detect symptoms of "exhaustion" in Hitler's hard-driven armies, foreshadowing at least a lull in the attack while new blows are prepared.

The London advices did not specify the basis of that military judgment. If it is founded on any more detailed information as to the situation on the three main fighting fronts in Russia than either Berlin or Moscow has made public, it is an important development. And it parallels to some extent the shifting view in informed Washington circles.

There, too, pessimism has largely given way to rising hopes that a stalemate for the winter may develop in Russia. That prediction is very cautiously voiced in both London and Washington; but even so, it spells a long step away from the gloomy feeling in the same quarters six weeks ago.

A British Military Mission has been in Moscow long enough to have established its own contacts through British observers at the front. Accurate information as to developments there, untainted by propaganda dressing, is essential to London's policy making. It is for that reason that London's rejection of the insistent Berlin claim that Leningrad is about to fall is especially significant. London ought to know the facts through its own communication and observation channels.

Approach Disorganization.

Nor can there be any doubt that the massive German forces driven so great a distance in so short a space of time against Russia must be approaching the state of exhaustion and disorganization which such operations often incur. Rest, replacements, regrouping and re-equipping periods cannot be avoided by any attacking army.

The German effort against Russia for the last six weeks has been stupendous—"kolossal" was the German equivalent in the first Great War.

No matter how efficient Nazi staff work or preparation has been, an ultimate loss of impetus is unavoidable when the initial impact fails to achieve decisive strategic results.

Obviously, the London spokesman, on information and belief, thinks that period now is approaching for the Germans who are deployed over a 2,000 mile battle front with supply lines half that length behind them, much of them in hostile territory and harried by guerrilla bands. It is the still unchallenged fruit of all war experience, also, that once this stage of exhaustion is reached efforts to resume the march immediately are on a progressively weaker scale.

Limits to Endurance

It takes time and intensive preparation to regain even a semblance of the initial striking power. Months even years, intervened between the great offensive efforts by either side from 1914 to 1918. There are limits to human endurance and armies are composed of men, even Nazi blitzkrieg armies.

To support the indicated British view that the German attack may have virtually spent its force in forty days of terrific fighting and marching, current Nazi victory claims are not only modest but possibly a belated amplification of previously reported successes. The Berlin report of Russian divisions smashed south of Smolensk salient is a case in point. Presumably it refers to the Mogilev sector on the Dnieper River, fifty miles or so south of Orsha at the river bend.

Several days ago Berlin reported two Russian divisions cut up at that point; but without indicating any Nazi advance east of the river to widen the base of the Smolensk salient. It now is claimed that 35,000 Red army prisoners have been taken south of the salient and unnumbered Russian dead left on the field. That may be a recapitulation of the former reported victory at Mogilev, put out in the absence of any other success.

If it means, however, that the Dnieper line has been definitely breached at Mogilev and Russian forces in the Mogilev-Osrha-Smolensk triangle threatened with encirclement from the south, it would be a disaster of imponderable consequence to the defenders of Moscow.

THICK GLASS DOES NOT STAND HOT WATER BETTER THAN A THIN ONE.

The reverse is true. Glass is a bad conductor of heat. In a thick glass tumbler the inner layers of the glass are heated before the outer. Heat causes expansion, and the outer layers are burst by the expansion of the inner. In a thin tumbler the whole thickness of the glass is heated almost at once, and all the parts expand at the same time. 1. "Popular Fallacies—A.S.E. Ackermann. 2. Weddings

McGRIMMON—TELFORD

The marriage of Margaret Alice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Telford, and Irvine McGrimmon, son of Mr. and Mrs. William McGrimmon was quietly solemnized Friday, August 1st., by the Rev. E. Farnsworth, 184 Bleecker Avenue. They were attended by Mr. Clifford McGrimmon, brother of the groom and Mrs. McGrimmon, Trenton. The bride and groom will reside in Belleville.

BUSH—KILBANK

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at one o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride when Alice Evelyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Kilbank, Sinclair Street, became the bride of William George Bush, R.C.O.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross K. Bush, Pine Street. Rev. J. A. Dilts officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father was gowned in turquoise blue with white accessories and wore a corsage of pink roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Marion Kilbank, who was in dusky rose with blue accessories and corsage of red roses. Mr. Richard Doxsee was groomsman.

A reception followed the ceremony. Garden flowers in pastel tones were used in decoration of the rooms. Mrs. Kilbank in Queen's blue with corsage of pink roses and Mrs. Bush wearing powder blue with corsage of yellow roses received. Later the bride and groom left on a wedding trip to western points, the bride travelling in a surf blue ensemble. They will reside at Huntingdon, Quebec.

BAYLIX—MARSH

St. Thomas' Church beautifully decorated with gladioli was the scene of a lovely wedding at two-thirty this afternoon when Charlotte Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Marsh, 37 Benjamin Street, was married to Pte. Dennis Jack Baylix, 13 Provost Corps, Petawawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Baylix of this city. Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne performed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in bridal white satin, fashioned with fitted waist and full skirt ending in a short train. The long sleeves were finished in points at the wrist. Her tulle veil was floor length and she carried shell pink gladioli. Mrs. Harold Reid and Miss Joan Marsh attended the bride wearing floor length gowns of heavenly blue taffeta, with matching shoulder veils fitted to the head in cap effect. They wore the gift of the groom, pearl necklaces and carried deep rose gladioli.

Bombardier Harold Reid, 47th Anti-Aircraft Battery, Petawawa, was groomsman and the ushers were Bernard and James Baylix, brothers of the groom. Wedding music was played by Mr. W. E. Wheatley and during the signing of the register, Jackie Marsh sang "I Love You Truly".

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. Marsh in printed sheer with white accessories and corsage of roses and Mrs. Baylix wearing blue sheer with white accessories and corsage of roses received. The bride and groom left on a wedding trip to Ottawa and eastern points, the bride choosing for travelling a beige and navy ensemble with hat and shoes to match.

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, August 3

SUNDAY'S horoscope shows a high degree of activity, possibly in the direction of stimulating old lagging, static or crystallized conditions. Such pressure might be applied successfully to affairs of church, the clergy, labor, old investments or real estate, which need effective stimuli or the application of bold, new and determined measures for restoring to productive and profitable basis. Definite change in technique may be necessary but be careful not to be trapped in snares, intrigue or duplicity.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may plan for a decidedly active and enterprising year, with the determination to put constructive force and tactics to work on old, congested and stagnant conditions, business, properties or labor, situations. With fresh ideas, practical plans and procedures there should be worthwhile and profitable growth, with renewed foundations for progress and prosperity. But be alert to suspicious affiliations, pitfalls and intrigues.

A child born on this day should have much energy, initiative and constructive ability, supplemented by hard work and sound judgment, to assure it a successful career. However, it may be easily imposed on because of its large and lavish impulses.

Striking New Panelled Frock

By ANNNE ADAMS

The "find" of the season is this tailored frock for day-long, all-purpose wear! It's Pattern 4811 and an Anne Adams style. The buttoning down the front makes nice lines and is a convenient device for speedy dressing and ironing. There are no waistline seams—just front and back princess lines that curve at the shoulders for grace and easy, perfect fit. The side bodice sections are gathered, creating flattering bustline sofness. The notched collar is crisp, young and very becoming. You may choose short, three-quarter or long sleeves, and, if you've a flare for color, have the front panelling and collar in harmonizing contrast.

Pattern 4811 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3 yards 35-inch fabric and 1 3-4 yards contrast.

Send twenty cents (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

Send your order to The Ontario Intelligencer Pattern Department, 166 Front St., Belleville, Ont.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Fate Catches Up With Fair-Weather Wife

Dear Miss Fairfax: ....

Some years ago I suffered a serious injury to my spine, in line of duty, which necessitated my wearing a brace to keep my head in position. I never expected to marry, but I met a girl who made me feel my misfortune only made her love me more.

Prospects were for pretty big damages, but hte case went from one court to another until we began to lose hope.

We now have a darling little son, five years old. My wife always seemed to be a good sport, and never made me feel I was handicapped. Some months ago she left to visit her relatives. Letters grew fewer, and finally the blow—she wanted to leave me and the custody of the child.

The very day her letter came, the company in which I had suffered my accident came across with a good sum for damages, enough money for me to set up a business on which I have had my eyes for years. But what's left for me? My wife has gone back on me perhaps my little son to be given to her. I can see nothing ahead but Despair.

No court, I believe, would give such a woman sole custody of your child. In leaving at a time when she thought you would not be able to collect damages, she has proved herself to be mercenary and lacking in feeling. The money will help you to provide for your boy's home and education. With your income, your son and the congenial business, I think you have ample insurance against loneliness. Besides, in this age of expert surgery you may recover.

Who Shall Be Her Maid-of Honor?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm to be married soon and will have a large wedding with all the trimmings. None of my girl friends is close enough to me to be my maid of honor, and they will serve as my bridesmaids.

My fiance has two married sisters. The younger one is a closer friend than the older and I would like to have her as my matron of honor, but my mother thinks I should ask the older one because her feelings might be hurt, and she thinks the honor is due her.

If theyounger sister is chosen, should we have her husband as best man, as he also is a good friend of my fiance? He has no best boy friends.

"Babe"

There's much more leeway now given to a bride in matter of her attendants than formerly. If you are closer to younger sister than to the older, it should be understood, and not cause any hard feelings It is also possible to have a maid of honor and a matron of honor.

It would be quite all right to have her fiance's brother-in-law serve as best man.

Beginning To Go Out With Boys

Dear Mrs Beeckman:

I am just beginning to go out with boys, and there are several questions that are puzzling me. Will you please be so kind as to answer them for me? Thank you, if you will.

1. When a boy calls for me at my house, should I introduce him to my mother, or to any other member of my family who happens to be around?
2. Is it proper for me to call a boy on the telephone?
3. Is it the girl or the boy who suggests that it's time to start for home from a dance or any other party?
4. When a boy gives a girl a compliment, how should she acknowledge it?
5. When a boy has taken me out for the evening, should I thank him? Or is it only necessary that he thank me?
6. When a boy and girl meet on the street, who speaks first?

Betty.

1. By all means introduce the boy to your mother, who is the hostess of your home. Only girls with shoddy manners omit this introduction. Also introduce the young man to any other member of your family who happens to be around. You owe this courtesy to your faily and to your friends, boys as well as girls.

2. It is proper for a girl to telephone a boy if she has a real reason to do so. Don't telephone a boy just to say "hello." Whether girls are willing to admit it or not, men are still old-fashioned about wanting to take the initiative in telephone calls. You'll be a wise girl if you let the boys telephone you.

3. It is the girl who has the responsibility of suggesting that it's "time to go home." The mannerly boy immediately follows her suggestion.

4. When a boy gives you a compliment, say a gracious "Thank you", or, "Thank you very much, Bob. I'm so glad you like my dress." Your words should be appreciative, but a bit on the casual side, so you won't appear overwhelmed.

5. The mannerly boy thanks the girl for the evening, the mannerly girl expresses her appreciation of the boy's thoughtfulness and of the evening's fun. Don't be afraid to show your enthusiasm and your manners.

6. The girl is given the privilege of acknowledging acquaintanceship with a boy. Generally, however, when they know each other well or even fairly well, this formality isn't observed and they bow or speak simultaneously.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers.)

Family Picnic At Oak Lake

The Townsend, Martin, McMullen reunion was held on Thursday, July 31st., at Searles Beach, Oak Lake with about sixty-five in attendance.

After dinner was over order was called by the President, Mr. Alex Martin and the business part talked over. The treasurer's report and minutes of last year were read. There were two marriages, eight births and four deaths since the 1940 reunion — June Preston, Harold; Bob Juby, Hume, Sask.; Mrs. Robert Martin, Ivanhoe and Wm. McMullen, Harold. A minute's silence was observed in their memory.

Officers were then elected for 1942—President, Geo. O'Neill; Vice-President, Don Garrison; Sec.-Treasurer, Bessie McMullen; Sport Com., Mrs. Don Garrison, Mrs. Ed. Emerson, Mrs. Blare McMullen, Mrs. Coleman Townsend.

The races were then held with good prizes given.

Girls 6 and under, Dorothy Kelly, boys 6 and under, Eric Emerson, girls 7 to 10, Shirley Preston, boys 7 to 10, Ronald Kelly; girls' three-legged race Betty and Madeline Kelly; young married women's race Mrs. Ed Emerson; men's walking race, Coleman Townsend; dropping ball in pail, Mrs. Jas. McMullen and Mrs. Fred Martin; dropping ball in pail for men, Stuart Brady; guessing beans, Wm. Kelly; grandmother's nail driving, Mrs. Jas. McMullen; grandfather's nail driving, Samuel Kelly; youngest baby present, Douglas Townsend; oldest lady present, Mrs. Jane Wenger; oldest man present, Samuel Kelly; largest family present, Mrs. Harry Kelly's.

Shortly after this supper was served and the 1941 reunion came to a close.

Adams' Family Picnic Held at Tweed Memorial Park

Tweed—The Adams Family Reunion was held at Tweed Memorial Park on Wednesday afternoon. Although rain threatened in the morning, when mid-day came a large gathering of members of the family sat down to dinner at tables set under the trees along the lake shore. Ideal weather continuing throughout the afternoon resulted in the largest attendance in recent years.

After the election of officers it was unanimously decided to hold the next annual picnic at the same location in 1942. The officers for the ensuing year are:

President—Albert Martin.
Secretary—Mrs. Clifford Adams.
Treasurer—Fred Adams.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray Reid and family of Sudbury came the greatest distance to the re-union.

The following sports program was conducted:

Girls, 10 to 15—Margaret Harrison, June Sills.

Hoop Race—Albert Martin's team.

Newspaper Race—Donald Sills, Everett Harrison.

Sunbonnet Race — Graham Mouck's team.

Mr. W. E. J. Prust, for the past five years, agent at the local C.P.R. station has been transferred to Markdale, effective early in August. Mr. Thomas Reid who for the same period has been assistant agent has been notified of his transfer to Agincourt.

During their sojourn in Tweed, Mr. and Mrs. Prust have identified themselves with various activities. They will be especially missed in the bowling club and Mrs. Prust in the ladies' organizations of the United Church.

Their departure and that of Mr. and Mrs. Reid is regretted by their many friends.

Rainfall during July in Tweed reached an all-time high record of 5.40 inches or 2.05 inches above the average for the past fifteen years.

Mr. A. J. Maynes will erect a modern home in Tweed directly across from the Presbyterian Church. Work has already begun with the removal of an old building on the lot. Mr. Jos. Rashotte, local contractor, has charge of the erection of the residence which will be thoroughly up-to-date.

Mr. Carman Atton of Tweed Steel Works was in Ottawa and Toronto last week on business.

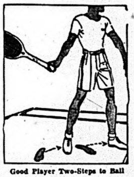
Pointers on Footwork Help Your Tennis Game



Good Player Two-Steps to Ball

Footworks' often neglected in tennis, but it's as important to the game as it is to boxing. To play good tennis you must always be ready to move in any direction and must always be in a proper position to hit. That isn't as hard as it sounds.

Instead of turning or darting in the direction of the oncoming ball and so getting out of position, learn to "two-step" toward it.

Suppose the ball is coming to your forehand. Slide in its direction, always facing the net, with the left foot forward and the right dragging, as our diagram shows. When the ball comes you easily turn sidewise, stepping with left foot still forward, and swing your racket.

If the ball comes to your backhand, reverse the process, stepping forward on the right foot.

In our 32-page booklet George Agutter, noted instructor, explains and diagrams each stroke—backhand, forehand, service, volleying, lobbing. Tells how to practise, explains good footwork. Describes the tennis tactics that win games.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of HOW TO MAKE SLIP COVERS to The Ontario Intelligencer Home Service, 166 Front St., Belleville, Ont. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

The iron and steel industries account annually for about 17 per cent. of all factory output in Canada.

When the delirious married couple, Myrna Loy and William Powell get into a family quarrel, you can be sure that one or the other will end up with a bump on the head. In the case of "Love Crazy," opening Tuesday at the Belle Florence Bates, playing Powell's mother-in-law, does not seem to take his injuries too seriously.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

James W. Barton, M.D.

Persistent Sore Lip May Be Caused By The Sun's Rays

When cows are not getting enough sunlight, many large dairies now have sun lamps installed in the buildings housing the cows because it is known that sunlight enriches the milk.

That sunlight enriches the blood in human beings is likewise known and the use of sun lamps is becoming more widespread every year. However, like every other good thing it is known that too much sunlight, that is enough sunlight to cause severe burning of the skin, shocks and poisons the system, just as does any other severe burn. It is for this reason that those who spend their lives indoors, should, when on vacation, take just a few minutes of the direct sun the first few days and even then should keep turning their bodies at very frequent intervals.

About five years ago I spoke of a number of cases of sore lip which occurred during the warm weather which failed to heal despite all the usual forms of treatment—salves, heat, cold, Xrays and others.

For years many sores on the lips have been blame on smoking. That some of these are due to the direct rays of the sun is now reported by Dr. George C. Andrews, Presbyterian Hospital, New York, at a meeting of the American Society for the Control of Cancer some months ago.

"Sunlight, like most things that are good for us, if indulged in to excess may be harmful, even to the point of causing cancer".

Fortunately for us, as a sore on the lip is so noticeable by the patient and others, any delay in healing causes the physician to suspect cancer and early treatment of lip cancer is usually effective.

However, for those who suffer with a persistent sore lip in the summer and are unable to find the cause or adequate treatment, the fact that the sun's rays may be causing the sore, even in those not of cancer age, should be remembered.

The suggestion given in previous article was that a hat with a wide brim should be worn to prevent the sun's rays striking the lip, and applying a heavy, greasy lipstick to the sore thick enough to prevent penetration by the sun's rays.

Find Use For Cod-Liver Oil In Treatment of Wounds

Cod-liver oil, mostly a food for babies, used to prevent rickets, contains a high concentration of Vitamin A and D. In fact, cod-liver oil is the richest known substance in nature for its content of these vitamins.

Now, Dr. Parker C. Hardin of North Carolina, finds that cod-liver oil has unique effectiveness as a wound dressing. He has tried it in 346 cases of assorted wounds and burns. In his experiences, dressings made with cod-liver oil accelerate the liquefaction of dead tissue, keeps the surface of the wound clean, and seem to help to stimulate the growth of new tissue. The oil forms a protective, non-irritating layer over the wound.

According to Dr. Hardin's findings, the oil dressings are painless and their use is followed by a minimal amount of scarring. The types of cases in which he has found cod-liver oil of most value were in extensive third-degree burns, varicose, other long-standing ulcers, and chronically infected wounds which did not seem to heal as rapidly as they should.

Doctor Hardin believes that the effects of cod-liver oil are due particularly to the amount of Vitamins A and D that it contains. In the technic, easily followed, the wound is first cleaned thoroughly with soap and water for at least ten minutes. Antiseptics are not used. The dead tissue is removed by the surgeon, but all live tissue is saved. Whenever any sewing is needed, the surgeon takes care of that. Then the remaining open wound is filled with cod-liver oil ointment, which is applied on gauze to all openings. The same type of treatment is followed in the handling of ulcers and, in addition, the limb is firmly bound with elastic bandage to help to control the circulation.

Rarely is pure cod-liver oil used in liquid form. The surgeons prefer ointments in which the cod-liver oil is combined with petrolatum or similar materials. The ointment itself is not sterilized because heat may destroy a considerable amount of the vitamins.

Mrs. R. Ketchepaw and grandchildren, also Mrs. C. Eggleton and Marilyn spent Wednesday afternoon at the Hamilton home.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Chiles, Shirley and Ronald, of Kingston, spent Monday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walker.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sills and family, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Eggleton and family, also Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Webb and family of Fernwood, N.Y., were guests at the Osland home one evening recently.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Clarke spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Grant Crosby, Belleville.

Mrs. R. Ketchepaw and grandchildren of Guelph, also Mr. E. W. Brown and Anne spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Casey.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Gay spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs J. Morrison.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hollinger, Foxboro, spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. B. Hollinger.

Mr. D. Hurd of the R.C.A.F., Regina, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Eggleton.

PLAINFIELD W.M.S.

The July meeting of the Plainfield W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Almond Hall, with the president, Mrs. Harry McCreary in the chair.

The meeting was opened with the National Anthem, the Doxology and the Lord's Prayer in unison, and the business was transacted.

Mrs. Mabel Hubble had charge of the Devotional Period and gave a splendid paper entitled "What Can We Do to Make Canada Truly Christian." God loved the world. Do you? God has no favorites. We should treat all men as brothers.

Miss Marion Prindle sang a solo.

The third group leaders, Mrs. Emerson and Mrs. Hogan then took charge. Mrs. George McKenzie gave a very interesting talk on the interdenominational conference which was held at Albert College this summer at which Basil Matthews was the guest speaker. Mrs. McKenzie said "united effort was the theme of the conference."

Mrs. B. Moore sang a solo and Mrs. Ed. Emerson read a story, entitled "A Chinese Heroine." Mrs. Ralph Wilder song a solo, "I'm Saved," with guitar accompaniment.

A hymn and the Mizpah Benediction closed the meeting.

YOURS... for Leg Beauty

THE BEAUTY BAZAAR

By Delight Dixon

A few hints that will help you show off this one-third of your body to much greater advantage

EVERY girl wants pretty legs. Your legs, the visible portion, make up one-third of your body and a mighty important third it is, too. So, with stockings getting sheerer, skirts shorter, bathing suits briefer, and your legs more prominently in the limelight, take a tip and take your legs in hand right away.

Make your legs as smooth as the skin of your face by using proper smoothing agents. Keep them free from hair. Give them the illusion of perfection while working to make them perfect by concealing their unattractive complexion under a coating of waterproof make-up. Correct surface flaws, then get after their shape and either build them up or reduce them to perfection.

Smoothing the legs, freeing them from those hard, dry bumps that seem to be under the skin, is a simple matter. Knees, and the little area just below, can be made soft as baby's in no time at all. Special grains are used for this purpose. These are the same grains often suggested for smoothing the facial complexion, rough elbows and off-color skin. This splendid granular washing agent actually seems to dig deep into the skin and remove every particle of roughness.

Use the skin-beautifying grains this way: First, a little of this fragrant powder is poured into the palm of the hand, moistened with water, then rubbed over the rough skin. Frictioning this granular cleansing and smoothing agent over the skin stirs up circulation which aids in correcting the trouble under the skin. The friction itself, plus the smoothing and cleansing properties of this fragrant powder, aids in overcoming surface roughness and discoloration. When the skin feels smooth and is glowing pink, all cleansing agent should be rinsed or wiped off. Treat the rough, off-color regions of your heels, as well as your knees, to this excellent smoothing and skin-refining help two, three or four times each week. Use this same granular cleansing method on elbows and hands, and use it as an occasional "fixer" on rough, off-color facial skin.

To smooth the legs further and to rest over-worked leg muscles, use a mask especially created for use on feet, ankles and legs. This is a creamy mask, with a cool, refreshing odor, that removes muscular fatigue and seems to cool from within as it cools and refreshes the surface. The mask is painted on with a brush. It does not form a hard coating on the legs but retains its creaminess and cooling effects during the entire time the application remains on. The mask should remain on for 15 minutes, then wiped off with a cloth or piece of cotton moistened with water.

If you want to use this same mask for a two-fold purpose, for resting the legs as well as to aid in re-shaping them, bandages may be wrapped over the coating of mask. The bandages, together with the mask, should be left on for 15 minutes. Then the bandages are removed and the mask wiped off. The legs will feel refreshed and their muscles rested. The complete routine is easy to do, or, if you wish, use only the mask and concentrate on making the legs smooth, then employ the exercise line for their shaping.

The exercise line is a piece of rope-like elastic used for making the legs lithe and shapely, and is an important step of modern gymnastics. When in use, it promotes stretching and this in turn aids in reducing or developing, in limbering and easing tension. It relaxes and soothes and gives poise and balance. This strong elastic line has loops at either end through which the feet are slipped while the legs are put through the stretching-exercising routine.

What is your leg problem—too thin, or too heavy legs? To reduce the legs and give them better shape, here is the correct way of using the line: Sit on floor, hands resting on the floor in back of you. (The loops of the elastic line should be slipped over the feet and the legs stretched far apart.) Then raise one leg, keeping the heel pushed forward and toes curled. Then allow the leg to fall, heel still forward, so that the calf strikes the floor firmly. Repeat with the other leg and alternate until each leg has been put through the paces 10 times.

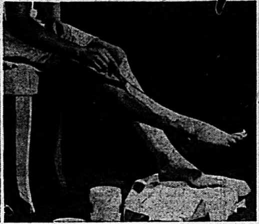
If your problem is too thin and unshapely legs, this is the exercise for you: Lie on the floor, arms planted firmly on the floor, and the loops of the elastic band slipped over each foot. Then bend your knee and stretch one leg straight up, keeping your heel pushed forward and toes up. Then bend your knee and repeat the same exercise with the other leg. Alternate until each leg has been exercised 10 times. Here's another developer: Take same position, but with both legs flat on the floor. Stretch one leg straight up, heel forward and toes up. Return leg to floor and repeat with the other leg. Exercise each leg 10 times.

Hide any flaws in leg-complexion under a coating of waterproof make-up. This lotion (it also comes in cream form) was created for the diving belles at the last World's Fair. The application of lotion is not affected by water and does not easily rub off on clothing. In fact, it requires moisture and pressure to remove the coating or dim the perfect illusion it creates. It does not look like make-up, but rather makes the legs seem smooth, while completely concealing little imperfections. Simply shake the bottle of liquid and apply with a pad of cotton.

Use this same waterproof lotion for a foundation for facial make-up. Use it on your face, throat and arms for every-day wear, and use it on that important third of your body when wearing shorts, a bathing suit or any abbreviated costume. Use it on your legs if you want to make your stockings seem sheerer and your legs lovelier, and use it over your shoulders and back when wearing evening clothes.

Take your legs in hand today and make them smooth and shapely. Your legs are about one-third of you. Don't let them be the forgotten or neglected third.

A granular washing agent, when moistened and then rubbed over the affected areas, will rid surface roughness and under-skin bumps.



A special cream mask is cool and refreshing, and aids in relaxing fatigued leg muscles. Use this soothing method when the legs are tired and to help smooth their surface.

The application of a waterproof make-up hides all imperfections in leg complexion. Wear it with abbreviated costumes and with stockings to make them look sheerer and legs lovelier. Apply as shown right.

PROBLEMS

I HAVE a cow-lick right in the center of my hairline which makes it impossible for me to wear my hair parted in the center. Is there any way I can train the hair at this spot? I would also like to know what to do about extremely oily hair and dandruff. The ends of my hair seem dry and faded but the hair close to my scalp is oily two days after shampooing. MABEL.

There isn't any satisfactory way of fighting a natural cow-lick. Try parting your hair just off-center, as close to the cow-lick as possible. Sorry I haven't space here to answer your other problems. Send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope for my suggestions, in leaflet form, for overcoming oily hair and scalp, dandruff, and dry, faded hair-ends.

Please help me. I'm a milliner and love my work except for one thing. The constant pushing of pins through heavy felts and other farics has made the cushions of my thumb and index finger very sore. Can you suggest any way of protecting my fingers? MAXINE.

Wear a large thimble or perhaps a heavy rubber guard on the finger or fingers you use for pushing the pins through the fabric. Smooth a strip of adhesive tape or moleskin over the offended spots now to prevent further damage to your already sore fingers.

I have a number of pimples on my face. I'm just 17 and have an otherwise nice skin and am considered good looking. I know you can help me as you have so often helped my sister and Mother. Thanks so much.

JULIE THOMAS.

I'll be delighted to send you my leaflets of suggestions for overcoming facial blemishes, if you will forward me a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope. Please repeat your question.

Due to an automobile accident three years ago, I have a light scar over my temple, and my brows and lashes, which were almost completely burned off, are very thin. To add to their unattractiveness the few hairs I have on my brows and lashes are very blonde. Is there any way I can encourage these hairs to grow? What should I do about the scar? CAROL PORTER.

You can buy artificial eyelashes and brows. When properly applied these make-believe eye-framing hairs will defy detection. Don't make the mistake of having their application too luxurious or the lashes too long or they will be too noticeably conspicuous. Also use the preparation created for the purpose of covering light scars and discolorations over your temple. Lashes and brows are available in black and brown and the creamy preparation for covering the temple-mark comes in tones to shade with all complexions. If you cannot obtain these aids in your local shops, write me again, enclosing a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope and I will forward names of manufacturers.

What started out as a slight case of dandruff has become a more serious condition and has extended over my brows and eyelids and along the hairline on my cheeks. I'm not sure that you will understand this condition from my description, but my hairdresser suggested that I write to you. It's a fine flakiness that clings to my scalp and flakes through my hair and down over my face.

Mrs. CHAS. T. F.

The condition may be one of three or four things. Very light applications of ammoniated mercury applied to the scalp have proved extremely beneficial. However, I suggest that you ask your physician about the condition and my suggestion.

●

How can I remove some of the curl from my hair? I brush it several times each day, but the ends of my hair get kinky, especially in damp weather.

FLORENCE.

Follow each thorough shampoo with a vinegar rinse—after rinsing off all shampoo, of course. Add four tablespoonfuls of vinegar to one glass of lukewarm water and pour it over your hair. Let the vinegar rinse remain on the hair for five minutes, then use a clear, tepid water rinse.

Delight Dixon Says . . .

IF you literally bathe in cleansing cream, a large supply of this aid is the thing. And if you want to treat your skin kindly, consider the large 15½-ounce jar of excellent cream which is as fluffy as a souffle and as fragrant as dew-drenched flowers in the early morning. It is equally effective for dry or oily skin, as it contains no heavy, over-greasy ingredients to impair the natural function of the pores.

How about your daintiness program? With the thermometer up to its usual summer tricks, you may have to use a good anti-perspirant cream as often as once a day. One of our old stand-bys in the daintiness program may be used once every one to three days. Experiment a bit until you time it just right and you'll never be caught unprepared. This light, smooth aid is mild enough to be used on hands, brows, back or feet.

Polish your teeth to perfection and consider the polishing agents—a good toothbrush and an equally good dentifrice—close to the head of your list of beauty equipment. If your teeth are weak in structure and have fine enamel, use a brush with soft or medium stiff bristles. If your teeth are strong and hard to polish, use a brush with stiffer bristles. In either case a good dentifrice and thorough brushing twice each day will keep the teeth clean and help prevent trouble.

A quartet of color-harmony performs a four-fold purpose. Nail enamel, lipstick, cheekstick and polish foundation are teamed together and stand upright in a box which has a front drop as fitting as any stage curtain. This is a thrifty "buy" for the budget-minded and there's a choice of nail polish shades with, of course, matching rouge.

Don't be embarrassed by bristly hairs on your legs and don't tolerate long leg hairs. You can take your choice of several depilatories for keeping the legs smooth and hair-free. Most of the new depilatories are as fragrant as any beauty cream or grooming aid and it isn't necessary to use one that isn't as well perfumed as it is efficient in its job.

A bowl shaped like a kettledrum has a trim copper base and is filled with excellent quality shaving soap. When the soap is used up you'll have it for pins or odds and ends. Or, let "him" have the bowl for holding cuff-links, tie-clasps and other masculine gadgets. Another dandy idea for any man is a supply of razor towels for drying sharp blades. This is a subtle hint which will avoid abuse of your own fine linen towels.

Lowly Phils Cut Card's Lead to One Game by Winning in 11 Innings

DODGERS WIN

Hendricks Has Two Homers as Yanks Beat Browns 9 to 0

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

There is a new mosquito causing trouble in the National League these days and it's the last insect you ever would suspect—a species known as the Phillies.

The Philadelphia club has a permanent address in the cellar of the senior circuit, but here in August when it should be tending to its own business it has fluttered into the limelight by winning several games in a short span of time.

Most importnat, it nosed out the St. Louis Cardinals, 2-1, in 11 innings last night to cut the Redbirds' first-place margin to a single game over the Brooklyn Dodgers, who edged the Chicago Cubs, 5-4.

For seven innings the amazing struggle at St. Louis was a scoreless pitching duel between Bill Crouch of the Cardinals, a former Philly, and Si Johnson of the Phillies, a former Card. The tailenders broke the spell in the eigth with one run, but the 32-year-old Johnson held out until the ninth, allowing only two hits, before he finally was scored upon. Then it was Enos Slaughter, who hadn't made a hit during the entire three-game series with the Dodgers, who singled Johnny Hopp across the plate after two were out.

Hits Homer

In the 11th, after Lon Warneke had taken the mound for the pace-setters, catcher Benny Warren of the Phils smacked a homer into the stands for victory.

Previously the Phillies who split even in four game series with both the Cincinnati Reds and the Cubs.

The Cincinnati Reds held onto their slim third-place margin by beating the Boston Braves, 5-1, behind the two-hit hurling of Johnny Vander Meer.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, striving hard to oust the Reds, rapped the New York Giants, 6-3 clinching the game with a four-run third inning when Vince DiMaggio singled with the bases loaded.

Only two contests were scheduled in the American League and in one of them the New York Yankees overwhelmed the St. Louis Browns, 9-0, to take a tighter grip on first place.

Tom Henrich hit his 20th and 21st home runs and two singles to lead New York's 14-hit attack.

Billy Conn To Face Wife's Pappy

Hollywood, Aug. 2 (AP). — Billy Conn is going home to face the music, and meet "Pop"—at least.

"Pop" is the Pittsburgh fighter's new father-in-law, Jimmy Smith, who once announced that he would punch Billy in the nose if he married his pretty daughter, Mary Lou.

Well, Billy married Mary Lou in an elopement, anyhow, soon after the warning, and shortly after he had been knocked out by Joe Louis in Round 13 of their heavyweight championship bout.

Then the two came to Hollywood, Billy to star in a motion picture "The Pittsburgh Kid", and Mary Lou to see the sights—and honeymoon.

The picture is just about completed and the Conns, Mr. and Mrs. are scheduled to leave for Pittsburgh Sunday.

At one banquet given for Billy, he got up to say a few words. These were the words:

"I'm not much of a speaker, and I guess Republic Studios discovered manship in Canada.
actor. But I sure am a runner.

"Ask my father-in-law."

Springbrook Wins Rawdon Softball

Stirling, Aug. 2 — (Special) — Springbrook's entry in the Rawdon and Stirling District Softball League last night annexed the championship and the cup in a thrilling game before the season's largest crowd. Strong in every department both teams battled hard through seven close innings which wound up with the northerners leading 7-5.

The final series was the most exciting seen locally for several years. Don Campbell's Mount Pleasant squad took the opening game of the series last week by a score of 10-6. Then last Tuesday night before an increased number of shouting fans Springbrook tied the series when they displayed superior form to down their rivals 12-2.

Final a Real Thriller

Last night's game was a fitting climax to a great championship series. It was anybody's game until the final strike was called. After two scoreless innings Springbrook clicked for four in the third, two in the fifth and the other in the seventh. Mount Pleasant scored one in the third, two in the fourth and one in each of the fifth and sixth.

With Broadworth and Rodgers opposing Bedford and Jeffs the fans saw the best two pair for catching and pitching in the league. Broadworth is a veteran widely known for his speed and control while Bedford, who hasn't played in this league for several years, reurned to his home loop for a very successful season.

Fans Generous to Good Cause

The fans were all in support of the fund to help buy equipment for the army lads to play ball and the free-will offering for the evening's fun amounted to more than twelve dollars and will find its way to the proper authorities, who are securing the sporting equipment for the troops.

WOOD IS FAVOURITE

Girard, O., Aug. 2—(AP)—The nation's two top champions teed off today in a torrid 72-hole battle for golfdom's unofficial world title, with blond Craig Wood the favorite over swarthy Vic Ghezzi.

Winner of the National Open and Master's Tournaments, Wood was given an edge in the $2,500 winner-take-all match out of respect for his experience, powerful drives and long-range irons.

Wood, who will be 40 this year, once tutored the 29-year-old Deal, N.J., star and knows well the task ahead.

A scientist has patented a new spray for apple orchards that is harmless to human beings but more deadly than lead arsenate to codling moth larvae.

RACING BREEDERS COOL TOWARDS CONANT'S PLAN

Attorney - General's Proposal to Smooth Racing Situation is Ignored

ONE-THIRD BREEDERS

Toronto, Aug. 2—(CP) — Attorney-General Gordon Conant's suggested solution for smoothing the ruffled racing situation in Ontario was eyed coldly today by the Thoroughbred Breeders' Association members of which decided to "ignore" it.

The Attorney-General, in an effort to solve the situation arising from T.B.A. representation on the Board of the Incorporated Canadian Racing Association, recommended that racing continue under the control of the I.C.R.A. but that the breeders be given one-third representation on the Racing Association directorate.

The breeders' representatives would be determined by a system whereby the horsemen would choose by ballot twice the number of eligible directors and submit their names to the I.C.R.A., which would then select the required number.

Mr. Conant offered his services last May when differences between the two groups compelled cancellation of the spring meet at Thorncliffe Park, near Toronto. The issue at stake at that time was the refusal of the I.C.R.A. to accept Ryland New of Oakville as a T.B.A. representative in place of James Heffering, Pickering. A breeders' boycott, which compelled the Thorncliffe officials to postpone their meet until the fall, was broken when Mr. Conant became an I.C.R.A. direcor. It was in this capacity that he submitted his solution.

The I.C.R.A., for the most part consists of the proprietors of the seven race tracks in the province and the very nature of their holdings, in the opinion of the Attorney-General, provides for a more stable government of the sport.

"On the other hand, horsemen are not as stable or as constant a factor as rack track proprietors, for the very obvious reason a horseman may in a matter of days divest himself of horses and cease practically overnight to be a factor in horse racing," declares Mr. Conant in expounding his argument "hat equal representation, as sought by the T.B.A., would not be fair.

In discussing the report at a meeting in Hamilton, the T.B.A. rejected the recommendations and the members announced their determination to continue their efforts to appoint men of their own choosing o the I.C.R.A. Board.

On the Bowling Greens

The semi-finals in the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club's men's double club championships have been reached following a month of sterling bowling activities.

The semi-finalists in section one are Fred Harper and H. Middleton versus Rod Mitchell and E. Ford, while the semi-finalists in section two are C. E. Argue and D. Grant versus Jas. Galloway and H. Ackerman. The winners of the semi-finals, to be played next Tuesday, will subsequently meet for the club title.

The annual mixed doubles sponsored by the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club will be held in Belleville on Aug. 6th this year. Games Chairman Cliff Argue stated today the largest entry in many years is expected from all parts of District No 15, which comprises the district from Kingston to Campbellford and northerly. The trophies for the annual mixed doubles are the Tip Top Cup and the Queens Hotel Trophy, the latter having been recently donated to the local Bowling Club by Mrs. Zeta Ryan, proprietress of the Queens Hotel as an annual challenge trophy.

Four Belleville teams will journey to Kingston on Monday to compete in the annual mixed rinks tournament sponsored by the Kingston Lawn Bowling Club. The local club trebles championships will commence Aug. 12th.

Leading Boat Racers at Picton Regatta On August 4th to Seek World Records

Leading power boat racers of Canada and the United States will take part in the big, ninth annual Regatta on the Bay at Picton, next Monday, August 4th.

In addition to the many classes, there will be mile trials in which leading drivers will attempt to shatter world records as was done on the Picton course last year. The Gold Cup race will see many 225 cubic inch class boats competing for this $500 Prince Edward Yacht Club trophy, with these boats especially providing many thrills with their great speed.

The course is located on the Bay a half mile east of Picton. The high banks provide a regular amphitheatre. The races will be broadcast over loud speakers.

The Yacht Club is aiding the war effort by giving proceeds of sale of programs and those from the big dance in Picton armouries at night when prizes will be presented to the Red Cross and I.O.D.E.

Among the famous boat racers who will be seen in action are Jack 'Pops' Cooper of Kansas City, Missouri, whose Tops III set a world record for the mile trials last fall, breaking that of Dave Foreman of Buffalo, who set a world record on Picton course earlier in the fall, with an average speed of 88.784 miles per hour. Both men will be at Picton on Monday with new boats in an attempt to set new records, not only for one mile but for five miles as well. Cooper also has a new 81 cubic inch boat, Top's Pup which is cleaning up at regattas.

With the biggest entry in history of the club, greater speed and thrills can be expected on this perfect course, next Monday, August 4.

KOVACS IS FAVOURED

Southampton, N.Y., Aug. 2. (AP) The form chart says Frankie Kovacs will beat Bobby Riggs today in the final round of the Meadow Club Tennis tournament, but the boys in the trade are inclined to disgree.

Frank has triumphed over Bobby five times in seven meetings this year, although Riggs won the last time out—a four-set affair four weeks ago at Indianapolis.

Off their semi-final victories yesterday, there wasn't a great deal to choose between them. Riggs dawled through four sets with Gardnar Mulloy, while Kovacs shellacked Ted Schroeder in three straight.

Schroeder, who lost to Riggs last week in the Sea Bright tournament, thinks Kovacs should beat Bobby.

But the other players installed Riggs as a 3-2 favorite.

Former Belleville Players

The Genereaux sisters, Marie and Kay, who will return to Belleville with the Sunday Morning Class girls softball team of the Sunnyside Senior League in Toronto, and will play outfield positions at Coleman Flats here on Civic Holiday afternoon and evening games versus two "all-star" teams selected from the clubs in the Belleville Ladies' Softball League. All proceeds from the two games will be given to the Red Cross British Bomb Victims' Fund.

Kay Genereaux (left) is the leading home run hitter with the Sunday Morning Class girls' team, while Marie (right) is the club's ace defensive outfielder. The Genereaux sisters, who are natives of Point Anne, commenced their softball career in the Belleville Ladies' Softball League of several years ago before migrating to Toronto, where they rose to starry heights in their chosen sport. In 1940 Kay Genereaux was named the most valuable girl athlete in Ontario.

The war charity games will be played at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. on Monday at Coleman Flats diamond with Red Cross nurses assisting in the matter of collections.

CORBINS OUT OF PLAY-OFFS IN GIRLS LOOP

Lose Final Game of Girls Schedule 13 to 4 to Swaco Lassies

PLAY-OFFS NEXT

It's play-off time in the City Girls' Softball League.

Last night at the Armouries Ken Watt's SWACO lassies dunked any chance the Corbin girls might have had in gaining a playdown berth when Danny Stead hurled a seven-hitter for the SWACO as they won 13-4. In winning the SWACOS cinched second place in the final league standing, while the loss dropped the Corbin lassies from a play-off berth. The final league standing, as last night's game at the Armouries was the final game in the league schedule, finds Zellers leading, SWACO second, Deacons third and Vikings fourth. Corbins failed to gain a play-off berth finishing fifth.

Many Errors.

Lusty hitting and errors helped the SWACOS garner in 13 runs as they scored six in the first two frames and then coasted in to an easy victory behind Pitcher Danny Stead's seven-hit mound effort. Miss Stead whiffed seven and walked but three in her best pitching effort of the year. Of the seven hits collected by the Corbins two were round trippers, Pete Knott's homer in the first and Betty Marsh's round-tripper in the third.

Danny Stead helped her own cause with a home run in the fourth as every member of the winning SWACOS counted at least one safe blow in an abbreviated seven inning game called on account of darkness. 'Tiny' Langman paced the SWACOS with three hits, one a hard double in the seventh. The winners had scored nine runs in the top half of the eighth before the game was terminated.

New York, Aug. 2 (AP)—Highest priced ball player in the minors is Billy Myers of Milwaukee—whose $12,000 salary is paid by the Cubs... While Brooklyns were in St. Louis, Larry MacPhail called Leo Durocher from New York and Leo still was answering questions an hour and ten minutes later....Freddy Corcoran, the P.G.A. tourney manager, is doing all he can to help Ben Hogar carry on with his endurance record. The weather was so hot during the St. Paul open, Freddy wanted Ben to fly to Chicago after each day's play and take an air-conditioned train back to St. Paul for a good night's sleep .... John Kimbrough's handsome map now decorates cigaret ads as you've probably noticed....Paul Keiser, an old Richmond, Va., lad who made good on the big time, is the new sports editor of the New York Post. Garry Finley goes back to the city desk.

Today's true story.

Ernie White, who is going great guns for the Cardinals, was pitching for Asheville in the Piedmont League some years back....The Piedmont season that year was marked by the 29-game losing streak of the Winston-Salem twins ....Believe it or not, but White was the only elbower in the loop Winston-Salem could lick consistently.

GOSSIP NEWS COMMENT

This newsboy has been invited to take part in the Charlie Kearns memorial fund baseball game to be played in Peterborough next Thursday evening. Jim Dorris, former secretary of the Peterborough Ball Club, dropped your reporter a line inviting us to assist in this memorial fund game as one of several former C.O.B.L. umpires who were invited to lend what little assistance they can in order to make the game the success it deserves. Bob Elliott is taking his Kingston Ponies to Peterboro to play against an amalgamated team composed of former C.O.B.L. players from Oshawa and Peterboro. Such players as Peg Hurst, Moose Matthews, Red Jubenville, Lefty Wallace from Oshawa and even Bobby Doll, of Canton, Ohio, who played one season with the Petes, are a few who have signified their intention of helping the cause. They expect a crowd of over 3,000 to take in this memorial to the late Charlie Kearns, Peterboro Fred Craig says.

Ken Soden and his Reliance softball cohorts are anything but satisfied with the decision of the Belleville Softball League executive regarding the awarding of the semi-finals to the Corbys A. C., who now meet Point Anne for the City League title commencing Tuesday. Harry Rollins, Vice-President of the O.A.S.A. announced the provincial softball playdown dates today. The Belleville winners, Corbys A.C., will meet the champions of the Trenton Softball League commencing Aug. 16th, the second game is slated for the 20th and the possible third game on the 26th. The winner of the Belleville-Trenton round then meet the Kingston winners commencing Aug. 26th at Kingston, with the return game at either Belleville or Trenton on the 30th of this month. The third game, if necessary, will be played Sept. 2nd. No mention of the junior O.A.S.A.. play-off dates were made to the Esquire kids, Belleville's entry into the junior provincial softball playdowns.

Harry Ridley, of the Belleville Golf Club, will journey to Kingston on Civic Holiday to compete in the Eastern Ontario golf championships for the Whig-Standard trophy. Incidentally Bill Little, professional at the Country Club, has been assured of a galaxy of golf professionals to play here on August 24 for war charity. Ten or twelve of the best professional golfers in Ontario have promised Bill Little they would come to Belleville and put on a golf exhibition for war charity purposes. Here is an opportunity seldom afforded sport fans in a small city like Belleville. More later.

Do you remember when Charlie Grimm was appointed manager of Chicago Cubs nine years ago today. First baseman with the National League club since 1925, Grimm succeeded Rogers Hornsby and was in turn replaced by catcher Gabby Hartnett several years later after leading them into the world series in 132 and 1935. This year Hartnett was succeeded by Jimmy Wilson and Grimm became manager of Milwaukee Brewers of the American Association.

A galaxy of Belleville beauties, dressed in the official uniform of a Red Cross war worker, will assist in making the collections at Monday's war charity softball games between the Toronto Sunday Morning Class and the Belleville "all-star" girls teams at Coleman Flats. The girls are under the direction of Mrs. Stuart Lazier, president of Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross, and Mrs. C. A. Cameron is in charge of the young ladies. Manager Frank Doughty, of the S.M.C., wired President Schwab today stating his team would be in Belleville on Civic Holiday with twenty-two in the party, which means the Sunday Morners are bringing a full squad to Belleville. 'We're looking forward to a grand time in Belleville. The Genereaux girls have told us of Belleville hospitality. Hope weather's good," was part of Mr. Doughty's wire. In order to assure the patrons of a good game the clubs will exchange batteries.

Sammy Stead's seven-hit mound effort not only gave the SWACO a 13-4 win over the Corbin lassies last night, but it settled the play-off berths and saw the "lockmakers" eliminated from further participation in the local gals' softball loop. GREAT WAR VETERAN KILLED BY CAR

Hawkesbury, Ont., Aug. 2 (CP)—Stanley King, 45-year-old first Great War veteran, was killed instantly last night when struck by an automobile which apparently did not stop after the accident.

There were no eyewitnesses to the accident. The body was found on the roadside by a motorist leaving the farm of Kenneth McDonald, farmer who employed King.

"Adventure in Washington"

Remember "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" then just take a tip that "Adventure in Washington" is another grand 'movie". It will be presented Sunday Midnight, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the McCarthy Theatre.

In roles calling for the utmost in their not inconsiderable talents Herbert Marshall and Virginia Bruce bring to the screen "Adventure in Washington" in a way that makes the production one of the most pleasing and entertaining films of this or any past year. Columbia studios which also released the Academy Award Winner, "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" have again spared nothing to make this the supreme achievement of 1941.

To mention the theme of the story, to tell you the particular roles in which each of the players appear or in fact to give any description of what you will see, would be an injustice to you "Adventure in Washington" is the type of entertainment that will be lived not just watched and just like you are not aware now, just what you will be engaged in doing at some particular hour three weeks from now, to fully enjoy the film it has been recommended that no advance story be published in reference to it's theme. But it is to be told along with any previous outstanding picture. Making the program one of the best offerings it was possible to arrange and for added fun galore the howl hit of the year "Two in a Taxi" teaming Anita Louise and Russell Hayden, also will be presented as a holiday show in addition to "Adventure in Washington". McCarthy-Fox News events will also be presented. Due to the Monday holiday the show will be continuous after one-thirty o'clock.

Anxious to assist in the nation-wide appeal for 50 per cent savings in gasoline consumption, a local citizen gives some hints.

"The question confronting every true Canadian motorist is how to make sure we cut down our gasoline consumption 50 per cent," the local statistician stated.

"I have hit upon a plan that I feel will be of material assistance to Canadian motorists. Every car owner knows when he purchased his automobile, so you simply take the present mileage on the speedometer and divide that reading by the number of months you've owned the car. That, roughly, is the monthly average. Armed with this fact he has a fairly definite idea of how much he must cut to go 50-50 with our armed forces," explained the local motorist.

Even persons who purchased used cars can recall the approximate mileage and can work out their monthly average on the same basis.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Tight Shoes"

"Tight Shoes" Damon Runyon's short-short story classic, has been made into a motion picture by Universal, and opens Sunday midnight at the Capitol theatre.

John Howard, recently in "The Philadelphia Story" and "The Invisible Woman" is the cast's lead-off name. Following sure-fire performances in "Seven Sinners", "The Trail of the Vigilantes" and "The Black Cat", Brad Crawford has the principal comedy lead.

Also teamed again with Crawford from "The Black Cat" are Director Albert S. Rogell and beauteous Anne Gwynne. Anne was recently elected "T.N.T. girl" by the Sigma Chis, because "she's trim, neat and terrific".

Zestful Role

Binnie Barnes plays opposite Howard and Crawford as the curvaceous but more than somewhat mercenary-minded stage actress. One of the highlights of the role is a dance routine that out-tops her now-famous clothes fight in "This Thing Called Love".

Other supporting parts are played by Leo Carrillo, Samuel S. Hinds, Shemp Howard, Ed Gargan and Richard Lane.

The story traces the hilarious misadventures of Crawford after he insists upon buying shoes a size too small. He goes to the races with his sweet-pea, Miss Barnes. By that time his feet are a source of extreme distress, and when he notices that a horse called Feet First is running, it seems like the hunch of a life-time.

Makes Questionable Wager

He passes up the "sure thing" that he has been instructed to bet by his boss and wagers everything he, his sweet-pea and the boss racketeer can beg, borrow, steal or hock. Feet First does not win, and his troubles begin.

"Tight shoes" was adapted from the Runyon story by Leonard Spigelgass and Art Arthur. It was produced by Jules Levey of Mayfair Productions.

"That Gang of Mine"

Those irascible kids are back again in a fast-moving story of thoroughbreds.

"That Gang of Mine" the second feature starring the popular cinema gang, the East Side kids, with an outstanding supporting cast.

Since their initial film for Monogram, "Boys of the City", the East Side Kids won instant popularity. The gang, headed by Bobby Jordon and Leo Gorcey, former members of the Dead End Kids, are capably supported in their current feature by such stars as Clarence Muse, popular colored actor, who was last seen in "Sporting Blood", Dave O'Brien, who played a leading role in "Queen of the Yukon', Joyce Byrant, pretty ingenue, Wilbur Mack and Milton Kibbee.

Added to this grand double bill will be shown a colored cartoon. Special matinee Monday Civic Holiday, 2.30 p.m. at regular prices.

AT THE BELLE

"Moon Over Miami"

Miami, the glamour city of the South, with its swaying palms, gleaming-white beaches, and incredibly blue lagoons, provides the background for the music, laughter and romance of the year's most elaborate Technicolor musical. Appropriately titled "Moon Over Miami," the 20th Century-Fox hit teams Don Ameche and Betty Grable for the second time. The romantic duo of "Down Argentine Way" shares top-featured billing with Robert Cummings.

This feature attraction is to be seen to-day and Monday at the Belle Theatre. "Moon Over Miami" is the gay, tune-filled tale of two sisters, Betty Grable and Carole Landis, and their aunt Charlotte Greenwood, who invest their $5,000 inheritance in the hope of realizing big dividends. It's an original sort of investment—a holiday fling complete with expensive clothes and a luxurious suite at a swanky Miami Beach hotel. The expected dividends — a millionaire husband for Betty.

Betty poses as an heiress, Carole as her secretary, and Charlotte as her personal maid. The threesome is more than successful when Betty hooks not one but two millionaires, Don Ameche and Robert Cummings—So she thinks. Don, the one she falls for, turns out to be a play-boy fortune bent on the same mission.

She then kids herself into believing she loves Bob, a bona-fide millionaire. But before they can marry, Don turns up—and the stage is set for a finale which is refreshingly different.

Not only does "Moon Over Miami" boast of a star-studded cast which includes Jack Haley and Cobina Wright, jr., but there are in addition eight hit tunes by master tunesmiths Leo Robin and Ralph Rainger. You are sure to come out whistling one of these smash hits:

"Kindergarten Conga," "Hurrah for Today," "Miami," "I've got you all to myself," "Loveliness and Love," "You started something," "Is that good" and "Solitary Seminole."

Sunday Midnight Show

With five new tunes added to a story that was already famed for its merriment, "Kiss the boys goodbye," the Paramount film version of the Broadway stage comedy, will be presented at the Belle Theatre Sunday midnight, for one performance only.

The film stars Don Ameche and Mary Martin, and featured in its superior cast such always-welcome entertainers as Oscar Levant, the musical genius and information expert of radio's "Information Please," Virginia Dale, one of Hollywood's comeliest and most talented singers and dancers, Connie Boswell, the singing star of the Bing Crosby radio hour, and Rochester, temporarily forsaking his boss of radio and films, Jack Benny. The film is especially endowed with good luck, for it was directed by Victor Schertzinger, the man who has given us such top-notch film musical and laugh hits as "Road to Singapore" and "Road to Zanzibar."

"William Powell—Myrna Loy"

PITCHES SECOND NO-HITTER FOR CANNIFTON

Orval May Does Not Allow Single Hit as Shannonville Loses 5 to 0

CANNIFTON WINS

Barberstock Allows Only One Safe Hit, but Loses Contest

It was a hurler's battle all the way out at Cannifton last evening when Orval May, Cannifton's burly right-hander, and Barberstock for the Shannonville "Hawks" duelled for seven innings with only one safe hit, a single by Loucks in the fifth, was registered off their deliveries as the home team won the nod by a 5-0 count to take the first game of the South Hastings baseball semi-finals.

The series will continue in Shannonville on Monday evening (Civic Holiday) when a win for the Cannifton nine will put them in the finals against Latta while a win for the homesters will tie the series necessitating a third game which in all probability would be played back at Cannifton.

Although errors played a predominant part in the scoring, the fielders of both teams nevertheless played heads-up baseball with several well-executed plays being registered by both teams. Cook, for Shannonville, supplied the feature play of the evening when he raced far behind third to take a high one for the third out, while "Nicky" Sero and Russ Collins, rival third sackers, turned in fine fielding efforts.

In the abbreviated seven inning contest May set the losers down without a single hit while he fanned eleven and walked three only being in danger on one occasion when a walk followed by a error put two men aboard. Houston lofted to left however for the final out to remove the threat.

Barberstock's performance on the other hand almost equalled May's, he permitting only one single off Louck's bat and then nipping the runner off first base with the next pitch. Walks, followed by erorrs on the part of the Shannonville infielders accounted for three of the victor's runs, while a hit batsman, followed by another error in the third inning permitted the final two runs of the game.

The lineups:

Cannifton: L. Jarrell ss; Eves lf; Collins 3b; Bleekman 1b; E. Jarrell c; Gannon 2b; Loucks cf; Hall and I. May rf and O. May p.

Score by innings:

Shannonville	000 000 0	0	0	5
Cannifton	113 000 x	5	1	2

LUCKY FOR LOVE

by JANE DIXON

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

Miss Edna Cook

Before Marilyn went to bed, she wrote to her mother. Al had met her at the station. He took her to Clara's hotel. Clara said she was having a marvelous time. Clara might stay on a few days longer than she had expected, she was having such a marvelous time. She (Marilyn) had been to the Slarco Company. Their offer had been renewed. She had accepted it and would report for work in the morning. She was going to enjoy working for Clarco, she knew. It was a golden opportunity. Love to Dad and Bill and a great big bucketful of it for Mumsy.

As she snapped off the light Marilyn wondered if Clara had come in, if she was scattering clothes about her room in her careless way, cold-creaming, patting, admiring herself in the mirror. How strange it all was! She and her sister were in New York, around the corner from each other, yet they might as well be a million miles apart.

"Good morning. I'm Miss Marsh, Marilyn Marsh. I'm to work in the promotion department."

"Oh yes, Miss Marsh." The young man was blond, gangly and pleasant. "Mr. Dawson spoke to me about you. Come this way, please. I'll introduce you to Miss Cook. She's in charge."

Along the corridor of frosted glass and doors and printed names and titles. After what seemed to Marilyn a half-mile walk, the young man stopped and opened a door marked "PROMOTION DEPT." They were in a long narrow room. Desks marched four abreast down the stretch of it. At the far end, a little apart, was a larger desk facing the others. A woman sat at it, head bent over a pile of papers before her. Instinctively Marilyn knew the woman was Miss Edna Cook.

Arrived before the desk, the young man stood, virtually at attention, waiting for the woman to become aware of their presence. Presently she glanced up. Marilyn thought, "I've never seen such eyes. They seemed to reach right down inside you and appraise everything there is of you at a glance. The woman's hair was black and sleek as a bird's wing. Her features were so fine they might be called delicate. What curves her mouth showed had been cosmetically applied, but almost as artfully as nature could have drawn them. She was perfectly groomed and aware of it. To guess her age would have been guessing in the dark.

"Yes, Mr. Walker," she said, crisply, to the young man from the information desk.

"Miss Marsh is here, Miss Cook." The young man appeared nervous. "Mr. Dawson told me to bring her to you when she reported."

"Thank you. That will be all, Mr. Walker."

The young man backed away. Apparently he was glad to be doing so.

"Miss Marsh," the woman fixed Marilyn with those dissecting eyes, "I understand you are coming to work in the promotion department."

"Yes, Miss Cook. Mr. Watson talked with me about coming." Unconsciously, Marilyn stood at attention too.

"I understand that you have had no previous experience in the work."

"No. I—I—"

"You have worked, though. You've been a wage-earner."

"Oh yes," brightly. "I was in the book department of the Bon Ton—that's a department store in Millville. Millville is my home."

"Good. Then you understand a position is a trust placed in you by the company which employs you. I prefer not to inquire into your educational equipment. It might prejudice me, and I want to be free to direct without prejudice. Personally I prefer to deal with college men and women, but the nature of our product, Clarco, is such that intellectual appeal is not in order. We reach for mass, not class interest. Our keynote is simplicity. Highly trained minds find difficulty in being simple."

Marilyn thought, "Is she trying to tell me I'm a mental pigmy or is she trying to put me at my ease. I wish I knew.

Miss Cook rose. She was tall, erect, almost martial.

"And now, Miss Marsh," she said, "if you'll come with me I'll take you to your desk. You will find it fully equipped. I shall designate Miss Garvan, who occupies the desk alongside yours, to acquaint you with the routine."

Marilyn followed Miss Cook along the aisle between the desks. She felt as though she were marching. She felt eyes sliding sideways to catch sly glances of the little procession, but heads were bent over their work. The rustle of paper and the hollow hum of noiseless typewriters never ceased.

Marilyn's desk was halfway down the long room, next to the window. She was grateful it was so. It gave her an inland feeling, a mite of remoteness. Kathleen Garvan, the girl at the next desk, a fiery redhead with Irish eyes and a pert nose, was friendly, anxious to help.

"Don't mind the office feeling like a factory," she said in a low voice, keeping up a pretense of instructing her neighbor. "You get used to it quickly. I was scared stiff my first day here. Now I rather like it. Concentration speeds up your work. Take this memo."

She handed Marilyn a sheet of paper containing a single sentence.

"It calls for six six-word slogans. You write six sentences of six words each telling the world about Clarco. I worked on it all yesterday afternoon. Must have written a thousand of them. Not one clicked. You can practice on my memo until you get one of your own. They usually come first thing in the morning and two or three times during the day.

"When you're not working on memo orders you fill in with copying, typing letters and various office details assigned to you."

"I'm afraid I'm not very fast at typing," Marilyn said, tuning her voice to the low note set by Kathleen Garvan. "I'm terribly out of practice."

"You're not required to be fast in the beginning," reassuringly. "After all, we're employed as copywriters not as stenographers. But you're expected to pick up speed. One thing you must be, though, is accurate. Miss Cook can scent a mistake almost before you put it on paper, and she loathes erasures. You have to be neat about everything you do, and you have to follow the prescribed forms or you'll be in trouble. Miss Cook should have been a general in the army. She's God's gift to discipline."

At four o'clock in the afternoon Marilyn closed her desk and followed the outgoing tide to the street. She had spent the entire day practicing on Kathleen Garvan's memo. No office boys with typed orders stopped at her desk.

Her neighbors went about their work in total disregard of her isolation. Miss Cook did not seem to know she was in the room. Toward the end of the day she felt tearful, but she set her teeth and tapped away a Clarco six-word slogans. She must have filled enough sheets of copy to paper a good-sized mansion.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

"B.G." — Bruce Gordon

"How we going, Smarty-pie?" Al greeted Marilyn. "Did you burst out with an idea that should be written in letters of fire across the sky? Did you coin a phrase that will ring down the corridors of industrial history? You look kind of peeked. Don't tell me they put the pressure on you the first day."

Marilyn said, rebelliously, "I haven't done a thing all day except to sit at my desk and practice doing another girl's job."

"Ah, the nervetest." Al pulled Marilyn's arm through his, all but skipped up the street. "Your boss is seeing whether or not you have good steady nerves. He wants to see if you can take it."

"She isn't a he, she's a she."

"Well, I'll be darned. And you accuse me of scrambling my language. Oh well, I'm just a problem child in the School of English. But listen, Duchess, I have news for you. Your sister Clara is wearing a brand-fresh shiny diamond bracelet."

"Wait a minute. Don't run out from under your harness. It's not a nice fat juicy diamond bracelet. Just a trinket. Compliments of that beau geste of the niteries, Mr. Herman Hess. I did a bit of investigating. Gossip has it that Hermie always starts that way, a trinket pace. Sorts of whets the feminine appetite for baubles. It takes him quite a while to work himself into a real crown-jewel gallop."

Despite Marilyn's pleading, Al remained firm. No trailing Clara for two or three days, long enough to catch her off guard.

"But, Al," Marilyn persisted, "I can't sit by and hope to get Clara clear with wishful thinking. Anything could happen in two or three days."

"Right. And if it's going to happen neither you nor I nor all the king's horses can stop it. Duchess, I have a hunch and it's a daisy. Blondie isn't such a lame-brain when it comes to Blondie's own welfare. She's pretty darn well able to look out for herself. Too darned mean to do anything else. She's strictly on the taking end, not on the giving. Wouldn't it be a howl if she took Hermie for a row of emeralds, or a platinum-plated limousine?"

"I can't see anything funny in what you say. It's — shameful. Clara has only this man, this Herman Hess, only a few days. Accepting gifts from him—jewelry—"

"'Scuse. I've such a sensitive funny bone I see laughs in every racket Big Town spawns. If you didn't cultivate laughs in the show business you'd get melancholy and they'd brush out the padded cell for you. Take it easy on the Blondie business, Little One. Save your worries for the new job. Make it the most important thing in your life right now. Be a trooper. You know—come what may, the job must go on."

Marilyn's second morning in the Clarco offices. The hands of the clock said ten minutes until nine. Already half the occupants of the promotion department were at their desks. Marilyn settled herself at her typewriter. She had a queer tight feeling in her throat. Suppose she should sit there all day, fumbling with the keys, waiting, waiting.

Fifteen minutes later—it seemed fifteen centuries — an office boy stopped at her desk, deposited thereon a white slip of paper. "Memo for Miss Marsh." She could have embraced him.

The memo was identical with the one Kathleen Garvan had lent her. Slogans for Clarco. Six six-word sentenced extolling the virtues of Clarco. A dozen or more of the sheets she had covered yesterday, busying herself so she would not be conspicuous by her idleness in the buzzing beehive, were in a drawer of her desk. She opened it, lifted the sheets and without glancing at what was written on them tore them in two, quietly, and dropped them into the wastebasket. She would count this her first day in the office and start it with a clean slate.

At eleven o'clock, from the numberless ones she had written, Marilyn culled six. She whispered them to herself. They sounded good. They were smooth, even lyrical. She managed to get Kathleen Garvan's ear without attracting the attention of workers at neighboring desks.

"Miss Garvan," she asked, "what do you do when you finish what the memo tells you to do?"

Kathleen Garvan smiled encouragingly.

"I'm sorry," she said, "I forgot to tell you—just press the buzzer on your desk. An office boy will come. Give him your copy. He will take it to the main desk—the big round one over in the corner where the three men and two women are sitting. They look it over first and if it gets past them it goes to Cookie—I mean Miss Cook. She's the last word, in this office. If she O.K.'s it, the next stop is what we call the 'cooler' because so much of our copy gets a cool reception there."

"How do you know what happens to your copy?"

Lunch hour in Clarco was from twelve until one. On the dot of twelve the promotion department stopped as if animation were suspended by a magic wand. Men and women, girls and boys, melted away and disappeared into the battery of elevators.

Now it was noon. Marilyn prepared to join the exodus. She wondered if it would be against regulations for her to remain at her desk. She was not hungry. She had no idea which way she would turn when she reached the street, where she would go when she did turn. Loneliness gives poor appetite.

"Miss Marsh," Kathleen Garvan called to her, "were you lunching any place in particular?"

"Why — no. I'm a complete stranger—I suppose there are dozens of places—"

"Dozens of poor places, only a few good ones. Perhaps you'd lunch with me. I'm going to a very good place a lot of us here patronize for a sandwich and a glass of iced coffee. If you care to come along we'd better be getting our hats. Noon hour simply flies by and the good places always are crowded."

"I'll get my hat right away," said Marilyn, gratefully, "and thanks for asking me."

Kathleen Garvan swung along at a merry clip, in the tempo of the noonday crowds that filled the sidewalks and overflowed into the streets. It was as much as Marilyn could do to keep abreast of her. No one dawdled. Every one seemed to have an objective and to be in a great hurry to reach it. Thousands and thousands of people—how could they all be fed within an hour?

The restaurant they entered seemed crowded but Kathleen Garvan succeeded in maneuvering two seats almost immediately.

"The sandwiches here really are superior," she said, munching.

"Indeed they are," said Marilyn, attacking hers with a zest. "I am hungry after all. Thanks again for asking me with you."

"I'm glad you could come. Eating alone isn't much fun. The girl who had your desk—she married and left the firm—we lunched together a lot. There are a few other good spots. We'll make the rounds, a different one every day, if you like.

"Oh yes, there's a tip I must give you. Don't feel discouraged if your copy comes back. It will be marked from the place it was returned: 'C.D.' if it got only as far as the copy desk; 'E.C.' if Cookie turns it down; 'B.G.' if it comes from headquarters."

"It sounds pretty grim," Marilyn said. "What does 'B.G.' stand for?"

"For a whole lot. Bruce Gordon is one of the vice-presidents of Clarco. His father owned the biggest block of stock in the company. Gordon, senior, died a year ago. Bruce is his only son. He started at a desk in the outer office, even as you and I, when he was fresh out of college. Young, handsome and a glutton for work, as you'll discover when a piece of your copy clicks, and you're called in to receive the good news. Jiminy, look at the clock! We can just make it, if we step on the gas."

HARRIMAN FLIES TO UNITED STATES

Co-ordinator of U.S. Aid-to-Britain Program Will Report to President

London, Aug. 2—(CP)—W. Averell Harriman, co-ordinator of the U.S. Aid-to-Britain program, has left England by plane for the United States to report to President Roosevelt.

Harriman's departure was disclosed by the United States Embassy, but the announcement failed to say exactly when he left or when he was expected to return. He was accompanied by his assistant, Robert Meikeljohn.

It was Harriman's first trip home since he came to London March 15.

After a busy survey of Britain's requirements, Harriman flew to Cairo in mid-June for a similar checkup on the situation in the Middle East and came back to London two weeks ago.

Admits He Wore Uniform and Badges And Ribbons to Which He is Not Entitled

Toronto, Aug. 2—(CP)—Ac. Roy Buckley of the Royal Air Force pleaded guilty Friday to a charge of unlawfully wearing a Royal Air Force uniform with badges and ribbons to which he was not entitled. He was remanded to Aug. 7.

Buckley, police said, went to England in June, 1939, and enlisted in the R.A.F., arriving back in Canada several weeks ago.

They said his arrest followed reports from citizens that he was wearing a flying officer's uniform with only one ribbon which clashed with accounts last spring that he had been promoted to squadron leader and awarded the D.F.C. with bar and the D.S.O.

Police said Buckley told them he had sent letters to his mother about his receiving the decorations to "cheer her up" but admitted he had not actually received them.

59th Casualty List Of R.C.A.F. Issued

Ottawa, August 2 — (CP) — The Royal Canadian Air Force's 59th casualty list of the war Friday reported three overseas fatalities and six airmen killed in flying accidents in Canada.

Seven overseas fliers were reported missing as a result of air operations, raising total Air Force dead and missing officially reported since the start of the war to 483.

The list was the fourth issued by Air Force Headquarters in the last two weeks.

The six men killed in flying accidents in Canada met death early last Saturday when their R.C.A.F. plane crashed in Northern Newfoundland.

RADIO REPORT DENIED

An announcement made over the radio on Friday morning to the effect that an epidemic of typhoid fever had broken out at Oak Lake and that Bird's Beach had been placed under quarantine, is entirely without foundation it was stated by Mrs. L. McKee, operator of this popular resort, who communicated with the Ontario Intelligencer Friday morning denying the report.

The only suggestion which Mrs. McKee had to offer regarding the possible origin of the erroneous report that there was another Oak Lake near Havelock and the story might have referred to this lake instead of the Hastings body of water. Operators of Bird's Beach and refreshment booth, Mrs. L. McKee and Miss Dell Descent, are anxious that the report not be connected with the local resort in any way.

R. A. F. ATTACKS ON SICILY ADMITTED BY ITALY

Rome, Aug. 2 — (AP) — British planes attacked several places on the island of Sicily Thursday afternoon, causing some damage, the Italian High Command said Friday. At Pennina buildings were admitted to have been damaged. At Palermo anti-aircraft fire drove off the raiders, the communique claimed.

TWO CASES REPORTED

Montreal, Aug. 2—(CP) — Two cases of infantile paralysis, the first in 18 months in the Montreal district, were reported by health authorities Friday.

Dr. Adelard Groulx, Health Department director, said there was "no reason for alarm."

ON WAY TO NEW YORK

Lisbon, Portugal, Aug. 2 (AP)—Sir Ronald Ian Campbell, successor to Sir Gerald Campbell as British Minister to the United States, took off by Clipper today for New York. Sir Gerald has been named Information Chief for Britain in the United States.

Japan's leading electric company will take over more than 200 private steam and water power plants, power transmitting lines and transformer stations, beginning in October.

Germans Clash With Norwegians At Alesund Port

Stockholm, August 2—(AP)—The Scandinavian radio reported last night that it had received information of a clash between German marines and civilians in the Atlantic coast port of Alesund, Norway.

It said the incident occurred when Norwegians in the German-occupied port tried to halt deportation of about 70 hostages collected in the city and its environs. They were to be taken away in a chartered ship at a secret time, the radio said, but the populace learned the vessel would sail during the night and surrounded the detention centre in a Masonic Hall.

When a deputy police chief appeared the crowd demonstrated against him and he ordered all demonstrators arrested, including some elderly women, the radio reported, adding this reported sequence of events:

Bridge Blocked

The crowds then tried to block the bridge leading to the waterfront and the police official had to take refuge with the Germans who called marines from Nazi warships to help.

The marines were stoned and flailed with umbrellas by the crowds, particularly women, and fired pistols in the air. Fearful of bloodshed, Harald Roenneberg, a prominent citizen who was one of the prisoners, appealed for order and told the rioters they could not help. He concluded by shouting "Long Live the King!" and asked the crowd to sing the National Anthem.

Then, the radio report concluded, the demonstrators besieged the police station through the night, several times preventing the deputy chief from leaving. It said he remained there two nights and then left the city.

Joint Action Seen If Japan Strikes At Siberia

Shanghai, Aug. 2 (AP)—Chinese Communist and Russian officers already have held staff conferences to plan point military action in the event Japan strikes at Siberia, Foreign Military reports said Friday.

The report said 70 Russian experts of the Far Eastern Red army arrived two weeks ago at an undisclosed point in North China and met Gen. Chu Teh, Chinese Communist Commander, and his staff.

With these reports were others from Chinese sources saying Stalin had brought pressure on the Chinese Communists to end sporadic clashes with the Chungking government. The Russian Premier also was reported to have advised the Chinese Communists to attack reduced Japanese garrisons in Shansi Province and in other North China territory.

"Mac's" Cigar Store Increases Business By Courteous Service

One of the most popular places in the city for after-theatre crowds to drop in and purchase their favorite magazine or evening paper, to buy their tobacco needs and to enjoy a cooling drink or ice cream is "Mac's" Cigar Store, owned by Mr. Cameron MacDonald, at 345 Front street.

Cameron MacDonald

Situated as it is nearby two of Belleville's picture houses, "Mac's" Cigar Store enjoys increasing popularity of after-theatre customers, while in addition, its proximity to the business section of the city lends itself admirably to the supply of leisure-hour comforts of reading material and "smokes" to an ever-expanding clientele.

Indicative of the success which has been enjoyed by "Mac's" Cigar Store is the fact that since Mr. MacDonald took over the shop only nine months ago, its business has more than doubled, proof positive of the public's acceptance of complete and courteous service.

Practically every class of magazine, ranging from the ever-popular Western thriller to the technical and science publications, is attractively displayed on the book racks of this popular store, while all kinds of tobaccos and smoking goods as well as candies, soft drinks and Borden's ice cream are stocked. All the popular newspapers, both local and metropolitan, morning and evening editions enable local readers to keep abreast of the times, it being "Mac's" claim that he can supply his customers with any newspaper or publication no matter where printed.

"Mac" MacDonald is well known in his native city of Belleville, having lived here practically his entire life. Prior to opening his cigar store on Front Street he was for several years associated with the automobile industry in this city, the last few years having been in the employ of Boyce Garage Service as head of the body painting department.

For your favorite magazine or newspaper or for your accustomed brand of tobacco and cigarettes, drop around to "Mac's" Cigar Store.

Living Costs Show Rise in June

The June index number of living costs on the base 1935-1939-100 rose to 110.5 from 109.4 in May. This index was 9.6 per cent above the August 1939 level. An index for 46 food items was 112.5 as compared with 109.7 in May. The various sub-groups increased by the following percentages: eggs, 5.7; vegetables, 5.4; meats and fish, 5.2; fruits, 1.3; groceries, 1.2; dairy products, 0.6; and cereals 0.2.

The fuel and lighting index moved up from 109.2 to 110.2. An increase in the coal sub-group from 109.7 to 110.0 and from 110.1 to 114.6 for coke accounted for the advance. While all kinds of wearing apparel recorded advances, piece goods showed the greatest gains, and the clothing index rose from 114.5 in May to 114.9 in June.

Home furnishings and services advanced 0.3 per cent to 112.1. Higher prices for a number of items entering into the personal cleaning supplies sub-index were mainly responsible for an upward movement in the miscellaneous index from 105.1 to 105.6.

June Retail Sales Lower Than May

Retail sales in June as measured by the composite index of sales for twelve lines of retail dealing excluding the automotive trade declined six per cent from May and averaged 10 per cent higher than in June a year ago. The general unadjusted index of sales for the twelve trades and on the base, 1935-1939 equals 100 stands at 133.9 compared with 143.1 in May and 121.4 for June, 1940. During the six months ending June sales averaged 15.4 per cent higher than in the corresponding months last year.

Country Store Sales 5 P.C. Higher in June

Country general store sales averaged five per cent higher in June this year than last, according to returns recived from general merchandise stores located in in the smaller towns and rural areas. During the six elapsed months of this year sales averaged 6.7 per cent higher than in the corresponding period of 1940.

Representatives of Eastern Rail and Shipping Interests Say Interests Would be Prejudiced

Washington, Aug. 2—(AP)—Representatives of Eastern Rail and Shipping interests protested to the United States House of Representatives Rivers and Harbors Committee yesterday that their own as well as national interests would be seriously prejudiced by construction of the St. Lawrence waterway.

John T. Corbett, representing the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Cleveland, said passage would create an "injustice" to the nation's railroad workers.

Samuel H. Williams of the Philadelphia, Pa., Joint Executive Transportation Committee of Commercial Organizations, said more than eight civic bodies there feared a "serious jeopardization" of their members' investments through construction of the waterway.

For Smart Show Cards To Aid Merchandising Consult Irwin's Studio

Ten years ago color in merchandising was practically unheard of. Today it is an integral part of successful merchandising. Go into the average department store and notice how they dress their windows, how they glorify their price cards. It is with color and with show cards that are virtually commercial artists' creations.

It is now known to advertising and merchandising experts that color creates mood......and so for that reason merchants adapt color to their sales displays.

For the smaller merchants it would be impossible economically to keep a full time man on his staff to do this work. Yet the smaller store may cash in on this bonanza to better sales by having his display card work done by an expert who is serving the community in which he operates.

Belleville merchants may take advantage of the services of Irwin's Show Card Studio which is conveniently located at 29 Bridge Street East, just a half block from Front Street. Mr. Irwin is considered to be an expert on show card work and he is prepared to give quick and efficient service. He tells us that a telephone call to 2568 is all you have to do to contact him and upon receiving it he will personally make a call at your store to discuss your personal needs.

COURT OF INQUIRY PROBES DAMAGE

Truro, N.S., Aug. 2 (CP)— Only soldiers on special duty were permitted to leave the huge military camp at nearby Debert yesterday as a Court of Inquiry investigated the destruction of an amusement show by 500 soldiers here.

The Military Court convened 12 hours after the crowd of soldiers, in retaliation for the wounding of a fellow serviceman, who levelled all of Frank Elliott's travelling show except the ferris wheel. No one was injured in the melee, but Elliott said damage would amount to $25,000.

He has been charged with shooting at C. Dufresne, a Montreal soldier, with intent to wound him.

GERMANS ABANDON ATTACKS IN SMOLENSK AREA

BRITISH, INDIA TROOPS, R.A.F. REACH SINGAPORE

Fighting Renewed In North Sector And in Ukraine

London Opinion is That Main German Drive May Be Towards Odessa

RUSSIAN STATEMENT

London, Aug. 5 —(CP)— Fierce Russian resistance has forced the German army to abandon temporarily frontal attacks in the Smolensk sector of the eastern front, authoritative quarters said today.

Slackening of activity on the road to Moscow, however, it was said, has been accompanied by a renewal of fighting in the Leningrad sector and on the plains of the Ukraine, where the Germans are trying to envelop Kiev.

Informed sources said the Nazis had launched the campaign against Russia with a total of 20 divisions, but not all of these were concentrated on the eastern front.

The best estimate, these sources said, is that 15 reorganized armored divisions were thrown against the Russians, and that seven or eight are still fighting.

The same quarters said the Japanese had reinforced substantially their Manchoukuo garrison estimated at 250,000 men.

View of London Observers

The prevailing opinion of military observers in London is that the main German drive may develop in the direction of Odessa.

The difficulties of operations in the Karelian Isthmus, northwest of Leningrad, and against the large Russian garrison around Leningrad do not help the chances of quick successes "embellished with the names of captured towns," which one military observer declared the Germans needed badly to bolster civilian morale.

The German objective, these sources said, appears to be a junction of forces moving through Korsten and Bel Oserkov beyond Kiev. The united forces would then be expected to move in a south-easterly direction on Cherkasi and Dnepropetrovsk.

Site of Great Dam

The latter would be an extremely important objective. It is the site of a great dam built in 1927 by American engineers as well as the site of steel and iron industries employing 80,000 workers, and the vast Zaporozhny aluminum works." There are manganese, nitre, coal and iron deposits nearby.

The difficulties of the terrain facing the Germans in the Karelian Isthmus also work to the disadvantage of the Russians, military commentators said, and reports that the Red Army was preparing a drive into Finland were described as "highly problematical."

Face Renewed Offensive

Moscow, Aug. 5 (AP)—The Red Army, battling with the same tenacity which distinguished its three weeks long defence in the Smolensk area, faced a renewed offensive on both sides of Kiev today.

A Soviet communique said the Germans attacked through the night in the areas of Korosten, 80 miles northwest of Kiev, and Bel Tskerkov, barely 50 miles to the south, after relaxing their pressure yesterday in the Korosten direction.

Strong Defences of Russians on Rossi River

Reports here said the Bel Tserkov (White Church) positions of the Russians formed especially strong defences along the Rossi River which runs west from the Dnieper.

SAY R. R. LINE CUT

Berlin, Aug. 5 (AP).—The German high command today claimed a "break through" in the Russian lines in a surprise thrust sixty miles southeast of Smolensk and the repulse and annihilation of allegedly encircled Red army forces grouped in the Ukraine for the defence of Kiev.

A communique from Hitler's headquarters said break-out attempts of Soviet troops encircled in a small area in the Ukraine where a twin drive has been launched to isolate the capital, Kiev, were repulsed and some units annihilated.

Claim Capture of Tapa.

To the north, where the command has been comparatively silent concerning its drive toward Moscow, the communique said a surprise offensive was opened in a new direction southeast of Smolensk and "a new enemy power group was partly annihilated and partly encircled."

The communique claimed the capture of Tapa, small railroad town 45 miles southeast of Tallinn, the Estonian capital. Tapa, one of the few definite points mentioned in recent German communiques, is 26 miles south of the Gulf of Finland, and about 80 miles west of the Soviet frontier.

D.N.B., German news and propaganda agency, told of an alleged incident in the Ukraine sector in which German engineers and shock troops made a sudden attack on a long Soviet troop transport train "engaged in withdrawing defeated forces to the east".

Believes Britain Is Defeating Nazi U-Boat Menace

"On our last voyage across the Atlantic we didn't have one brush with a Nazi submarine," the captain said.

Minor Border Clash of Russians And Japanese Reported 2 Weeks Ago

Shanghai, Aug. 5 (AP).—Lt.-Col. Kunio Akiyama, spokesman for the Japanese forces in China, said today a minor clash of Japanese and Soviet border troops occurred near Manchuli about two weeks ago.

(Unconfirmed reports of Japanese-Russian border clashes had circulated from time to time since Germany invaded Russia.)

His disclosure came at a time when Japan was reported moving forces northward to reinforce troops along the Siberian border.

Dairen, just north of Port Arthur on the Yellow Sea, is an armed camp with Japanese troops, heavy artillery and large quantities of munitions and other supplies constantly moving along the streets, foreigners arriving here reported.

They said they took it for granted these Japanese forces and equipment were to be moved into Manchoukuo.

The foreigners noted particularly that thousands of horses were moved into hurriedly-constructed stables on the outskirts of Dairen, Japan's port of entry to Manchoukuo.

Frequent blackouts have been held at the port, it was said, and the movements of foreigners have been controlled strictly. Those who left Dairen had special permits.

Foreigners still in Dairen and residing in houses facing the harbor have been ordered to paint their windows black and to hang shades, it was reported.

Akiyama said that in the border clash one Japanese was wounded and Soviet casualties were not known. A few Soviet troops crossed into Manchoukuo, he said, and exchanged shots with Japanese. Only a few were said to have participated on either side and the skirmish was described as short lived.

The frontier remained unchanged, Akiyama said, and neither government protested regarding the incident.

The Japanese spokesman emphasized there had been frequent unimportant skirmishes along the frontier in recent years which both sides had minimized by tact agreement. He added that there had been no clashes since the one two weeks ago.

A Japanese embassy spokesman said issuance of travel permits to foreigners seeking to go into North China had been suspended temporarily. He said he was not informed of the reasons but expected restrictions would be lifted before long.

A Japanese navy spokesman said he lacked confirmation of a report that a British battleship was sighted in the Gulf of Siam at the head of a flotilla of warships.

(The British battleship Warspite was said in reports yesterday from Saigon to be cruising in the gulf.)

TRADE AGREEMENT IS RENEWED WITH RUSSIA

U. S. Discloses It is Already Implementing Earlier Promise

PRIORITY ASSISTANCE

Washington, Aug. 5 (AP)— The United States backed Russia against Germany today with a formal pledge of "all economic assistance practicable"—an undertaking that may bring fresh complications in relations with Japan.

The assistance would be in military supplies and implements of defence, even though the Japanese-controlled press in recent weeks has been printing veiled warnings against the routing of such shipments across the Pacific to the Russian Siberian port of Vladivostok.

Indications that such a route would be used were seen in the State Department's announcement that "favorable consideration" is being given Russian requests for the extension of available American shipping facilities to expedite the shipments.

Trade Agreement Renewed

The formal undertaking to supply economic aid was set forth last night in an exchange of diplomatic notes, connected with the renewal of the annual Russo-American trade agreement.

In its note the United States disclosed for the first time it already was implementing earlier informal promises of assistance by:-

Scotland Yard Poses With Mounted "Mounties"

Calgary, Aug. 5 — (CP)— When the Duke of Kent was at the No. 2 Wireless School of the Commonwealth Air Training Plan here yesterday, he stopped and chatted with Corporals D. O. Forrest and F. G. Adam, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police who were mounted on matched bay horses. Pictures were taken.

No sooner had the Duke departed than a slim man in plainclothes asked the photographers if they would take a picture of him beside the mounties. It was Inspector H. J. Evans of Scotland Yard who is accompanying the Duke.

"It's not often I want my picture taken," said Inspector Evans. "But this is the first time I have seen these men mounted."

Visiting Trenton Airport the Duke of Kent Inspects Guard of Honor

From a hot blue sky, a silver red-nosed monoplane carrying His Royal Highness, Air Commodore the Duke of Kent, came to a perfect landing on the airport at Trenton, Ont., Saturday. The weather was made to order for his visit. The shining plane came from the east, bearing a small royal standard. One hundred picked men of the guard of honor snapped to attention. A royal fanfare was sounded by four buglers. The Duke (ABOVE), accompanied by Sir Louis Greig, his aide-de-camp, and the Trenton welcoming officers, slowly inspected the guard. Often the Duke singled out men and talked with them.

DUKE OF KENT RESTS AT BANFF AFTER FIRST WEEK

Inspected Two Units of Commonwealth Air Training Plan in Calgary

AT WIRELESS SCHOOL

By ANDREW B. GARRETT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Banff, Alta., Aug. 5 (CP)— The Duke of Kent rested in this Rocky Mountain town today after winding up the first week of his visit to Canada with inspections of two units of the Commonwealth Air Training Plan in Calgary yesterday.

His Royal Highness and party arrived by automobile last evening from Calgary and are scheduled to remain here two days. No special functions or plans for the Duke's stop-over have been announced.

His itinerary calls for a return to Calgary Thursday to continue westward by air on a Dominion-wide inspection tour of establishments of the training plan.

2 U.S. CRUISERS REACH BRISBANE

Visit is Training Cruise According to Formal Announcement

Washington, Aug. 5 (AP).—The Navy announced today that two United States heavy cruisers, the Northampton and the Salt Lake City have arrived at Brisbane, Australia, in what was described in a formal announcement as a training cruise.

The official statement made no reference to current tension in the South Pacific, stating merely that the cruisers would refuel at the Australian port and give their crews a recreational period of "a few days" there.

The text of the navy announcement follows:

"The Navy Department announced today that two heavy cruisers, the Northampton and he Salt Lake City, Rear-Admiral S. A. Taffinder, U.S. Navy, commanding the detachment, while on a training cruise to the South Pacific Ocean, have put in to Brisbane, Australia, for refueling and several days recreation for the personnel of the ships' companies."

Sydney, Australia, Aug. 5 (CP).—Australians warmly welcomed today news of the arrival at Brisbane of two United States cruisers. It was felt their arrival represented a manifestation of the United States support in the Pacific and news of their docking, published in late evening papers, prompted much excitement.

British Units Bombard Ports Of Sardinia

London, Aug. 5 (CP) — British naval units bombard ports of Sardinia Friday, scoring hits on hangars and buildings, the Admiralty announced today.

The Admiralty said destroyers carried out the attack as part of recent "minor operations" in the western Mediterranean.

They entered the road stead of Alghero and the harbor of Porto Conte early in the morning, the Admiralty reported, shelling a seaplane slipway and hangars.

No shipping was found at Alghero but an airdrome was shelled and buildings and hangars set afire.

Nazi Submarine Surrenders to Former U. S. Destroyer

London, Aug. 5 —(CP)— The surrender of a German submarine to H.M.S. Broadway, formerly the U.S.S. Hunt, one of the 50 American destroyers transferred to Britain last September, was disclosed today with the announcement of decorations awarded to officers and crew.

An authoritative account of the surrender said the U-boat was detected by the corvette Aubretia, which, with the Broadway and other warships, was escorting a merchant convoy in the Atlantic.

The corvette released depth charges while the Broadway which was nearest opened fire and prepared to ram it.

Two Distinguished Service Orders, three Distinguished Service Crosses and three Distinguished Service Medals were among the awards for the officers and men of the three attacking ships.

3 Gunmen Hold Up Bank Employees, Secure $76,000

Stroudsburg, Pa., Aug. 5 (AP) — Three gunmen held up two employees of the Stroudsburg First National Bank on a local street today and robbed them of a bag that State Police said contained approximately $76,000 in old bills. The trio escaped in a black sedan.

The money was being taken from the bank to the post office, 75 yards away, for return to the Federal Reserve Bank in Philadelphia in exchange for new currency.

As Lewis Heiny and Ralph Rheinfels, the bank messengers, hurried along the street, the gunmen drew up alongside in the sedan, jumped out, menaced the messengers with sub-machine guns, grabbed the bag and sped away.

NAPANEE MAN KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Daniel E. Janes is Killed While Standing on Side of Moving Car

Deseronto, Aug. 5—Daniel E. Janes, 30, of Napanee, R.R. 5, was killed instantly here Saturday night, and two women were injured in an automobile accident.

The injured were Mrs. Everett Scrimshaw, who suffered lacerations of the head and leg, and Mrs. Fred Scrimshaw, her mother-in-law, who suffered lacerations.

Janes allegedly was riding on the left running board of a car driven by Everett Scrimshaw of Napanee, A.A. 5. About one mile east of this village the car was making a left-hand turn from Highway No. 2, when it collided with a truck being driven in the same direction by Eugene Gibson, Ottawa.

Traffic Officer J. A. Morden, of Napanee, who investigated, stated Mr. Janes was given a ride by Mr. Scrimshaw for a short distance.

90 Killed, 106 Hurt In Axis Raid On Suez Area

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 5 (AP) —90 persons were killed and 106 injured in an Axis air raid on the Suez Canal area last night, an official Egyptian communique said today.

(The German high command said German planes raided British bases in the Suez Canal last night.)

HEPBURN INVITED TO BE MEMBER

Toronto, Aug. 5 (CP)—Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario, has received an invitation to attend the Circus, Saints and Sinners Club in New York City September 24, when, if able to attend, he will be created a member of the organization. The last Canadian to be initiated into the group, noted for the ceremony attending initiations conferred on public personages, was Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, physician to the Dionne quintuplets.

R. A. F. Bombs Hit Axis Ships In Raids on Derna, Appollonia, Tripoli

Cairo, Aug. 5—(AP)—Royal Air Force bombers attacked the port of Derna in Axis-held Cirenaica Sunday night, causing considerable damage and starting some fires, a communique announced today.

An Axis ship was hit and another possibly damaged in an attack off the coast near Appolinia. Two others were believed to have been hit in an attack yesterday.

In an attack Sunday on the harbor of Tripoli, the communique continued, a merchant vessel of 8,000 tone was hit and two other direct hits made on military buildings.

India's Troops Joined Expedition At Bombay

Dark Gray Ships End Uneventful Voyage From Northwestern British Port

CONVOY WELCOMED

Singapore, Aug. 5 (CP).—Large numbers of British and Indian troops, as well as Royal Air Force personnel, have reached Singapore, it was announced officially today.

Dark gray ships bearing British army units, Royal Air Force personnel, navy ratings and marines and bearded gunners from the Punjab of docks by bands of Highlanders and Hyderabad regiments.

The announcement said the majority of the reinforcements for Malaya's fast growing air force were "young but experienced, while the new naval men include skilled engineers and technicians."

Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, commander-in-chief of Far Eastern forces, and Lt.-Gen. A. E. Percival, commander of the British army in Malaya, greeted the Maharaja and the men.

The official statement said the convoy had an uneventful voyage from a northwestern port in Britain and that the India troops had joined the expedition at Bombay.

Paralysis Outbreak Near Kenoro, Ont.

Three Boys Are Afflicted and Camp is Placed Under Quarantine

Toronto, Aug. 5 —(CP)— An outbreak of infantile paralysis in a Y.M.C.A. summer camp near Kenora, Ont., has resulted in three boys being afflicted with the disease and the camp placed under quarantine, Dr. B. T. McGhie, Deputy Minister of Health, said today. The three afflicted have been removed to hospital in Winnipeg but the camp remains under quarantine with 119 boys in it until Friday, Dr. McGhie added.

Dr. McGhie stated a report on the situation has been received from D. E. Moore, Ontario Government Sanitary Inspector at Kenora. He said it was deemed advisable to keep all the boys there until the quarantine period expired to determine whether others have the disease.

Nazis, Angered, Post Warnings On Walls of Brest

Inhabitants Threatened for Alleged Hostile Manifestations

London, Aug. 5 (CP)—Angered by alleged hostile manifestations and acts of provocation, German military authorities in France have posted warnings on walls in Brest and surrounding districts threatening inhabitants with "severe" penalties unless the practices cease.

A photograph of one of the posters was published in "France," organ of the Free French forces serving in Britain. It read:

"The German military authorities have noticed that for some time a section of the civil population has shown an impolite and distinctly hostile attitude towards the army of occupation.

"Besides this, during daylight air raid warnings the inhabitants do not obey the passive defence regulations and passers-by indulge in manifestations in the public streets.

Acts of Sabotage Charged

"Finally, acts of sabotage have been committed and insulting descriptions have been set up on walls and placards.

"The sub-prefect of Brest and the administrator of the town of Brest reminded the population that it is their duty to maintain their calmness and dignity in all circumstances and that no one should commit an act liable to bring about penalties which would have to be borne by all the inhabitants, the innocent as well as the guilty.

"The German authorities let it be known for the last time that they will deal most severely with any persons indulging in hostile manifestations or committing acts of provocation."

Crews of Royal Air Force planes raiding Northern France often report seeing the population gathered in the streets waving to the planes as they pass overhead in V formation—the sign of victory.

SAYS BRITAIN APPRECIATES HELP

Hugh Dalton Declares U.S. Has Developed Many Measures For Economic Defence

London, Aug. 5 (CP). — Hugh Dalton, Minister of Economic Warfare, told the House of Commons today that there had been a "remarkable development" of United States measures for economic defence in the last six months, and called its export licensing system a "most effective means of denying supplies to the enemy".

He said the British authorities "greatly appreciate the help they are receiving" from the Uniter States in the field of economic defence.

Particularly, he said, the British authorities warmly welcome establishment of a board in Washington headed by Vice-President Henry Wallace to guide activities of all Federal Defence agencies.

He declared that in the past six months there has been "remarkable development in measures of economic defence taken by the United States government" and added that the U.S. Exports Licensing System is being strictly enforced and is "a most effective means of denying supplies to the enemy".

The United States program of purchasing strategic material in Latin America, he said, "will also deprive the axis powers of valuable supplies," while the financial side of the blockade "has been much strengthened by the freezing of German, Italian and Japanese assets."

ENJOYABLE BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

The family of Mrs. Alex Moore, 160 George Street, met on Sunday, August 3rd, in honor of Mrs. Moore's birthday. Mrs. F. S. Brown and her two daughters, Marion and Barbara, from Lakefield, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. W. Bailey and two-year-old daughter, Elizabeth, Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. McCoy and their two daughters, Betty and Marilyn, and twin brothers, Bob and Carl, all of Madoc, spent the day with their mother and grandmother. All were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Alex Moore for dinner at the Queens Hotel and also at their home. Mrs. Moore also received many messages of congratulation by letter and telephone calls from her friends and relatives living at a distance.

REFRESHMENT BOOTH ENTERED AT BEACHES

Robbers broke and entered the refreshment booth at the Belleville Beaches over the week-end and stole a quantity of gum. The robbers forced open the cash drawer in the booth "juke music box," but no money had been left inside. The booth is operated by Mr. Joshua Canning, who resides on Yeomans Street.

TOMATO PRICES DECLINE

Increased offerings of bright juicy tomatoes featured the early mid-week market this morning forcing prices to 35c per six-quart basket for a new low for the season. Offered for the first time in bushel lots, tomatoes were held at $1.50 per hamper and at 15 per berry box. What is said to be practically the last of the cane berries, raspberries sold at 25c per box for both red and blue varieties, with huckleberries selling at the same figure.

Fresh corn on the cob held at previous levels at 25c to 30c per dozen ears; apples were 40c per peck, and potatoes the same price. Eggs held firm at 35c per dozen for "A" grade. Squash and muskmelons were offered, ranging up to 25c each, while the common vegetables were bunched in the usual 5c bunches.

ARGYLE PIPERS ENTERTAIN TROOPS

Members of a Cape Breton Highland regiment thrilled to the pibrochs of the Argyll Light Infantry Band yesterday when the local musicians journeyed to Point Petre to give the troops a bagpipes concert.

Last night the musicians paraded in the Picton Armouries during the intermission of the ball given by the Prince Edward Yacht Club. Members of the band were transported to Point Petre and back by army truck.

AMMONIA FUMES CAUSE ALARM

When the ammonia pipes of a large refrigerator in the Belleville Club at the corner of Bridge and Pinnacle Streets broke on Saturday evening, sending acrid fumes through the premises, a hurry-up call was despatched for the Belleville Fire Department, the occupants apparently thinking the club rooms were afire. Investigation, however, disclosed the real nature of the trouble, it being necessary to call in a repair man to repair the refrigerator.

WANTED FOR CAR THEFT, ARRESTED AFTER ACCIDENT

Wanted in Toronto on a charge of automobile theft and arrested near Stirling on charges of dangerous driving and also of being intoxicated in charge of an automobile, Charles Plumb, who at one time lived in Trenton, was arrested south of Stirling on Highway No. 33 early Sunday morning and held without bail. Joseph Claremount, also from Trenton, is still in the Belleville General Hospital suffering from a fractured leg, lacerations and internal injuries received when the motor car Plumb was driving crashed through a wire fence into a farmer's ploughed field on Highway No. 33.

According to Provincial Constables Hatch and Patterson, who investigated, Plumb was proceeding north on Highway No. 33 "at a terrific rate of speed." Apparently the car went out of control and crashed through the ditch and fence.

The car was reported stolen in Toronto on June 20th last and a warrant for Plumb's arrest is held in that city, as well as the charges pending in the local district police court.

Albert College Classes to Resume In Fall Term

It has been brought to the attention of Albert College officials that an unfounded rumor is current that the College has been taken over by military authorities. There is no truth whatsoever in this story. Albert College will reopen as usual on September 10th and from the registrations already received there is promise of a capacity school when classes are resumed.

Dr. Bert Howard, Principal of Albert College, in discussing the matter of the rumor is unable to understand how it arose. College authorities are anxious to have it known that the school will be open for the fall term.

Lt. Percy Gray Now With Provost Corps

Bronzed and to use his own expression "well-fit" Lieutenant Percy Gray, former chief of police of Marmora paused in the city over the weekend enroute to his duties in Kingston.

The former popular police officer has now, he said, a job to his liking and requirements. Enlisting some time ago with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, he was sent to the training depot at Camp Borden.

Recently he was transferred to the Canadian Provost Corps, and at present is a member of No. 13 Company of that organization. He is in charge of Military District Number 3 in his particular line of duty and administers to the many training camps and centres in that area.

REV. H. O. EASTMAN BEGINS PASTORATE IN BELLEVILLE

Large Congregations Attend at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church Services Sunday

The Rev. H. O. Eastman began his ministry in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on Sunday with large congregations in attendance at both morning and evening services.

Basing his morning sermon on the subject "The Word of the Lord Endureth Forever", Mr. Eastman asserted that he was commencing his ministry in Belleville with this text as his personal confession of faith.

"Many people are uncertain about what the future holds for them; they are worried and afraid of it. But the future is unknown only to those who do not know the word of God", said Mr. Eastman. "To the Christian, who believes the word of God, the future is sure and certain. We do not go out into the future alone, nor with a God whose ways are unknown".

The minister made reference to Joshua's exhortation to the children of Israel as recorded in the Scripture lesson: "Not one thing hath failed of all the good things which the Lord your God spake concerning you; all are come to pass . . . . ."

God's Praises

The preacher added: "All God's promises have their condition. God never ties Himself to the whims of men. You cannot bargain with God; His promises are absolute. If we obey His laws and bring our will under the dominion of Christ we will succeed. Too often we know His will more than we do it".

Mr. Eastman cautioned his hearers that if they looked to the preacher for a blessing they would be disappointed. "Human energy and human ingenuity are not enough", he reiterated, "but if we seek the guidance of the unalterable word of God and our eyes look to Him for a blessing we will succeed".

Introduced to Congregation

The new minister was introduced by Mr. Fred Fox, chairman of deacons, who in a few appropriate words welcomed Mr. Eastman on behalf of the church. A well-pleasing anthem was rendered by the choir and Mr. John Deacon was heard in a solo.

Mr. Eastman comes to his new charge from Collingwood, where he enjoyed a successful pastorate for fourteen years. Not only was he highly esteemed and greatly beloved in his church but he was held in high regard by the town generally as a citizen who was always active in promoting anything that tended to the betterment of the welfare of his fellowmen.

Farewells at Collingwood

A week ago Sunday people from all denominations crowded his church in Collingwood to attend the farewell services.

Prior to his leaving for Belleville to take up the ministry of the Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, Rev. H. O. Eastman and his family were suitably honored by the congregation of the Collingwood Baptist Church. During the fourteen years in which Rev. Eastman had been stationed in Collingwood, he had always been found in the midst of any movements tending to promote the welfare of the community and while the interest of his church and his congregation were of primary importance he did not confine his activity to them. In his work he was loyally and faithfully supported by Mrs. Eastman, who, in the women's organization of their church, especially, gave much valued leadership.

Appreciation of the faithful service which Mr. Eastman and his wife had rendered during his term as minister in Collingwood was expressed by many lauditory addresses from brother ministers and from officials of the church while he and his family were also materially rewarded in recognition of their services.

On Sunday evening, July 26th., Rev. Eastman preached his farewell sermon in his Collingwood charge and with his wife and son, Nial, arrived in Belleville last week. Congregations of the various denominations in the city, join with Victoria Avenue Baptists in welcoming Mr. Eastman and family to Belleville.

Can't Swim But Jumps in Then Rescued

Jumping into twelve feet of water knowing full well he could not swim, 19-year-old Morris Baker of 40a Great St. James Street had to be rescued from the Belleville harbour last evening by George Semark, Life Guard at Victoria Park. It was with considerable effort Guard Semark made the rescue, eye witnesses reported.

"Didn't your friends tell you the water was 12 feet deep and you can't swim?" rebuked Semark after making the save.

Yes, but I thought they were only fooling," remorsefully replied Baker even in the face of a large sign that bears warning regarding the depth of the water off Victoria Park. "Those signs are no joke," added Guard Semark, who is enjoying his sixth year as Life Guard employed by the Parks Board at Victoria Park during which time he has made 20 rescues, including Baker's.

ESCAPEE SENDS LETTER TO GAOLER

On Remand Here, P. H. Smith Escapes but Writes of Whereabouts From Halifax

Escape from custody at the Belleville General Hospital while on remand from the City Police Court here, Percy H. Smith, of Ottawa, completely disappeared from circulation last week. However, today, Mr. G. H. French, goaler at the Hastings County Goal, from where Smith was removed to the hospital owing to illness, received a letter of apology from Smith posted at Halifax. Smith had been arrested for obtaining money from a local bank by false pretenses.

In his letter to Goaler French, Smith stated he frequently suffered from amnesia and did not recall how he had left Belleville nor how he had arrived in Halifax. "However, I'm with the Mercantile Merchant Marine and I sail for Norway on Tuesday (today). I will return the money taken in Belleville." was a portion of Smith's letter.

Today Acting Chief Constable Arthur Harman sent a telegram to the Halifax authorities checking Smith's story and whereabout. "He claimed he was suffering from amnesia when he first appeared in court here, but his confidence game was so thoroughly executed we could not put much credence in his statements," revealed Acting Chief Harman. Smith had been ordered from the county goal to the hospital owing to his health, but escaped from the latter institution during a noon hour rush a week ago.

Wilfred Izzard Commissioned As Pilot Officer

Young Airman, Not Yet 21, Spent His Early Days in Belleville

Wilfred Izzard, well-known in this district, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Izzard, Robert St., Mimico, recently received a commission in the R.C.A.F. as pilot officer. He is stationed at Rivers, Manitoba.

Pilot Officer Izzard obtained his wings at Macleod, Alberta, a few weeks ago and his high standing as a pilot while in training has resulted in his new appointment.

Following his high school career, during which he won scholarships, he was employed in the office of Canadian Industries Limited, New Toronto, until his enlistment in the R.C.A.F. His father is a veteran of the World War, 1914-18, and was severely wounded at Passchendaele in 1917 while serving with the Canadian Field Artillery.

Pilot Officer Izzard's many friends of Mimico High School and C.I.L. wish him the best of luck and congratulations on his new appointment as pilot officer.

Pilot Officer Izzard is a grandson of Mrs. J. Izzard, living on Bridge St. West. His early days were spent in Belleville and he is not 21 years old yet.

WILLIAM O. MONTGOMERY

Wooler, Aug. 5 (Special) — William Orland Montgomery, a former resident of Wooler and late residence Port Hope, died in St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, on July 29th, after an illness of two weeks' duration.

The late Mr. Montgomery was born 59 years ago in Cramhea Township, Northumberland County, being a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Montgomery. He was a successful farmer and the greater part of his life was passed in the Wooler district. For the past three years he resided in Port Hope. In religion he was a member of the United Church and was highly esteemed.

Surviving him are his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Ada Langdon; one son, Francis, age 9 years; one brother, Mr. Farley Montgomery, Wooler.

Fraternally he was a member of the Masonic Order a Frankford.

The funeral took place on Friday afternoon, Aug. 1st, from his residence in Port Hope to the United Church in Wooller where an impressive service was conducted by the Rev. A. Poulter and the Rev. William Delve.

The church was well filled with relatives and friends. The floral tributes were a wealth of beauty. Some cousins, who could not come, living in Detroit, Mich., sent a beautiful "sheaf," white and pink intermingled with fern. People came from Colbourne, Brighton, Trenton, Frankford and Port Hope to pay their last respects. Mr. Clifford Rogers sang a solo, "There'll Be No Shadows There."

The deceased when living in Wooler, attended the church, was a member of the choir and filled other church duties faithfully.

Interment was in McPhail's Cemetery. The bearers were Messrs. Hugh Gainsforth, C. R. Terrill, Alden Arthur, Clarence Cole and two friends from Port Hope. The flower bearers wee Messrs. Robert Spencer, Douglas Fox and D. R. Hennessey.

JAMES H. McCREARY
(Thurlow Township)

After an illness of two weeks' duration, James Haight McCreary, residence 7th concession of Thurlow Township, died in the Kingston General Hospital early Sunday evening, August 3rd.

The late Mr. McCreary was born 74 years ago in Tyendinaga Township, being a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William McCreary. For the past fifty years he lived in Thurlow Township and was engaged in farming. He was also interested in the cheese industry and was a director of the East Hastings Cheese Company for many years. In religion he was a member of the United Church and was highly esteemed in the community.

Surviving him are his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Margaret McConnell; one son, Mr. Harry McCreary, Plainfield; one brother, Mr. William McCreary, Tyendinaga; three sisters, Mrs. Etta Hall, Plainfield; Mrs. William Park, New Westminster, B.C. and Mrs. Maud Young, Belleville; one grandson, James Garth McCreary, Plainfield.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

LATE PRIVATE GEORGE NEAL
Mountain View
(Contributed)

August 1st. Mountain View community had the war brought home more closely to them, in the funeral, with full military honors, of the late Private George Neal, Veterans' Guard of Canada, a much respected member of this community, where he resided.

The late George Neal was born in Islington, London, England, the only child of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Neal. In his early boyhood he emigrated to Australia, where he worked on a station in Toowoomba until 1914. On the day Australia declared war on Germany Mr. Neal enlisted, becoming the 102nd. soldier of the A.A.S.C. He served with the Anzacs, taking part in the landing of the Dardanelles, also serving in Egypt and on the Western front. He came through unscathed. Returning to Australia at duration of conflict, he remained with the forces until 1921 when he was honorably discharged. He accepted a position for the Australian government in German New Guinea on a plantation as medical assistant until 1928 when he went on furlough to England. Returning to Australia in August 1929 via. Canada, he decided to remain where he married Miss Phyllis Blow of Lincoln, England, in Kingston, Ont. They resided in Oshawa, where Mr. Neal became a much valued member of the Canadian Legion, Branch No. 43; he was also a member of the R.A.O.B., Lodge more, Toronto, cousins and Mr. and Overseas League.

Coming to Mountain View, July 1932, Mr. Neal became a member of the V.G.O.C. in July 1940, serving with that branch until his demise, July 29th., 1941.

Surviving to mourn the loss of a devoted husband and loving father, are his wife and two daughters, Maureen, 10, and Pearl, eight years respectively; Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Mitchell, Oshawa, aunt and uncle; Mrs. A. Passmore, Toronto, aunt; Mrs. E. Davies, Toronto, cousin; Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Passmore, Toronto, causins and Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Weaver, Westbrooke, sister and brother-in-law.

The firing party was composed of members of the Belleville Tank Corps; Sergeant E. Preston of the V.G.O.C., Farnham, Quebec, representing the late Mr. Neal's company. The service was conducted both at the home and at the graveside by Captain E. N. Grant of Wellington, who spoke feelingly of the splendid character of the deceased. The bearers were his friends and neighbors: Messrs. A. Post, J. D. Keeble, N. Price, C. Sprung, S. Barber, A. Westerby.

He served his King and his Country in their hour of need — a soldier to the end—he lived and died an Englishman—one could not say more.

LATE MRS. MARY E. RICHARDS

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Eliza Richards, widow of Augustus Richards, took place from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. I. C. Reid, 141 Ann Street, early Saturday afternoon, August 2. A short service was conducted in the home by the Rev. Rural Dean A. Beauchamp Payne, rector of the Church of St. Thomas' after which the funeral party proceeded to Stella, Amherst Island, where the Burial Office of the Church of England was conducted in St. Alban's Church by the Rev. L. G. O. Walker, rector of Bath, Ontario.

Interment was in Glenwood Cemetery, Stella. The bearers were Messrs. Allan Hitchons, Royal Wemp, Robert Glenn, John Tugwell, Percy Howard and George Begg, all of Amherst Island.

The service in the church was largely attended by many old friends.

LATE MRS. ESTHER ANN VINCENT

Marmora (Special)—An old lifelong resident of Marmora Township passed away in Belleville on Monday in the person of Esther Ann McMullen, widow of the late Peter Vincent. Deceased was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel McMullen and was born in Marmora Township, eighty-two years ago; she was of a genial disposition and of neighbourly ways. She is survived by two sons, John, Marmora township, and Fred, of Havelock, and one daughter, Mrs. Bert Lummiss, Peterboro.

The funeral service was held in Beaver Creek Free Methodist Church, North Marmora, on Wednesday afternoon, with Rev. L. Skelding — of Cordova, officiating. Interment took place in the adjoining cemetery. The pall bearers were Irwin McCoy, Arnold Lough, Clare Campion, Everett Burrows, William J. Pack and John Goodrich.

LATE FRANK ROGERS
Marmora

Marmora (Special)—Frank Rogers, a respected resident of Marmora Township, passed away in the Belleville General Hospital on Friday afternoon, at the age 69 years. He was a native of Frankford, but lived for many years in Marmora Township, where he carried on market gardening. He was of a quiet and friendly nature and was a great conversationalist, with those with whom he came in contact.

He was a member of Anglican Church, and also a member of Marmora A.F. and A.M., No. 222. Predeceased by his wife some years ago, he is survived by three sons, William, Herbert and Ross, Marmora township, and four daughters, Mrs. Jesse Free, Wooler; Mrs. Clayton Burkitt, Reg. N., Rawdon Township; Dorothy and Enid, of Frankford.

The funeral, under Masonic auspices, left the residence of the late Mr. Rogers' sister, Mrs. Ronald Bruyea, eighth Concession of Murray Township at 1 p.m. on Sunday, for service in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Marmora, which was conducted by Rev. A. E. Pepper, rector of Tweed. After the reading of 1 Corinthians 15, the choir at the request of the family sang "Peace, Perfect Peace." The message of the officiating clergyman was based on the thought of Jesus in the midst.

Interment took place in Marmora Protestant Cemetery. Last rites of the Masonic Order were taken by Right Wor. Bro. C. H. Buskard, assisted by Wor. Bro. Donald Marett, Worshipful Master of Marmora Lodge, and Wor. Bros. J. F. Baker and L. R. Rundle.

The pallbearers were H. W. Sabine, T. R. Warren, L. R. Rundle, E Hewitt, S. C. Boyd and D. Robertson.

CITY CONSTABLE HELPS TOURISTS IN DISTRESS

P.C. Evans Gives American Anglers Gasoline From His Own Private Auto

The consideration for others in distress was again the keystone of service by the Belleville police when P.C. William Evans drained the gasoline from his personal automobile to accommodate four American tourists, who were in dire need of the coveted petrol on Sunday, on the second week end during which the gasoline restrictions laws have been in force in Canada.

Four American tourists drove into the Belleville police station shortly before midnight on Sunday. "I have to be in Buffalo in the morning. Is there any way we can procure about five gallons of gasoline, as we have about that much now," pleaded the driver to Sergeant Arthur Booth after relating of a successful fishing jaunt into the waters of North Hastings. "I'm sorry, but I am afraid you're just out of luck. However, if you can procure some gas from a private car owner, there would be no objections," explained Sergeant Booth.

Siphon Gas

Constable Evans came forward at this point and offered to assist the Americans and later permitted them to siphon five gallons of gasoline from the tank of his private car.

"We can't speak too highly of the treatment afforded us by Canadians. When out north fishing we had no boat and a man gave us his own boat when he had planned a fishing trip. Now you men help us when it means so much to our getting back to Buffalo in a hurry. All I can say is—it's swell and no wonder we Americans have to take our hats off to Canadian hospitality sincerely remarked the driver as he thanked Constable Evans for his kind consideration.

POLICE COURT

Belleville's post-Civic Holiday police court was sparsely attended today when Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., presided. An elderly woman appeared charged with assaulting another woman following domestic arguments in the same dwelling house.

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., brought out the fact that no particular injuries were sustained. "The charge adds that the accused woman threw a pail of water over her neighbor. She says it was only a dipper partly filled with water," related Mr. Donnan. Costs of $3.00 were assessed the defendant.

Sergeant Arthur Harman was in court as Clerk today and will assume the duties of Acting Chief Constable for the next fortnight, while Chief Alex Kidd is enjoying a two weeks vacation at his summer lodge on the Crowe River.

PAID OVER MAXIMUM WAGE

Melbourne, Aug. 5 —(AP)—In the first case of its kind prosecuted in Australia a manufacturer today was fined for paying an aircraft fitter 148 shillings (about $26.44) weekly, contrary to the National Security regulations which set the maximum figure at 122 shillings (about $21.90.)

ALL TIED UP IN BUNDLES FOR BRITAIN

Boston Woman Started Something That Has Carried $2,000,000 Worth of Comforts Overseas

By ADELAIDE KERR

Associated Press Staff Writer

New York (AP) — Eighteen months ago Natalie Latham founded Bundles for Britain in a vacant shop. She started with $20 worth of yarn and a great fund of energy. Today she is boss of the New York headquarters and 1,142 branches scattered among all the states in the union and Hawaii, Alaska, Australia and the Virgin Islands.

And she views the whole set-up with the sparkling enthusiasm of a radiant little girl, who after making a shining frosted cake eats it and relishes every bite.

"I'm doing what I'd rather do than anything else in the world," she said as the telephone calls buzzed over her desk one hot afternoon. "I couldn't imagine doing anything else. The greatest thing is to have an idea and see it blossom under you."

Boston Born

Shortly after the war broke out Natalie Latham—born of a prominent Boston family, twice divorced and mother of two small girls—began to worry about "doing something to help the British soldiers and sailors." (She is of British extraction and has happy memories of her English visits.)

She called on the British consul, learned that assistance would be welcome and went to work. She raced over to a wool manufacturer in Brooklyn, persuaded him to let her have $20 worth of yarn, to be paid for after would-be-knitters had bought it, and lugged it back to New York in a suitcase. Then, after she had talked the Park Avenue owner into giving her the use of an empty shop, she sat down with her knitting and "opened the door to see what would happen."

Things happened so fast that Mrs. Latham is breathless yet.

"I pinch myself sometimes," she told me. "I can't believe it."

Bundles for Britain rapidly expanded its activities and its network of branches grew with amazing speed. Today its officials estimate that it has sent Great Britain $2,000,000 worth of sox, helmets, surgical kits, ambulances, oxygen tents, hospital beds, clothing and shoes.

Personal Direction

In the middle of the New York headquarters, with a finger in every pie, sits Mrs. Latham. But she doesn't sit long. She cuts short her high-voiced telephone directions to fly down the hall to another office. Dashes about with a long yellow pad on which she is constantly writing notes. Rushes off here and there to make speeches. Takes off for Washington or Philadelphia on ten minutes' notice with a nightdress packed in a knitting bag.

She drives herself like a dynamo all day and then goes home to her simple East Side apartment to have dinner in bed, while the children hang on the bedposts and tell her the day's news. Long after they are asleep she is poring over those everlasting notes, scribbling things to be done tomorrow, thinking up new ideas. And she draws no pay.

It's a far cry from the day when she made her debut at Sherry's danced with a lot of admiring beaux and flirted with Prince Nicholas, son of Queen Marie of Rumania.

The pace quenches even her great fund of energy sometimes. Twice her office staff has had to send her to a hospital to rest. But she is back in a few days.

Soon she will add a new activity —Bundles for Blue Jackets — in aid of sailors on American and British warships. She already has looked forward to the day when war ends. Then she hopes to see Bundles for Britain working for the reconstruction of places ravaged by war.

Mrs. Latham is a pretty, vivid woman of 30, with deep brown eyes and a gorgeous smile. She wears her long hair in a soft roll at the back of her neck and loves pretty, colorful clothes.

All this work leaves her little or no time for play. But she has one favorite recreation. She loves to go shopping in the basement of New York's largest department store.

Repeats Dancing Of 30 Years Ago

Ruth St. Denis, 62, Gives Show Recalling Her Thrillers Early in Century

Boston (CP)—Ruth St. Denis is dancing again at 62. Supple, slender and white-haired, she is doing the same sinuous Oriental dances which thrilled audiences in America and Europe 30 years ago. Main points on her summer schedule are the Dance Festival at Lee, Mass., and a series of appearances at Lake Champlain.

Highlight on the programs which made her famous in the pre-jazz era was her dance Radha, for which she wore a costume of sparkling jewels.

Most Eye and Ear Disorders Can Be Cured With Adeqate Care

Defective eyes and ears of the prospective Army recruit are responsible for a good many rejections. Actually about ten per cent of those rejected are turned back because of the eyes, and about five per cent because of trouble with the ears. There are people driving motor cars with a fair degree of success who could not pass the ordinary tests for eyesight.

The eyes of the prospective soldier must be good and he must be able to see well at least with the help of glasses. The ordinary test card is placed about twenty feet from the person to be tested. A normal person can see at 20 feet the size of type that is marked "20". However, he is still considered normal if he can see at 20 feet what a normal person can see at 100 feet without glasses or if, by the use of glasses, he can see what a normal person sees at forty feet.

A simple test of your vision is to find out if you can read, in a good light, block letters that are one and three-quarter inches high at a distance of 20 feet without glasses, or at least letters three-quarters of an inch high at a distance of 20 feet with glasses. Many people are handicapped throughout life by failure to pay attention to repeated inflammations of the eyes, dropping of the lids or squints or cross eyes. All of these conditions can be benefited and, in most instances, cured by modern scientific attention.

If your eyes get tired too easily, if they water too much if they burn or if you suffer from headaches after reading or going to the movies, you ought to have some of these simple tests made in order to see how you can be helped.

Recently there has been a good deal of excitement in the newspapers because John Rigney, pitcher for the White Sox, was rejected by the draft board due to the fact that one of his eardrums was perforated. There are a lot of people doing a good day's work who get by successfully with an eardrum that is perforated. But, of course, in the Army the strains are heavy and the Army does not take a chance with anyone who has defective hearing, chronic discharge from the ear or an eardrum that is broken.

The hearing must be capable of detecting a low conversational voice at a distance of 20 feet in a quiet room. When it is realized that a slight defect in hearing may be a factor in the surprise of an entire company of soldiers in time of war, everyone wil understand how important accurate hearing is to the safety of troops.

The requireemnts for the nose and throat are also not excessive. The Army merely requires that the breathing space is adequate, the voice is normal and the nasal passages clear. If your tonsils are exceedingly large and if they are frequently infected, if you have difficulty breathing through the nose and sleep with your mouth open, so that the mouth and throat are dry when you awaken, if you have large glands in the neck or if you suffer from frequent hoarseness, you need special study paid to these defects.

Russians Mass Troops Along Mannerheim Line

London, Aug. 5 (CP Cable) — The Daily Telegraph in a dispatch from Stockholm today says the Russians have massed troops behind the fortifications of the old Mannerheim line on the Karelian Isthmus either in preparation for an offensive or as a bluff to create a diversion to force the Finns to draw off troops from other sectors.

It said aerial reconnaissance revealed a steady stream of supply and ammunition trains rolling toward Finland along the main lines from Leningrad.

Though the exact proportion or distribution of the Russian forces on the entire Finnish front is not known, the dispatches said it is considered the Soviet has nearly 500,000 men on the Isthmus front confronting some 200,000 Finns.

The advantage in manpower makes the value of a Russian offensive along the front, stretching between Kexholm on the shores of Lake Ladoga to Viipuri "extremely problematical," the Daily Telegraph Dispatch said.

The paper added that the battle for Leningrad probably will decide the issue. If the Russians are able to hold off the Germans there it is probable the Russians will attack. Otherwise the troops will be needed to reinforce the Leningrad garrison.

Duke Likes to Do His Own Driving

Calgary, Aug. 5 — (CP) — The Duke of Kent likes to do his automobile driving. When the official cars left the No. 2 Wireless School for Banff yesterday Corporal W. F. Moore, Calgary, was driving with the Duke in the back seat.

Noah Beery, Jr., Anita Louise and Russell Hayden, teamed in the gay comedy romance, "Two In A Taxi," now showing at the McCarthy Theatre in addition to Herbert Marshall and Virginia Bruce in the splendid romantic drama "Adventure in Washington."

WOMEN'S CORPS AN ALL-EMPIRE ACTIVE FORCE

Units in South African Union Very Keen and Canada's Auxiliaries Complete Strong Chain

By GLADYS ARNOLD

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa (CP)—For the first time in the history of the British Empire what may be termed a "woman's army" has been created. Thousands of women in each of the widely separated Dominions are in uniform and united in one purpose with the women of Great Britain. The creation of the Canadian Women's Auxiliary Air Force and the sister Army Corps is the last link in a world-wide chain.

Word from South Africa is that already nearly 10,000 women are enrolled actively in the naval, army and air services of the Union. They have been on the job for more than 18 months and were congratulated by Field Marshal Jan Smuts, the prime minister, at a recent review in Capetown.

"The services of South African women have released thousands of men for the fighting line," he said. "And as more women are needed more than 55,000 women enrolled and in training in the Voluntary Services stand ready to be called. The 'wild' growth of the women's army has filled the authorities with wonder."

South Africa's W.A.A.F. is serving in many trades from the welding shops of Pretoria to manning the airfields and signal - posts throughout the whole Union.

Serve in Egypt

So good has the work of this group of women been that at the same time it was anounced that the South African government had decided to send some of them to the Egyptian battle-front as a "reward."

Among the shop jobs these W. A.A.F. members do are the making of airplane parts, parachute crutches, clip and magneto brackets. The girls wear khaki uniforms covered by a dungaree and a thick leather apron like that of a village blacksmith, enormous dark goggles and berets of Lincoln green. Instead of long work periods with a comparatively lengthy rest period once a day—experience has shown in South African factories that short intensive work periods interspersed by 10-minute rest periods in which the girls may have tea, relax with five minutes of setting up exercises, or listen to news and music, give the best results.

"They are keeness itself," the instructor of one factory was quoted as saying. "And a great surprise to me has been that they are cleaner, neater and quicker than men, even at such jobs as manipulating blowpipes in welding."

Women Tackle Heavier Jobs

Barmaids and Hairdressers Found Good Material for Engineers

London (CP) — Barmaids, hairdressers and charwomen are among the most promising recruits at Government Training Centres for women engineers.

Instructors reported that barmaids, accustomed to pulling the beer pumps in Britain's pubs, soon will become expert at setting capstan lathes.

Hairdressers, whose hands and fingers have become sensitive from wave-setting are doing particularly well on precision and fine instrument work.

Charwomen, with their well-developed muscles, are tackling heavier jobs well. They concentrate on such work as painting and cleansing heavy castings they remove from the moulds.

Much Pictured Munition Girl

London (CP)—Brenda Cuthbertson, 19-year-old tobacco shop clerk who went into war work a few months ago, is called the "most-photographed girl in Britain."

The pretty face and blond tresses of the Lancashire girl appear in news photographs that have been widely distributed in Britain and sent all over the world. She is one of hundreds of British girls working day and night in factories that are turning out tanks.

Brenda has been photographed more often than other girls not only because she is pretty but also because the electric grinder which she operates makes a spectacular picture with its shower of sparks lighting her work-bench.

$100,000 AWAITS RELATIVES

London, Aug. 5 (CP)—A fortune of almost $100,000 awaits relatives—if any can be found—of a 79-year-old veterinary surgeon, Alexander William Lawson who died in March at Ochilview, Dunning, Perthshire.

Prospectors Rush To Eliza Lake On Gold Find

Lillooet, B. C., Aug. 5 —(CP)— Several score prospectors today were headed for the desolate Eliza Lake district, some 40 miles north of here, after reports that high grade gold-bearing ore had been found in the district.

A number of prospectors also were headed for the reported strike, accessible only by pack train and trail.

Murray said two young prospectors first discovered gold in the Yalakon area some months ago. The two, Bill White and A. Eldridge, brought in ore samples this spring. He said the scene of the reported strike is in a wild region referred to by old time prospectors as the "Devil's Oven," because of the blazing summer heat.

Ice Anaesthetic Arctic Practice

Veteran Officer Recalls Its Use at Least 30 Years Ago

Drumheller, Alta. (CP)—Reports from the United States that use of ice as an anaesthetic is a "new discovery," seemed puzzling to James Somers, Drumheller veteran of the Royal North-West Mounted Police, who claimed that the ice anaesthetic was used in the Arctic in 1911.

Somers said he assisted Dr. C. W. Wilson of Edmonton complete a successful operation at Fort McPherson, N.W.T., 30 years ago when ice was used to freeze the flesh of an Indian woman who had been severely burned.

The doctor, Somers said, used a razor as a grafting scalpel. He held ice on the woman's thighs, where the skin had not been charred, until the flesh froze and then Dr .Wilson removed more than 30 strips of healthy skin to cover burned parts of the Indian's body, Somers said.

The strips were about six inches long and three-quarters of an inch wide, Somers recalled. The operation took three weeks to complete, he said.

Six months later the Indian woman had fully recovered from the burns received when her rabbit skin jacket caught fire.

HAY FEVER

It is known that injections of pollen extract should be given and series completed before the arrival of the hay fever season. That giving the injections while the patient is suffering with hay fever is useless is the opinion of most physicians but some patients apparently get some relief of their symptoms by these injections.

More and more we are reading of the success some physicians are having by giving the pollen extract by mouth instead of injecting it uner the skin.

What about this method of giving the pollen extract by mouth? Some months ago Dr. B. B. Alperstein in the Journal of Allergy, which is the special journal for physicians devoting their time to allergy stated that giving the extract by mouth gave relief in some cases of ragweed sensitive patients who had been treated in previous seasons by the injections.

Those who had been treated by the injections in previous seasons received much more benefit from taking the pollen by mouth, than did those who had not received any previous treatment. Disturbances of digestion, breathing, and the general system occurred by the mouth (oral) method and there is apparently no way it can be told beforehand that these disturbances will occur. "It is inadvisable to allow patients to treat themselves by this oral method because of these reactions".

"The injections of the pollen extract gave a greater percentage of satisfactory relief as well as a smaller percentage of complete failures than did the mouth method"

What about treatment of the hay fever symptoms once they are present?

The use of preparations containing ephedrine and epinephrine for dropping in eye or spraying up nose undoubtedly give relief of symptoms for hours at a time. That applying ragweed pollen to the skin by electricity, is reported to give favorable results by Dr. H. A. Abramson, New York City, in the New York State Medical Journal. This electrophoretic method, as it is called, administers small quantities of ragweed directly into the skin.

Living for several hours a day in a room which filters all the air coming into it gives great relief from hay fever symptoms.

A control button enables a new lawn sprinkler to throw its spray over an area from five to fifty feet in diameter.

HOLIDAY WEEKEND FATALITY TOTAL HIGHEST OF YEAR

Drowning Counts for Eleven Out of Twenty-Two Fatalities

TRAFFIC CLAIMS 8

(By The Canadian Press)

Ontario's Civic Holiday week-end fatality list was counted at 22 today, heaviest toll of the year to date.

Eleven persons lost their lives by drowning and traffic accidents accounted for eight. Other deaths were those of an unidentified day-old baby whose body was found abandoned in a Toronto ravine Saturday; Calke Louke, retired Canadian Pacific Railway engineer, was killed when caught between two freight cars at Smiths Falls, and Wilfred Grinoage, 34-year-old negro, was found beaten to death on a Windsor street Sunday.

In addition, the body of Patrick O'Reilly of Simcoe, who drowned July 14, was found in Lake Erie on Saturday.

Motor traffic in some parts of the province was said by police to be the heaviest of the year as citizens took advantage of the three day holiday week-end to visit summer homes. Police said the highway death list was kept down as motorists drove slower in response to government pleas for gasoline conservation.

Three Drownings at Kingston

Three drownings were reported at Kingston on Monday. David Smith, 46, of New York, drowned in the St. Lawrence River; the body of Pte. C. H. Font, of Windsor, was recovered in Navy Bay. Member of the Royal Canadian Army Transport Corps, he disappeared about eight days ago. The body of Earl Cameron, 19, of Lions Head, Ont., was found floating in Picton Bay. He was a crew member of the coal carrier Aragon, and apparently fell into the water on Saturday while returning to the boat.

Three persons were drowned in Lake Ontario at Toronto. Daisy Cooper, 26, on suburban York Township, drowned when she fell from a diving tower on Saturday; Charlie McConachie, 45, drowned Sunday and the body of an unidentified man was brought to the surface by a scow conducting dredging operations.

Omer Gauvin, 51, of Montreal, drowned while fishing in the Ottawa River at Hawkesbury, on Sunday. Owen Lougheed, 35, of Thornbury, Ont., drowned Saturday while fishing in Georgian Bay at Midland and the body of John B. McDougall, 52, of Fort William, was recovered from the Kaministiquia River on Saturday at Fort William.

Motor Fatalities

Motor fatalities cost six lives Saturday. Mrs. Marcelle McIntyre of Larder Lake, Ont., was killed when the truck in which she was riding left the road and turned over at Kirkland Lake; Archie McAlpine, 20, of Oakdale, Ont., suffered fatal injuries when the car in which he was riding plunged into a deep ditch at Petrolia; Joseph Hall, 46, Toronto, was killed when struck by a car on the highway north of Toronto; Daniel E. Janes, 30, Napanee, lost his life in an automobile-truck crash at Deseronto; Douglas MacDonald, 18, Kenyon Township, died of injuries suffered last week in a car crash at Cornwall and Robert Leeson, 11, of Detroit, was killed at St. Thomas when the car in which he was riding crashed into a Toronto-bound bus.

Sgt. John Gorman of No. 10 Basic Training Centre, Kitchener, was killed when the army truck in which he was riding toppled into the ditch near Owen Sound on Sunday and Donald Denault, 7, suffered fatal injuries yesterday when an automobile, which police said was driven by Door Fuller, crashed into a cement culvert at Renfrew.

WANT OLD SILK STOCKINGS DONATED

New York, Aug. 2 (AP) — The Knit Goods Weekly suggested women contribute discarded silk stockings full of runs, snags and holes to the United States government now that the raw silk supply is shut off from Japan. They could be reclaimed, the paper says, by backwinding or raveling and reknit into powder bags which must be made of silk because it is the only material which burns completely with the explosion of the powder charge in a gun.

RED BOMBS ON RUMANIAN OIL FIELDS

Submitted as proof of the claim that the Red Army Air Force is still a threat, this photo, radioed from Moscow, shows Russian bombs bursting among the oil storage tanks at the famous Ploesti oil fields in Rumania. German occupation of Rumania in the first place was prompted by Germany's need for the vital oil supply from these fields.

PRESS IN PARIS EXPECTS SHAKE-UP

Says Vichy Will Wipe Out Effects of Laval's Removal From the Vichy Regime

Vichy, France, Aug. 2 (AP)— The press of German-occupied Paris today predicted the Vichy government will "finally and strikingly" wipe out the effects of Pierre Laval's removal from the regime by new government changes expected soon.

Paris-Soir said the decisions might be made at a ministerial council late today.

The press prediction came after Fernand De Brinon, Vichy's envoy to the Germans in Paris, arrived here.

Paris newspapers have been campaigning vigorously for a governmental shakeup to increase Vichy's collaboration with Germany.

One newspaper, Les Nouveaux Temps, said today it was an open secret that the present Vichy regime does not plan ever to hold the Riom "war guilt trials" of France's pre-surrender leaders, and added: "Perhaps that is just as well, for that will soon permit us to undertake our justice ourselves."

GO 50/50 WITH OUR FIGHTING FORCES

WE HAVE NO PARKING WORRIES NOW, WE . . .

Save Gasoline

Less driving means less parking and it saves gasoline. So walk to work or take a public conveyance, or double up with your neighbours, turnabout. Our Navy, Army and the Commonwealth Air Training Plan must have first call on gasoline. Do YOUR part. Make your 50/50 Pledge mean something. Save gasoline at every opportunity.

REMEMBER: The slower you drive, the more you save!

Shortcuts to a 50% GASOLINE SAVING

(Approved by Automobile Experts)

Reduce driving speed from 60 to 40 on the open road.
Avoid jack-rabbit starts.
Turn motor off when not in use, do not leave idling.
Don't strain your engine; change gears.
Tune up motor, timing, etc.
Check cooling system; overheating wastes gasoline.
Lubricate efficiently; worn engines waste gasoline.
For golf, picnics and other outings, use one car instead of four.
Walk to and from the movies.
Boat owners, too, can help by reducing speed.

Your regular service station man will gladly explain these and other ways of saving gasoline. Consult him.

CONCEPTIONS BECOME REALITIES

The very thing that the aggressor has to fear in a world of democracy is coming to pass—the piling up of strength by the democratic forces of the world led by Britain and those heroic Allies who have made a name in history. In Britain has been the demonstration of courage by soldier and civilian, there has been reliant courage of the worker who has continued to produce in spite of bomb raids, in the Empire is seen the growth of sources of vast strength. In Canada in her military forces, in industry and in the great Commonwealth Air Plan for the Empire have been produced forms of strength which will tell definitely at the last against the enemy.

With the visit of inspection of the air establishments in Canada by His Royal Highness, the Duke of Kent, the attention of the Empire as well as of Canadians has been focussed upon the growth of the Commonwealth Plan, one of the great conceptions of the war. Today that is more than a conception, it is a vast body of airmen in action and it is still the service of a continued succession of air developments.

This plan is a great reality, one of the greater realities of the war, one of the mighty factors which are working against Adolf Hitler and which Hitler dreads.

On Saturday H. R. H. the Duke of Kent, younger brother of the King, visited the great air base at Trenton and there saw great development and the symbol of a greater development to be.

Thus is the democratic spirit working to its stride in the field of military aviation.

This Commonwealth Air Training Plan is one reason why the Empire should be proud and confident. Something great has been created within the Empire, showing the strength of Empire and democracy. It is a reason why the Empire should and will be stimulated to the greatest effort for it shows what can be done with resolution and skill.

POLAND IN IT

Poland which was the first butt of the attack of the enemy of Europe, Adolf Hitler, which was picked upon by him for the purpose of starting the war of aggression which he saw then had to be carried out by arms, battled the blitz on which the Nazi relied to overrun Europe in a series of swift blows. Poland's courage stood though she was battered by the Huns. After she was overrun her people continued at home and in exile to exert an influence through the formation of an army and a flying corps organized in Britain and in the underground agitation against the invaders. She has been rendering unique service in this respect. Now two hundred thousand of her men taken prisoners in the partition under the Russo-German pact of 1939 are to be freed and to form the basis of a Polish army to fight the Germans. Poland is to have back that territory which went to Russia after Poland was attacked by the Nazis.

Poland has had a history that will live and now sees sight of the restoration of all that land which will come to her when the Hun has been crushed.

The Poland which has withstood the weight of sorrow is the Poland which will throw off the Hun yoke and see the return of the liberty of which she was deprived when Hitler picked this nation to bear the first shock of his type of warfare. But this same Poland has all along been struggling against the comman enemy of the world, though she has been overrun and has made the pillow of the brutal Hun aggressor a sleepless one for her heroic sons have kept up the war even though their land lay under the heel of the Hun.

Poland stands on the side of victory and among the nations which will glow with pride when Hitler and Goering and his ilk are sunk low will be that of the Poles, whose history has been one of the greatest importance in Europe.

Poland through her sorrows and her coming joys points the moral how noble it is to be called upon to suffer for liberty and justice. Her heart is pure and the glory that is and will be hers has been rightly deserved.

The world's blessings will follow the courageous Poles who will form the new army to battle the Hun.

OURSELVES AND OTHERS...

BY

H. R. H. THE DUKE OF KENT

Sleek squadrons of Canada's sky armada, in a breath-taking crescendo of roaring motors, took off into the blue at the Trenton Air Station on Saturday in a display that was undeniable evidence of the stepped-up tempo of the Dominion's aerial war efforts.

On the tarmac below, hand touching his gold-visored cap, stood His Royal Highness the Duke of Kent. Tall, slim, bronzed, the King's youngest brother stood at some length watching the British Commonwealth pilots go through manoeuvres that bespoke intense training and equal enthusiasm.

Tiny Tiger Moths, gleaming yellow Harvards, Avro Ansons, Fleets and other ships took off in formation and singly. Within a few seconds from the time the Verey light signals exploded high in the air, goggled pilots leaped into their machines and were tracing a lacy pattern against the blue of the sky. One hundred and ten ships, like specks of yellow powder against a blue velvet dress, flashed overhead. A red cloud of dust rose like a giant mushroom over the hangars as the roaring propellers ripped the air.

On the ground stood the scarlet and silver Lockheed 12 bomber that brought the Royal visitor from Ottawa on the first step of his inspection tour of the air stations of the Commonwealth Training Plan. Over its cowling floated the Royal Standard. Shadows played over its gleaming fuselage as manoeuvring planes darted overhead.

Along No. 2 highway, which divides the station, miles of traffic and crowds of spectators, forced through regulations to remain outside, thrilled to the spectacular sight.

Scarcely had the silver bomber coasted to a stop than the door opened and the smiling brother of His Majesty the King stepped out. He was greeted by station officers and stood at the salute while trumpets blew a royal fanfare.

Later he inspected the guard of honor of 100 picked airmen. Like His Majesty the King, the Duke evinced an intense interest in the men of the ranks. He paused at about every sixth or seventh man and chatted with them, asking them questions about themselves and the service.

At the close of the inspection, a tiny yellow speck in the sky suddenly dived and landed a few feet away from the royal bomber. As the yellow Harvard taxied to a stop the Duke strode to the plane and looked up at the pilot. Goggles were pushed up and a smiling tanned face, helmet-framed, peered over the cockpit. The Duke spoke with the pilot for a few moments before joining his staff. The newcomer was LAC. D. A. Utz, an Australian, who was on an official cross-country flight from Uplands, near Ottawa. In his broad Australian dialect he told the Duke that a few months ago he was a farmer in Sidney, New South Wales. "Wouldn't change now for the world, Your Royal 'Ighness," he grinned.

"Isn't He Lovely"

After inspecting the hangars and workshops, the Royal visitor and party crossed the highway to inspect the remaining phases of the station. Prolonged cheers greeted the Duke from the crowd massed in the road. A small girl, plainly excited, shrilled, "Isn't he lovely? Just like the King." The Duke turned his head, smiled and touched his cap.

The happiest man at the station, however, was a short, well-built, corporal, J. H. Tombs, late of the First Kings Rifles and now with the R.C.A.F. On his breast gleamed the red ribbon and emblem of the Empire's highest decoration, the Victoria Cross. Noticed by an aide of the Duke, the Great War hero was presented to the Royal visitor. "I got the cross in a bit of a do at Festubert," he smiled.

Later in the R.C.A.F. hospital, the Duke chatted with a number of the patients. His charm of manner, engaging personality and his slim, bronzed, well-cut figure bespoke the prince of the royal blood.

Following lunch and presentation of the officers of the station and senior officers of immediate stations, the Duke "took off" for Camp Borden. Time did not permit a visit to Mountain View or Picton, but as a courteous gesture to the first-named stationed, the scarlet and silver bomber, with its accompanying planes, swooped low over its hangars in a brief aerial visit before leaving for its destination.

A fight with an eagle. Mr. Sidney Davis who resides on the Front of Sidney Township, had an unpleasant experience with an eagle yesterday. When at his boat house armed with a shot gun in expectation of a chance shot at a gull, a large bird soaring some distance up attracted his attention and he took a shot at it. The bird fell into the water and the waves washed it into shallow water and the bird waded to shore. Mr. Davis seized the bird which he thought was a gull, but to his surprise he found himself fighting with a bald headed eagle. The eagle put up a fierce fight and made it warm for Mr. Davis. After a severe struggle man proved to be the conqueror, but it was a dearly won victory as Mr. Davis' trousers were badly torn and one of his legs received painful wounds. The eagle will be stuffed and mounted.

THE FITTER

Time after time she stood or sat
For fittings, patient as could be
To get a garment trim as that,
Her tailor? Called Old Sol is he.

A travelling tailor on the go,
She caught him journeying east to west
Or near or far or high or low,
His was the work she fancied best.

High on the roof she watched for him,
Low on the sand she sought him out,
Begging a single garment trim,
Proudly in which to walk about.

And now the fitting times have passed
'Twas week ago since they began.
Perfection's pride is hers at last!

"Must Be Good-Looker"

The advertisement said: "Waitress wanted, experienced, attractive." The latter is a qualification often demanded.

It is nice to see nice-looking girls around, but we do not believe that cafe patrons care a rap whether the young lady who attends to their needs is a good looker or not. The main thing is that she is efficient. Otherwise the customer takes them as they come; even the male patrons, who are more concerned with getting their steak quickly and to finding all the cutlery and things on the table, than whether shehas deep brown eyes or azure blue, and a streamlined figure. He does not care whether she has small hands and feet or big ones, so long as they are competent to fetch and carry. If she happens to be good looking as well, that is just so much added to the pleasure of the meal. Of course, there are men patrons, old as well as young, who want their waitresses pretty, and maybe a trifle fast off duty if slow on duty. But for real service, the kind that brings trade, the efficient waitress is a pearl above price. Many a man has made a wise choice of a wife because he admired her competence waiting upon him at a table.

No man ever dared to advertise for a stenographer and ask that she be experienced and attractive. His wife would want to look into that; particularly if she had previously been his secretary. It is an odd kink in the nature of some men that while they are exacting in their demands that their secretaries be efficient and don't care whether they are dazzling blondes or plain Janes, they do like their waitresses to be pretty, and will excuse much incompetence. And it is not too much to say that some of thepretty ones know they can cover-up their lack of professional skill if they give their patrons "the works" with their dreamy eyes and charming smiles. — St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Women Can Do Bit In Gasoline Saving

Toronto.—Women of Canada can be depended upon to forego pleasure jaunts and lazy ways and to knuckle down to give all-out cooperation to save gasoline for British bombers, Margaret Hyndman, K.C., of Toronto, declared when the Department of Munitions and Supply launched its appeal for a drastic cut in the use of gasoline by motorists.

"You'll find the women of Canada responding wholeheartedly," insisted Miss Hyndman, whose war work is well known across Canada. Her tour of the Dominion as director of organization for the Voluntary Registration of Canadian Women in which some 250,000 women enrolled for service in the event of national emergency, demonstrated the eagerness of Canadian women to do the biggest bit they could do in case of need, she says.

"In fact, there is every indication that the women have been ready to extend their services to an extent far beyond others in the country. You will find, I think, that almost every Canadian woman is contributing some measure of voluntary service. In a thousand ways they have demonstrated they aim not to play any glamorous or noble role, neither are they anxious for credit or reward. But they are eager to do any job they can and that in the most efficient and effective way."

The women will not go about the conservation of gasoline in any half-hearted way, contended Miss Hyndman. "I am sure women who are used to taking the car round the corner or down the street for household provisions, will be glad to walk and to carry their groceries," she said. "For every woman will realize that every time she walks to the store in this way, she will make more gasoline available for essential war services. And more gasoline available means more aircraft fuelled—more men trained in the Commonwealth Air Training Plan—more tankers going to Britain — more bombers zooming across the English Channel—more bombs bursting over Germany. It is true one woman can't save a great deal of gasoline by leaving the car in the garage but all the women across Canada who drive cars can.

"There's another side to the picture if women will use their feet as well as their heads," she added. "We women in Canada have grown used to a sort of softness, the women in England have hardened themselves by walking so that they are able to take the discomfort and the displeasure. Should the women of Canada be called on to make similar sacrifices they must condition themselves to stand the physical and moral strain."

Leave the car in the garage and fill up the busses and street cars at other times than the rush hours, suggests Miss Hyndman to the housewife who finds it necessary to go long distances. And if you can't go to the store for food on your own two feet, see to it that the delivery man doesn't have to run up to the house with a mere loaf of bread or a package of cigarets.

"you may be sure the Canadian "But," says Miss Hyndman, woman will rise to the emergency —just as though the gasoline were rationed—and she simply couldn't purchase it."

ON THE RECORD
By DOROTHY THOMPSON

The Few to Whom Many Owe So Much

London, Aug. 5—(Via Press Wireless)—The Royal Air Force is not an army. It is an order, a knightly order, representing something new not only as a fighting force but as a social phenomenon. It is impossible to come into contact with groups of its men without believing that the R.A.F. will play a neat role in the Britain that emerges from the war.

These young men saved England a year ago. How few they were who saved England is not yet realized by the many. Their names as individuals are hardly known. This air war is without aces. Individual exploits have been as sensational as any performed by the Bishops, the Guynemers or the Richthofens of the last war. But it is a breach of form in the R.A.F. to publicize any single personality. Congratulate a pilot on his personal exploits, and he will stiffen immediately.

The R.A.F. is a voluntary force. He who presents himself and is accepted finds a code imposed upon him by his comrades. There are R.A.F. manners. Reticence, poise and easiness mark them. "Shooting a line" makes one an outcast.

In fighting stations, military forms and rigidities are kept at a minimum. The salute is casual, the "sir" is spoken as a well-brought up youth might address an elder man. Nicknames are as universal as at a boys' school. The intelligence officer at one station is always called "Spy." The atmosphere of the fighting station is rather that of a young men's club. The spirit of the squadron is not the spirit of a company or a brigade but of a team. The men are rated among their comrades not only for their exploits in bringing down Germans for their sobriety in protecting their aircraft for leadership and for team work.

The playing fields of Eton are in the sky, and this particular new nobility of Britain ride to hounds in the heavens. Whose particular gun brought down a particular plane is of less consequence than how each member of a squadron behaved in relation to the whole operation. This self-selected service of the few comes, interesting enough, almost entirely from the middle classes. Their families are rarely titled, rarely rich, very seldom very poor. They have had advantages but few luxuries. The probability is that at home they live in a small detached villa with one or two servants. Nine out of ten come from such homes.

Although enormous emphasis is placed upon the discipline of tactics and the integrated teamwork of the whole operation, very little emphasis is placed upon bodily training in the rigid physical sense.

For instance, one of the greatest airmen in England told me: "A good airman must be constitutionally sound, completely healthy; but he must never be too fit. The sort of training that an infantryman gets, or the sort given to a boxer or football player, would spoil an airman."

The fighter of the air is employed in short swift engagements, requiring terrific concentration of nervous energy, rather than prolonged endurance. The fighter of the air has the nerves of an acrobat, not a soldier or mariner. It is all done with nerves of an acrobat, not a soldier or mariner. It is all done with nerves, not muscle and among airmen there are highly artistic types.

There are three commands in the R.A.F. Each produces a different type of airman. The fighters for the most part are a slender wiry breed of finely-spun nerves. The bombers are physically thicker set, slower, more deliberate perhaps, a more responsible type. They are handling more powerful, more costly craft. Their skippers are responsible for more people's lives. The men of the Coastal Command are the fat boys of the R.A.F. In trying to find the reason, I concluded it was because they follow the usages of the navy and eat more, oftener. These are the men who conduct reconnaissance over the oceans, bomb enemy surface craft and submarines and act as cover for the convoys, helping to bring in food and the sinews of war for Britain's people.

Their wives, I must add, a special kind of a new young woman. They have a code. That code demands that they be happy and keep their husbands happy all the time. The girls are great cocktail drinkers. They are always casual. It is against the code ever to show the slightest apprehension, ever to telephone the airdrome to see whether their husbands have come back from some dangerous operation. They must wait for his call. When possible they live near the squadron stations to be with their husbands at the earliest moment of their free time.

In the last war there was considerable freemasonry among the airmen of all nationalities, a mutual admiration that transcended the enmities of war. There is much less of that in this war in which the air force plays an infinitely greater role.

Most airmen with whom I talked despise the Nazis as an inferior enemy. They admire the strategy and tactics of the Luftwaffe but no individual pilots. They are a very unboastful lot themselves, but they say as a quite simple statement of fact that the Nazis haven't got guts. They say they are too rigid. They are enormously effective whenever no chance or accident crosses their prescribed tactics, but relatively helpless in an unforeseen emergency. Some thoughtful ones advance reasons for this, but that is another story.

BOW BELLS

Another work of the great architect, Sir Christopher Wren, was destroyed when a German bomb struck and partly demolished the 222-foot bell tower of St. Mary-le-Bow in Cheapside, London.

Bridges were formerly called "bows," and St. Mary-le-Bow, commonly called Bow Church, received its name because it was near a bow or bridge over the Thames.

It is an old saying that nobody can be a true cockney unless he was born within sound of Bow Bells.

Bow Bells, 12 in number, are immortalized in the legend of Dick Whittington, who returned to London and became lord mayor after hearing their chimes in the distance.

Cockney, as the popular name for native Londoners, is believed to be derived from "coken-ey," Middle English for Cock's egg, an old name in parts of England for small, malformed yolkless eggs often laid by young hens.

During the 15th century, "cockney," variously spelled, was applied to a child nursed too long by its mother and consequently over-petted and spoiled.

Next the term was applied to any effeminate or sissified person.

The transition to a city-dweller was natural, and during the 16th century it was applied in derision by country people to any town-bred person to contrast his effeminate citified ways with the hardier habits of his rural brother.

But in English eyes London was "the city," and about 1600 "cockney" ceased to be generally applied to the inhabitants of other cities and was narrowed down until it meant Londoners, particularly natives of the old City of London, which comprises an area of only about a square mile.

Natives of the old City of London were said to be born within sound of Bow Bells and consequently were true cockneys.

This process of narrowing the meaning of "cockney," however, continued until at present it is restricted not only to natives of the old city of London, but is seldom used except to denote the uneducated classes of that district, who are noted for their "cockney dialect."

Nearly 1,000 Tins Donated in "Barrels For Britain" Project

The regular monthly meeting of the executive of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society was held on Friday, Aug. 1st in the Red Cross Rooms.

In the treasurer's report mention was made of $122.54 received by this branch from Ruth Draper's performance last spring, being 50 per cent of the net proceeds, the other 50 per cent going to Red Cross Headquarters.

Mrs. Jack Deacon reported for the "Barrels for Britain" project. To date nearly 1000 tins have been donated and it is planned to continue the project. The secretary was instructed to write letters of thanks to No. 55 Order Eastern Star, Bell Telephone Girls and Deacon Shirt Co. Girls for cases of tins and to Mr. Gordon Miller for trucking.

Mrs. Deacon was appointed chairman of a committee to manage this project.

The Women's Canadian Club reported that work is proceeding with the Salvage Project.

The secretary was instructed to write letters of thanks for window displays to Pauley's Drug Store and the Robt. Simpson Co. and to the City Council for their generosity in providing a salvage store house for the salvage work being conducted by the Women's Canadian Club.

Mrs. Lazier's report of the Women's War Work Committee follows:

Mr. President, Members of the Executive of the Belleville Branch:

In spite of the difficulties of the season, the July report of the Women's War Work Committee is quite satisfactory. Summer visitors have taken the place of those unable to continue the work in summer months and to these we offer our sincere thanks for their great assistance. The Church and Country Groups continue their valuable contributions to the comfort of the armed forces and the bombed civilians.

This branch has shipped to headquarters the following supplies: hospital, 301 articles; knitted comforts, 389; civilian clothing for bombed victims, 852 articles. A large donation of beautifully made garments and knitted comforts came from the War Emergency Classes of the Collegiate Institute and great credit is due both Miss MacPherson and Miss Dwyer and their assistants for their steady devotion to Red Cross.

The committee is very grateful to Mr. Howard Clark, chairman of the Property Committee for providing blinds and screens and hanging the Red Cross flag. Also to the Robert Simpson Co. for the loan of their window.

Respectfully submitted,
F. M. Lazier,
Convener R.C.W.W.

Take Brass Hats Stop "Invaders"

Belfast (CP) — British troops stationed in Northern Ireland claim they have an airtight formula for meeting invasion—simply capture the enemy's general headquarters.

During an "attempted invasion" exercise, a Brigadier attached to defending forces made a surprise attack with two battalions and captured G.H.Q. a few hours after the "invaders" landed.

Such a disaster would ordinarily have led to the route of the enemy, but the umpires ruled the General and enough officers to constitute a skeleton staff had escaped, so the manoeuvres could continue.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was doing the bridge problem after supper, saying to pop, There, it's happened to me at last.

Are congradulations in order? pop said, and ma said, Quite the contrary for land sakes, I just sneezed.

You've sneezed before, pop said. I've never mentioned it, but more than once I've caught you sneezing when you probably thought nobody was listening, he said, and ma said, But I mean I sneezed 3 times in unaccountable succession. In other words that proves I've finely developed an allergy to something, because 9 tenths of the time an allergy first manifests itself by apparently baseless sneezing. Dr. Emery Pratt combination, open doors and open in the paper the other evening. Well, well, after years of considering myself the only person I know who is immune to every known allergy, here I go myself, she said.

O well, the majority is always right in a domocracy, pop said, and ma said, Now, according to Dr. Pratt, the problem is to track down the gilty cause by the process of elimination. Now what did I eat this evening? she said.

The regular dinner, I believe, pop said.

Meaning the same as everybody elts, and ma said, But what was the specific ingredient that I'm suddenly allergic to. Bread, butter, peas, chickin, celery, or sometimes it's a combination of things, there I go again, she said.

Meaning 2 more fast sneezes, and pop said, Yee gods my deer, I've got it. By gollies I ought to if been a doctor, he said.

Why, what tell me? ma said, and pop said, It's a combination of things. It's called the open combination, open doors and open windows. My deer you're sitting in a 10 by 12 draft that would make a brass monkey sneeze, he said.

And he went and shut the door and ma didn't sneeze again, looking partly relieved and partly disappointed.

Letters From the Troops

Following is an interesting letter received by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clubine, Pinnacle Street from a soldier friend Pte. "Chuck" Purdon, now with the Canadian Army in England.

Hello Folks:

I have just received your letter of June 11th. Thanks for writing. I was afraid you hadn't received my letter, I mean my first letter, so I wrote the second one. We are evidently winning the Battle of the Atlantic as the mail is coming in much more regular than before. Germany may have 200 subs but owing to repairs and rest for the crew only one tenth can go to sea at a time and of course the British Navy is sinking them as fast as they can track them down. It seems they (the subs) have to surface to charge their batteries. The navy picks their position up by means of radiolocation and disposes of them.

The R.A.F. takes care of their (the enemy) night raiders by the same means. We have taken the offensive in the air now over France and Northern Germany and as a result things are very quiet over here now. We haven't had an alert here for weeks. But we haven't forgotten the bombings we have been subject to. We are all longing for the day when we will be able to hit back and you can bet we'll hit back with a vengeance. A bombing is something one doesn't forget or forgive very easily. I'm glad you folks are safe. For a while at least. The Nazis are not having their own way with Russia I see.

I see Russ is determined to join up for active service. We need men with his spirit. The service is not active. This is a war of nerves and all we are doing is imitating a cat crouching by a rat hole. Before the rats can win they must come out of their hole and then we'll pounce!

I received a letter from my dad today. He is in the Home Guard in Australia as is my kid brother. They are guarding prisoners. All my people on my mother's side are in enemy occupied territory so I don't know how they are doing. They are in the Channel Islands. I received a letter from my sister-in-law today telling me Milly, my wife is too ill to write to me. She had a nervous collapse. I see Ruth is living on Riverdale now. Milly does not live far from her. She lives at 442 Sumach St.. So will you ask Ruth to drop up and see her. I hope Milly will be better by the time you get this letter. Louise has just recovered from the measles. I'm glad to hear most of the family are working. I really don't know much about Belleville as I've only passed through it a few times but I imagine it is a very nice place. Any place on the lake is. Even Toronto.

I am going to write to Bridlington and see how your folks are. I know you will be glad to hear and will forgive me the liberty I am taking in writing to them. Bridlington has been pretty heavily bombed so I may have a job finding them, but there is no harm in trying, is there? We don't do badly over here. There are some things no one can buy such as raisins, dates, lemons, onions, silk stockings and butter is very scarce. We eat margarine in place of butter but it tastes like butter, as well as looking like it, so it doesn't really matter. Our main problem is smokes. They cost 1s 5 1-2d for 20 or 35c per package. If you know of any club, church or organization that wants to help the boys on active service get them to send cigs or razor blades or both. Razor blades are a positive head-ache. They are very scarce and are getting scarcer all the time. The Royal Marines are lucky. They don't have to shave and so each one goes around sporting a beard. They seem quite attached to their beards. Of course their beards are very much attached to them also.

Well folks I better stop this nonsense and go to bed. It's 10.30 p.m. over here but only 4.30 p.m. in Belleville. I'm going to bed and you are just getting supper ready! Well, folks, take care of yourselves. Best of luck.

Chuck Purdon.

P.S. Write soon.

P.P.S. For every parcel of smokes, we will kill one Nazi, and dedicate it to the sender!

Rulers' Foibles Told in Rhymes

Canada's Gentleman Usher Takes to Verse in His "Hysteric Histories"

Ottawa (CP)—From caveman to the sixth George the story of the British people and their kings is told in lively verse by Maj. Drew Thompson, gentleman usher of the Black Rod in the Canadian Parliament.

In "Hysteric Histories," just published by Maj. Thompson, the lives, battles, loves and deaths of kings and queens from Boadicea on, are compressed into 62 pages.

A man whose chief public appearances are in the role of uniformed messenger for the King's representative in summoning members of the House of Commons to hear speeches from the throne, the author takes many a sly dig at the sins and foibles of royal personages in earlier days. In a foreword he pleads "not guilty" of "any intention of lese majeste" but confesses a weakness for situations which jolt convention.

In a new interpretation of the Roman conquest the author portrays Caesar as crossing the channel because

"He'd heard the girls were passing fair,
Who walked around old Leicester Square."

It seems Caesar flew into a rage because the Britons gave him a chilly reception and he embarked in a road-building program when his chariot crashed into a stump.

"The conquering Bill of Normandy" caught King Harold by surprise when his Saxons were "full of gin" celebrating a victory. On down through the centuries the rhyme flows, past King Henry VIII "who did his necking with an axe," Elizabeth, "the Virgin Queen who had sex appeal," Charles II "who was a sporting guy" and "was not faithful to his queen," George III in whose reign "a colony did break away because of mind in disarray," and Victoria who "ruled an era much enslaved by those who were too well behaved."

The book ends in calling blessings on the present King and Queen after a kindly reference to the Duke of Windsor as "a dandy Prince of Wales."

Hard Work Does It, Says She

Mrs. William Allison of Prince Edward County was 102 years old on Saturday and already the reporters have been seeking out her secret of longevity. Hard work is her answer, and it is as good as any—nevertheless great hosts of men and women who have known nothing else in their lives have fallen far short of the century mark.

When Mrs. Allison was a girl, she says, women worked in the fields and the bush, toiled from dawn to dusk and thought nothing of it. She thinks modern women—and men—are softer than the men and women of the middle eighteen-hundreds, and perhaps they are. They have more comfort and physical luxury in their daily lives, more things are done for them. It may be that they work less and play more. But we suggest this is all on the surface, that essentially our race has not changed its characteristics. Critics used to say the people of Britain had gone soft and lazy—it was a delusion on which Hitler's ship promises to break up. When the emergency came, the outlook of the people changed overnight. Women went to the factories and the auxiliary forces and the land, men into the armed services and to civil posts of great danger, and nothing was too hard for them or too perilous. Neither the moral fibre nor the physical stamina of the race had changed since Britain saved Europe from the domination of Spain, and later from the ambitions of Napoleon.

What is true of Britain would be equally true of Canada if the Huns were but 21 miles from our coast and poised for invasion. The pattern of our luxurious way of living quickly would be discarded and we should be quite as stern and grim as our grandfathers and grandmothers when they had to wrest a livelihood from a wild country. The fact is that not many people work any harder than they have to work, but the fine stuff is there and the emergency does not find them wanting.—Ottawa Journal.

Weddings

WEATHERBE—COUPAL

The wedding took place quietly on Saturday August 2nd., at St. Ann's Rectory, Toronto, Rev. Father Egan officiating of Grace Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Coupal, Sedley, Saskatchewan, and Sergeant William Weatherbe, R.C.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Weatherbe, Toronto.

COLDEN—WISKIN

A quiet marriage took place in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church vestry, on August third, of Robert George Colden to Molly Marguerite Wiskin, Rev. W. J. Walker, officiating. The couple were attended by Miss Hannah May Colden and John E. Colden.

BARKER—SHERWIN

Hastings, — A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the United Church parsonage, Hastings, by the Rev. J. E. Glover on Thursday, July 24, when Jean, youngest daughter of the late Elmer Sherwin and Mrs. George Seymour of Hastings, became the bride of Thain T. Barker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. John Barker of Trenton. The bride wore a navy tailored suit with white hat and white accessories. Mrs. Walter Warner sister of the bride, was her attendant and wore a gown of navy blue triple sheer, white hat and white accessories. Mr. Alex Sherwin, brother of the bride, attended the groom. The couple later left on a short trip to Toronto and points west.

PREST—McCLINTOCK

The Rev. David T. McClintock officiated at a pretty ceremony Saturday evening in Fairlawn United Church, Toronto, when his daughter, Grace Lois, became the bride of Lieut. Thomas Robert Prest, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Prest, of Kitchener. Mr. Punter was at the organ.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Dr. L. Gilchrist, the bride was lovely in a patrician gown of gardenia white silk jersey. From the moulded bodice of soft draping fell the graceful skirt; the long sleeves were shirred, and the deep slashed neckline was caught back with smoky pearl clips. Her finger-tip veil of tulle illusion was crested with orange blossoms, and she carried a shower of roses and bouvardia. She was attended by Mrs. L. M. Davidson as matron of honor and Mrs. R. H. C. Jeffery, charming figures in sapphire pink silk jersey. Their halo bonnets were of matching shirred net and they carried bouquets of delphiniums and Briarcliff roses. Miss Beverly Lois Davison, as flower girl, was pretty in a Juliet gown of palest blue crepe, carrying a basket of flowers. Mr. Edward V. C. Smith was groomsman, and the ushers were Lieut. W. A. Martin and Lieut. Peter K. Kennedy.

Annesley Hall was the scene of the reception. Mrs. McClintock received her guests gowned in fragonnard rose crepe inset with matching lace, hat of navy blue straw and corsage of Talisman roses and cornflowers. Mrs. Prest chose a graceful gown of crystal blue chiffon, her hat accented with a touch of delicate pink. Her corsage was pink roses.

Later the bride changed into her going away costume, a frock of tide blue, the skirt fashioned in deep pleated tiers. Her corsage was Talisman roses. On their return from their trip the bride and bridegroom will live in Brockville.

CUSHMAN—BOYLAN

In a beautiful setting of pink gladioli, which banked the altar of Ste. Clare's Church, Windsor, Ont., the marriage of Miss Mary Margaret Boylan, daughter of Mrs. Patrick John Boylan and the late Mr. Boylan of Pelissier Street, to Mr. Norman James Cushman of Belleville, son of Mrs. James Cushman and the late Mr. Cushman, of Parent Avenue, was solemnized Saturday morning at nine o'clock, the Rev. J. J. White officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Vincent Boylan, wore a stunning gown of white pointe d'esprit over bridal satin, the full skirt, in three tiers, each edged in French silk lace, extending into a short train, and the bodice, full in front, featuring a high neckline outlined with similar lace, and forming a fitted waistline, with a large bow extending across the back. The leg-o'-mutton sleeves ended in points on her hands, and her fingertip-length veil of double illusion was caught to her head with a coronet, and she carried red Braircliff roses and bouvardia.

Mrs. Albert Bear, who attended her sister, as matron of honour, wore an old-fashioned frock of pink taffeta and lace, made with a very full skirt and short, puffed sleeves, and her hat was a matching turban, and she carried Queen Elizabeth roses.

Mr. Miles Cushman assisted his brother as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Albert Bear and Mr. William Malloux. During the ceremony, Miss Stella Mellon, wearing dusty pink, with white accessories, sang "Ave Maria".

A reception and breakfast for 60 guests followed, at the Prince Edward Hotel, where profusion of pink gladioli were used in decoration, and the T-shaped table was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake flanked by burning white tapers in silver candelabra. Miss Mellon sang "Because", accompanied at the piano by her sister, Miss Rose Mellon, during the breakfast.

Mrs. Boylan wore for her daughter's wedding a floor-length gown of orchid lace, with a purple hat trimmed with ostrich, and her corsage was of Joanna Hill roses. Mrs. Cushman, the bridegroom's mother, was in poudre blue sheer, and wore matching accessories, and a corsage of pink Briarcliff roses. Mrs. Ralph Roullier, grandmother of the bridegroom, wore navy sheer trimmed with old lace, and matching blue accessories, and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Cushman left later to fly to Montreal, and will spend a fortnight in the Laurentians, on their return from which they will take up residence in Belleville. For travelling the bride chose a red, white and blue ensemble, and wore roses.

Far and away the greatest of all frock favorites is the classically simple shirtwaist style. Nice for town or country is a shirtwaist frock of silk damask in white or palest blue printed with a shadowy leaf design in green. Collar and breast pocket have several rows of stitching. Skirt has all-round pleating.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Infatuated Widower Wants Daughters Married

Why some men expect their daughters of 16 and 17 to be sirens passes understanding. Unless a girl is a natural charmer, something akin, perhaps to Ninen D'Enclos, few women are born sirens.

Being a siren is largely an acquire art. Sex appeal is not the entire story, as biographies of these history-making charmers reveal. This father's letter illustrates my point:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I'm 46 years of age and have two daughters, one 16 and the other 17. Both are pretty girls but very shy and not popular. They get no dates or, if a stray date, it's never repeated. I should be delighted to have them both well married.

"I am in love with a lady of 28 who agrees to marry me but positively declines to assume the responsibility of living under the same roof with stepchildren. She says no stepmother is ever appreciated, that all and sundry are licked before they've started.

"My girls, who have very sweet dispositions, have raised no objection to having a stepmother. In fact, when my fiancee dines at our house they are sweetness itself. But my sweetheart insists that afterwards it would be the same old stepmother horror story all over again.

"Neither of these girls knows how to dance, nor have they any accomplishments. They select their own clothes and whether there are attractive or not I have no way of knowing. But I should love to see them settled so that I might again have a happy home which was disrupted by the death of my wife five years ago.

"Anxious Widower".

I've not given all your letter, but as you write you are well-to-do, own your own business, your home, a summer cottage and a good car, why not send these girls to boarding school for a couple of years. Children are the responsibility of parents and cannot be disposed of like superfluous kittens

These girls have no love affairs. There's no available suitor in sight. Why hustle them into matrimony? It would be much better to give them a few advantages which you can absolutely afford.

If you are unwilling to spend a little money on their education, why not get your youthful fiancee, who declines to have your daughters live under the same roof with her, lend you a hand in making the girls a little more popular. They should be taught to dance immediately, and dance so well they will never lack for partners. A girl may be as homely as you please, but she'll never lack attention if she has a sense of rhythm and is light on her feet.

Young men of marriageable age always enjoy visiting houses where hospitality is dispensed. Your fiancee might give a party for them in your home. Or what about a picnic?

Your fiancee cold help your daughters pick out their clothes. That is, if she's as interested in getting them married off as you are.

Have you thought, my dear sir, that if a girl almost twenty years younger than you are declines absolutely to enter a family where there are two nice girls who have made not the least objection to her as a stepmother, she might prove a very selfish and exacting wife?

Six Smart Towels Done in No Time

PATTERN 7049

Can you picture these towels embroidered in two shades of the color of the kitchen or in a gay variety of colors? They make a set that will be just the thing for that bride-to-be. Pattern 7049 contains a transfer pattern of 6 motifs averaging 4 1-2 x 8 inches; materials needed; illustrations of stitches; color schemes.

To obtain this pattern send twenty cents in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) to The Ontario Intelligencer, Household Arts Dept., 166 Front Street, Belleville Ontario. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and PATTERN NUMBER.

She can be the sophisticated wife—she can be the serious wife—she can be the madcap wife—but most of all, she is essentially the human wife, which has made Myrna Loy the most popular "Mrs." of all Hollywood portrayers of married women roles. Of all her screen husbands, William Powell is Myrna's favorite, and the two are seen as husband and wife again in "Love Crazy," riotous marital comedy, now on the Belle Theatre screen.

Fashion Flashes

BLACK IS YOUNG and it's pretty, which explains its summer popularity. Geared for a merry time is an afternoon frock of deep black silk sheer with molded bodice inset with bands and edged with a ruffle of cobwebby black lace. Its narrow tiered and pleated skirt has inset lace ands and a lace flounce at the hem.

Pointing forward down over the eye is the line taken by many of the new hats, despite the back-of-the-pompadour mode. A forward tilted sailor of stitched white crepe is trimmed with two sheaves of bright red tulips, green leaves and a green veil.

Pretty to wear and cool too is a nightgown of white crepe printed with enormous tropical flowers in vivid shades. It has a deep double yoke, is rounded to the waist in back and has a deep sweetheart neckline in front with diamond cutouts at the midriff.

Good news for many of us is that the closed toe pump is to prevail this Autumn. A favorite shoe style is the pump with the walled-toe, moccasin type front, done in antique calf in deep burnished shades.

Tots Versatile Sailor Outfit

BY ANNE ADAMS

Even little girls 'take to the sea". This Anne Adams style, Pattern 4765, has versatility and per fresh charm. The dress buttons conveniently down the front, has smartly squared-off side skirt sections and offers three neckline versions. A collar that's squared at both front and back, pointed front revers or a collarless V-neckline. There are two sleeve styles: neat little puffs and tiny open caps, as well as a sleeveless version. The back of the dress may be cut low for suntanning. You might let the collar contrast and use gay braid trim, an embroidered star motif or ric-rac. The saucy sailor cap may match the contrast or the dress.

Pattern 4765 is available in children's sizes, 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6, dress and cap, takes 2 1-8 yards 35 inch fabric, 5-8 yard contrast and 1-2 yard braid.

Send TWENTY CENTS (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

Over $400 Realized For War Victims by Marlbank Community

Marlbank, Aug. 5.—The Marlbank community campaign for the British War Victims' Fund, which began about mid-June is concluded. The final grand total of $418.72 has been attained. The largest single sum of $319 was raised by an auction sale, conducted by Mr. E. J. Courneyea on June 26th. On the same day $25 was realized from a lunch booth arranged by the ladies. The W.A. of Lime Lake United Church donated $11 from the sale of tickets for a draw on a quilt. The Moneymore neighborhood was especially liberal with donations of cash, scrap iron and saleable goods. From Stoco and Larkins came various donations too. The people of White Lake and Pine Grove also gave generously. Mr. T. B. Tyner, as chairman of the promoting committee, worked tirelessly in salvage projects. One piece excavated near Dry Lake, by Mr. Tyner and his helpers netted $40. The other truck owners in the vicinity also aided in gathering goods. A splendid spirit of co-operation was evinced throughout and everyone is pleased with the gratifying results.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Male Formal Wear

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What is the correct formal summer evening attire for a man? Must white flannels and blue coat or all-white be worn?

C. O.

To summer dinners and dances and similar evening occasions men usually wear Tuxedo trousers and a white dinner coat. The black dinner coat (Tuxedo jacket) is just as correct, of course, but the white coat looks cooler. Just as correct and preferred by some men, is the maroon or light or dark gray Tuxedo jacket.

With the double-breasted Tuxedo jacket a black cummerbund is usually worn, thereby avoiding a waistcoat. The shirt may be a stiff white or plaited one with a wing or turned-down collar; and in very warm weather a soft shirt and collar is permitted. A black satin or silk bow tie is worn; sometimes, with a maroon jacket, a matching tie is worn.

For more informal occasions, especially in the country, the men may wear white flannels with a blue coat, or an all-white linen or flannel suit.

Proper To Wear Veil?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married in mid-summer in my home in the evening, with a reception to follow in a hall. Is it proper for me to wear a wedding gown and veil? If you say it is, will you please tell me also if I should wear this bridal costume to the reception or should I change my costume?

E. M.

It is proper to wear a wedding gown and veil, if you keep all details planned to be consistent with this type of attire.

For an evening wedding in midsummer, you would probably wish to modify the formality of your costume. Have your dress of white marquisette or light-weight crepe, or one of the charming cotton fabrics so popular with summer brides this season. Your dress might be floor-length, no train and your veil finger-tip length.

By all means plan to wear your bridal attire to the reception. This is your sartorial hour of glory and you should take advantage of every minute of it.

Stork Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

A dear friend of mine recently had a baby, born prematurely. A group of her close friends had planned to have a shower for her. Would it be proper for us to carry out the plans for the shower, under the circumstances?

J. C.

Yes, many stork showers are given within a few weeks after the baby's birth, and many mothers prefer this rather than the shower given before the baby's birth. Giving the shower after the baby's birth will give you an excellent opportunity to find out what items the babys' mother has and what items she lacks and would welcome as gifts at the shower.

Courtesy Tip

If you rent a furnished house for the summer or part of the summer, treat the furnishings kindly, and leave the house in good condition.

Beauty Aid for Career Women

By HELEN FOLLETT

OF ALL classes of women those who have most need of toeing to the beauty mark are the career girls. They are in the public eye all day long, and the job, to a certain extent, depends upon smart appearance. They haven't much time to devote to the cause of pulchritude, so they must plan carefully.

Efficiency depends upon health and good spirits, and if you don't care especially about the reflection in the looking glass you are not likely to be on tiptoe. It is a satisfaction to sail out in the morning with coiffure ship-shape, complexion and hands in first class condition, clothes neat.

Get Necessary Rest

The girl who burns the candle at both ends, who works all day and chases out until all hours in the evening, is doing herself an injustice. She must have recreations, naturally, but even more necessary than the merry evening is rest.

A certain amount of outdoor exercise she must have. Without fresh air and sunshine she will have dull eyes, a colorless complexion, impoverished muscles, nerves that do flip flops. If she will take up some outdoor sport, it will keep her fit, mentally and physically.

She must wedge in time for sessions at the beauty shop unless she is clever at shampooing and hair curling. The professionally executed coiffure certainly has it all over the home arrangement, which is all right for the young thing with the fly-away long bob, but not so good for the correctly styled hairdress that is required by the business woman.

Then, too, the manicure you buy is a more thorough treatment than the one you give yourself. Complexion care is imperative. After the soapy face washing at bed time, a three-minute creamy tapping will usually keep the skin smooth and colorful.

CHILD IS KILLED 8 OTHERS INJURED

Automobile Crashes Into Cement Culvert Near Renfrew

Renfrew, Ont., Aug. 5 (CP) — Donald Denault, seven-year-old son of Mrs. Ida Denault of Detroit, was killed last night and eight other persons were hurt when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into a cement culvert.

The injured were: Mrs. Denault, fractured ankle; Door Fuller of Niagara Falls, Ont., fractured ankle; Mrs. Fuller, fractured wrist; Shirley Fuller, six, their daughter, fractured leg; Mrs. Florence Decker, Windsor, Ont., severe shock, cuts and bruises; Greta Denault, 12, severe shock; Lorraine Decker, 11, severe face cuts, bruises and shock.

The car, which police said was driven by Mr. Fuller, struck the culvert almost head on, then turned over and fell down an eight-foot bank. The accident occurred at a turn in the road.

Indians Prepare Claims Against New York, Vermont

Montreal, Aug. 5 (CP)—The six clans of the nearby Caughnawaga Indian Reservation were told at a meeting last night that their brothers of the St. Regis and Oka Reservations have joined them in preparing a claim for indemnities against the States of New York and Vermont for lands allegedly held by their forefathers there as far back as 1609.

Peter Regis, a native of the reservation, described correspondence he had with the other reservatons and said that the claim will be based on a copy of the 1855 proceedings of the Vermont Legislature.

At that time, the Iroquois were presenting the same claims and James Hatchkiss, appointed by the State Governor to investigate them, recommended that the Indians were entitled to some amount for the lands taken from their ancestors. Regis did not say what action the State took to follow the Hatchkiss recommendations.

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday August 5

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A DAY of rather peculiar or intriguing forces is read from the prevailing lunar and mutual influences. This may vanquish obscure or dubious plans of objectives, culminating in rich performance and rewards. Under this vibration dreams and utopian ambitions have been known to "come true" and with thrilling climax. A simplification of plans, reducing them to practical possibilities of realization, should be worked for with vim and decision but not impetuously or rashly. With such restraints and clarification of obscurities there should be much success, with promotion, favors and aid of those in large organizations.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which some cherished dreams or lofty ambitions may be brought into gratifying realization. Perhaps subtle, obscure or vague longings may attain concrete form. This may be through promotion, preferment, favors or from the blossoming of a superior creative talent. Large bodies, fraternities, political or cultural groups may contribute to this, but they should be approached with tact and strategy, rather than direct, reckless or tumultuous conduct. This might be disastrous in all emotional situations in both business and private relations.

A child born on this day should be energetic and forceful, possibly tumultous and hasty, yet will have talents of a high order, excelling in creative forms in art, music, poetry, or in business subtlety.

For Wednesday, August 6

EVENTS of a sudden and surprising turn, that might be considered radical or revolutionary in their denouements, are forecast by the interesting chain of planetary configurations. This force may descend with drastic precipitancy after a long siege of stagnant or crystallized conditions, and might prove an uprooting factor of far reaching influence on the future and its security, its fortune and position. Lands, possessions, work, investments and plans may be stabilized, with the insight and executive ability to grasp the unusual openings for new and daring but enduring ventures. Be wise with funds and with writings.

If It Is Your Birthray

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a year of splendid opportunity for placing their future, its fortunes, its success and happiness, upon a sound, stable and enduring basis. Such opportunity is likely to be precipitated with breath - taking suddenness, and cause no little surprise. Out of the skies may come uncommon rewards for labor and steadfastness. Investments and possessions may increase, unique talents and techniques may be recognised and find promotion funds, with elders and established institutions assisting to sound objectives. The mind and finer faculties should be keen to grasp these unforeseen openings.

But exercise some little prudence with funds and nervous energies and with writings and agreements; don't be carried away by over-expansive ideas.

A child born on this day should be bounteously endowed with talents, qualities and higher faculties, or intuition, to make for itself a firm and fortunate foundation in life. It will have originality, independence, industry, perhaps a unique and adventurous form of creative expression.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Tight Shoes"

With Speedy Miller, it is like this. When he calls at Grogan's place to put it up to him to open up a nice, refined little game of craps, this Grogan is guzzling old-fashioneds and other delicacies of this nature, and he says to Speedy like this, as follows: "Get out, you bum." So naturally Speedy is forced to take steps as he does not wish to be called names of this vulgar nature.

Runyon Story is Classic

Such is the thumbnail description of the centre-figure of Damon Runyon's short-short story classic, "Tight Shoes," the Universal comedy which is now showing at the Capitol theatre. And in these weighted days Speedy and his friends are very welcome visitors indeed.

Speedy Miller, as portrayed on the screen by Brod Crawford, may be a personality more than somewhat on the crude side, as Professor Runyon might have it. He is, however, far from being a lunk, and he is altogether diverting, and you can say that furthermore.

In fact, Director Albert S. Rogell has managed to bring this story and each of the characters to the screen in all the ingenious Broadway lore that Runyon writes about so fascinatingly.

Howard In Reverse

John Howard does a complete reversal of the ponderous heavy he did opposite Katherina Hepburn in "Philadelphia Story." This time he headlines the cast in the part of a disillusioned shoe clerk who has spent four years in college only to learn that parchment will get him nothing more than a ride on the subway—provided he also has a nickel.

Romantic complications develop between these two, Howard and Crawford, over Binnie Barnes, expertly cast as the chorus queen.

The film laughs its way right through from start to finish. One of the top highlights is the uproarious wedding scene which starts with an old-fashioned hair-and-clothes-pulling hen-fight and winds up in a free-for-all melee between the principals. The sequence almost makes the European blitzkrieg sound like a pink tea at Sunday school.

Roles Well Played

In addition to Howard, Crawford and Miss Barnes, the other roles are all well played. Some or them especially bright and clever. Anne Gwynne, the pretty "T.N.T. girl," is seen as the waitress who has been serving coffee and sinkers in a hash house for three years. She is waiting for Howard to get a job that will take them tripping down the marital side. Leo Carillo is the storekeeper. Shemp Howard and Ed Gargan, as Speedy's stooges, and Samuel S. Hinds, as "The Brain," deliver top performances.

The added feature "That Gang of Mine" features "The Dead End" and "East Side Kids" in their latest escapades a riot of fun and thrills. A colored cartoon completes the bill.

Churchill Not to Speak In Commons Debate On Progress of War

London, Aug. 5—(CP) — Prime Minister Churchill will not take part in the forthcoming House of Commons debate on the progress of the war. Clement Attlee, Lord Privy Seal and Deputy Leader of the House, will open the debate. Foreign Secretary Eden will take part "if required."

Air-Gunners Receive Wing And Chevrons at Ceremony Held at Mountain View

Youthful New Zealanders Graduate From No. 11 Course — Six Canadians Included

MARCH - PAST

Mountain View Air Station, Aug. 5—(Staff)—Blazing New Zealand suns may have acclimatised the stalwart youngsters from "down under" who are now training in the far-flung air stations in Canada under the Commonwealth Air Training Plan, but the Canadian edition of Old Sol proved a bit too strenuous for the first class of graduating wireless air-gunners from the sister Dominion who received their "wings" and sergeants' chevron at a simple but impressive ceremony here on Sunday.

In the comparative coolness of one of the roomy hangars, the No. 11 Course of Wireless Air-Gunners stood proudly at attention while the coveted wing was pinned on their breasts. Six Canadians and one Newfoundlander were included in the class, one of the largest to graduate since the inception of the Air Training Plan.

Proudly they stood and proudly they smiled when a fellow New Zealander, Group Captain L. M. Isitt, Ottawa, liaison officer of the Royal New Zealand Air Force in Canada, chatted with them as he pinned the badge on their tunics.

"Play the Game"

"You have reached a very definite stage in the service and your badge is a mark of achievement. You now know what you are," Group Captain Isitt told the class in a brief address. "You are at the end of one phase of your training, but believe me, there is a lot to be done yet. In the flying service you never stop learning."

"The big thing to remember," he said, "is that now you are one of the team, and to co-operate you must work hard and play the game. The strength of a team is in its weakest member. You will rely upon your pilot to fly your machine and your navigator to plot your course, but upon you—and I want to stress this—evolves the protection of your crew members. This protection depends upon your vigilance and keeping your mind on your job. Good luck and once again remember that it is on you that the crew rests for protection."

Receives Honor

To Sergeant Air Gunner Gordon Rigg, Wellington, New Zealand, top-ranking man of the class went the coveted silver miniature air-gunner's wing and chain, emblematic of highest marks of the course. Group Captain Isitt chatted with Rigg for several moments after making the presentation.

The sturdy twenty-three-year-old youngster received the congratulations of his classmates and later blushingly admitted that he would spend his leave in Winnipeg where he will be married on August 7th.

Drawn up in formation and flanking the graduates were members of Number 12 Course Wireless Airgunners and another squadron of station personnel. Group Captain F. Waite, officer commanding the station; Wing Commander H. E. Walker, officer commanding No. 6 Bombing and Gunnery School; Squadron Leader T. Cresswell, Chief Instructor and Squadron Leader Walsh were present at the ceremony.

Third Class of Graduates At Picton Gunnery School Receive Wing and Stripes

Sergeant Observer Gales of Croydon, England, Leads Class

BROTHERS GRADUATE

Picton, Aug. 5—(Special)—At a ceremonial parade at Picton Bombingg and Gunnery School, Saturday afternoon, the third class of graduates received their wings and sergeants' stripes. All members of the station were drawn up on the square for the ceremony.

Leading the class was Sgt. Observer P. F. W. Gales of Croydon, England. The trophy given the high man in bombing and gunnery was awarded to Sgt. Observer John Marr of Glasgow, the only Scottish graduate.

Group Capt. C. H. Keith, C.O., was in charge of presentations and he addressed the graduates on the new responsibilities which their promotion entails. He also took the salute during the review.

Among the graduates were brothers, A. V. and E. E. Patchett of Shipley.

All graduates were from England with two exceptions, they being from Wales and Scotland.

Cherry Valley Service

A larg crowd attended the decoration day and memorial service at Cherry Valley cemetery on Sunday afternoon. Rev. Fred Rice conducted the service and several hundred decorated the graves. The choir of the church led in the singing of hymns, the service being held outdoors.

Picton Band gave a concert in Elizabeth Park Sunday night with the offering going to the Evening Telegram's British War Victims' Fund. This also entertained many of the visitors here for Monday's regatta.

Messages of congratulation from Premier King and Premier Hepburn were received Saturday by Mr. and Mrs. Courtland Fralick when they marked the 71st anniversary of their wedding.

AT THE BELLE

"Love Crazy"

William Powell goes through antics ranging from getting his head caught in an elevator shaft to masquerading as a woman in the goofiest series of adventures he has ever attempted in "Love Crazy," in which he and Myrna Loy co-star, again as husband and wife, but this time under turbulent circumstances. The new picture comes today to the Belle Theatre.

Powell and Miss Loy start the fun rolling by planning a wedding anniversary in which they do everything backward, such as starting a dinner with desert and ending with soup. Powell chews up a phonograph record because he wants to dance by taking it internally to prove he's crazy when Miss Loy decides to divorce him and he learns that crazy people can't be divorced.

His scheme kicks back when the alienists get hold of him and are completely fooled by his antics. They're convinced that he's really crazy and then he has the problem of avoiding the asylum, with comical complications piling one on the other.

The cast surrounding the two principal funmakers includes Gail Patrick as Powell's ex-sweetheart who starts Myrna out in a jealous rage to divorce Friend Husband, Jack Carson as Powell's friend and confidant, and Florence Bates, who plays his mother-in-law and who comes in for a big share of the opportunities for comedy. Sidney Blackmer, Vlamimir Sokoloff, Kathleen Lockhart, Fern Emmett, Joseph Crehan, George Meeker, Sig Rumann and Sara Haden also have prominent supporting parts.

Action is laid in New York among homes of socialites and favorite play spots. Miss Loy wears some elaborate gowns, and Powell rivals her in the fashion creation he dons, after shaving off his famous moustache, to turn female impersonator.

The Belle News of the Day and "The Battle," an interesting and entertaining screen miniature will be exhibited on the same program.

Allege Youth Destroyed Insulators in Poles

Pembroke, Ont., Aug. 5 (CP) — Charged with wifully destroying 24 insulators and a dispatcher's wire, part of the Canadian Pacific telegraph system, George Debenham, 19, formerly of Cobden, Ont., and now in an army unit stationed in Ottawa, appeared before Justice of the Peace J. R. Lockhart here yesterday and was remanded until Thursday.

Debenham is alleged to have used a rifle on April 24 to shoot the insulators from telegraph poles along the C.P.R. line at Cobden, disrupting the telegraph service for some time.

New Zealand Cousins Meet For First Time in Canada At Mt. View Air Station

Mountain View Air Station, Aug. 5 (Staff)—Miss Lillian Copplestone, 77 Victoria Street, Toronto, formerly of Christchurch, New Zealand, laughed at distances when she was breaking all long route swimming records in her native Dominion. Now she is convinced that the world is a small place.

On Sunday she came here to see a friend receive his air-gunner's wing and sergeant's chevrons at an official presentation. After the ceremony, she chatted for a few moments with a fellow New Zealander. He mentioned the name of a chum. Lillian stared. She asked the gunner to repeat the name. "I'll do better than that," he grinned, "I'll fetch him."

He did. And a few minutes later Lillian and Ac. J. Stonehouse, of Christchurch, New Zealand, were chatting about times in the old home town. They were cousins and did not know that either was in Canada.

Miss Copplestone, an attractive blonde with all the physical requirements of the long-distance swimmer, held the long distance championship of New Zealand besides many other records. In 1931 she attempted to swim the English Channel, but was taken from the water by her trainers when about halfway between Cape Griz Nez and the English coast. "I am sure I could have made it," she smiled, "but a heavy fog settled down over the Channel, and the trainer thought the risk was too great."

She has been in Canada for eight years and is employed with a motion picture company in Toronto.

Now that prices are high, here are two excellent economies. A pound of whiting purchased at the hardware store for less than a dime will provide an excellent silver polish for many months. It cannot injure the silver.

Some fine, white ashes from hardwood stored in a tin container, make an excellent cleaner for pans in which meat or fish have been cooked.

THIEVES TRY STEALING GAS FROM BOAT

C. Reeves, Belleville Yachtsman, Finds Gas-line in Boat Broken

With government restrictions placed on the sale of gasoline, this highly explosive fluid is rising in value and is a coveted possession when the restriction hours are in effect. Some motorists have been known to place locks on the gasoline tank caps, while motor boat owners are taking even more serious precaution.

However, Cecil Reeves, 25 Brock Street, in Belleville lost a quantity of gasoline from his motor boat and almost captured the guilty culprits. Mr. Reeves was in the vicinity of his bay-front boat house late Sunday night when he observed a form moving about. As he approached three men were seen running from the boat house and gained a motor car nearby, in which they drove off at high speed.

Upon further investigation Mr. Reeves discovered the would-be gasoline thieves had broken the gasoline pipeline of his motor boat and were draining the gasoline from his boat tank when he fortunately arrived on the scene to frustrate the theft. Police were notified and P. C. Taylor investigated. As it was dark at the time, Mr. Reeves was only able to give a meagre description of the trio of gas thieves.

Trio of Bikes Are Stolen

An epidemic of bicycle stealing was reported to police in Belleville over the holiday week-end. Melville Barriage, College Street, Ronald Sharpe, 64 South Front Street and C. W. Lott, R.R. No. 2, Belleville, all reported their personal bikes had been taken from parking positions. Police assured the owners joyriders were doubtlessly responsible and the bikes would soon be recovered when left abandoned.

Dodgers Hope to Regain Pennant Appetite at Home, Beat Giants by 11-6 Score

Brooklyn's Only Hope Now Lies in Winning Over Eastern Division Clubs

CARDS HAVE TASK

By JUDSON BAILEY

(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

The brash Brooklyn Dodgers are back home hoping to fatten their pennant appetite on their helpless eastern brethren, and everything is in their favor.

After floundering around the west for several days they managed to return with a four-game winning streak and last night they promptly made it five by overpowering the staggering New York Giants 11-6.

From now until the western clubs of the National League start their final circuit of the east Aug. 18 the Dodgers will have no opposition except the Giants, whom they have beaten seven out of 11; Boston Braves, who have been their victims nine out of 11, and the last place Phillies, who they have whipped in 11 out of 12.

Meanwhile St. Louis Cardinals are faced with a sterner task. They have to subdue Pittsburgh Pirates, Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs, all of whom are striking to get back into the race.

Yesterday they cuffed the Cubs 4-2, all right, but they lost the services of their keystone star, Frank (Creepy) Crespi who was hit in the face by a line drive during pregame practice.

They got along without him yesterday because Lefty Ernie White pitched seven-hit ball to gain his 13th victory and his sixth in 17 days.

Pirates Win

In the only other National League game John Lanning held the Reds to three hits while the Pirates plowed to a 4-1 triumph.

New York Yankees hit the winning rail again with a 7-5 decision over the last place Washington Senators. Yanks bunched seven of their hits into three successive innings.

A ninth-inning home run by Jimmie Foxx decided a 7-6 struggle in favor of the Boston Red Sox over the Philadelphia Athletics in the only other Major League game.

"Doc" Locke's Stable Wins At Pembroke

Pembroke, Ont., Aug. 5 (CP) — Horses from the Locke stables of Williamsburg, Ont., driven by the veteran Cec Champion, showed the class in 2:18 trot or pace and free-for-all classes in the Pembroke Driving Club's race meet here yesterday.

Effective, only trotter of the six-horses field in the 2:18 race, was well in front in all three heats, but was stiffly tested in the first heat by Northern Barron, owned and driven by Dave Burke of Perth, Ont., and in the second by Joe Harvester, owned and driven by Felix Turcott of Mattawa.

In the free-for-all, which provided the best racing of the day, the first two heats were decided by a nose and the third by only a slightly wider margin. Lily Part from the Locke stables was second to Adrian Grattan from the Kingston, Ont., stables of Albert Watts, but scored wins in the second and third.

After being set off in the first heat of the 2:28, Teddy McKillop, owned by R. W. Glasper of Hull, Que., won the second and third heats in driving finishes.

FELLER IS EXAMINED

Cleveland, Aug. 5 (AP)—Bob Feller of Cleveland Indians, baseball's leading pitching, was called to a doctor's office today for a preliminary physical draft examination. If pronounced fit, the 22-year-old ace will undergo a later test by army doctors before being inducted into the United States army.

Selective Service officials said there was little chance of Feller wearing a soldier's uniform before the end of the season.

Grid Game Warms Up Vancouver

Vancouver, Aug. 5.—(CP)—Reinforced by importation of several prairie stars and backed by the expert coaching of Greg Kabat, rated as one of Canada's outstanding rugby players and former Winnipeg Blue Bomber Ace, the Vancouver Grizzlies, new entry in the Western Interprovincial Football Union, are expected by Manager Chuck Jones to equal the standard of the other two entries, Regina Roughriders and Winnipeg.

Jones said today that the Grizzlies will have at least six Prairie stars and the balance will be the pick of players out of Vancouver's ex-big four league.

Kabat, a familiar figure in Canadian Rugby circles, will appear this year in the new role of playing-coach for the Vancouver team replacing Calgary Bronks who dropped out of the League this year.

Larry Haynes, who played end in the All-Star conference for Calgary last year, will appear in the red and gold colors of the Vancouver team this year as will Gordon Gelhaye, a power in Calgary's 1940 line.

Bill Heindl, former blue bomber, will also bolster the Grizzlies line and Carl Krisko, who held down a fullback position with Winnipeg last year, is expected to fill a similar spot with Vancouver in the forthcoming battles.

Goshen Dressed Up For Hambletonian

Goshen, N.Y., Aug. 5 (AP)—This little village in the hills was getting all dressed up today for its annual big day, but the holiday spirit spreading through the neighborhood passed right on by Doc Parshall's barn at Good Time Park.

Doc's rosy hopes of winning his third Hambletonian Stake tomorrow and becoming the first owner-trainer-driven to turn the trick in the corn tassel derby, were sick with a high fever.

These hopes are all wrapped up in a three-year-old tagged Perpetual. He looked like a mighty good thing for the $45,000 jackpot of his three recent stake victories, the latest only last Saturday at Historic track. But Doc walked into Perpetual's stall last evening and found the colt ailing so badly with a temperature of 103 that he was just about sure his standard-bearer wouldn't be in first-rate condition before tomorrow's big heat, much less in time for the filing of entries today.

With the hopes of the Ohio ace on the point of disappearing, the talk of the early-arriving hundreds centred around Bill Gallon, the brown colt owned by R. H. Johnston of Charlotte, N.C., and the choice of many as far back as last fall.

The street bunting and the posters were being trotted out meanwhile for the one day every year when this village becomes a city. Traffic was heavy, as trotting fans by the hundreds began to pour in, the vanguard of a crowd of 40,000 expected to see the Hambletonion.

Two World Marks Broken At Picton

"Pops" Cooper, Veteran Speedboat Racer, Lowers Canadian Course Records

HICKS IS SECOND

Picton, Aug. 5—Two world records and two Canadian marks were broken at Prince Edward Yacht Club Regatta here Monday.

In mile trials Jack (Pop) Cooper, 62, of Kansas City, Mo., established a world record for the 91 cubic inch class when he drove his Tops Pup at an average speed of 61.6 miles per hour to better the former record of 57,793 m.p.h. Driving the same boat Cooper set a new record for the same class in five mile competition, bettering the old mark by .183 m.p.h., his average speed being 52.478 m.p.h.

Cooper drove Milderna, owned by C. E. Inch of London in a mile trial, setting a Canadian record of 65.814 m.p.h. against the former 63.8 m.p.h. mark. The fourth record was a Canadian one for the 135 cubic inch class,, established by Frank Baker of Saranac Lake, N.Y., driving Cannonball in five mile competition at an average speed of 53.860 m.p.h. over a five mile course. Cooper topped his great record by winning Prince Edward Yacht Club's $500 gold trophy by virtue of taking all three heats of the 225 cubic inch class.

It is the second time he has won the trophy. Seven thousand witnessed the races, which were run under perfect conditions.

Members of the Boulevard Yacht Club, Toronto, were among the winners in sailing races. The two-team dinghy race was won by B. Aggatt and B. Ambler and Mr. and Mrs. B. Toazer, with Picton Club's entry under Lloyd Vanduzen and Marie Hubbs, Wallace Wright and D. MacVannell, second.

Belleville entries won Class A punts, Frank Smith being first, E. Clark second and M. Callahan third.

ALL-STAR GAMES

Sunday Morning Class Girls Team Outclassed Locals, but Interest Was High

Thanks to the generosity of the contributions of the softball fans of Belleville and district and paramountly to the generosity of the Sunday Morning Class, Canada's outstanding girls' softball team, the Red Cross British Bomb Victims' Fund is enriched well over $250. as the result of a dual bill of girls' softball played at Coleman Flats on Civic Holiday. Insofar as the actual diamond competitions were concerned there was little or no opposition provided Manager Frank Doughty's outstanding club from Toronto, as the Queen City nine, headed by Marie and Kay Genereaux, local gals who had made good in world softball circles, won both games by 19 to 0 and 27 to 0 scores in afternoon and evening games respectively. The games were witnessed by well over 6,000 satisfied Belleville softball fans.

Kay Genereaux

As to the report of the actual games and playing proficiency naturally all flowers have to be passed into the laps of the visitors who provided hitting and fielding sensations and although Mr. Doughty used his prize pitching talent in Beau Hughey, the S.M.C. leading hitter as well, he also trotted out Marge McDonald and even the colorful Glad Davis at third base, but the pay-off came when Mister Doughty brought to Belleville Thelma Golden, the best girls' softball pitcher in Canada and perhaps on the North American continent. Miss Golden is no stranger in Belleville, having pitched here a decade ago when the main attractions, the Genereaux sisters, were batting against her. Such is fleeting history

Games Not Reported

A running account of the actual games would be of little interest to the reading public, but in fairness to the local players, who endeavoured to give their best against one of the most outstanding girls' softball teams on this continent, a slight eulogy would not come amiss, although these columns cannot mention all of the 30-odd Belleville players who really assisted in making the project the success it enjoys today.

In protection of the Belleville fielders, patrons regretted the lack of fielders' mitts, as were worn by the more experienced Sunday Morning Class. In the afternoon game the Belleville "All-Star" team collected exactly three hits, Irene Colden getting one and Jean Sherry counting two. In this game Thelma Golden pitched the last inning and struck out the side. In the more-abbreviated evening game of six innings, the local girls collected four hits in a more serious game when Molly Hunter drove out a secong inning triple and a fourth inning single, while Helen Garrow hit a double and Norma Maker a single, but no two hits formulated a run.

Scored in Every Frame

Marie Genereaux

The Sunday Morning Class scored runs in every inning they appeared at bat in the two games, but many were attributed to the errors and nervousness of the Belleville girls. In the afternoon Kay Genereaux the S. M. C. sterling catcher and home run hitter, did not disappoint her audience as she hit a round-tripper in the sixth, following a triple and a double. Dot Parkhouse hit for the circuit and Beau Hughey showed her batting prowess. In the twilight fixture Marie Genereaux proved to her Point Anne friends her ability with two hard hits for extra bases as Miss Parkhouse, the club's leading hitter, counted another four-base knock and added two more bingles to her credit. This game Kay Genereaux had to satisfy her hitting qualities with a double and a single as the "Doughties" refrained from too lusty an attack when "Marg" McDonald took over the hurling duties of the Toronto team. After her appearance in the afternoon game Miss Golden hurled the last two inning in the twilight fixture and delighted over 3,000 fans by striking out five of the six batters to face her, Gwennie Bennett being the sixth out on a ground ball to Miss Parkhouse, who proved to be a grand first-base player.

The Belleville Ladies' Softball League hope to be able to present upwards of $300 to the Red Cross British Bomb Victims' Fund for their efforts of bringing the Sunday Morning Class girls' softball team to Belleville, which at this writing should be explained came to this city at no cost to the local sponsors.

Thanks to All

Mrs. Stuart Lazier, President of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross, desired today to convey to the sporting public of Belleville, the thanks of herself and her organization for the splendid financial response afforded by the patrons of both games. However, the local Ladies' Softball League are indebted to the twelve girls who, bedecked in the conventional Red Cross uniforms, so materially assisted in making the war project the fine success it enjoyed. Much credit for the success of the presentation of the Sunday Morning Class girls' softball team in Belleville and the splendid results must be given primarily to Mrs. Zita Ryan, proprietress of the Queen's Hotel, who so graciously provided accommodation for the visiting Sunday Morning Class Club. To the work of President Ted Schwab, Secretary Barney Smith and Treasurer Jack McVeigh, as well as Mr. Forbert, Russ Richards, Ken Watt of the Ladies' League and C. Downey and Harry Knott, Secretary of the local Men's Softball League goes much credit for the success of the initial effort of the Belleville Ladies' Softball League in staging a project in the interests of the Red Cross Bomb Victims' Fund. Mrs. Lazier today told The Ontario Intelligencer she and her local Red Cross executive wished to thank all those who assisted and perhaps could not be mentioned at this time.

Beau Hughey

In conclusion Manager Frank Doughty, of the S.M.C. informed The Ontario Intelligencer his team of fascinating and appealing girls would gladly return to Belleville for any worthy war charity project. That's why they're the No. 1 girls' softball team on this continent.

CORNWALL RACES

Cornwall, Ont., Aug. 5.—(CP)—A regatta sponsored by a local service club (Lions) yesterday was the major Civic holiday attraction here as more than 8,000 persons lined the banks of the St. Lawrence river to watch outboard and inboard motorboat races.

The program was run off without serious mishap but two drivers in the outboard hydroplane races suffered spills. One of them, Tommy Brunelle of Montreal, suffered a blow on the head when the motor hatch cover of his boat jumped out of place and struck him. He was rushed to hospital where nine stitches were required to close the wound.

LEAFS WIN EIGHT OF LAST 15 GAMES

Toronto Has Played Fifteen Games in Last Nine Days

ROYALS WIN

By The Associated Press

It might be a good idea for a Labor Board to investigate Toronto's baseball and the International League schedule makers for what they're doing to pitchers who labor for the Leafs.

Toronto's chances of climbing from the loop cellar are only so-so since the Leafs are still 6 1-2 games behind Baltimore's winless wonders who last night chalked up their 13th straight game without a victory. But if the Leafs ever make it, the overworked elbowers at least should rate time-and-a-half for overtime for the job they've put in during the last nine days.

In that stretch the Leafs have played exactly six doubleheaders. Altogether there have been 15 games on the Leaf schedule during the run. The remarkable part about it is that Toronto, which has been staggering around in the cellar since May 3, has won eight of the 15.

Besse Wins

What is just as unusual is that the pitchers have been standing up better than at any time previously this season. For instance, yesterday the Leafs broke even with Jersey City, winning the opener 2-1 on the neat six-hit tossing of Herman Besse. It was Besse's third starting assignment and his second win in that nine day stretch, during which he has labored 25 innings.

Three homers gave the Little Giants the night cap 5-3 and pinned the defeat on Walt Lanfranconi, the slight right-hander. But Walt, too, has been doing overtime work in the recent run of double bills. It was his third starting task, and he had gone the route in the two previous outings.

Newark's Bears tangled with the second-place Buffalo Bisons in the feature fuss on the night program, and the Bears came out on top 4-2 to boost their league lead to 6 1-2 games.

Montreal's third-place Royals had the good fortune to meet the bewildered Baltimore outfit while second-place Buffalo was losing, so the Royals picked up a full game with a 4-1 victory. This left Montreal just one game away from the Bisons.

Kingston Two Games Behind

Interprovincial Baseball League statistics show keen competition in the six-team league, with Hull B and B still holding top position with seventeen wins and four losses.

Hull has a margin of two games over Kingston Ponies; a single game separates Ottawa Royal Canadians and Hull Volants, the third and fourth teams, with Canadiens two games behind Kingston.

Bill Jelly was the individual star of the circuit last week. He marked up his fourth victory of the season when he led Royal Canadiens to a 5-2 win over Volants, and was responsible for pulling his team out of a third-place tie with the latter nine.

Between Innings

after all, it was purely a war charity project.

We refer to the appearance of the Sunday Morning Class girls softball team here on the holiday. True enough, Frank Doughty's classy outfit beat our local gals 19 to 0 and 27 to 0 in two games played, but Skipper Doughty informed your newsboy that he had taken his club into Buffalo and Niagara Falls over the week-end and beaten senior girls' teams just as easily. The Sunday Morning Class team have travelled throughout Ontario, at no expense to the home club and made over $1,500.00 for the Red Cross British War Victims Fund in the past six weeks. The advance sale of tickets for their appearance in Belleville cannot be announced until all returns are made, but in cash donated by the fans of Belleville yesterday, the sum in cold money amounted to a few dollars under the $200.00 mark, that is without the collection of the advanced sale, which President Ted Schwab figures at nearly one hundred dollars.

Manager Doughty personally informed your newsboy he was most gratified with the reception he and his girls had received in Belleville, but the climax of this was proven when Mr. Genereaux, who resides in Point Anne, welcomed his daughter, Kay, in front of the bleachers in the second game. Their greeting was appreciated by the patrons who rendered a spontaneous response. Later Mr. Genereaux met Marie on the S.M.C. bench with as much affection. The games had been advertised as exchanging batteries, but Manager Doughty preferred not to belittle the game itself. "After all, we go around all parts of Ontario staging these games for the Red Cross British War Victims Fund. Outside of Toronto the fans desire to see our team playing the game for the game's sake. We do not wish to disappoint those who want to see our team play as a unit. We went so far as to bring Thelma Golden, undoubtedly the best girl softball pitcher in Canada, to Belleville and we want to give the patrons of this Red Cross benefit a picture of senior girls softball," explained Skipper Doughty.

The two games were a grand success despite the one-sided scores, but getting down to playing facts there is one thing that was driven home, insfoar as local girls' softball is concerned. In order to field hard driven hits local fielders must be provided with fielders' mitts another year. The dynamite in the S.M.C. bats was so much in evidence, as they literally drove base hits through Belleville inexperienced players, that it proved the value of protection for the individual player. The errors with the local teams might have been slightly minimized had they worn gloves. However, it was a grand display and well over 6,000 fans witnessed the two games. The S.M.C. girls are a grand bunch and especially after their reception and attention by the staff of the Queens Hotel the girls left Belleville practically pleading for a return game. "Marie and Kay didn't tell us anything out of the way when they promised us a swell reception in your town," were the last words that Glad Davis, the S.M.C. sterling third sacker told your newsboy.

Many veteran girls softball fans will remember Thelma Golden, star pitcher for the Paramount seniors and perhaps wonder why "Tel" was with the S.M.C. here. Here's the secret—Frank Doughty's team is to represent Canada at world championship girls' softball tournament at Detroit next month and Frank is taking Thelma Golden along as one of his ace pitchers and naturally wanted to climatize her with his club. Thelma Golden pitched for the 'Sunnysides' in Belleville in an exhibition game against Allan Meagher's 'Beavers' here many years ago. As a matter of fact we approached the veteran Thelma and asked just how long ago it was she pitched in Belleville. "Well, ask the Genereaux girls, they were playing against me and so was Bessie Doolittle, I think," was Tel's cagey answer. Later she admitted it was either nine or ten years ago. (Note to local softball gals—see how long it takes to become proficient?)

Softball play-off time has rolled around once again in both local city loops. The Men's League gets away tonight with Point Anne playing Corby's at the Flats, while tomorrow they tangle at Point Anne and come right back here for a third meeting in a best-in-seven series on Friday. The Girls' League executive have not met to announce their play-off dates now that Corbin's have been eliminated. However, Zellers clash with Vikings and the SWACOs meet Deacon's in the league semi-finals. The final stnading in the ladies' loop, following the completion of the league schedule last Friday reads:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Zellers	6	2	.750
SWACO	5	3	.625
Deacon's	4	4	.500
Vikings	5	3	.375
Corbin's	2	6	.250

Do you remember when four Toronto girls and Ethel Catherwood, the "Saskatoon Lily," gave Canada two Olympic championships at Amsterdam 13 years ago today. Bobbie Rosenfeld, Ethel Smith, Florence Bell and Myrtle Cook won the 400-metre relay final while Miss Catherwood won the high jump.

SPORT SALAD—Speed records meant nothing in Picton yesterday when the veteran speed-boat driver, Pops Cooper, of Kansas City, shattered no less than four records, two of them world marks ……To top off a grand day's performance the veteran Cooper walked off with the day's top honors and the gold cup…… Lloyd Hicks of Belleville finished second in the "D" class with his Miss Rugena, which he only launched a fortnight ago. Lloyd has only to finish second once more before he intends to take a shot at the "D" class record at the C.N.E…… The appearance of the Sunday Morning Class made Belleville sport fans more sotball conscious and should increase the attendance at tonight's play-offs at the Flats as well as the girls' forthcoming saw-offs…… The Pittsburgh Pirates are as hot a club as you can find in the majors, although the Dodgers regained their winning ways after a disastrous western tour…. Beau Hugney's pitching record for the S.M.C. in the Sunnyside League is 7 against 2, while Thelma Golden's is 5 against two and Marge McDonald's five wins and four losses…. Promoter Frank Tunney of the Queensbury A. C. called today to say he had lined-up Jim Braddock, former world's heavyweight to come to Belleville as the third man in the ring when the wrestling opens here next week……

DROVE OLD CAR 100,000 MILES WITHOUT ACCIDENT THEN HE 'GOT' A NEW CAR

Detroit Lakes, Minn., Aug. 2 (AP)—Farmer Bernard Wendt, 56, drove his old model car 100,000 miles without a mishap. He drove a new 1941 model 100 feet and crashed into a tree. Wendt and five others, including the car salesman, were injured. "Things happened awfully fast," moaned Wendt from a hospital cot.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J. S. McKeown or any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

FAREWELL

Since 1906 Samuel Stacey has been head keeper of birds at the Bronx zoo. He is now going into retirement, having passed the retirement age of 65, but will serve in an honorary capacity, aiding in the training of new keepers. Stacey is shown here with two of his charges, a cockatoo and a parrot. Many of his birds would perform tricks for him to the great delight of the visitors who frequented the zoo's bird section. Stacey was born on the English estate of the Duke of Wellington. His grandfather was the "Iron Duke's" body sergeant at Waterloo.

Homemaking Club Holds Achievement Day

Twenty-five girls representing five clubs of the district featured the Hastings County Homemaking Club Achievement Day held in Stirling. Clubs represented were Ivanhoe, Springbrook, Mohawk, Cooper and Remington. The girls had completed the work in the projects, "Cotton Accessories for the Club Girls' Bedroom" and "The Milky Way."

Five demonstrations were presented during the afternoon while three clubs set up exhibits. The gathering was addressed by the Misses Jean Scott, and Florence P. Eadie, of Toronto.

Plans were made to carry on the program in the fall with the project "The Club Girl stands on Guard." Girls winning the trip to the Canadian National Exhibition are the Misses Phyllis Parks, Madoc, R. 3, Doris Thompson, Stirling R. 1, and Ethel Hagerman, Harold.

Clubs winning the trip to the Peterborough Junior Exhibition are, Ivanhoe, whose topic was "Cotton Accessories for the Club Girls' Bedroom" with comment by Ethel Hagerman, and the Mohawk Group, in charge of Mrs. Leslie Claus whose topic was "Milk for the Convalescent."

Little Benny's Note Book

Why, what's a matter with him, pop? I said, and pop said, He's got so old in the passed few years. Yee gods to think I used to go to school with him and we were boys together. I can hardly believe it when I see him now. Well, time flies, I suppose, but apparently it flies much harder passed some people. Poor old Wingfielder, he said.

Well jimminy, pop, how old is he? I said, and pop said, He's no older than I am, that's just the point, he looks so old. Dont tell me you cant see that for yourself. I mean could you look at that man and then look at me and ever imagine we were ever boys the same age together? You can see the difference for Pete sake, cant you? he said.

Sure, pop, much fatter, I said, and pop said Fatter be blowed, he was always fatter, we used to call him Fats, yee gods that doesn't mean anything. Do you mean to say if anybody asked you ho wold that man was, you'd say, O, about my father's age? he said.

Well G roozalem, pop, I didn't think he looked so old, I said, and pop said, I've been living in a fool's paradise, I can see it in your eyes. My face has a thousand wrinkles that I never even sispected, my voice croaks and I dodder when I walk. Yee gods, it's all you can do to resist taking my arm to brace my faltering footsteps. Let's rest here a minute, I didn't realize I felt so weak, he said.

Aw gosh, pop, I mean holey smokes, I said, and he said, Do you mean I only imagine it? and I said, Sure, jimminy crickits, and he said, Then I'll stage a little test.

Wich he did, walking with such long steps I had to run to walk that fast, and he wouldn't walk right again till I admitted I was out of breath.

No More Plastics After August 23rd. For 'Juke Box' Trade

Washington, Aug. 5 (AP)— The "juke box" trade and the novelty and top industries were hit today by a new civilian allocation program cutting off supplies of plastics for non-essential uses.

Insufficient supplies of synthetic resins, resulting from a shortage of formaldehyde, will make it impossible to allocate plastics for "items considered non-essential to the civilian welfare during the present emergency," it was announced.

No more plastics will be available after Aug. 23 for the manufacture of advertising premiums, mechanical record players, toys, amateur cameras, novelties and similar articles.

Bobby Jordan and Leo Gorcey two "Dead End" stars and the "East Side Kids," now showing at the Capitol Theatre in "That Gang of Mine." On the same program the added attraction is Damon Runyan's raciest riot, "Tight Shoes."

CHAPTER 16

Impressing the Blue Parrot

Al Martino was waiting for Marilyn at her hotel.

"How we doing, Smarty-pie?" he greeted her, ignoring the downward trend of Marilyn's forced smile. "How's the promotion fella?"

"Terrible, thank you. So, apparently, is my work". Marilyn swallowed hard to keep back the tears.

"Come, come, is that the way for a gal who just won a national contest to talk? You didn't expect to walk in and wow 'em, did you? Give yourself a chance to get in stride".

"I'm willing, if Clara is. In two days I've done exactly nothing. I don't think they'll care for that kind of help".

Al led Marilyn to a table in the sidewalk cafe. "What you need is a nice shot of alcholic courage, but since you won't take strong medicine, we'll settle for a lemon squash or a dish of tea. Which shall it be?"

"Tea, please, and lemon too, in the tea. "Marilyn sank wearily into a chair. The weariness was not of fatigue, but of discouragement. She felt defeat moving in on her from all sides, watching artfully to repel any attempt at escape she might make. "Al", she said, "I'll have to find a less expensive place to live. Fifty-dollar-a-week folks don't live in hotels like this. I'll have to find a room, a modest one with a kitchenette in a modest neighborhood".

"Sure", Al agreed. "We'll find just the right spot if we have to build it ourselves".

"Then couldn't we go now, and start looking? We could cover quite a lot of ground before dark. I'll not be fussy. Any place will do—any place that is clean and quiet and not too expensive".

"Sounds reasonable, H.B., but even these simple requirements will take a job of hunting. We'll have to mark them 'manana' Spanish for tomorrow—because we have bigger things to do. I got a late bulletin from the front, H.B. It indicates action".

Marilyn asked, apprehensively, "Is it about Clara? Is she—has she done something scandalous? Please tell me, Al—I think of her all day—and of Mums and Dad. I can't concentrate on my work for thinking of them".

"I thought so". Al was annoyed. "All right, Fuss Budget. Wipe the doldrums off your face. Look as though you were going in to win a battle, not coming out to brood over your defeat. Tonight is the night, Little One. Tonight we're going to drop in on Blondie and see what goes on in Big Town".

"Drop in on her?" Marilyn was alert now. "But where? She's not likely to be in her hotel—"

"Not Blondie. Too tame for a glitterbug. She'd be showing her wares in the Blue Parrot. So we'll stop by and have a look".

"A night club. The Blue Parrot is supposed to be very smart isn't it? Evening clothes. I haven't an evening dress with me and if I did, the only one I possess wouldn't get past the door of a club like the Blue Parrot".

"Ummm. That is a fly in the cold cream. We could rent one, only the idea chafes my sensitive nature—you in a dress who knows who wore. Look, have you a kind of dress-up dress, like'd you'd wear to church on Sunday in Millville?"

"Let me think—why yea!" hopefully. A black sheer, very plain but good lines. I wore it to informal parties at home. It's quite a good dress, an original model. Small size so the Bon Ton let me have it at a bargain."

"Good girl! Now we're getting hot I'll run around to the flower shop and accumulate a flock of orchids. But whoppers! White ones with a dash of purple centre stage. The orchids will turn the trick. We will get a bunch that will make the head usher in the Blue Parrot mistake you for Lady Astorbilt".

"But Al, you're a dear—only you mustn't spend all your money on flowers. You're not Mr. Astorbilt".

"No, more's the pity. I'm merely the white-haired boy of Metropole and they're buying you orchids. The way the chief feels he'd buy you all the orchids in captivity if you'd get Clara off his neck."

Marilyn was thoughtful.

"It might work", she said. "I read an article in a magazine about a woman reporter who impressed stuffy butlers and got past the portals of the mighty by wearing white gloves. It seems they gave her an upper-class distinction".

"If white gloves did that for a gal", Al laughed, "wait and see the power in a flock of orchids. I'll leave you now, Little One, for the nonce. Go get myself dandied up a bit while you're putting on the fuss and feathers. I'll be back at seven to give you an audition".

"Seven? Isn't that early for a night club. We might have to stay there for hours, waiting for Clara to come in. Couldn't we go later, about midnight? She'd be sure to be there by that time".

"Ummm—what are we supposed to do in the meantime? Play twiddle-thumb? Unh-unh. Al no like. We get all duded up, go to dine in a place they print the menu in French, see a hit show then have ourselves trundled to the Blue Parrot. We take a snack of sweet with the sour. We get our minds off our medicine so it won't taste so bad when we have to take it"

After-theatre traffic was snarling and unsnarling itself through the cross canyons of the Frantic Fifties when a taxi stopped before the unassuming brownstone front that housed Big Town's most exotic nightery—the Blue Parrot.

A dark young man wearing an expression of great weariness and a smart dinner coat with a garnet carnation buttonniere stepped from the cab and handed out a bright-haired girl in a slim black dress, a dramatic background for the most exquisite and the most lavish cluster of white orchids ever to arrest the attention of the jaded Blue Parrot.

Inside the plain plate-glass doors, beautifully etched and frosted to shut out the curiosity of a long-necked public, Marilyn Marsh hesitated. The atmosphere was something she had never known. Thick and hot and sweetish. It enveloped her like a smothering fog shot with darts of light, heavy with strange perfumes. It pressed against her like a massive hand in a velvet glove.

"Steady, Duchess," Al said close to her ear. "The eyes of the keepers are on you. They have to be careful, with all those insane inmates on the other side of the white plush rope. Black this out and pretend you're walking in the Silver Grill in Millville".

Miraculously, Marilyn succeeded in adopting Al's suggestion. The pressure of his arm guided her to a seat. She kept her eyes on the table before her, imagining the familiar make-believe marble and mawish pink of the Silver Grill.

"Have you looked, Al?" she asked, not raising her eyes. Is—is Clara here?"

"Not within eyeshot." Al said. "But wait a minute—don't look now. We're just in time for the big entrance. Blondie is sweeping by the barrier and making a beeline for the crystal bar".

CHAPTER 17

Blue Parrot Episode

Insidious rhythm was throbbing against Marilyn's ears. Muted drums and a clicking sound, at once sharp and silken. Conga.

"You can take your head out of the sand now, Duchess," Al said encouragingly. "Better look around and get your bearings. Blondie is parked at the bar and she'll be there for several rounds. Herman Hess is buying bubbles with a dash of bitters and a maraschino cherry in them. Giddyap, Herman, youre going fine!"

"Not yet. She's giving us a very expansive and intimate view of her back. The bar is over there, to the left".

Marilyn looked at a long curve of crystal behind which fantastic plumes and mazes of green water plants were a garden for tropical fishes that might have been fragments of a rainbow dropped into a coral cove.

"I don't see Clara," she said, with relief, when she had quested the curve from end to end.

Al said, dryly, "We'll have to get you a set of lorgnettes. Delovely. The bright lights blind little ladies like you. Note the number in the flame-colored dress near the centre of the curve. The one with the black butterfly sitting on top of her taffy head. Anything familiar about the picture?"

"I'll treat you to a pair of dark glasses out of my first pay check", she told Al. "Bright lights have positively dazzled you. Or maybe Clare has worried you so much you are having multiple vision."

"Sa-ay," Al gave the woman at the bar a searching look. "Blondie is putting it over! Why, she's so set up her own sister doesn't know her".

"Very well," indulgently, "if you must clown. Don't you suppose I know Clara when I see her. That women's hair is shades lighter than sister's. As for the flame-colored gown—obviously it is a gown—the combined Marsh girls' wardrobes wouldn't pay the designer who thought up that creation".

At that moment the flame woman at the bar turned her head so that she faced her companion, the pudgy man at her right. Her profile came into clear view. The stem of a wide frosted glass was slipped between the first and middle fingers of her hand so that she cupped the bowl in her palm. She raised the glass to her lips with a theatrical gesture.

"Clara!" Marilyn's cheeks went as pale as the orchids that flecked one of them. "Al, it can't be—there's some mistake—it's the lights—they are playing tricks—"

Al warned, "Take it easy, pal. You're not seeing ghosts. The only hants around this place are the ghosts of yesterday and they are dead. The one you think you see, the blonde one, is very much alive, and sizzling".

"We've got to get her away from that man," Marilyn declared. "He's horrid. He's —repugnant. Al, he's putting his hand on Clara's shoulder—her bare shoulder. I'm going over there this minute. . ."

"Oh, no, you're not, Duchess". Al took Marilyn's hand, held it firmly to prevent her bolting. "All that would get you would be a scene, with you cast as the heavy. Use your head, honey-chile. Use your head. See the table next to us, the empty one? Hess leaves it by the season. As soon as Clara decides she needs a new position for her spotlight they'll make for Hess's table. To get to it they'll have to pass right by us. Then we'll see what we'll see."

"I hate waiting. That disgusting man—"

"It's hard to disgust gals like Blondie when they're looking through a dollar sign".

An hour passed. A desperate hour for Marilyn. A waiting hour with apprehension in every tick of the clock. A watching hour pregnant with possibility of disgrace for the family of Marsh, or worse perhaps, for Clara. Drunkenness. Clara was getting more and more unsteady. Twice she spilled wine over the flame dress. Once she almost fell off the high stool on which she perched at the bar. Hess steadied her. His hand slid along her arm, lingered. Marilyn felt slightly ill.

It was after midnight when the pair at the bar decided to seek more comfortable quarters. They were coming toward the empty table now. Marilyn's throat was suddenly dry, constricted. Clara was hanging on the man's arm for support. She wasn't seeing where she was going. Her eyes failed to focus. Her face was blank, flushed to the color of her gown. The corners of her lips sagged. Marilyn started to speak as the flame woman passed the table where she sat with Al. Her voice would not function She was frozen with fear, with shame. Too late! The moment was gone. Clara sat down heavily in a chair. A waiter pushed it forward to a proper distance from the table. All this Marilyn saw from a side glance. Clara was facing Al Martino.

WALL STREET

Small fractional advances and declines were fairly evenly divided near the fourth hour.

Stocks favored included Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, General Motors, Texas Corp., Standard Oil (N.J.), Montgomery Ward, North American, Southern Pacific, U.S. Rubber, Kennecott and Allied Chemical.

Lacking much support were Douglas Aircraft, Great Northern, Du Pont, Union Carbide, Sperry and American Telephone.

Automotive Shares attracted friendlier consideration as General Motors directors, after yesterday's close declared a dividend of $1 on the common, the same as disbursed previously. The reasoning here was that if any serious cent in earnings was likely because of the restrictions of 1941 model production, board might have pared the disbursement.

A 1-4 cent gain in Distillers Seagram was the only change among Canadian Stocks. In the Pond Market Canada 4s gained 1-4.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Aug. 5—(CP) — Industrials worked higher and other groups showed little net change in the early hours of trading. In the afternoon golds were inclined to ease off a bit and lower prices were posted for Preston, O'Brien, Chesterville, Sylvanite and Sullivan.

Steep Rock was a weak spot in base metals. It sold back 8 to 1.85 in heavy selling. Waite-Amulet also weakened a bit and other base metals were steady.

Buyers were in the market for C.P.R. and the price firmed a fraction. Foods, Senior Oils, Papers and Implements ruled higher and other groups were even with Saturday's close.

Calgary and Edmonton gained a cent to 1.33 and other Western Oils showed no change.

Livestock

Montreal, Aug. 5. —(CP)— Sows were lower while other classes of livestock held steady today on the Montreal Livestock markets, it was reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

A few medium quality steers made $7.50 to $8, heifers ranged from $4.50 to $7. Canners and cutters brought $3.50 to $4.50.

Grass calves were slow sellers. Veal calves ranged from $8 to $11. Drinkers drew $6 to $7.50 and grassers $5 to $6.

Hogs remained unchanged at $15 for B-1 dressed, $11.25 for B-1 alive, fed and watered, and up to $11.50 off trucks delivered. Sows were lower at $8 to $8.50.

Good ewes and wethers made $. to $11.25. Sheep ranged from $3.50 to $6.50.

Toronto, Aug. 5.— (CP)—Cattle trade was fairly active and steady on good quality killers but slow on inferior grades up to mid-sessions the Livestock Market here today. The veal calf market was strong. Grass calves were weak. Lambs were generally 50 cents lower. Sheep were steady. No price was established for hogs. The cattle holdover from yesterday was 2,000 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle 1,070, calves 1,150, hogs 1,120, sheep and lambs 340.

Sheep sold at $3 to $6.

Hogs closed previously at $14.60 to $14.75 dressedweight at yards or plants.

Hog Quotations

Toronto, Aug. 5 (CP)—Dressedweight were down 15 cents at London and down 5 cents at Hull while prices were unchanged at Chatham, in bacon-hog markets reporting today. Stratford reported the market unsettled with prices probably lower.

Lightweight: Chatham $10.25.

Dressedweight: Chatham $14.05; Hull $14.25 plus transportation, London $14.35 delivered.

Brantford reported dressedweight $14.15 plus transportation, down 15 cents.

Blockade Runner Passes First Test

Kansas City, Aug. 5 —(AP)— A. J. Haskins' concrete-and-steel semi-submarine blockade runner has passed its first test—it floats.

The Kansas City paint contractor yesterday successfully launched the 22-ton, cigar-shaped boat he believes will be the answer to Britain's marine defence problem.

With the help of a hoist, Haskins terminated several days of launching effort by seeing his strange craft float upright in the nearby Blue River with only 25 inches draft.

The former San Francisco shipyard worker immediately made plans to install two 25-horsepower Diesel engines to carry his theory of propulsion. The designer says that by use of vent pipes, water will be sucked in at the bow and forced out aft, thus speeding the boat along.

Haskins believes a 2,000-ton seagoing ship built along lines of his model could be propelled at 50 knots by a four-foot pipe. His boat, he says, is too fast for successful submarine attack and rides too low in the water for ready detection by surface raiders or bombers.

NEW U.S. SEA HORNET

The U.S.S. Corry, latest addition to the U. S. navy's destroyer fleet, is shown entering the water at her launching from the Charleston Navy Yard. This is the second destroyer to be named in honor of Lieut.-Commander William Merrill Corry, navy hero killed at Hartford, Conn., in 1920 while attempting to rescue a companion from a burning plane. The first U.S.S. Corry was scrapped during the post-war disarmament program.

5,000 Pilgrims Attend Mass

Celebrate Anniversary of Jesuits 400 Years Old

Midland, Aug. 5.—Celebration of the 400th anniversary of the founding of the Jesuit order was celebrated at the Martyr's Shrine, Midland, Sunday by the visit of the Most Rev. Hildebrand Antoniutti, D.D., apostolic delegate to Canada and Newfoundland, one of the highest dignitaries in the Roman Catholic Church. More than 5,000 pilgrims attended Mass at the Shrine during the day.

Solemn Pontifical High Mass which was held at eleven o'clock was a colorful ceremony. In the procession, besides the apostolic delegate, were Most Rev. J. C. McGuigan, Archbishop of Toronto, Most Rev. M. J. O'Brien, Bishop of Kingston, Most Rev. Dennis O'Connor of Peterborough, Most Rev. Joseph Ryan, Bishop of Hamilton, Right Rev. Monsignor O'Sullivan, Peterborough, Right Rev. Monsignor Nicholson, Belleville, Father T. J. Lally, of the Martyr's Shrine, and many other clergy.

Japanese Seek To Raise Shipwrecks For Scrap Iron

New York, Aug. 5 (CP)—Cut off from United States supply of scrap iron, Japan has turned to the ocean to get this essential munitions product, sources here said today, reporting that Japanese salvage firms had begun operations to raise shipwrecks in waters under Japanese control.

Listed as a possible source of 15,000 tons of metal is the $8,000,000 American liner President Hoover which grounded on Hoishito Island, near Formosa, Nov. 12, 1937. Japan already has taken about 7,000 tons from the wreck.

MISSION SCHOOL AND STATION PARTLY WRECKED

Chungking, China, Aug. 5 (AP)—A British Mission School and an American Mission Station in Kwwilin, Kwangsi Province, were partly wrecked and Yenan, Shensi Province, headquarters of the Chinese Communist armies and party, was heavily attacked yesterday as Japanese planes ranged over several western and central Chinese Provinces, the Central News Agency reported today.

LABOR MEMBER IS CRITICAL

Says Prime Minister Churchill's Special Gifts Have Hypnotized Administration

London, Aug. 5—(CP)—Aneurin Bevan, Labor member of the House of Commons, declared today Prime Minister Churchill's "special gifts have hypnotized the administration," and added that "minister after minister gets into the habit of thinking that all he has to do is to make an emotional appeal to the country and results will follow."

Mr. Bevan's remarks were made in a discussion of the coal situation during which the Secretary for Mines, D. R. Grenfell, acknowledged that there has been a shortage of supplies for several months due to failure to meet rising demands and at the same time pile up winter reserves.

Mr. Bevan declared: "We have, unfortunately, a Prime Minister who listens to generals more than he listens to industrial people inside his government."

"In fact," he continued, "the government is the only enemy who up to now the generals have been able to defeat."

The present position, he said, has arisen "because the House is not doing its job which is to tell the Prime Minister that unless he puts it right we propose to go into the division lobby against him."

Mr. Churchill Preoccupied at Moment

Clement Attlee, Lord Privy Seal, said Mr. Churchill would not participate in the forthcoming debate on the war situation just before Parliament recesses for the summer. He explained Mr. Churchill is preoccupied at the moment "with urgent matters connected with the war."

Mr. Grenfell in his review of the coal situation said more than 100,000 men had left the coal industry since the start of the war but it was hoped "the greater part of the shortage on the original program will be made good before the end of next winter."

Thousands of miners have been called into the army or have gone into munitions factories where they can make more money.

The minister in discussing working conditions described the record of mining accidents this year as "very disturbing."

Tom Smith, Labor, said that unless something was done in connection with the accidents, some miners "would rise in wrath" because "we are killing men in the pits at the rate of 1,000 a year."

The minister said there was "abundant evidence" of insufficient quantities of certain foods and said "this must have led to some diminution of the energy and power of the men."

Is Drowned At Picton

Picton, August 5 (Special)—At eight o'clock on Monday evening, the body of Earl Cameron was removed from Picton Bay, near the coal docks. The 19-year-old sailor had slipped into the water while boarding the freighter "Aragon" about 10.30 Saturday evening.

Dragging operations have since been going on under the supervision of Chief of Police Bert Biddle. The unfortunate youth is from Lion's Head and is unmarried. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Cameron, of Lion's Head.

The body was first seen Monday afternoon by Mr. O'Neil and Mr. McAlpine.

REINFORCE PORTUGUESE GARRISON

Lisbon, Aug. 5 (AP)—The steamship Lima will sail for Madeira Island tomorrow with a contingent of troops to reinforce the Portuguese Garrison, it was officially announced.

The Portuguese have already sent strong reinforcements to the Azores and Cape Verde Islands.

THE WAR TODAY

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Japan's action in reinforcing her army in Manchoukuo probably has two purposes. First, by creating uncertainty as to their intentions, the Japanese hope to keep the Red Army in Siberia at full strength, thus indirectly helping the Axis in Europe. Second, the Japanese are preparing to invade Siberia in the event of a decisive Russian defeat in the west.

The border clash between Soviet and Japanese forces announced today by the Japanese military spokesman in Shanghai is not in itself of much importance. These exchanges of shots occur from time to time in the desolate frontier region, where the border is often not clearly defined and where the troops became careless through long periods of inactivity.

The Japanese have a garrison of fully 250,000 men in Manchoukuo, the puppet state the Japanese created out of the Chinese Province of Manchuria a decade ago. This army is now said to be receiving substantial reinforcements, and reports from Dairen, Japanese port of entry for Manchoukuo, picture large military movements northward.

Tokyo doubtless has been under strong pressure from Berlin to create a diversion in Russia's eastern domain. But Japan's heart apparently is set on southward expansion and her hands are full with the China War and the fast developing situation in Indo-China and Thailand. It is not likely she plans anything on a large scale in the north unless a Russian collapse offers something cheap.

The Japanese could very well suppress the news of troop movements in the direction of Manchoukuo, but instead they are being being given a reported British counter move in the South Pacific. Dispatches from Saigon,—French Indo China, say that for the first time in recent years a British capital ship has been sighted in the Gulf of Siam, together with other recently arrived naval units.

As Saigon is now under Japanese occupation, with the Vichy French in a subordinate role, the origin of these rumors is open to question, and in London the Admiralty maintains its customary reticence with regard to naval movements.

If Britain has in fact sent capital ships out to Singapore the meaning of the move will be clear to the Japanese. The reported Japanese designs on Thailand, which stands as a spearhead ponted at British Malaya to the south and Burma to the north, represent a serious threat to British and allied interests in the Far East.

The presence of a strong naval squadron, in addition to the substantial air and land forces which have arrived in Malaya and Burma in recent months, might prove a determining factor in the measure of Thailand's resistance in the event of a Japanese attack.

SAY VICHY FRANCE WILL REFUSE AXIS FACILITIES

Indication is Founded on Answer to Note From Sumner Welles

LEAHY'S HAND SEEN

Vichy, France, Aug. 5 (AP). — Authorized sources indicated today that France would refuse to grant the axis military facilities in North Africa such as Japan got in Indo-China even if Vichy considered the North African territories menaced by attack.

This indication was contained in a statement to correspondents in answer to a statement by United Staes Acing Secreary of State Sumner Welles Saturday that the American attitude toward Vichy would be determined by "the effectiveness with which France defends its territories against the axis powers' aggression."

The Vichy statement reviewed difficulties in sending reinforcements to Indo-China which led Marshal Petain to accept "Japanese military precautions" there and concluded by saying:

Correspondents were told that the statement was the nearest thing to an official answer to Welles' assertion that would be made, since Vice Admiral Darlan holds no press conference.

The cabinet previously was reported to have rejected German proposals for a military accord on Dakar at a meeting Saturday which followed upon a 45-minute conference between United States Ambassador Admiral Dilliam D. Leahy and Marshal Petain.

L'Oeuvre said Leahy doubtless told Petain the United States had no ambitions regarding Dakar and on the contrary "offered us its aid" to defend Africa and that West African port against Germany.

French Press Criticism

"Every time the brake is applied to the policy of French - German collaboration, there re-emerges the disquieting figure of Admiral Leahy, the ambassador of President Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin rolled in one," the paper said.

The Paris Aujourd'Hui demanded: "Are we—yes or no—for collaboration with Germany? Unconditionally and unreservedly? That is what they want to know on the German side."

The Paris Press professed to see the hand of Admiral Leahy—who has had a score of long conferences with Petain or Vice-Premier Darlan since his arrival at Vichy Jan. 5—in failure of Petain to name Fernand de Brinon, French envoy to the Germans in Paris, to a new post.

In unoccupied France the Press praised Petain for resisting German pressure.

"1. In Syria we had to do with plain aggression by England without an ultimatum and without forewarning. We had an army which we could hope to supply with reinforcements and materials and which in fact resisted 31 days.

"2. In Indo-China on Aug. 30, 1940, we had to recognize the preponderant position of Japan in the Far East and on that account gave it military facilities. America did not react at that moment.

"3. Now Japan tells us enemy (this was clarified verbally to mean 'Chinese') concentrations were threatening Indo-China. At the moment Indo-China is cut off from the homeland. We can not send reinforcements there. Hence we accepted Japanese military precautions through the Kato agreement (concluded with Japanese ambassador Sotomatsu Kato).

Chinese Army, Says Saigon, On Burma Border

Saigon, French Indo-China, Aug. 5.—(AP)— A large and well-equipped Chinese army was reported in Chungking advices today to be concentrated on the Burma Border, ready to cross at a moment's notice to join British forces.

With the troops of Japan, Britain and Thailand already massed about the Gulf of Siam, Thailand clearly has become the key to the situation.

The Chinese are reported convinced that the entry of Japanese forces into Indo-China foreshadows a direct assault on the Burma Road. Britain's recently-announced new air bases in Burma afford flank protection against Japanese airports which might be established in Thailand.

Thailand's position still is unknown.

FULL CO-OPERATION PROMISED

Montreal, Aug. 5 (CP)—Munitions Minister Howe, in a message received today by Alfred Charpentier, President of the Confederation of Catholic Workers of Canada, promised the full co-operation of the Federal government in the settlement of labor matters at Arvida Que.

On his arrival in Calgary yesterday by airplanes from Regina and Winnipeg, the Duke was greeted by Group Captain E. R. Owen, Officer Commanding No. 2 Wireless School. The personal standard of his Royal Highness was run up to the station masthead and the Calgary Royal Canadia Air Force band played the Royal Salute—the opening bars of God Save the King—while a guard of 104 men presented arms.

Inspected No. 3 Elementary Training School

Later, the Duke inspected part of the No. 3 Elementary Flying Training School, gazed down the runways of an array of twin-engined training planes and talked with some of the men who fly them. During an inspection of the guard of honor the Duke stopped frequently to ask the men about themselves and their work with the R.C.A.F.

A large group of air, military, naval and civilian officials were presented to His Royal Highness.

Preceded by a military and police escort of 11 motorcycles, the Duke drove to the wireless school through the city where citizens lined the streets to repeat with ringing cheers the welcome they gave his brother, the King, and Queen Elizabeth two years ago.

When shown through the school, which carried on as usual, he stopped in many of the classrooms to listen to the type of instruction being given and talk to the instructors and to their students.

In the hospital, he talked to Nursing Sister Marjorie Dolsen of Strasbourg, Sask., who said afterwards the Duke told her "how well he liked Canada and what a bright place it was."

She said he told her he believed everyone was being "very well looked after."

GERMANS SAY

The dispatch claimed that the locomotive and cars were tumbled into the ditch where they burst into flames and that the Germans opened fire from nearby woods upon the "panic-stricken" Soviet troops.

Vital war objectives in Moscow were hit in a successful raid with explosive and incendiary bombs, the high command claimed.

There were indications that the Germans may be making their principal effort in the Kiev sector.

Reports from the front led observers to believe the Nazis were aiming at something greater than the capture of Kiev—perhaps seizure of the industrial centre of Dnepropetrovk.

This city, straddling the Dnieper river about 185 miles southeast of Kiev, is the site of heavy armament works. It is situated in the centre of a coal, iron and manganese producing region.

Report Communications Cut

The German High Command claimed yesterday that Nazi and Hungarian troops thrusting into the Ukraine had cut important Russian railway communications, and informed sources said this undoubtedly was a reference to lines linking Kiev with the Black Sea.

Of the operations around Smolensk, in the central sector of the front west of Moscow, the Lokal Anzeiger claimed the Russians had suffered "extraordinarily heavy" losses.

The paper described the battles which have been raging there as of "most gigantic proportions and unheard of severity."

TRADE AGREEMENT

1. Giving urgent Soviet orders "priority assistance . . . upon the principles applicable to the orders of countries struggling against aggression;"

2. Granting unlimited licences for the export of a wide variety of supplies needed 'for the strengthening of the defence' of Russia; and

3. Exploring the possibility of using American ships to transport some of the supplies.

Officials emphasized there was no question of lease-lend aid, because Russia was able to pay for its purchases here.

Use of Ships

Possibility of using American ships on the Vladivostok run raised speculation in some diplomatic quarters whether some of the lease-lend aid to China might be carried along with Russian cargoes for delivery to Chungking 'over the caravan route from Siberia.

It was pointed out that if Japan makes her threatened move into Thailand, the Burma Road supply line will be further exposed to air attacks. The road now is within raiding range of Japanese Indo-China bases.

Japanese officials have also intimated suspicious disapproval of Russia's action in mining the waters adjacent to Vladivostok. The mining, it was said, was "not pleasant for Japan".

Under the renewed U.S.-Russian Trade agreement, no minimum figure was fixed for Soviet purchases here. In the expiring agreement, a minimum of $40,000,000 was set but Soviet purchases greatly exceeded that, despite export restrictions then in force.

THE QUEEN TO BROADCAST SUNDAY

London, Aug. 5.— (CP)—Queen Elizabeth will broadcast a message to the women of the United States next Sunday at 9 p.m. (3 p.m. E.D.T.).

FIGHTING

The Soviet defences in the Korosten sector also take advantage of positions along another western tributary of the Dnieper, the Uzh River.

Vigorous fighting also continued in the Smolensk area, west of Moscow, but today's noon communique made no mention of activities in a new Nazi wedge driven to Kholm, marshland town midway between Leningrad and Smolensk and 70 miles east of last week's battlefield of Novorzhev.

A front line dispatch to Pravda, Communist party organ, said the Germans set raging forest fires on the rolling Ukraine plains to protect their flank but one Russian company slipped through the flames and, blackened and scorched, fell upon a German company and destroyed it in a surprise charge.

Likening the Russian tactics in stalking the Germans to old-style North American Indian fighting, Pravda said the Russians lost but one dead and two wounded in this exploit.

Confidently declaring that "day by day our counter-attack is becoming all the stronger and wider in scope," Pravda admitted that in the early days of the campaign the Germans had driven deep salients into Russian territory so that the Germans "already saw in their dreams the towers of Moscow, the Kremlin Square, and the streets of Leningrad and Kiev."

But the turn came in mid-July, said Pravda.

"Hitler Risked Too Much."

"Hitler wanted to achieve too great successes, he risked too much. Doubtless the retaliation will correspond to the scale of risk."

The paper estimated that Hitler had launched his attack with gigantic forces of 30 tank divisions composed of 15,000 tanks, 10,000 first line planes and 170 divisions, one third of them armored or motorized. S. A. Losovsky, Soviet spokesman, has put Germany's manpower which was concentrated against Russia at 3,000,000 to 3,700,000 men.

Blacked-out Moscow had its 12th raid of the war last night, but only a few bombs—largely incendiaries—fell inside the city. The Russians said one raider was shot down and only a few actually got over the capital.

First Mention of Kholm

Kholm was mentioned as a battle area for the first time in a Moscow midnight comunique which said fierce fighting developed there yesterday. The town is 100 miles southeast of Pskov, 180 miles south and slightly east of Leningrad, and little more than 250 miles from Moscow.

(The German spearhead there apparently could be used to support either the German thrust on Leningrad or the Smolensk drive toward the Soviet capital.)

Address Soldiers' Mail in Ink

Postmaster General William P. Mulock has always shown a keen personal interest in providing a safe and expeditious service for mail to our overseas troops. One frequent cause of delay—a direct fault of the sender—is illegible addresses on mail matter.

It has frequently been found that pencil written addresses become smudged and unreadable during course of transmission, with the result that it is very difficult for the Canadian Postal Corps to effect delivery.

When INK is used there is less danger of the address fading or becoming obliterated and persons sending letters and parcels to soldiers overseas can help ensure their safe and speedy delivery by always having care taken to see that the address is written in a clear and legible manner in INK.

All mail should be fully prepaid and a return address given in the upper left-hand corner. Letters, parcels and newspapers for our troops overseas should be addressed in INK as follows:

Regimental Number, Rank and Name,

Name and Details of Unit (i.e. Company, Section, Squadron, Battery, Holding Unit, etc.),

Name of Regiment or Branch of Service,

Canadian Army Overseas.

If the soldier is still in Canada, mail should be addressed to him giving the:-

Regimental Number, Rank and Name,

Name and Details of Unit (as above),

Name of Regiment or Branch of Service,

CHINESE SOURCE SEES "SWIFT, TERRIBLE CLIMAX" TO EVENTS IN THAILAND

London, Aug. 5 (CP)—A Chinese diplomatic source said tonight that events in Thailand were moving toward "a swift and terrible climax," but British officials were silent over possible naval and military movements in the Far East.

Authoritative quarters refused to comment on dispatches reporting that British, Australian and India troops were moving up to the border of the Malay States and Thailand

A column of American "M-3" tanks clank down a road somewhere-in-England. They are known to the British as "light cruiser tanks." According to the British war office, "this tank has already been on the battle-front in Egypt, where the minister of supply, [illegible] Beaverbrook, says it has 'proved to be a most valuable weapon.'"

Up to the north, however, the Nazis claim that they are steadily nearing Leningrad, Russia's second city, from two directions. Berlin spokesmen predicted the early fall of the city. One of Hitler's favorite crack regiments was among the casualties the Red Army claimed to have wiped out at the Smolenck sector.

AMBASSADOR WITH PROOF OF FISH STORY

Fatigued by his strenuous tour of the United States, Lord Halifax, British ambassador, took time out for a day's deep-sea fishing in waters off the coast of California. His Lordship took the jack-pot for the biggest catch of the day aboard the boat with a 22-pound yellow-tail which was later auctioned off on shore, with proceeds going to British War Relief Fund. Lord Halifax is shown with a barracuda—one of the smaller fish that didn't get away, as the story goes.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Adventure in Washington"

Gene Reynolds probably is Hollywood's first "as a boy" star. The youngster, currently to be seen at the McCarthy Theatre in Columbia's "Adventure in Washington," new romantic drama co-starring Herbert Marshall and Virginia Bruce, first achieved success in "as a boy" roles.

He was Tyrone Power, as a boy, in "In Old Chicago"; he was Ricardo Cortez, as a boy, in "The Californian"; John Beal, as a boy, in "Madame X"; James Stewart, as a boy, in "Of Human Hearts," and Robert Taylor, as a boy, in "The [illegible]" More recently, however, Gene Reynolds has been win- [illegible] in his own right....as a boy!

The youngster has recently been seen in such films as "Boys' Town," "Gallant Sons," "Love Finds Andy Hardy," "Mortal Storm," Edison, the Man," "They Shall Have Music" and "The Blue Bird." In "Adventure in Washington," the young star is seen as a Senate page boy, a tough little hoodlum from New York's East Side who finds difficulty casting off his boyhood background to meet the discipline and devotion of his fellow-pages, as well as the faith placed in him by the United States Senator by whom he was appointed to page's office.

Actually, young Reynolds is a far from "tough" youngster. A native of Cleveland, Ohio, he had eight years of stage experience before he obtained his first real film "break" in the Laurel and Hardy comedy, "Babes in Toyland." Currently, in addition to his motion picture work he is a student at the University of California. He manages to reconcile studio work with his studies, Gene said, "with the help of a student tutor. It was hard for the first couple of weeks, then it developed into a system. I'd do some work in the morning before leaving for the studio, work with the tutor between scenes, and study at night. Executives were very kind in helping me keep my schedule as workable as possible."

Between attending college and making films, Gene still expects to complete his four year course, majoring in science and in English. He hopes to become a physicist.

In "Adventure in Washington," the new young star heads a supporting cast which includes Samuel S. Hinds and Ralph Morgan. Marshall appears as the Senator from New York, and Miss Bruce is cast as a pert radio reporter constantly in his hair. Alfred E. Green directed.

"Two in a Taxi"

In addition to "Adventure in Washington" and for laughing purposes only the gay-comedy romance "Two in a Taxi" adds a second hour of joy-packed fun and entertainment for present day McCarthy patrons. Anita Louise, Russell Hayden and Noah Beery Jr., head the cast of this excellent second feature and turn in noteworthy performances. One of the best assembled Fox News of world-wide events in pictures, is also now showing. The "Glasbake" ovenware piece this week is the useful custard cup and coupon for the next week's piece, which will be the bread pan.

"Blondie in Society"

With the same cast of funsters which have made the "Blondie" series of the past so popular, the new "Blondie" laugh hit, "Blondie in Society" comes to the McCarthy this week-end.

CHURCHILL - ROOSEVELT MEETING UNCONFIRMED

RUSSIAN ARMY COUNTER-ATTACKS IN UKRAINE

Nazi Transport With Troops, Arms Sunk in Baltic

'Process of Disintegration of German Army' Begun Says Spokesman

SMASH NAZI INFANTRY

Moscow, Aug. 6—(AP)—The Red Army today met the German offensive in the Ukraine with counter-attacks such as those which threw back the Nazis in the central sector last week.

While mobile fighting raged at places along the 350-mile front from the Smolensk region west of Moscow to Bel Tserkov, south of Kiev, firmly entrenched Russians were reported turning back successive assault waves of German infantry in the northwest—in Estonia and south of Leningrad.

The Russians reported that a transport ship—presumably German—laden with troops and arms was sunk in the Baltic Sea by a Soviet submarine.

A Moscow communique declared the Red Army still was holding off the German onslaught in the four main sectors—along the Estonian front, in the Kholm area 180 miles south of Leningrad, at Smolensk where fighting entered its fourth week, and in the Bel Tserkov section of the Ukraine.

Moscow had its 13th night raid of the war. The alarm lasted 3½ hours but preliminary reports indicated there was little damage.

German Army Pays Heavily

A Moscow war bulletin pictured the German army as paying heavily in casualties on the whole front and a Soviet spokesman said the Nazis might have to slacken their onslaught because losses were depleting their reserves.

The communique said, "Having exhausted their reserves of regular troops on many sectors of the front," the Germans were sending into action "old class reservists as well as youths 16 and 17 years old."

Nazi Army's Disintegration 'Begun'

"The process of disintegration of the German army has begun," said S. A. Lozovsky, Vice Foreign Commissar and Government spokesman. He told a press conference last night the Germans cracked when "the period of easy victories ended and the period of heavy losses began."

The communique said repeated attacks by the German 16th motorized division on the Leningrad front were hurled back with German losses of at least 1,500 dead and wounded.

Red Counter-Attack

Red Army units in the Ukraine were said to have counter-attacked in the Korosten area, smashing a Nazi Infantry Regiment, killing and wounding more than 300 Germans, and taking many prisoners.

The Russians were reported in defence positions along the Uzh River, a tributary of the Dnieper, in the Korosten sector, northwest of Kiev, and along the Rossi, also a Dnieper tributary, in the Bel Tserkov sector south of the Ukraine capital.

Hitler's Headquarters Says Soviet Leaders Do Not 'Possess Reliable Picture'

STATEMENT VAGUE

Berlin, Aug. 6—(AP)—The German High Command today claimed staggering Red Army losses—almost a million prisoners, many times more in dead and wounded and planes, tanks and guns in the tens of thousands.

The struggle with Russia has reached a point, asserted four special communiques from Hitler's headquarters, where Germans are beginning a new phase of the invasion and some of the results of their first "gigantic victories" can be told.

The special bulletin claimed 895,000 Russians had been taken prisoners and that this "can be evaluated in its entirety only if it is borne in mind that the bloody losses to this tough, bitterly fighting opponent are many times the number of prisoners."

This comparison was made between the numbers of men and quantities of equipment claimed as seized or destroyed by the Germans up to July 11 and now.

	July 11	Now
Men	400,000	895,000
Tanks	7,615	13,145
Artillery	4,423	10,388
Airplanes	6,233	9,082

The High Command was unable to announce any additional great cities fallen into German hands. Throughout the reports, there recurred mention of the stubborn resistance of the Russians, strong fortifications, bad terrain and bad weather.

Leningrad, Moscow and Kiev still have withstood the German power drive.

It was insisted again that strategy called less for so-called prestige successes such as capturing big cities than in the destruction of Russian fighting power.

REPORT BRITAIN GIVES TURKEY ASSURANCE

Ankara Dispatch Says There Will Be No Pact Infringing on Turkish Interests

TIMES EDITORIAL

(By DANIEL DE LUCE)
Associated Press Staff Writer

Ankara, Aug. 5 (Delayed) — Britain was reported today to have assured Turkey she would enter into no agreement with Russia concerning post-war spheres of influence which would infringe on Turkish interests.

The assurance was said to have been delivered by British ambassador Sir Hugh Knatchbull-Hugessen in response to a question by the Turkish foreign minister, Sukru Saracoglu.

The question, according to informed sources, was prompted by an editorial August 1 in the Times of London which was interpreted by a section of the Turkish press as indicating a British intention of giving Russia a free hand in the southeast after the war should Germany be defeated.

Loyal Friend of Turkey

The British ambassador was understood to have told Saracoglu, The Times did not speak for the government, that Britain is a loyal friend of Turkey and that she has not and will not enter any undertaking with Moscow inimical to Turkey.

The editorial was reported to have caused a heated debate among deputies of the Turkish National Assembly, meeting privately as members of the People's Party.

Described by British diplomatic circles as "unfortunate," the editorial stirred an attack on British war aims yesterday by Istanbul newspapers. One paper, Yeni Sabah, declared it now was open to doubt whether British was fighting for the rights of small nations.

Two Forest Fires Out of Control In North Ontario

Toronto, Aug 6. — (CP)— Two forest fires roared through miles of northern Ontario bushland today as lack of rain created the second serious fire hazard of the year.

No definite word had been received by Hon. N. O. Hipel, Minister of Lands and Forests, from the Sioux Lookout fire reported out of control yesterday while a fire in Township 73, north of Sault Ste. Marie, was reported out of control and spreading over an area of 2,000 acres.

The fire in the Sioux Lookout Forestry district has spread far north in Patricia, and is now out of the fire control area. The district contains some valuable timber.

Men From a Score of Trades Help To Service Planes of Canadian Pilots

BY DOUGLAS AMARON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer):

Somewhere in England, Aug 6.—(CP)—Men from a score of trades and professions are helping to service the planes Canadian pilots fly against the Germans.

"You don't have to be a mechanic to be a ground man," said Ft. Sgt. R. Bragg of Rocky Ford. Alta., in charge of "A" flight of the Royal Canadian Air Force fighter squadron which took part in the battle of Britain last Autumn.

A former school teacher himself, Bragg said there are everything from wood-workers to watch repairers in his flight. The jobs are so varied that knowledge gained from many trades can be put to use in them.

Fitters, riggers and wireless, armament and instrument men are the five main categories into which a ground staff is divided.

Sgt. W. Fraser of Montreal, is in charge of the fitters in Bragg's flight with one of his chief assistants Cpt. E. Gunn of Windsor, Ont. Their job is to service the aircraft and see that the motors are always in tip-top shape.

The dozen or so instruments on the plane's dashboard must always be functioning to perfection and skilled instrument men, some of whom learned about delicate mechanism as clock repairers in civil life, are responsible for their upkeep. In charge of this work in "A" flight is Cpl. A. Trimble of Ottawa, a former telegraph company employee.

Over 1,000 Warplanes Will Be Ordered Built In Canadian Plants

Ottawa, Aug. 6—(CP)—Munit Minister Howe told The Canad Press today that orders for m than 1,000 warplanes are about be awarded to Canadian aviat plants.

Total cost was not announ but is understood to run high than $25,000,000.

Canadian Car and Found Company will manufacture 4 Hurricanes at its Fort Willia plant after which it will be engaged in turning out single engi Harvard Fighters at the rate of a month for an indefinite period.

An order for 500 Harvards being given Noorduyn Aviatio Limited, Montreal.

Destination of the planes wa not officially disclosed but there have been unconfirmed reports the machines will be bought by the United States Government for distribution to China, the Netherlands Indies and possibly Russia under Lend-Lease.

"The new contracts will keep the two plants working to capacity well into 1942," said Mr. Howe.

The new contracts will bring the total orders given for planes in recent months to about $60,000,000. National Steel Car Corporation, Hamilton, is working on 200 Martin B-26 bombers at a cost of $27,500,000 and Canadian Vickers Limited, Montreal, has an order totalling $7,400,000 for 39 PBY Airframes.

Negotiations had been under way with Canadian car for the construction of heavy bombers of a United States type but today's announcement follows a decision to continue with Hurricanes instead retooling the Fort William plant.

London, Aug. 6—(CP) — Foreign Secretary Eden declared in the House of Commons today that "anything which threatened the integrity or security of Thailand would be of immediate interest to Britain."

He said Britain was especially interested because a Japanese move into Thailand would be "threatening the security of Singapore." "I hope," he added, "these words may yet be heeded."

Mr. Eden and Clement Attlee, Lord Privy Seal and Deputy Leader of the House, spoke on all phases of the war, from the Far East and the conflict in Russia to the Battle of the Atlantic and United States aid. They substituted for Prime Minister Churchill, who was absent.

It was announced yesterday that the Prime Minister could not take part in the debate because he is too busy "with urgent matters connected with the war."

"Every fresh forward move on the part of Japan naturally has the result of bringing China and ourselves er and closer together," Eden said. "That friendshipad that collaboration withina will continue and I prwill grow."

Gallacher, Communist Member, Has Easier Days in British House

By TOM YARBROUGH
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

London, Aug. 6 (AP)—Now that Britain and Russia are full-fledged Allies, these are happier days for William Gallacher, only Communist in the House of Commons.

This 59-year-old Scottish brass fitter says:

He heard Winston Churchill defend the war production set-up and ungrudgingly declared the speech a "real triumph," noting that the Prime Minister "paid magnificent tribute to the Russian army."

"Churchill invariably answers my questions," Gallacher says, his Scottish burr rolling thickly and his sharp eyes sparkling merrily.

"Chamberlain never would unless he had to. He just went like this at me—" the brass fitter from West Fife registered a menacing frown. "I think Chamberlain disliked me most in 1939 when he kept saying the British mission to Moscow had been given 'fresh instructions' and I asked if they were any fresher than the instructions they had been given the previous week."

Not Disturbed by Insults

It is a common occurrence in the House tar Gallacher's plain talk overwhed in a chorus of shouts for hto "shut up" and "sit down."

"Aye,e says, "but that never botherse. I keep standing. If they k shouting I shout back until I my question out. I never get tirof their interjections. You see, I'pretty good at that myself."

At lu in the workingmen's restaurawhere he insisted on going insteaa more pretentious place, he prted: 'This war will make a gre improvement in Briatin's socialructure and at the same time ult in lasting friendly relatiowith the Soviet Union—the old ol tie is getting its death blow.

TOUR MOTOR BOAT EXPLODES, BURNS, PASSENGERS SAFE

27 Persons on Craft Thrown into Water in Accident Near Ivy Lea Bridge, Rescued

BELONGINGS LOST

Kingston, Ont., Aug. 6 (CP) — 27 passengers escaped injury yesterday when the tour motor boat Colonial exploded while passing thru' the Lost Channel, near the 1,000 Island International Bridge at Ivy Lea.

The cause of the accident is unknown. Witnesses said the boat, in command of Captain Charles Bois of Clayton, suddenly broke into flames and all passengers were thrown into the water. Passing boats rescued all who had been on board.

Capt. Bois was later treated for burns but no other injuries were reported. All passengers lost their belongings.

Owner of the boat, which sank after the explosion, was said to be a Mr. Denny of Clayton, N.Y.

At first it was feared one of the passengers, a three-year-old girl, had been drowned but all were saved through the prompt efforts of crews on passing boats and Andrew Tru[illegible]ll, William Trickey and Byron Latimer, Lansdow[illegible] district residents who rushed their boats to the rescue.

Predicts Signs Of Real Shortage In Reich in 6 Mos.

London, Aug. 6 (AP)—A government oil expert declared today that the Germans will be compelled to alter their blitzkrieg methods or cut their industrial consumption of oil unless they can capture Soviet Russia's Caucasus oil fields by early in 1942.

He said the first signs of a real shortage in the German army, navy, airforce and industry would appear in six months.

The occupied nations used 16,000,000 tons of oil a year in peacetime, the expert said. He estimated their present maximum allowance from the Nazis is 3,200,000 tons.

In Germany there is no oil shortage affecting agricultural or industrial production at present, he said, due largely to an increase in production as a result of new synthetic oil plants.

Many of these have been bombed and newest ones are in Silesia and Czecho-Slovakia, almost at the limits of British bombing range, the expert explained.

"If the Germans get control of the yearly Caucasus output of 25,000,000 tons," he said, "they will be in a position to solve oil problems in Europe."

Jittery Hun Airman Tells of Loss Of His Plane by British Night Fighter

London, Aug. 6 —(CP)— "I always knew there were no laurels to be won over England," declared the wireless operator of a Nazi bomber taken prisoner after the plane was brought down in flames.

"Before we started on this trip, I had a presentiment that it would be unlucky," the airman told his captors. "The pilot was very nervous and said that the whole flight was a farce.

"He was worked up. From the start everything went wrong. After taking off it took a half-hour to get the wireless frequency."

The bomber was flying at 19,000 feet heading over England when the wireless operator, glancing back, thought he could see a "shadow" coming up behind.

"I took another look and then saw that it was still behind us and about 650 yards away. I switched on the inter-communication and shouted: 'Night fighter astern and to starboard.'

"I told the pilot he ought to turn off to the right and then perhaps the fighter would miss us, though the moon was as bright as day.

"The pilot did not turn off and the night fighter came closer and closer. It only gave us a few seconds. Then there was an explosion in our aircraft and bits flew all over the place.

"The mechanic shouted that he was bleeding to death or something like that. I had no time to attend to him—things moved too fast.

"He probably caught the whole dose but it didn't touch me probably because of the armor plating. I still had everything on, oxygen mask and all the trappings.

"I looked out again for the night fighter and saw him banking away.

"On that evening we had taken over a brand new aircraft with new parachutes. Mine didn't fit but I struggled into it and opened the escape hatch and jumped."

Stories, Marked By Varying Details, Refuse to Down

British Morning Papers Make No Mention of Reports Of Rendezvous

'DOUBT' AT OTTAWA

London, Aug. 6—(CP)—Britain's morning newspapers contained no reference to Washington reports, given currency here yesterday by the Daily Mail that Prime Minister Churchill might meet President Roosevelt.

Washington, Aug. 6—(AP)—Rumors were a dime-a-dozen today that President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill had a secret rendezvous, probably some place on the high seas.

Complete Lack of Substantiation

The reports were characterized by varying details, complete lack of substantiation and official denials. But they refused to down.

To some the flurry was reminiscent of the melodramatic pre-Munich stories that Mr. Roosevelt intended to hold a mid-Atlantic parley with Hitler and Mussolini on the Czecho-Slovakian crisis.

The commonest version had Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Churchill, Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada and Harry L. Hopkins, lease-lend administrator, gathering for a momentous [illegible] problems arising from the [illegible] United States aid to nations resisting the Axis.

Various Places Named

The rendezvous was variously given. Some said it was at sea, others that it was in Canada. Iceland, Greenland and Newfoundland also figured as likely spots. The mention of Canada conjured up the picture of Mr. Churchill and Mr. Hopkins being ferried across the Atlantic by bomber for the meeting.

Whatever their origin the rumors appeared to draw encouragement from unusual secrecy surrounding President Roosevelt's cruise in northern waters aboard the Presidential yacht Potomac.

They were helped too, by the announcement in London that Mr. Hopkins had gone into seclusion since returning from his recent trip to Moscow, and that Mr. Churchill would be unable to participate in a forthcoming war debate in parliament because of his preoccupation "with urgent matters connected with the war."

Officials Disclaim Knowledge

However, official sources here disclaimed all knowledge of the conference and Canadian authorities at Ottawa called it "most unlikely" and "very improbable."

Ottawa, Aug. 6 (CP)—A spokesman in Prime Minister Mackenzie King's office, questioned last night on Washington rumors of an impending conference between President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill, Mr. King and Harry Hopkins, the United States lease-lend administrator, said "Mr. King is very definitely in Ottawa and isn't planning any trips out of the capital in the immediate future."

BRITISH EXECUTE TWO NAZI AGENTS

Men Reported Having Been [illegible] Coast by Plane

London, Aug. 6.— (CP)—Karl Theo Drueke, 35, a German citizen, and Werner Heinrich Waelti, 26, identified in an official announcement as a Swiss, were executed today at Wandsworth Prison as secret agents for Germany. They were convicted under the Treachery Act after a secret trial June 12-13.

A statement by the Home Office said the men, arrested near Edinburgh, apparently had been landed near the British coast by seaplane and rowed ashore in a collapsible engage in espionage work, the Home Office said. rubber boat.

When seized, the statement declared, each was equipped with a portable wireless transmitting and receiving outfit, a large sum of English money and emergency food rations.

Both men had foreign passports and spoke English.

One was arrested at a station while studying a timetable and the other was picked up later the same day.

After their landing in the early morning darkness the men attempted to sink their boat. It was recovered after floating offshore.

One man tried to pull a gun when confronted by police.

No public interest was shown in the executions. A soldier armed with a rifle and bayonet was on duty outside the closed prison gates. Later the soldier was relieved and notices posted saying the executions had taken place.

Nazi Charges U. S. Uses Pressure; Hull Denies

Berlin, Aug. 6—(AP)—A German spokesman asserted today that the German government is "an attentive observer" of what he called President Roosevelt's efforts to get Brazil to occupy Portugal's Azores Islands.

"There are reports of ultimate pressure on Brazil for this purpose," the spokesman declared. "How far Brazil is willing to go, how far she can be cajoled is not a matter for us to judge. But we know it is up to the people of the United States to determine how far they are going to be the tool of Roosevelt's aggressive policy and to reckon with the consequences which sooner or later are likely to occur."

Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, said yesterday in Washington the United States had said nothing to Brazil about taking over the Portuguese Azores. Nor had the United States, he said, even seriously considered such a proposal.

JUVENILES ADMIT ATTEMPTING TO STEAL GASOLINE FROM BOAT

The first case of gasoline thieving, since the inception of the Federal Gasoline Restriction Act, was reported in Belleville on Tuesday when Mr. Cecil Reeves, 25 Brock Street, told the police he had frustrated an attempt to steal gasoline from his motor boat tank when he chased three youths from his boathouse Monday night. The would-be gas thieves had broken the gasoline pipe line in Mr. Reeves' boat.

Late Tuesday, Traffic Officer Doug Ellis apprehended three local 'teen-age lads and after questioning the trio admitted they had been the guilty parties. Acting Chief Constable Arthur Harman today laid charges of attempting to steal gasoline against the trio, who will appear in Juvenile Court on Friday. It is the first time charges have been laid of this nature since the inception of the gasoline restriction laws.

THREE BIKES STOLEN

Three more bicycles were reported stolen in Belleville during the past 24 hours, bringing the total of stolen bikes in this city to six thus far this week.

Charles Lloyd, 8 Franklin St., Fred Smith, 72 Cannifton Road and William Hurst, 161 1-2 Pinnacle St., all complained to the police their bicycles had been stolen from respective parking positions in different parts of the city. Late last night Hurst's bike was recovered abandoned along the outskirts of the city.

FRED DELINE, TRENTON, HELD ON REMAND

Alleged to have been annoying temporary occupants in tourist cabins, Fred Deline of Trenton, was arrested near a tourist lodge four miles west of Belleville on Highway No. 2 late Tuesday night. Deline was apprehended by Motorcycle Patrolman J. H. Hatch, who lodged the accused in the county jail on a nominal charge of vagrancy. "Residents of this district have been repeatedly complaining regarding an alleged 'peeping Tom' for some nights passed," revealed Constable Hatch after he apprehended Deline allegedly loitering about other peoples' property.

FIND SWASTIKA PAINTED ON POLE

Pranksters are believed responsible for the pain adjacent to the Bata Shoe Company plant near Frankford, Provincial Police revealed today.

The Nazi swastika was painted on the pole in white paint and was visible for some considerable distance, but was crudely formed.

Provincial Constable R. S. Patterson, who removed the symbol with a knife, said the sign was painted fully six feet from the ground and above where a child could reach. The matter was reported to the Provincial Police by Bata officials late Tuesday.

THEFT OF MONEY TRACED TO BOYS

For the past few months sums of money have been repeatedly mysteriously disappearing from the cash box in Mr. J. McFee's Optical Parlors, 218 Front St., causing Mr. McFee considerable concern. Sums ranging from six to twenty-five dollars were taken at different intervals and no trace of the thieves could be made.

Yesterday Mr. McFee reported the incident to police authorities and provided what information he could regarding the mystery. Later Detective Fred Isard questioned three teen-aged lads regarding the theft of the money and learned the trio of lads had worked a confidence racket to steal the money.

"They would enter Mr. McFee's office and request the use of the telephone and if the proprietor turned his back they would reach across the desk and take small sums while talking to some party on the phone," Acting Chief Constable Harman stated after the lads ... station today. The matter will be heard in local juvenile court next week, while in the meantime the youthful culprits were given into the custody of their parents, who promised good behaviour.

ROBERT HOWARD PORTER

(Hungerford Township)

Robert Howard Porter died at his home in the 5th concession of Hungerford Township, near Thomasburg on Monday, August 4th. He was in failing health for some time.

The late Mr. Porter, who was in his 69th year was born near Thomasburg, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Porter. His mother's maiden name was Miss Jane Beckett. He resided in the district where he was born all his life and was a successful farmer. He was also interested in the cheese industry and was President of the Premier Cheese Factory for a number of years.

In the passing of Mr. Porter the Thomasburg District has lost a well liked and highly esteemed resident. He was a man of fine character and in the regard of many friends he held a high place. In religion he was a member of the United Church at Thomasburg and fraternally he was an Orangeman.

Surviving to mourn his loss and to whom the sympathy of many friends will be extended are his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Bertha Peterson and one brother, Mr. Fred Porter, Hungerford Township, near Thomasburg. A brother, Edward Porter, died last winter.

The funeral took place this Wednesday afternoon to the United Church in Thomasburg where service was conducted by the Rev. A. S. Doggett.

MISS RITA ROBINSON

(Thomasburg)

After a lengthy illness Rita Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery Robinson, Thomasburg R.R. No. 2, died Sunday evening, Aug. 3rd. at the Belleville General Hospital.

The late Rita Robinson was born eighteen years ago in the township of Hungerford and resided their all her life. She was well and favourably known and very popular among the younger people in the community.

Surviving to mourn her loss are her father and mother; three sisters, Mrs. Ed. Griffin, Mrs. Joe Burns of Detroit, Mich., and Mrs. John Kennedy, of Belleville, and four brothers, William Robinson and Harry Robinson of Port Colborne, Ross Robinson and Ed. Robinson, of Thomasburg.

The funeral was held from the residence of her parents and proceeded to Thomasburg United Church where the service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Knox.

The esteem in which the deceased was held was shown by the many floral tributes.

Burial took place in Thomasburg cemetery. The pallbearers were Lawrence Vance, Bernard Smith, Clifford Smith, Vernon Poste, Fred Hansford and Stanley Thompson.

Downtown Ticket Office Sets New Sales Record

That the public of the city and district are more travel-minded this year than it has been for some time, is evidenced in the statement of the manager of a ticket sales office, to the effect that last Saturday's business showed the largest figures in the history of the office.

Upwards of five thousand dollars found its way into the office coffers as a travelling public besieged it for tickets. The sharp uptrend in travel other than by automobile is attributed to not only the presence of air force stations in this district, but a desire on the part of many motorists to conserve gasoline.

Vacation travelling is now at its peak, the official stated. Many residents are taking long-distance trips and a large number are availing themselves of railroad facilities rather than travel by private car.

The high levels of travel investments are expected to continue throughout August and well into September.

Scarcity of Labor Delays Starting Of Civic Projects

Scarcity of workmen resulting in the inability of the Department of Public Works to increase their payroll is holding back repair work and new construction projects planned for this season by the city it was stated by City Engineer Charles Mott this morning. Along with the usual replacement of sidewalks and the installation of catch basins in different parts of the city, the construction of approximately 2,000 feet of sewer is on this season's work schedule but the problem of getting sufficient workers to carry out the program is disconcerting city officials.

Employees of the Parks Board are at present engaged in removing the fine old maple trees in the boulevard along the north side of Victoria Avenue running from Victoria Avenue Baptist Church toward Front Street. The removal of the trees is in preparation for widening the street at this point, it being the plan to dispense with the boulevard entirely as a means to relieve traffic congestion prevalent at this corner.

Discontinuance of rock crushing at the city quarry this week will relieve about eight men for other duties with the Department of Public Works and with the force thus augmented it is expected that a start will be made in the near future on the new sewers planned for Victoria Ave., Dufferin and Sinclair Streets.

SCHOOL FOR FERRY PILOTS

Albuquerque, N.M., Aug. 6—(AP)—Without fuss or fanfare a little band of veteran pilots, indoctrinated by weeks of gruelling instructing in advanced flying methods, marched out today as the graduating class of a unique aerial defence college.

They became the first alumni of the Eagle Nest flight centre, an advanced flying school established by Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., at War Department orders to train pilots for the Atlantic ferry command at Montreal.

Military secrecy cloaked their number.

Ldon, Aug. 6—(CP)—An aviatioauthority declared today on histurn from Soviet Russia that thRed Army Air Force has "a surising number" of women Fiter pilots and is master of the aibove Moscow.

blunting German raids aimed aMoscow, the Air Force is supped by "an absolute wall of hell f" thrown up by anti-aircraft teries shooting on a four-level p.

he authority said he went to scow to teach the Russians nething of air defence based on periences of London defenders, but found there was little the Russians did not already know.

While he was in Moscow, only six or seven German planes were able to get through the city's defences, he declared.

The Russians get results from the force of numbers, he said.

"They think nothing of sending hundreds of planes into the night air, no matter how bad flying conditions are," he said. "I've spent nights in London during some of the worst raids and I've spent some in Moscow. There is no comparison, the Nazis simply don't get through this wall of super fire put up by the Soviets."

Man Dies After Driving Car into Side of Engine

Fatally hurt as a result of a train-car accident on a railway crossing near Colborne last night, D. W. Murney, 33, of Bloomfield, died of injuries a short time after he was admitted to Belleville General Hospital. Dr. Van Blaksles, who attended the injured man, stated that death resulted from a fractured skull and internal injuries.

According to train officials, Murney was driving his car and apparently failed to see the train when approaching the crossing. The car crashed into the side of the engine of the crack No. 6 passenger train and was demolished. Murney was rushed to Brighton on the train but medical help was unavailable and he was brought to Belleville.

Martin's ambulance rushed the injured man to the hospital where he failed to rally to medical treatment. A preliminary inquest was held at the hospital today under Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson and the body released for burial.

Coal Deliveries Are Satisfactory Says Local Dealer

While the stepped up tempos of industrial activies in the United States may result in delayed deliveries, there is little prospect of a shortage of coal here, a prominent coal dealer told The Ontario Intelligencer today.

He discounted the suggestion that a sharp rise in prices would occur this Fall. "The ordinary increases that occur every year during the period from the early months till autumn will be in evidence, but nothing of a sensational nature is looked for", he said.

Foresighted coal-dealers took no chances during the first months of the year, he said, and placed orders with supplying firms in the U.S.A. Deliveries have been slow but not to the point where supplies have failed to meet the demand. Nova Scotia coal, he added, was not being shipped to Ontario and consequently there is a heavier demand on American supplies.

The volume of summer business is naturally increased, he said, and many people have already secured their winter supply of this fuel.

BELCHER FOLK ULTRA-LONELY AMONG ESKIMO

Trials of Three Natives for Nine Deaths Will be Unique and Exemplary Event for Far North Tribe

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa (CP)—Even for Eskimos, the natives on Belcher Islands in Hudson Bay are a lonely people.

"The Kittoktangmuits are different from us, the Itivimuits," say the mainland Eskimos when they speak of their brethren of the Islands where a judicial party headed by Mr. Justice C. P. Plaxton has gone to try two men and a woman for murder. It is expected the trials will open about Aug. 9.

Nine persons died in violence Eskimt encampments last winter Eskimo encampments last winter as the result of a bitter controversy over religious matters.

While extension of the fur trade, the search for minerals and the coming of the airplane brought northern posts and their Eskimo visitors into more frequent communication with the outside world, the Belcher Islands and their people were almost ignored.

Three hundred years ago Hudson'ss Bay Company captains sailing by Belcher Islandc noted in their logs that it was "a poor, miserable place" and hastened to leave its inhospitable shores and dangerous shoals.

Early charts of Hudson Bay showed the islands but later editions simply dropped them and inserted a warning to skippers that there were islands "in this area."

Caribou Quit

Until the caribou left the islands about 50 years ago, the Kittoktangmuits—it means "people of the islands"—lived as comfortably as any of their race. But after the big animals disappeared they knew all the hardships of a land of rock with sparse moss where the anemone flourishes in the brief spring.

While mainland Eskimos could make their clothing from deerskin, the islanders had to use the skins of birds, foxes and seals. They could not kill a few caribou and then rest until the meat was done. They had to hunt every day, and find food, unless they were fortunate enough to capture a white whale on which all the encampment could live for days.

Eskimos in frequent contact with white men have, like the Indians, absorbed many English words into their vocalbulary. The Belcher Islands still use only the rudimentary language of their forefathers.

Most of the islanders are believed to be descendants of those who lived on this barren land for hundreds of years, although there have been infrequent additions to their numbers when other Eskimos outlawed by mainland tribes made the ice crossing during the few weeks when such travel to the Islands is possible.

The few visitors who have gone to Belcher Islands, where a Hudson's Bay post now is established, have always paid tribute to the industry, independence and good naure of the natives.

The commander of a mounted police party which investigated two murders 21 years ago commented on the eagerness of the Belcher Eskimos to trade for articles they urgently needed. He said they never asked gifts or charity despite their poverty.

The islanders have demonstrated ingenuity in making clothing to suit the climate, making use of the skins of birds which come in multitudes during the summer to make their nest and raise their young in shallow lakes which dot the Islands. Sometimes garments are made with the feathers on the outer side but more often the feathers are turned inward.

Such clothing lacks the durability of deerskin or sealskin and the islander who can catch no seals has a persistent clothing-repair job on his hands.

Audience Expected

White men who have examined the iron ore deposits on the Islands said the Eskimos marvelled at their equipment — but while rifles, food, clothing and oil had to be left with light covering for long periods the Eskimos never displayed anything more than curiosity and were completely honest.

Ottawa officials said it was probable that many of the 150 Islanders would attend the trials of the three who have been held in Royal Canadian Mounted Police custody in Ontario since their arrest on murder charges last March.

As they listen to the words of the interpreter at the trials, officials said, they will learn something of the white man's law and that those who are found guilty of a crime must suffer punishment.

Canadian Press Issues Statement

Regrets Any Embarrassment Caused by 'Unwarranted Interpretation' of Certain News Items From Truro, N.S.

Halifax, Aug. 6 (CP)—In stories from Truro, N.S., on July 31 and Aug. 1 regarding the destruction of an amusement show by 500 soldiers, The Canadian Press reported that the wounding of Trooper C. Dufresne of Montreal, which preceded the destruction, occurred during an argument with Frank Elliott, owner of the show. Mr. Elliott is charged with shooting with intent to maim but has not been tried.

It has been brought to the attenion of The Canadian Press that its news items might have been interpreted as meaning that Mr. Elliott fired the shot which wounded the trooper.

The Canadian Press wishes to state that it was not its intention to convey that impression and such construction is expressly repudiated. It regrets any embarrassment which may have been caused to Mr. Elliott by such unwarranted interpretation of the items.

Tickets on Kiwanis Car Meeting With Wide Enthusiasm

The various members of the Belleville Kiwanis Club in charge of the ticket sales on the 1941 Plymouth two-door sedan which is to be the grand prize at the Kiwanis Karnival on August 20th and 21st, say that the books of tickets which were distributed to Belleville householders are beginning to come back.

Householders fill in the stubs in the book and return to the Kiwanis Club with a dollar bill, retaining the tickets for identification after the draw.

A very valuable ladies prize is being drawn for on the Karnival date. A Hope Chest containing many desirable articles and valued at $150.00. Tickets are being sold on this prize at twenty-five cents each.

The publicity committee of the Karnival announced that there would be fifty prizes or more.

The Karnival is to be held on Front Street in Belleville, between the corners of Victoria Avenue and Bridge Street. Two big nights Wednesday and Thursday, August 20th and 21st.

HUGE TAX BILL FOR U.S. DEFENCE GOES TO SENATE

Carries Thumping House Approval but Talk of Revisions is Heard

EFFECT OF TAXATION

Washington, Aug. 6 (AP)—The huge $3,206,200,000 United States defence tax bill went to the Senate yesterday bearing a thumping House approval but almost immediately there was talk it might undergo major revisions.

It passed the House by a vote of 369 to 30 late yesterday after it had first been stripped of a provision for requiring all married persons to file joint income tax returns. This provision had been counted on to raise about $323,000,000 in additional revenue by compelling many married persons to pay higher surtaxes.

Chairman Walter George (Dem-Georgia) of the Senate Finance Committee, expressed belief the Senate would not seek to reinstate the controverted provision but would try to make up the deficiency elsewhere, possibly by revision of the income tax brackets to broaden the bases.

Triple Tax in Lower and Middle Income Brackets

The bill would virtually triple the taxes of persons in the lower and middle income groups by leaving a graduated system of surtaxes starting at five per cent on the first dollar of taxable income and ranging up to 75 per cent (the present maximum) on incomes of $5,000,000 and over.

These surtaxes would be in addition to the present normal income tax rate of four per cent, which was continued. But even at that, a married man earning $2,500 and having no dependents would pay $38.50 under the new plan compared with his present tax of $11.

Approximately $1,322,000,000 would be raised from corporations through surtaxes, stiffer excess profits taxes and a drastically revised method of computing them. Surtaxes would start at five per cent on profits up to $25,000 and rise to six per cent on any amount of excess of that. Excess profits tax rates which now range from 25 to 50 per cent would be boosted to run from 35 to 60 per cent.

Computation of Taxes

Corporations would be required to compute their excess profits before deducting their normal taxes, reversing existing law. Despite President Roosevelt's contention that many firms making up to 50 per cent profit on their invested capital would be able to escape making an increased contribution to the defence program, the bill would permit corporations to compute their excess profits by either the average earnings or invested capital methods. The President recommended that only the later method be auhorized.

Besides the direct taxes on both individuals and corporations, the bill wouuld impose almost 40 new or higher excise taxes on commodities and services to raise about $880,100,000. These levies include a $5 annual use tax on all passenger automobiles, a five per cent tax on everyone's monthly telephone bill and 10 per cent excises on a host of things such as luggage, jewelry, furs, cosmetics, business machines and musical instruments.

Responsible officials expect the nation's total revenues this fiscal year to approximate $12,500,000,000, including the $3,206,200,000 estimated yield from the pending tax bill. Spending, however, is scheduled to be in excess of $22,269,000,000, for a deficit of nearly $10,000,000. The same sources forecast a national debt of $57,850,000,000 by June 30, 1942, the end of the fiscal year.

Speaker Pays Tribute to Bravery Of British Merchant Marine Sailors

"The sailors of the British Merchant Marine are all deserving of Victoria Crosses. It is they who are fighting the Battle of the Atlantic and their braving of torpedoes and raiders is a defiance to the Hun's efforts that the life-line to Britain be cut," declared Mr. R. Harristn of Halifax, Past Governor of O.Q.M. District for Kiwanis, as he spoke at the regular weekly luncheon of the Belleville Kiwanis held at the Queen's Hotel on Tuesday.

"The life-line to Britain will never be cut, however," he said. "Not so long as Britain and the United States can supply the ships needed or until the courage of Britons is broken, and when that courage is broken, there will be no line on the Atlantic to hold."

Mr. Harrison was co-guest speaker at the luncheon with Mr. Horace Porter of St. John, New Brunswick, charter member of Kiwanis for that city, and gave local Kiwanians a brief word picture of the work which Canadian Service Clubs are doing for the fighting forces and men of the merchant marine in the Eastern Canadian port which, he said, was a veritable "armed camp."

"The population of Halifax has been enormously increased since the start of the war," stated the speaker, and in spite of the fact that houses are being constructed at the rate of five per day it is practically impossible to obtain accommodation. Service clubs are operating in all a total of eight hostels, each accommodating upwards of five to eight hundred persons and yet sailors find it impossible to acquire accommodation."

Service Clubs Aid

Mr. Harrison stated that every concievable preparation for emergencies arising out of possible war action have been made by service clubs in Halifax, their "disaster work," as he termed it, being a vital phase of their program. Intense as their work has been, however, Mr. Harrison wished for more "steam" behind the efforts of the service clubs, stating that there was still too much apathy and complacency towards the war effort. "We must supply those who are holding the line," he concluded. "If we don't, everything goes."

Mr. Horace Porter, in the city attending the convention of the Sovereign Grand Priory Knights Templar, gave local Kiwanians a brief insight into the war program of the St. John Kiwanis Club, the high point of which was their resumption of their work among the underprivileged children. The club had adopted the principle of not taking on any permanent program, but had been asked by the city to assume the responsibility of underprivileged and had established playgrounds which were under Kiwanian supervision. The "Seamen's Mission" was one of the most popular branches of service club work and entailed extension of accommodations to sailors. "The Club are not doing so much as a club, but are doing considerable individually," he said.

Bond of Friendship Grows

In closing the speaker related the feeling of internationalism which had predominated in a recent meeting in the Maritimes of Canadian and Unied States Kiwanis Clubs. The feeling brought out in the reply by the Kiwanian who responded to the American expression of good will was, that although there had been differences of opinion between Canadians and Americans, these feelings had been outgrown or had been settled satisfactorily by arbitration, imaginary boundaries had grown less and together they hoped to make democracy universal.

Discussion of the forthcoming Kiwanis Karnival and reports on the progress of ticket sales for the car to be given away was the only business entered upon at the luncheon, several of the members forwarding novel means for furthering ticket sales. Introduction of a chart bearing the names of Kiwanis members upon which the results of each member's ticket sales are to be progressively marked was expected to add momentum to the drive.

Past President Dr. R. A. Flynn, occupied the chair in the absence of President J. Barclay while Kiwanian guests were introduced by their various hosts. Eddie Logan extending the Club welcome. Leo Riggs acted as pianist for the sing song which was led by Harold Carruthers. Dr. Reg. Anderson introduced the guest speaker, while club appreciation was extended by Mills Marrs.

Canadian Bakers Are Forbidden To Sell Sliced Bread After Aug. 11

Ottawa, August 6.—(CP)—Effective August 11, Canadian bakers will be unable to sell sliced loaves, make special bread deliveries or use multi-colored or double wrappers, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board announced last night.

"The removal of the wheat processing tax announced late last week and these new economies in manufacture and delivery should, in the opinion of the board, render unnecessary any increase in the retail price of bread", a board statement said.

The new measures—an extension of the board's previous wartime price regulation to encompass also conditions of sale—are being taken to conserve materials, power and labor which can be used more effectively in the national defence program, the statement added.

On and after next Monday no bread company or retailer will be permitted to make a special delivery of bread to householders. Double wrapping and slicing of bread must also cease on that date.

Bakers will be permitted to use up current supplies of multi-colored single wrappers but after that wrappers must be printed in not more than one color on a single colored paper.

Removal of the 15-cents-a-bushel processing tax on wheat milled for domestic consumption was announced last week by Trade Minister MacKinnon.

Only last Saturday Hector McKinnon, chairman of the Prices and Trade Board, said that if bakers increased the price of bread despite removal of the tax "we shall have to investigate at once".

However, Mr. McKinnon said it probably would be correct to say bakers who raised their prices before removal of the tax would not be instructed to reduce prices again, although some might find that action necessary because of public opinion or competition.

Another board source said at that time that the bakers had made what would appear to be "a pretty strong case that it was no longer possible to hold down prices to the existing levels".

Tuesday night's statement said the board's new action was expected to remove the need for increased prices.

Wife Collapses As Husband Remanded

Hull, Que., Aug. 6—(CP)—Remand without pleading until next Tuesday was granted yesterday to Herve Bilodeau, 45, of Hull when he was arraigned on a charge of converting to his own use and stealing $13,170 from the Hull branch of National Breweries between March 1932 and July, 1941.

Bail was fixed at $5,000.

When the accused was remanded in custody, Mrs. Bilodeau who was sitting beside her husband in court screamed and collapsed close to the jury-box. She war taken from the court by High Constable Achille Ricard.

Montreal Pipeline Gets Top Priority

Washington, August 6.—(AP) — Intent on expediting delivery of oil to Canada "and the flow of munitions from there to Britain", Harold Ickes, United States Defence Petroleum Co-ordinator, announced today plans to complete before winter the 260-mile petroleum pipeline from Portland, Me., to Montreal.

The priority rating for the line, Mr. Ickes said, was changed from A-2 to A-1-A, the highest obtainable. The action was taken by the Office of Production Management, on recommendation of the oil co-ordinator.

No other pipeline project now is more urgent, Mr. Ickes said. The higher preference should assure completion of the line before snow flies, he added.

The Portland-Montreal line, Mr. Ickes declared, could be considered an integral part of the aid-to-Britain program, because the oil to be delivered would be used largely by Canadian defence industries in maintaining the flow of munitions.

Other advantages of early completion Mr. Ickes listed as

1. The reduction by 2,000 miles of the distance now traversed by tankers in delivering oil to Montreal.

2. Clearing the way for certain other essential pipeline projects now being planned to maintain the supply of petroleum to the eastern United States.

The American section of the line is being constructed by the Portland Pipe Line Co., and extends across Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont to the international boundary near Highwater, Que. There it connects with a similar conduit being built by the Montreal Pipe Line Co., Ltd.

Daily carrying capacity of this line will vary between 30,000 and 60,000 barrels, depending on the types of crude oils being moved.

SERVE BY SALVAGING

Here is a call to Canadian men, to Canadian housewives, to Canadian boys and girls. It is a chance for them to help win the war. Salvage is a war job they all can do—collect rags, metals, bones, and turn them over to their local salvage committee. More especially they can collect all kinds of tin, aluminum and lead foil.

Foil is of use in the nation's war time economy. Canada's National Salvage turns it back to industry, money from its sale goes to war charities and to the War Department for war purposes. The raw materials of foil are essential war commodities. Airplane paints have a lead base, tinfoil goes into the making of certain artillery shells, the rifling rings of some shells have a small percentage of tin for some secret and technical purpose.

Whence comes this foil? from yeast, cheeses, candies and other foods, from cigarette packages, from face creams, tooth pastes, shaving creams, shoe dressings.

These materials can be used again in industry—their use brings money for war purposes.

Steps should be taken to save them now. There should be a wave of interest with everyone co-operating. If you have foil, do not crumple it up or roll it into a ball, leave each piece flat and separate. Remove the paper from it.

A city or town or a village can collect a large amount of foil and serve by salvaging.

SOMETHING NEW IN RUSSIA

Russian size counts for something. Witness the two huge tanks which were reported yesterday as victors in a battle against a German infantry column, German light tanks and armoured division. The German infantry gave way, fifteen of their tanks were smashed and ten armored cars belonging to Hitler were crumpled up. The Russian tanks did not fire a gun. They merely charged.

German soldiers on whom Hitler depended to win the war are seeing amazing sights in Russia where the unusual does happen and will happen because the Russian is imaginative and naturally develops ideas and instruments different from those of the German who is so terribly matter-of-fact and so materialistic in his outlook.

And the German has found something else new besides big tanks which he did not believe in. He has found that the Russians have a vast strength in their courage and fatalism. With their great man power this means they can be a big factor in wearing down the enemy.

Hitler's group invented the blitzkrieg to conquer all nations. He cannot change his model now even if the Russians have something different. Hitler cannot invent a new technique for time presses. The technique he used on the countries he has overrun was built for the task Hitler meant them to do, but he had left Russia for nearly two years to grow and then he thought it was time to strike whether the reason was demand for gasoline, oil and wheat or the purpose of trying to remove Russia from the role of eventual enemy which his actions might lead to turn against him at a moment when he least would desire to have Russia in. He chose his time. But in that two years Russia added to her strength and studied Nazi blitzkrieg methods and no doubt improved some of their devices. Now the Hun is an inveterate purloiner of ideas. He took the tank, a British invention, and made it a part of the lightning war, he took the glider, the invention of another country, he took the parachute, a Russian idea for modern war and applied these to the German conception of war instruments.

But the Russian has imagination which is natural to himself and he uses it well.

Now the Russian has something new that Hitler's armies have met for the first time and it puzzles them, this vast scale of things, this peculiar patriotism of the Russians for their country. Hitler lowered his soldiery to the level of the robot which has everything thought out for him and has but to obey, but the Russian keeps his imagination or soul and uses it.

SPEAKING OF REGATTAS

Bob Schelling, chairman of Region 13 American Power Boat Association cocked a speculative eye at a bevy of power boats which were kicking up a spray on the Prince Edward Yacht Club course on Monday afternoon. He jerked his blue yachting cap down over one eye. Nearby his attractive wife-secretary "Dode" was making sweeping arcs with a checkered flag.

"Y'know," Bob said, "that water out there is nearly dead."

"That water, M'sieu Robert," we opined, "is to this unnautical eye very much alive. As a matter of fact a few moments ago we almost wrapped ourself in it."

Bob threw back his head and laughed. "What I mean by dead," he chuckled, "is that it is too calm to get a maximum speed out of those big 225 babies. What they need is a slight ripple to put life in the water."

He paused as Jackie "Pops" Cooper, sixty-two-year-old dean of American power-boat drivers roared past, his "Tops 3rd" curvetting in a wide arc as he veered off the course.

"Pops" ventured Bob, "would have bettered his time and the other chap who came within a few seconds of tying the world's record would have cracked it wide open, had the water had a little more life."

An overworked piece of chewing gum disappeared down the reportorial gullet as the five-minute gun of the next race roared out in the afternoon air.

"Confidentally, Robert," we spluttered, "have you heard anything regarding cancellation of future regattas by the Oil Controller to assist in the nation's efforts to conserve gasoline?"

Bob cast an expert eye down the course where the miniature water tornadoes were doing high jinks in a smother of white water.

"Look at those babies come," he exulted, as the 225's roared down the course.

The starting gun drowned out further remarks. The flying craft roared by, streaks of nautical lightning, drivers crouched low in their seats as their boats sped over the surface of the water.

Bob turned. "Now, we're back to earth again," he grinned. "I can truthfully say 'No' to your question. The Canadian National Exhibition cancelled its regatta voluntarily. Personally, I believe no regattas should be cancelled for they have the opposite effect to what is generally believed regarding conservation of gas."

"Look at those cars," motioning with a sweeping gesture at the hundreds of automobiles parked on the slopes rising from the shoreline. "Look at 'em. Are they on the highways burning fuel? And believe me, that is where a lot of them would be if regattas were not held. What gasoline is consumed here by the speed-boats is not a drop in the bucket to what those big eight-cylinder babies would use if regattas were cancelled."

Bob gestured toward the opposite side of the bay where handsome sailing craft, and rakish cruising jobs lay at anchor. "And there is another thing," he remarked. "If you pay attention you will note that the majority of those boats fly the Stars and Stripes. Large numbers of American cars are parked in the city, and you could not get a room here last night if you offered the landlord the Gold Cup and a couple of 225's thrown in for good measure. Plenty of good American dollars found their way into Canadian pockets over the holiday here. Why, because of the regatta. And you can tell your editor to put that in his official pipe and inhale therefrom."

The genial chairman to whom speed-boat racing is what the coat is to the pants, Mutt is to Jeff and pepper is to salt, warmed to his subject. "It's the best sport in the world," he said, his eyes taking in the scores of craft that dotted the bay near the course. "And these Picton lads put on a grand show. They have everything here insofar as Mother Nature is concerned. She gave them a natural course that is one of the best on the North American continent, and with the experience gained every year, their regatta will rank with the best of 'em."

He turned away. "Hey, Dode," sang out the one-man regatta committee, "hold that match." And he puffed contentedly on a cigarette as his beloved speedboats came roaring down the waterlanes.

NIGHT GAME

Thought it couldn't happen; baseball seemed to me
Something for the sunshine, so the fans could see.
Read about them playing 'neath the stars at night,
Wondered how they ever watched the ball in flight.
Just a bit old-fashioned—fogey if you will—
Clinging to the notion things are standing still.

Thought they'd never do it. Baseball had to be Played 'twixt noon and twilight, "Batter up!" at three.
Baseball needed sunshine; couldn't do with moon
All the games were scheduled for the afternoon.
'Twill be so forever! Age is seldom right!
Learned another lesson! Saw a game last night.

Went to see the Tigers play Chicago's Sox,
Stands were packed with people Newsome in the box.
Field was brightly lighted—all as clear as day—
Even read the scoreboard five hundred feet away—
Thought 'twould never happen; sure they needed sun.
Fool am I for ever thinking "can't be done!"

King Leopold Is Vindicated

London (By Mail)—Admiral of the Fleet Sir Roger Keyes, M. P., stated recently that he was "a very happy man" as he left the law courts after vindicating his friend, King Leopold of the Belgians, for the part he played in the capitulation. He had waited more than a year for the opportunity.

When he returned from Belgium after the capitulation, Sir Roger, who had been special liaison officer with King Leopold, appealed for suspension of judgment on the action of the king—"a very gallant soldier" — until the facts were known.

Those facts were revealed when the drama of Belgium, in the seven tragic days before her collapse on May 27 last year, was told in a statement read on Sir Roger's behalf by Sir Frederick Hastings, K.C. Sir Patrick was explaining the settlement of a libel action brought against the proprietors of the Daily Mirror, which, in an article on May 30, 1940, attacked King Leopold and criticized Sir Roger. Sir Patrick Hastings announced that the defence had been wholly withdrawn, damages agreed, and apologies made. Points in his statement were:

On May 30 King Leopold asked Sir Roger to inform the British Government and Lord Gort (the then Commander-in-Chief) that the Belgian army had neither tanks nor aircraft and existed solely for defence. The king wished to make it clear that if the British and Belgian armies were separated, Belgium capitulation would be inevitable. The Belgian army, by May 17, was running short of food and ammunition and being attacked by eight German divisions, including armoured units and wave after wave of dive-bombers. That morning the king asked Sir Roger to inform the British and French authorities that he would be obliged to surrender before a debacle took place.

By afternoon the Germans had driven a wedge between the Belgian and British armies. Every road, village and town was thronged with thousands of men, women and children being mercilessly bombed and gunned. At 5 p.m. King Leopold informed the British and French authorities that he intended at midnight to ask for an armistice to avoid further slaughter of his people.

This message, said Sir Patrick, was promptly received in London and Paris, but all communications with the British army were cut, and, though wireless messages were repeatedly sent, it is known that these did not reach the commander-in-chief.

Mr. G. O. Slade, for the Daily Mirror, said they wished not only to make amends to Sir Roger Keyes—whose "dignified and fair-minded attitude" in asking for a suspension of popular judgment on King Leopold had been "abundantly justified"—but also to apologize to King Leopold for "a very grave injustice."

Mr. Justice Tucker made an order for the withdrawal of the action, and for payment out of court of the damages.—Hamilton Spectator.

Bombing Distances

With long-range bombers bringing the war fronts closer every day, let us look at some of the distances that a few years ago were considered too far for air flights.

How strategic Iceland has become is shown clearly by the map.

Bergen to Faeroes Islands, 415 miles.

Faeroes to Reykjavik, Iceland, 500 miles.

Reykjavik to Julianehaab, Greenland, 950 miles.

Julianehaab to Cartwright, Labrador, 600 miles.

Cartwright to Halifax, N.S., 700 miles.

Halifax to New York City, 682 miles.

There is not a long jump in any of those. If the Nazis had occupied Iceland and Greenland, they would have taken two of the bridgeheads linking Europe with North America.

Then, there is Azores path.

From the Azores to Bermuda is 2,068 miles.

The Americans are already based in Bermuda and alert American naval and marine officers are keeping a weather eye on the Azores, lest the Nazis try to gain a foothold there.

Farther south in the Dakar area, we find that Dakar in Africa is only 2,450 miles straight across to Georgetown in British Guiana near the northern tip of South America.

With bombers having a range of thousands of miles, it is no wonder President Roosevelt and his aides are keeping close watch on all these avenues of approach by which the Nazis may try to invade North America.—Windsor Star.

Pipe lines in the United States move an equivalent of 3,330,000 carloads of petroleum and its products annually.

Nine research centres have been founded by the Egyptian government to improve existing and create new industries.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

The Few to Whom Many Owe so Much

LONDON (by Wireless)—Without exception the R.A.F. fighters with whom I have talked claim complete superiority in the air, "as far as our fuel will take us." They do not claim it merely man for man and plane for plane, but as a fighting force. They acknowledge a radical numerical superiority of Nazis.

When I asked, "Before the Russian campaign?" they answered, "Not altogether. But in the first two weeks of the Russian campaign there was nothing but rubbish in the air. We have pulled a lot of first-rate Nazi pilots back from the eastern front."

The Nazi numerical superiority does not bother the R.A.F. fighters, however. They remember when it was overwhelming, when man for man and plane for plane superiority accomplished wonders. They say, "The original enemy tactic is no good . Too many planes are as bad as too few. When the air is black with them it is like flying into a flight of wild geese. Maybe you come down, but you also had a chance of bringing down five or even ten of them. They got in each other's way. They even had to paint the noses of their planes yellow to distinguish their own."

They say contemptuously, "The Nazis are a brave lot when they out-number us ten to five, but they won't come in even with tactical advantages even when fighting over their own soil, where they could bale out in relative safety, unless they are numerically superior. There are occasional exceptions, of course, but that holds as a generality."

x—x

The R.A.F. men have great strategical disadvantages in daylight bombing over Germany. Except from great heighths made increasingly effective by the new American bombers capable of carrying heavy bomb loads it is out of the question, because no fighters can fuel themselves to Germany and back. But within an area which they can cover they fear no German planes, or fleets of them.

They declare they are pushing the air battle front further and further into France. They also are convinced of the superiority of their fighting planes in speed and height. But above all they are convinced of their superiority in personnel, initiative, teamwork and sheer guts.

"If the Nazis could add to their operational tactics half of the British guts they would be invincible," one airman said. The R.A.F.'s attitude toward the Nazis is that of members of the free corps to a mass of men.

x—x

Personally I am inclined to think that the British airman is nearer the sailor than the soldier, whereas the Nazi airman is nearer the soldier than the sailor. The Nazi airman is a man in boots; the British airman is not. Like the sailor he counts continually with the unforeseen, counting on leadership and improvisation whereas the Nazi counts on staff work.

The sea made Britain and British education has salt air in it at all times in the emphasis of personal leadership. The German is accustomed to battling against other men; the Briton is accustomed to battling against the elements, and the elements are arbitrary and do not take orders from the Luftwaffe command.

x—x

British airmen have had opportunities to encounter many Nazi pilots who have been shot down. They characterize them on the whole as a boastful lot. "Disgustingly arrogant," they say. "Lately," they add, "they have been less so."

Some Nazis have given themselves up docilely and confessed they were glad to be out of it. But as a rule, the British airmen say the Nazis have an unshakeable servile confidence in the Fuehrer, who in their minds can make no mistake.

"He made a mistake about being in London by September fifteenth, last year," one Briton twitted.

"He changed his mind," a Nazi airman replied, coldly.

The British airmen say "that the Nazis believe their own propaganda is a jolly good thing for us."

The Nazis, for instance, are surprised at being fed in England. They expect brutal treatment. They do not get it from the British airmen, but neither do they get the British airmen's admiration.

Says Lindy to Lindbergh

From The New Yorker

The method by which Mr. Lindbergh chose to deny that there is any official relationship between himself and the Nazi Government of Germany has brought to light the existence of a personal relationship between Lindbergh and himself which we find more interesting than the accusations made by Secretary Ickes. We have tried to reconstruct the interview that must have taken place in the privacy of the study at Lloyd Neck when the Lone Eagle faced himself and decided to write that letter to the President.

"They're calling us names, old fellow," says Lindbergh to himself.

"Well, Lindy," he answers, "I think it warrants a governmental inquiry."

"Better ask the President to drop what he's doing and appoint a committee to look over our files, eh?"

Clearly, it was Lindbergh's visit to Paris in 1927, rather than his visit to Berlin in 1938, that started his present train of thought and action. There was the original desire to be the first man to fly from New York to Paris without stopping — a laudable aim, but egocentric. Then the acclaim. And now the revelation of the permanent effect of that acclaim — the blissful internal harmony, the ineluctable feeling of self-importance, the ex-flyer humorlessly asking the President of the United States to determine the fairness of a passing poke a public official took at him in a speech.

"I am an important fgiure," says Lindbergh to Lindbergh, and it is touching to find him still so ingenuous toward himself somehow reminds us of what we have always thought of as a rather historical remark dropped by Jack Johnson, the prize-fighter, in an interview we had with him some ten years after he was knocked out by Jess Willard. "Ah'm a deep and colorful personality," said Jack, looking us right in the eye.

BAG AND BAGGAGE

Pack up your trobules in your old kit-bag,
And Smile, Boys, Smile.

"Kit" is derived from a Dutch word meaning jug. Literally "kit-bag" signifies "jug-bag" and is tautological, but long ago "kit" came to mean one's outfit and now a kit-bag is a haversack.

Havermeal is oatmeal; havercake is oatcake, and havergrass is oat grass.

The literal meaning of "knapsack" is a bag in which food is carried. "Knap" is derived from Dutch "knappen," to eat.

Carpet-bag, a portable bag formerly much used by travellers, got its name from originally having been made of carpet material.

A musette bag is a canvas or leather wallet or case suspended from a belt over the shoulder and used by soldiers to carry provisions. The term "musette" is from a French word meaning "to play the bagpipe."

Nobody knows just why the name "ditty bag" was given to the small bag or box in which sailors carry their gadgets.

Ordinary travelers carry satchels, valises, handbags, grips, suitcases, brief-cases, Gladstone bags, telescope bags or just plain bags.

If their traveling wardrobe is too large for handbags, they take along a trunk, unless a smaller trunk known as a chest is adequate for the purpose.

In case an ordinary trunk is not sufficient, they may use a large trunk known as a Saratoga or steamer trunk.

An American traveler is likely to take along babbage, while an Englishman would take along luggage.

In Shakespeare's time "scrip and scrippage" meant the same as "bag and baggage." A scrip was a wallet or bag carried by travelers.

Centuries ago Englishmen used to take pigs to market in a poke, which was a gunney sack. A pocket is merely a little poke.

De Gaullist Defies Nazis

Vichy, France, Aug. 6—(AP)—German police joined a Vichy French search today for a man described as "one of the most active De Gaullist agents" in Caen Normandy.

He was said to have placed a wreath on a monument to French war dead last July 14, despite a ban on celebration of France's Bastille Day. He shot his way out of police traps. A chief of police was wounded fatally.

The Paris newspaper Paris Soir claimed the man actually was English. The newspaper said he was Jean Hopper, born in King's Lynn, Norfolk, and used false identification papers in France

It was said the man drove in a car to the war monument wearing the uniform of a French officer, placed the wreath and got away. A policeman at Caen was shot July 27th, when he stopped a car of the same description and questioned its occupants.

Police said they located the same car in a small garage and laid a trap August 1st but that a man who came to the garage shot his way free, wounding the Caen police chief fatally. The Paris Soir said an Englishman named Jean Hopper had a mother, wife and daughter who were in a concentration camp.

Weddings

MARRIOTT—CARSON

The marriage of Mary Josephine Carson, daughter of Mrs. Andrew Wilson, Peterborough, to Laurence Herbert Marriott, of Tweed, son of Mrs. Harry Marriott, of Campbellford, took place in Murray Street Baptist Church, Peterborough, on Saturday evening. The Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe officiated, and the wedding music was played by Mr. Arthur Collison.

The bride chose a gown of blue lace and net over taffeta with matching hat and carried a shower bouquet of Premier Supreme roses and bouvardia. She was attended by Mrs. Vernon A. Reid, matron of honor, wearing pink lace and net over taffeta with matching hat. Miss Betty Wilson was her sister's bridesmaid and she wore a gown of pink sheer crepe. Both carried nosegays of Briarcliffe roses and summer flowers. Mr. Albert Gifford, of Campbellford, was best man.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Hotel Champlain. Later the couple left for a motor trip, the bride travelling in a printed silk dress with jacket and black accessories. They will reside in Tweed on their return.

LLOYD—TELFORD

Alliance Tabernacle Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Friday afternoon at two o'clock when Jenny, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Godfrey Telford, became the bride of Spencer Earl Lloyd, son of Mrs. Lloyd and the late Mr. W. Lloyd. Rev. C. V. Freeman officiated.

The church was beautifully decorated with summer flowers. The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked charming in blue sheer, an off the face hat, with white accessories and carried Sweetheart roses with fern. Miss Margaret Alice Telford was her sister's bridesmaid wearing pink sheer with white accessories and corsage of sweet peas. Mr. Alfred Lloyd was groomsman. Wedding music was played by Mrs. Emily Veley.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, after the ceremony. The young couple will reside in Belleville.

BELAIR—HAINAULT

An interesting wedding took place in Corpus Christi Church, Toronto, on Saturday morning, August 2nd., at nine o'clock when Adrienne Dolores, daughter of Mrs. A. Hainault and the late Mr. Hainault, 27 Orchard Park Blvd., Toronto, became the bride of James Alexander Belair son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter N. Belair of this city. Rev. Father McGrath officiated. Wedding music was played by the organist of the church.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Adrian Hainault, wore a lovely frock of Alice blue, redingote style, with matching hat and corsage of roses. Miss Claire Hainault, wearing navy blue with corsage of roses, was her sister's bridesmaid and Mr. Jack Doyle, Belleville, was groomsman.

Following the ceremony a reception took place at the Guild of All Arts. Mr. and Mrs. Belair left on a motor trip to Muskoka and Algonquin Park, the bride travelling in a navy blue ensemble. Upon their return they will reside in Belleville.

NICHOLSON—TILLEY

St. Thomas' Church was the scene of a lovely mid-summer wedding at four o'clock on Saturday afternoon when Dorothy Irene, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tilley, became the bride of Seregant James Allen Motherwell Nicholson, R.C.A.F., elder son of Sgt.-Major and Mrs. J. J. Nicholson of Vancouver. Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne performed the ceremony. The church was beautifully decorated with gladioli for the occasion.

Mr. W. E. Wheatley presided at the organ for wedding music and the bride's aunt, Mrs. F. J. Nevery of Boston, concert soprano, was soloist. Before the ceremony she sang "Just for Today" and during the signing of the register her solos were "I Love You Truly" and "Because".

The bride given in marriage by her father, was a graceful figure in her gown of white silk jersey, floor length style, with accordion pleated skirt. Her veil was caught to her hair with a halo of orange blossoms and she carried Talisman roses and bouvardia. Mrs. J. N. Garbutt, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and wore Bavarian blue silk jersey with white hat and accessories. Her bouquet was of Talisman roses. Corporal Bruce W. Nicholson, R.C.A.F., Vancouver, was groomsman for his brother, and the ushers were Mr. V. J. White and Mr. J. N. Garbutt.

BATEMAN—AIKINS

Tall standards of gladioli and fern made an effective setting for the wedding in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock when Elma Jean, daughter of Mr. Frank Aikins and the late Mrs. Aikins, became the bride of William Alexander Bateman, Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Bateman, Toronto. Rev. W. J. Walker officiated and wedding music was played by Mr. William Nevill.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in white point d'esprit over taffeta, her finger tip veil falling from a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of Talisman roses. Mrs. Charles MacKenzie, sister of the bride, was matron of honour, wearing blue sheer in princess lines with inserts of lace in the skirt. She wore a blue-picture hat and carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses. Miss June Aikins, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, in a pink sheer frock with shirred jacket. Her hat was a blue picture model and she carried Sweetheart roses and cornflowers. Mr. George Mills was groomsman and the ushers were Mr. Wm. Neilson, Toronto, and Mr. William McCoy, Toronto.

A recepton was held at the Hotel Quinte. Mrs. Foster Boulton, Brighton, eldest sister of the bride, wearing blue crepe shantung with white accessories and corsage of roses and Mrs. Bateman, the groom's mother, in dusky rose crepe with navy accessories and corsage of orchids received with the bride and groom.

After a wedding trip to Muskoka Lakes the bride and groom will take up residence at 100 Greensides Avenue, Toronto. For travelling the bride chose light blue crepe with white accessories and corsage of gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Hart, Sidney, Celebrate 30th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hart of Sidney, celebrated their thirtieth anniversary of their marriage at their farm home on August 2nd. They were taken by surprise by their relatives and friends.

Mrs. Hart, who was formerly Ethel Goldsmith, was born on the farm where she has lived all her life as did her ancestors. The land on which stands the old Goldsmith homestead was received direct from the Crown. The home is from one hundred and fifty-five to one hundred and sixty years old.

The house was gaily decorated for the occasion with white and pink streamers, white bells, flowers and ferns. The table was also prettily decorated with white and pink effect throughout.

Mr. Hart was born in Fulton, New York, and has spent about thirty-five years in Canada.

After their marriage Mrs. Hart with her husband resided on the farm where Mrs. Hart had been helping her father, the late Peter Goldsmith for several years.

Among the guests present were their daughter, Mrs. Gerald Brenton, Corbyville, their son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Elwin Hart who resides on the farm, Mrs. Hart's sister and her husband, Mrs. Roy Thrasher and Mr. Thrasher of Sidney, Mr. John Jepson and Miss Wright of Utica, N.Y., Misses Nina and Pearl Meyers and Mr. Howard Meyers of Wooler and Mr. and Mrs. H. Brenton of Corbyville also their grandson Master Bobby Hart.

According to studies made by a Yale University professor automobile drivers in their forties have the lowest accident rate.

Next at the McCarthy Theatre "Blondie in Society," again brings to the screen, the above trio, Baby Dumpling, Dagwood and Blondie. A new member of the cast is Edgar Kennedy, one of filmdom's greatest funsters.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

What Kind of Guest Were You on Your Last Visit?

Haven't you often wondered, after you have said good-by to your hostess and her family, just how you have measured up to your ideal of being a good guest?

A visit in another's home is an acid test of what kind of people we really are, what kind of personalities we have. Without being egotistical about ourselves, we may well feel a justifiable pride that we have done all those things we should have done, and left undone those things we should not have done. That's a grand feeling indeed! Or, alas, certain things we did we bitterly regret we did, and certain things we did not do we bitterly regret we did not do.

If you have been an ideal guest, you won't need to read farther.

But if your conscience pricks you a little (or much) perhaps we might analyze together some of the more temptations to which guests thoughtlessly yield, thereby leaving an unpleasant memory behind them.

Tops in the list of regrets is usually something we've said. We haven't guarded carefully enough that "unruly member", the tongue. We may be the kind of people who are always trying to remake other people nearer to our heart's desire. We may even be that mean kind of person who criticises hostess or host to the other guests. (Or criticises hostess, host and other guests, after our visit!) We may have made thoughtless or deliberately unkind remarks about our hostess' friends. We may have given our unasked opinions in family matters. Or we may have got into an argument over political or religious matters and advanced views, that were offensive to other guests.

All wise adults avoid, as they would the plague, making comparisons between the children in the home in which they are visiting and the children of any other friends. Enjoy and admire your hostess' children as much as you like—or can—but wisely forebear to make any comparison. or contrasts! The mother will like you better, and the children certainly will.

You may, too, be sorry for things that you did not say, such as those warm-hearted, appreciative, compliments on attractive features of the house, the thoughtful plans your hostess made for your comfort and pleasure, the charming friends she has, the courteous service of her well-trained maid.

If the household was a servantless one, perhaps you didn't even offer to assist with the work. You should have, and even if the hostess demurs, there are many things you can do unobtrusively. You can keep your bedroom and bathroom in order, and with a casual and pleasant cooperation, do many other things without seeming to regard them as duties.

Possibly you sat "like a bump on a log," expecting to be entertained every minute or expecting your hostess to spend every hour with you, and making no effort yourself to make your presence pleasant to other guests or to the children of the house.

Possibly you accepted invitations from friends in town without consulting your hostess. From all points of view, this is a thoughtless thing to do, makes all entertainment plans difficult.

Possibly you made your hostess uncomfortable by dwelling on some discomfort.... "I didn't sleep a wink all night. I never can sleep in a strang bed," or "I just dropped off to sleep last night when I heard Tommy drive in. I couldn't get to sleep after that," or "Did you hear your dog barking during the night?" or "The milkman was certainly noisy this morning," or "That bedroom is certainly flooded with morning sun, I never woke up so early in my life." Be a philosopher and let these unpleasantnesses go unremarked.

Did you make some generous bows to the hostess and the household? Take a little gift to the hostess when you went, or send one after you returned home? Take the children books or toys or games (not candy)? Tip the maid when you left?

And how about your bread-and-butter letter? Was it a sentence or two of generalities dashed off hastily and tardily? Or did you write it promptly, and was it enthusiastic, and did you make your hostess feel that you have the glorious gift of appreciation, appreciation not only for the Big Things but for the Little Big Things that she had so lovingly planned for your comfort and happiness?

Long, long thoughts, tonic for all of us!

Home Lessons Good for Unpopular Dance Errors

He'd Lead If She'd Let Him!

The wrong way to sweep a man off his feet!

If men aren't eager to dance with you, maybe that's one of your bad dance habits too—taking the lead from your partner as you dance backward.

To be the pliant light-footed dancer men like, practise at home with simple instructions and diagrams. Soon you can say YES to these questions!

In dancing backward, do you move your foot before your body moves? Sway slightly forward toward your partner until you can easily lift your heels? Do you relax your knees?

To dance backward without getting stepped on, you of course swing your leg way back, leading with your toe.

Or is your main dancing trouble just not knowing the steps?

Our 32-page booklet has clear footprint diagrams and instructions showing the most popular dance step and variations—rumba, Conga, tango, fox-trot, slow fox-trot, waltz, shag. Tells how to lead and follow, gives tips on posture, rhythm, different dance positions.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of HOME COURSE IN NEW BALLROOM DANCES to The Ontario Intelligencer Home Service, 166 Front St., Belleville, Ont. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Girl Wants Diamond Ring

Dear Miss Fairfax:

"What's the matter with these babes, anyhow. Are they all gold-diggers, or worse, square-cut diamond miners?

"I've been in love with a girl for ever so long, but as I had to help out at home I never had the courage to ask her to become engaged to me. Well, the lady herself settled that difficulty, and we were engaged, and I was the happiest fellow in the whole world.

"She told some of her friends about our engagement, and they gave us a party, and when we got there they all wanted to see her square-cut diamond, if you please. Well, that got her terribly upset and she said I hadn't got 'round to selecting one yet. On the way home she cried and took on, saying that she really would have to have a ring or she would look ridiculous.

"I thought real love meant more than engagement rings, even diamonds. I hadn't much money saved and I didn't want to leave my mother strapped, so I told my girl I would give her a ring but I was afraid it couldn't be a diamond. More tears. Now what's she after? A diamond ring or what?

Puzzled Draftee.

While you haven't told me this girl's age, I suppose the way she acted about the ring proves that she's just young and silly, and is too much influenced by girls as silly as she is. Millions of people become engaged with no thought of a ring, or if they do have one, compromise on something less expensive than square-cut diamonds. If she continues to nag you about it, it will indicate she's not the right girl for you after all.

A Young Man Who Doesn't Seem to Know His Own Mind

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 18 and he's one year older. We live 250 miles apart so I have seen him only during summer vacations for the past three years.

Whenever I visit in his home town he dates me every night. He has told me he enjoys being with me more than with anyone else. He's a very serious type, polite, and never jokes.

On my last visit to his town, I happened to say during the course of a conversation, that my "crowd" only went around together for the fun we got out of it. He said nothing, but just kissed me goodbye when I left. Later, at home, I received a letter saying he knew now that there could never be anything between us but a good, solid friendship, but perhaps I hadn't given it a thought as my friends and I were always having fun.

In the same letter he tells me he counts the days we're apart and hopes we'll have many more good times together. What do you make of him?

D.

He must be lacking in a sense of humor. This is confirmed by his writing that you could only be friends after you had told him that your crowd were not serious and went around together "for the fun" you got out of it. A group of young people, all deadly serious would be a very dull group, indeed. When he tells you he counts the days you're apart, it shows that he would be upset if you took him at his word and regarded him only as a friend. His trouble, I think is youth. "Older and wiser" is the universal remedy.

Wonders if the Cards Are Stacked Against Her

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A year ago I met a young man, who says he loves me very much and I'm sure I love him too. I can't imagine what it would be like to lose him. He thinks a great deal of his mother, but not his dad, who is a heavy drinker.

He now has a fairly good position. When we first started going together his family seemed to like me, but not now. Only one of his family of three sisters and one brother likes me, but his dad is very courteous to me. His mother had a nervous breakdown recently, and that may be the reason she dislikes me.

We are engaged since five weeks ago. We've set no date for our wedding. My parents are willing, but his mother swore she'd break us up.

From what I've told you, how do you think I stand? Are the cards stacked against us, or do we have a chance for future happiness? I am 20 years of age.

J. W.

It's always an uncomfortable experience for a girl to enter a family opposed to accepting her into its fold. Sometimes it's the only sensible thing to do, to disregard this opposition and go ahead with one's wedding plans. But in case of a girl of 20, don't you think it would be wiser to wait for a year at least and see how things turn out?

As your fiance's mother is just recovering from a nervous breakdown and at the moment disapproves of her son's engagement to you, why not let the dust settle before making any definite plans?

BANK ALARM COMES AFTER HOLDUP

Stroudsburg, Pa., Aug. 6 —(AP)—The burglar alarm sounded at the First National Bank last night—just 12 hours after four gunmen robbed two of the bank's messengers of $76,000 in a street holdup. Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and State Police, organizing a hunt for the fleeing bandits, rushed to the place and found a mechanical defect had set off the alarm.

"Love Crazy"

Comical complications ensue thick and fast when William Powell sets out to convince Myrna Loy that he's crazy in "Love Crazy," their latest hilarious adventure, now playing at the Belle Theatre.

It starts with a marital quarrel, and Myrna decides on a divorce. But Powell discovers that she can't legally divorce an insane husband, so insane he goes in a big way, chewing up phonograph records and otherwise staging "bughouse" antics.

But the alienists take him seriously and he's locked in an asylum. Then his antics in trying to become "sane" provide more trials and tribulations until he turns female impersonator to escape from his well meaning friends and find his way out of the dilemma and back into his wife's heart.

Powell was never more irresistibly funny than in his "crazy" portrayal and Miss Loy is ideal as the scandalized wife. Gail Patrick plays the "other woman" with conviction, and Jack Carson adds hilarity as the suitor who turns up after the separation.

Also of great aid to the production are Florence Bates, playing Powell's nosey mother-in-law, Sidney Blackmer as his lawyer, Sig Rumann and Vladimir Sokoloff as the alienists who pronounced Powell insane, Donald MacBride, Sara Haden, Kathleen Lockhart, Fern Emmett, Joseph Crehan and George Meeker.

Jack Conway's skillful direction gets every iota of comedy from the screaming situations, and Ray June photographed the picture with deft artistry.

The Belle News of the Day and "The Battle," an interesting screen miniature complete the program.

BIRTH

AT THE McCARTHY

"Blondie in Society"

Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake, and Larry Simms—the Bumstead family of cartoon strip, radio, and motion picture fame—return to the screen of the McCarthy Theatre this week-end in their latest happy adventure, Columbia's "Blondie in Society." Others in the cast include Danny Mummert, Jonathan Hale, Edgar Kennedy, William Frawley and Chick Chandler.

Frank R. Strayers, who made the sensationally successful Blondie predecessors, is responsible for the laugh-filled record of Blondie's adventures with the Four Hundred, a serious of hilarious incidents which begin with Dagwood almost arrested for writing out a $50 cheque without Blondie's knowledge. From that moment, through his hilarious acquisition of an over-sized and exceedingly hungry Great Dane which terrifies the neighborhood and almost wrecks the Bumstead's happy marriage the film is said to move with swift abandon to the hectic free-for-all which wrecks a swank dog show and effectively keeps Blondie out of society. On the other hand, Dagwood gets a bonus and a raise when his dizzy antics result in another million dollar deal so Blondie doesn't particularly care.

Penny Singleton, former musical comedy star, whose appearances as Blondie have won her a sensational new fame, is said to top in beauty and effectiveness even her previous performances. Lake and young Simms are equally fine in familiar roles. Kennedy is seen as a veterinarian who takes a beating both financially and physically from the irate Blondie; Frawlie is a millionaire with a penchant for Great Danes.

"Men Without Souls"

Said to even top the thrills of "The Big House," the new Columbia prison drama "Men Without Souls" featuring John Litel (as the prison chaplain), rough and ready Barton MacLane (as the ruthless convict leader), and Rochelle Hudson and Glenn Ford teamed in the romantic leads, will be presented this week-end, also at the McCarthy in addition to "Blondie in Society." A new cartoon novelty in technicolor entitled "In thte Land of Fun", also the closing chapter of "The Green Archer" will be presented. The new serial to follow will be the popular western star, "Buck" Jones in "The White Eagle" which promises something real new in the way of action.

"Two in a Taxi"

Now showing at the McCarthy Theatre for the last time, the gay comedy-romance "Two in a Taxi", and also Herbert Marshall and Virginia Bruce in "Adventure in Washington" make up a splendid program, highly recommended. Latest McCarthy-Fox News events presenting the latest war pictures is also presented. The "Glasbake" to the ladies is the useful custard cup and a coupon for the large size loaf baking pan, which will be given next week.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Rookies on Parade"

If you're one of those skeptics who think that the movie people "do it with mirrors," you should have been on the studio lot during the shooting of its new comedy of the boys in training camps, "Rookies On Parade," which opens next at the Capitol Theatre.

Determined to spare nothing in order to gain an authenticity of setting, Albert J. Cohen, the associate producer, had a full army camp built on Republic's back lot. Original intentions were that the cast and crew would journey to some camp in Southern California, but so busy were army officials with the induction of new recruits that this was rendered impossible.

So out behind the big sound stakes and skirting the placid Los Angeles River, a new camp grew up. Since it most certainly was not "done with mirrors," citizens at first shook their heads, wondering if war had come to the San Fernando Valley, where Republic Studios are located. Others thought it a mirage, but as one practical fellow pointed out, "it's the first time in the history of the world that a mirage has been made out of timber and concrete." From dormitories to mess halls, from offices to assembly grounds, it was complete and ready for use.

Since "Rookies On Parade" is designed for entertainment in both first and last analyses, it is being given to you as one of the merriest, most tuneful film frolics to come your way in many a day. Bob Crosby, youthful and popular bandleader; Eddie Foy, Jr., talented comedian of "Scatterbrain" and many other films; and gorgeous Ruth Terry, "the gal with the smoky-hot voice," having starring roles. Also very prominent in the cast are such luminaries as Marie Wilson, William Wright, Cliff Nazarro, Sidney Blackmer, Gertrude Neisen, and Horace McMahon.

"Ride On Vaquero"

More daring, more romantic, more exciting than ever, this latest 20th Century-Fox Cisco Kid film features Mary Beth Hughes, Lynne Roberts, Chris-Pin Martin, Robert Lowery and Ben Carter.

Fire Damages Cottage At Trout Lake

Bancroft (Special)—Mrs. Darch, of Bowmanville, one of the campers on Trout Lake, returning to the lake from town late Tuesday evening noticed sparks coming from the Fisher cottage. A closer examination revealed that the dwelling was on fire. Mrs. Darch, occupying the cottage adjacent, became quite alarmed. By honking the horn of her car and calling personally on nearby campers, got hurried response. Six men were soon on the scene and with water pails and an axe and flashlights succeeded in combating the flames after an hour's stubborn fighting. Considerable damage resulted but was covered by insurance. The fire is believed to have started from a fire place which had been left smoldering earlier in the evening.

Mr. Carl Brethour of Belleville, was in town Monday.

Miss Mary Smith of Madoc spent a few days in town this week as guest of Miss Patricia Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Joynt and family returned home Tuesday evening from a two-week vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baalim and Helen of Madoc were in town Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Dewar of Kemptville, are spending a few days holidaying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Jones of town.

Rev. and Mrs. H. R. Pettem, of Prescott, returned home Friday, having completed a two weeks vacation at their cottage on Trout Lake.

Mr. George Sutherland of Baptiste, who suffered severe injuries while operating a tractor for the Standard Chemical Co., was removed from Bancroft Red Cross Hospital by ambulance and taken to Toronto for further treatment.

Campers Entertained

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wiggins and Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Blatherwick entertained a large group of camper friends at their cottage Friday evening. A large bonfire on the lake front lit up the front where a wiener and marshmallow roast was in progress. Keen interest was shown in the horse racing game. Twenty-two in all attended the pleasant party.

Sergt. Earl Hawley of Camp Borden spent the week-end at his home in Bancroft.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Beeton of Toronto, left Sunday, having spent a week with Mr. and Mrs. A. Doney, Trout Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McCaw and family, of Belleville, spent the Civic Holiday at Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Brown's cottage on Trout Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Stears and John, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Whitehead and Mrs. Jenny left for Toronto Monday, having completed a three weeks vacation near Bancroft.

Rev. Newman Bracken of Peterborough, accompanied by Mrs. Rayfield and daughter Pearl, are spending a vacation at the former's cottage, Trout Lake.

Miss Jean Nickle of Belleville, spent the week-end in Bancroft at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. Follis.

Wm. McAlpine of Goderich spent the week-end with relatives in Bancroft.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Rae and son Glen, accompanied by Miss Dorothy Doney of Toronto arrived in Bancroft Sunday and are spending their vacation at their cottage on Trout Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Hawley, Miss Ada Hawley, Mrs. Earl Hawley Mrs. Keith Hawley and Mrs. Wilfred Maxwell motored to Belleville on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Blatherwick and Mr. W. E. Wiggins motored to Belleville Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wiggins of Cobourg spent the week-end with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wiggins.

Mr. and Mrs. P. McGuire and daughter of Belleville, spent Thursday at Trout Lake, guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Stears of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Curry, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Price of L'Amable returned home Monday from a two weeks motor trip to Northern Ontario.

DUKE HOLIDAYS LIKE TOURIST

Drives to Golf Course at Banff, Goes Shopping, Eats Picnic Lunch

Banff, Alta., Aug. 6 (CP)—Though he is a member of the Royal Family and entitled to the title of His Royal Highness, the Duke of Kent is spending his two days' holiday in this Rocky Mountain town in much the same way as any ordinary tourist.

Yesterday he drove himself around the Banff Springs golf course, went on a shopping tour down the town's main street, took a picnic lunch with him in a climb up Sulphur Mountain and went on a 10-mile trail ride.

No program of activities was announced for today. He is scheduled to remain here until tomorrow morning when he is to return to Calgary by automobile to travel to tthe Pacific Coast by airplane in a continuation of a Dominion-wide inspection tour of units of the Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

Changes to Mufti

After his arrival here the Duke changed to mufti from the uniform of an Air Commodore in the Royal Air Force which he has worn most of the time since he arrived in Canada July 29. For riding purposes he wore a blue sweater, dark blue corduroy jodhpurs and black and white shoes.

When he walked through the town's business section, he attracted little attention from other visitors to the resort but leisurely strolled through shops looking over curios, pictures and works of Indian craftmens

Most of the afternoon the Duke spent in a four-mile hike to the top of 8,000-foot Sulphur Mountain where he spent some time admiring the scenery.

On his return he set out for a ride up the Spray Valley on a rangy pony. The Duke had his pick of saddles but chose the English model in preference to a western stock saddle. He talked for several minutes with corral foreman Dick Roberts.

PINE GROVE W.I.

Pine Grove W.I. held a very successful garden party on Mr. Marshall's lawn, Aug. 16th. The Salvation Army band supplied the music. The proceeds amounted to $60—$50 of which is to be donated to the British War Victims Fund and $10 to the Salvation Army.

The July meeting of the Pine Grove W.I. was held on Mrs. Marshall's lawn taking the form of a picnic for the children. There were 12 members and 12 children present. The meeting was opened by singing the Institute Ode. The roll call was answered by naming different countries composing the British Commonwealth. The treasurer reported $60 proceeds from the garden party. It was decided to send $50 to the British War Victims Fund and $10 to the Salvation Army. Everyone is requested to have all salvage ready to be gathered up Friday, Aug. 8th.

Mrs. Campbell moved a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Marshall for the use of their lawn and for their help in getting ready for the garden party. The collection was then taken which amounted to $1.20. Current events were given by Mrs. F. Finkle. This part of the meeting was closed by singing "God Save the King."

Mrs. Campbell then took charge of the remainder of the program which consisted of races for the children. A picnic lunch was served which brought a very enjoyable afternoon to a close.

Cementmen Take Opening Play-Off Game Behind Luffman's 8-Hit Hurling

Point Anners Down Corbys 14-5 in Well Deserved Victory

ALWAYS AHEAD

Cementmen Rattle Hits Off Bawden as Luffman Handcuffs Locals

Rattling hits to all corners of Coleman Flats, the Point Anne "Cementmen" earned a well deserved 14 to 5 win over the Corby A.C. in the first game of the City Softball League finals for the Bank of Commerce Trophy. The game was terminated in the eighth inning owing to darkness.

The Corby nine could do nothing to create runs from the eight-hit pitching of "Ding" Luffman on the Cementmen's mound, while Bubby Gaulin's Ox Point charges welcomed Johnnie Bawden's slants with a barrage of 14 hits, including six doubles.

Open Score Early

Hits by Bennett, Whitehead, Green and Whalen gave the visitors a three-run start in the initial frame, but Corby's retaliated with two runs on Cy Barriage's double following a walk and an error. Doubles by Doug Bennett and Luffman and Sero's single gave the Point Anners two more in the second, while a walk and Jim Barriage's single kept the Corby's in place in the bottom half of the second frame. The Cementmen got three more in the fourth on hits by Doug Bennett, Sero and Green, capped off with Loft's stinging double as the Gaulin led squad rapped Bawden's deliveries hard. Six Point Anne runs on three hits in the sixth saw the Corby's fall to pieces and the Cementmen romp home to easy victory, as they turned in their best performance of the year behind Luffman's sterling mound effort. Corby's got two more in the eighth when Kiser hit a home run behind Pointer's single.

Deserve Victory

Bubby Gaulin's Cementmen well deserved their win and enjoy an advantage as the best-in-seven series continues at Point Anne this evening. Luffman hurled a strong game and after the initial two frames was never in trouble as he and his team-mates blanked the Corby's from the second until the eighth, when Skipper Bawden injected three pinch hitters to produce two runs, but darkness then halted the pastime as the Corby's were a well beaten club.

Every member of the Cementmen counted at least one hit as the Point Anne bats drove 16 from Johnnie Bawden's deliveries. Murney Green and Mike Whalen paced the winners with three hits each. The best the Corby's could do was eight hits against Luffman, who fired a strong effort from the winner's mound. Kiser hit for the circuit when a ball evaded two anxious Point Anne outfielders in the eighth, but aside from this Cy Barriage's two extra base hits were the only Corby offensive threatening. Score by innings: r. h. e.

Batteries: Corby's, Bawden and Tuttle; Point Anne, Luffman and Green. Umpires, Schrieder and Young.

Bluenose Days Of Racing Over

Lunenberg, N.S., Aug. 6—(CP) —The Bluenose, international racing champion of the fishing schooners, has been bought by Capt. Angus Walters, who piloted her to victory in many a race against United States challengers.

The 20-year-old speedster, now stripped of much of her racing gear and with engines installed, has been engaged in the prosaic fresh fishing trade. Up to now, her ownership has been distributed among more than 100 shareholders with Walters as managing director.

"Her racing days are over," said the veteran captain, "but she'll continue fishing." Walters has not commanded her since 1938.

Ki-Y Honors Champions

Winners in the Belleville Ki-Y Softball league were honoured at the Y.M.C.A. last evening when crests indicating group champions were presented to the three league champion clubs. The Orioles won the Juvenile section, the Sluggers the Midget and the Wildcats the Bantam. The presentations were made by Ed Shortt, physical director at the "Y" along with representatives from the Kiwanis Club, co-sponsors of the Ki-Y groups. Ernie Blake, a former umpire in the league, and J. E. Shortt, Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. were also present. Cake and ice cream were provided the gathering as league champions and the respective group runners-up were honoured.

The personnel of the three 1941 Ki-Y softball league champions are:

JUVENILE

MIDGET

Sluggers — Bill Holway, Robert Lyall, Chuck Hewson, Maurice Rollins, Harry Wardhaugh, Donald Taylor, Bill Hurst, Frank Cronin, John Adams, Alfred Court, Lyle Cross, Manager.

BANTAM

Wild Cats — Bob Ashley, Clarence Lewis, George Palmateer, Donald Thompson, Allan Vickers, Jack Milligan, Jim Nevery, Ronald Sullivan, Bob Stebbings, Gerald Moore, Doug Bone, Alf. Court, Manager.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Vern Olsen, Cubs—Pitcher four-hit ball to stop Cardinals.

Pete Fox, Red Sox—Hit three doubles to lead attack against Athletics.

Eddie Miller, Braves—Smashed three-run homer to spark six-run uprising that beat Phillies.

Jeff Heath, Indians Hit triple with two on to beat Tigers.

Ontario's Shore Line—

Ontario has a fresh-water shoreline on the Great Lakes of more than 2,362 miles.

BILL GALLON IS FAVOURITE FOR HAMBLETONIAN

25,000 at Goshen for Trotting Kentucky Derby Event

Goshen, N.Y., Aug. 6 — (AP)— Nine three-year-old trotters, five colts and four fillies, brought their records and claims for division titular honors down to Good Time Park's triangular shaped track today for the 16th Hambletonian.

Only the cast was changed for Trotting's Kentucky Derby as upwards of 25,000 folks from nearby towns, countryside and the sidewalks of New York took over this little Orange County capital, which has seen the best of the trotters and pacers come and go for more than 100 years.

Into the wee-wee small hours, horsemen and other followers of the standards breds argued today's race pro and con and they ended the discussions just where they started—that Bill Gallon is the horse to beat for the winner's share of the $38,729, amounting to $20,365. So well did R. H. Johnston's brown colt from Charlotte, N.C., dominate the two-year-old field last year that he was established the 3-to-2 choice.

The southerner's record, at a glance, has not been so impressive this year since he has won only two of five heats in two races. But in one race he opposed older horses and in the other he bowed to a non - Hambletonian eligible while beating several of the same horses named to oppose him today. His driver, Lee Smith, is the only reinsman who never has piloted a horse in the classic.

Perpetual, with whom Dr. H. M. Parshall of Urbana, Ohio, is seeking to be the first owner-driver to win the big event, comes up to the race with the best three-year-old record. But after scoring his third stake victory of the year last week he became ill and had not fully recovered when Pearsoll paid his $500 starting fee yesterday.

As a result, Perpetual is not expected to go postward for the first heat at 3 p.m. E.D.T. at better than 12 to 1.

OVERSEAS SPORTS

Somewhere in England, Aug. 6—(CP)—A team from a Field Ambulance of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, largely recruited at the Lakehead, won the horseshoe pitching contest of the 1st Division by defeating the team of a Western Infantry regiment.

The teams met after a series of elimination contests with outfits fram practically every unit in the Division. The winners will compete in the Canadian Corps finals shortly.

The 1st Division championship team line-up was: Ptes. A. Dixon, E. Murphy, both of Port Arthur; F. McCubbin, H. Pearce, M. Pratt, all of Fort William; J. Earle, of Tornoto; J. Sutherland, of Hamilton, and R. Cook, of Winnipeg.

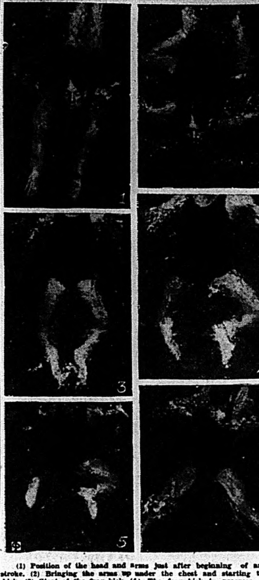
HOW TO SWIM



(1) Position of the head and arms just after beginning of arm stroke. (2) Bringing the arms up under the chest and starting the kick. (3) Start of the frog kick. (4) The frog kick in progress. (5) Legs in position ready to kick. (6) Legs after release and ready for the next kick to begin.

THE BREAST-STROKE

The breast-stroke is difficult to learn because one must have a well-developed sense of rhythm in order to do it smoothly and if you cannot do it smoothly you will find yourself threshing around in the water and making no progress. It differs radically from the other strokes both because of the arm movements and the leg movements.

These are the steps to follow:

1. Stand at the end of the pool, facing the water.
2. Bend your knees, submerge and push off in a face-down float.
3. Swing your arms out, performing an arc in the water until they are nearly in a line with your shoulders and then bring them up under your chest in a circular motion, bent at the elbow and ready for the next stroke.
4. Follow each stroke of the arms with a kick, the frog kick. In doing the frog kick, the legs should be drawn us as close to the hips as possible and suddenly, but not jerkily, straightened out. The position of the arms at this point should be straight out in front of you, head under water.
5. Exhale under water while doing the kick and inhale when you lift your head slightly to perform the arm strokes.

The breast-stroke may be used as a rest stroke if you are swimming any great distance, but is difficult to perform in rough water.

Next: The Side-Stroke.

Royals Win Four Straight

Mystery is Why Montreal Not Higher in League Standing

LEAFS LOSE

Perhaps the biggest mystery of the International Baseball League season is why Montreal Royals are not higher in the standing and why they're not drawing bigger crowds.

Only about 4,000 cash customers turned out last night to see the Royals win a pair of games from Baltimore Orioles 4-0 and 8-6, to make it four victories in a row and 12 straight defeats for the birds.

The fans saw the Royals pick up a half game to cut Buffalo's second-place margin to a half contest and to trail the league-leading Newark Bears, beaten 7-4 by Buffalo, by six games.

First act of the Royals' performance was a three-hit shutout tossed by Frank Pearce in a mound duel with Ken Trinkle.

The nightcap was featured by some startling base running as the Royals worked two double thefts and one triple steal. This corner-cutting offset some runs by Baltimore's George Polzer and Red Howell and enabled hurler Ed Head to gain his 16th victory although he had to be relieved in the ninth.

Eric McNair led Buffalo's ten-hit attack that downed Newark when he swatted a three-run homer and two singles. Equal to him in effectiveness, however, was Virgil (Fire) Trucks. Coming to the rescue of Pretzels Pezzullo in the seventh, Trucks fanned five of the nine men to face him and gave only one hit.

In the night's other games, Syracuse Chiefs downed Rochester Red Wings 6-3 as Tom Sunkel defeated his former team for the sixth straight time, and Jersey City made a pair of unearned runs good for a 3-2 decision over Toronto Leafs. Toronto's Carl Fischer pitched five-hit ball up to the seventh but two errors by Len Merullo forced him to his 12th straight defeat.

FORFEITS GAME

Cornwall, Ont., Aug. 5 (CP)—Referee Carm Lauzon of Cornwall last night declared Cornwall Seniors the winners of a Quebec Senior Lacrosse League game after the coach of St. Regis Indians argued over one of his decisions. The Indians were trailing 4-5 when the game ended late in the third period.

Snead is to Defend His Golf Title

Wagering is That Par-Breaking Scores Not Expected in Canadian Open

TIGHTEN COURSE

BY JIM COLEMAN

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Lambton Mills, Ont., Aug. 6.—(CP)—The betting gentry who have conducted a sagacious survey of the Lambton layout are prepared to wager that no one will crack 280 in the 72-hole Canadian Open Golf Championship which opens here on Thursday.

Lambton, under ordinary circumstances, is a fairly tantalizing par 70 course. However the officials of the Royal Canadian Golf Association have tightened it up considerably to test the nerves of the 120 leading professionals and amateurs from this country and the United States.

The officials haven't gone to the extent of adding gloomy bunkers and other pitfalls to trap the unwary but they have added boundaries on several holes. And now a vagrant zephyr or the mildest suspicion of a hook or slice is liable to carry the ball out of bounds.

Sammy Snead is here from White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, to defend the title which he won last year. Approximately 150 shot-smiths will indulge in the three-day battle for the first prize money of $1,000 and possession of the Seagram Gold Cup. The field will be trimmed to 60 competitors at the conclusion of the first 36 holes.

Wood Absent

There is considerable disappointment that U.S. Open Champion Craig Wood has passed up the Canadian title tourney. Other notable absentees are Benny Hogan, the year's leading money winner, and Vic Ghezzi, Paul Runyan and Byron Nelson.

But such doughty peformers as Gene Sarazen, Ralph Guldahl, Horton Smith, Ky Laffoon, Lloyd Mangrum, Ray Mangrum, Willie Goggings and Bobby Cruickshank have checked in and have withered the grass on Lambton's Fairways with some blistering practice rounds.

While it is generally assumed that Snead or one of his American compatriots will take the championship again, there is more than a little possibility that one of the Toronto district professionals might pop home in front of the field. Bill Lamb, Bob Gray and Bill Kerr have been particularly hot in their practice rounds. Lamb fired a 67 on Tuesday.

Tournament officials are planning an innovation that would undoubtedly cause the governors of austre St. Andrew's to reel and turn prematurely grey. They are going to use lady wardens to patrol the Fairways and keep back the crowds who will follow the golf stars.

YORKS vs. EMPIRE

Bradford England (CP)—A Yorkshire cricket eleven will meet a team representing the British Empire in a match in aid of the Red Cross here Aug. 13.

THAT'S ABOUT ALL

Winnipeg (CP) — Farmers in Manitoba should waste no time in getting in their crops, says A. Barrett, local amateur weather prophet, because weather is going to be generally unpleasant for the next three months and there is danger of snow pretty soon. Earthquakes in various parts of the country are also likely, says Mr. Barrett.

GOSSIP [illegible] COMMENT

This yarn might not be exactly a sporting event, but it could come under the heading of aquatics.

Sergeant Arthur Booth of the city police department, tells this one and has George Hammett, president of the Industrial Softball League as a witness.

It seems the "Serge" and George were fishing in the bay just west of the bay bridge over the week-end when they heard a kitten meowing off the shore.

Several times Sergeant Booth called "Kitty, Kitty," knowing full well how timid cats are of the water.

"But much to my surprise when we went to change our position and commenced to row away, that kitten actually jumped voluntarily into the water and swam towards our boat. I put out my oar and the cat scrambled up the blade and we took it aboard," Sergeant Booth told your newsboy, which is perhaps one for the book, as cats are supposed to hold great fear of the water.

Giving their pitcher fine support in all departments, Bubby Gaulin's Point Anne "Cementmen" drew first blood in the City Softball League finals by beating Corby's A. C. 14 to 5 last night. The score just about indicates the play as the Cementmen played great ball behind "Ding" Luffman's eight-hit twirling effort, while Corby's were just as bad as the Ox Point nine was good. Luffman was given a head start in the initial frame as the Gaulinites scored three runs and with Luffman on top Harold Bawden's Corby's never did catch 'em. Corby's booted the ball around for at least a dozen miscues, but regardless as to their defence, the fact still remains the Cementmen were counting lusty hits off Johnnie Bawden, as they out-hit Corby's 16 to 8. Skipper Gaulin's Cementmen gained the jump on the locals by taking last night's opening play-off, as the teams return to Point Anne for a second tussle tonight when Barnhart and Harris will likely oppose each other on the hilltop.

Do you remember when—Boo Fritz, young Toronto star, smashed the Scottish record at Glasgow when he ran the quarter-mile in 48 seconds three years ago today. Fritz beat Johnny Loaring of Windsor, Ont., to the tape by two yards and shaved four-tenths of a second off the previous record.

Residents of Point Anne want it to be known that Marie and Kay Genereaux started their softball career in Point Anne and not in Belleville. Herb Scanlon is credited with first bringing the two Genereaux girls into girls softball according to the residents of Ox Point, who are rightfully proud of their daughters who are acknowledged to be two of the best girl softball players in the country.

When Frank Doughty and his Sunday Morning Class were leaving Belleville Monday, Mr. Doughty expressed wishes that he might bring his Classers back to Belleville for another Red Cross benefit. "The people of Belleville gave us a grand time, it was a pleasure to appear here and we'll come back for any worthy charity cause later if you want us. I wish especially to thank Mrs. Ryan, proprietress of the Queens Hotel, for her attention to our girls. We have never been treated so royally in any hotel while on our tours," Mr. Doughty personally told this reporter.

However, if the S. M. C. do return to Belleville the attraction would be to have them play versus the Corby A. C. team, but such a game could not be booked until early in October, as the S. M. C. are engaged until that date. Maybe Thanksgiving Day or an indoor game at the Armouries would enrich the Red Cross coffers some more, as well as provide an interesting softball game.

Reports from the Maine woods are that Lou Nova, getting in shape to fight Joe Louis, is growing a beard. Not a bad idea. It probably will cushion some of those right-hand jolts that Joe throws if Nova has courage enough to enter the ring wearing the whiskers.

Actually the Lou Nova-Joe Louis bout will be held at the Polo Grounds on the night of Sept. 17, although attractive offers have been received by Promoter Jacobs to hold the scrap at Boston, Detroit and Chicago, but it looks as though old New York is still the No. 1 on Jacob's hit parade.

THEIR BIG BATS BOOMING YANKS TO ALL-TIME HOME RUN RECORD?

Murderous bats in the hands of Charley Keller and Joe DiMaggio, plus the war clubs of about five other Yanks, are propelling the league-leading New York club on the trail of a new season home run record. The Yanks of 1936 hold the old mark, 182 four-baggers, but at the present pace of the McCarthy men, the 1941 fence-busting outfit may crack that mark. Certainly the 1941 Yanks will surpass the National league mark of 171, set by the Cubs in 1930. Keller is the leading homer hitter of the New York Club, with DiMaggio a close second. Then there is Tommy Henrich, Joe Gordon, Bill Dickey and Red Rolfe lending a helping hand. DiMag., Keller and Henrich had 68 round-trip smacks between 'em after 94 games. The Yank total was around 100 for that stretch.

Team of Sergeants Makes Clean-up on Tour of British Army Camps in Old Country

Somewhere in England, Aug. 6—(CP)—A group of Royal Canadian Air Force sergeants following a refresher course at this training centre spent their spare time touring neighbouring British Army camps showing the Tommies how to use baseball equipment with which they had been equipped.

Some of the results looked more like the scores of football matches—one game ending 17-6 in favor of the Canadians and another 37-9—but Sgt. K. B. Jackson of Saskatoon swears "it was just that we knew how to take advantage of the breaks."

The Canadians had a clean record and Sgt. Max Reid of Hamilton, Ont., who acted as battery with Sgt. B. Dermoddy of Kennedy, Sask., didn't lose a game. The team claims to have won the mythical championship of Chipping Norton which has a Canadian National Baseball Club and a shield which is awarded to the team that beats its nine in scheduled competitons.

Jackson said at one camp the Canadians found two complete sets of uniforms "held over from 1890, but there was a lot of good equipment to make up for it."

Other members of the team included Sgts. H. Keane and Guy Rainville of Quebec City, T. Fox, Lunenberg, N.S., Neil Williamson, St. Thomas, Ont., C. Fuller, Richmond, Que., H. Hibbard, Montreal, and A. Rall, Toronto.

Likens Waterway Project to 'Bungling' Of U. S. Prohibition

Washington, Aug. 6 —(AP)— Ralph P. Ward of Columbus, Ohio, asserted yesterday that the administration's request for a St. Lawrence waterway for defence was a duplication of "the outstanding bungling" of first Great War days when prohibition was "forced upon the people in the name of national defence."

Ward, director of the Industrial Relation Department of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, told the House of Representatives Rivers and Harbor Committee that he also represented 11 other Ohio civic organizations which oppose the waterway.

"If it is a genuine defence project why was the bill not introduced until after the agreement with Canada was presented to Congress?" demanded Ward.

Donald I. Greek, also of Columbus, representing the Ohio Manufacturers' Association, declared it was "fundamentally wrong to tax the citizens of this country for the benefit of a foreign country."

The Ohio association, he said, is opposed to "expenditure of huge sums of money" for the "development and improvement of Canada."

Chairman Joseph Mansfield (Dem.-Tex.) announced that the hearings would close tonight and the committee would meet in executive session Friday.

Pirates Give League Rivals Bad Case of Jitters as They Move Up Rapidly

Pittsburgh Wins 16 of Last 19 Games Making All Rivals Walk the Plank

CARDS LOSE

In First Start of Season Washington Pitcher Beats Yankees; Indians Also Win

By JUDSON BAILEY

(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Pittsburgh Pirates are cutting capers that must make their National League rivals tremble these days every time the Buccaneers' brig sails upon the scene.

In the last two weeks the bold, bad Buccos have made every team they faced walk the plank—winning 16 out of 19 games—and Cincinnati Reds, their latest victims, apparently have gone down for the last time.

The Pirates raided the Reds again yesterday 7-5 to send the world champions crashing to their fifth straight defeat.

This victory left the Pirates nine games out of first place, just close enough to keep St. Louis' Cardinals and Brooklyn Dodgers from feeling they have the fight strictly between themselves.

The Cardinals were given a 6-2 setback by Chicago Cubs to further complicate the matter by dropping within one game of the idle Dodgers.

Lefty Vern Olsen held the Redbirds to four hits and received timely batting support from his teammates, principally slugger Bill Nicholson, who twice singled with the bases loaded.

Yankees Lost

In the day's other National League encounter Boston Braves nosed out the Phillies 10-9 with a six-run seventh inning climaxed by Eddie Miller's home run with two on.

New York Yankees lost a game of their American League lead by losing to Washington Senators 4-3 while Cleveland Indians squeezed past Detroit 2-1.

The Senators gambled on Alejandro Carrasquel, who hadn't started a game all season, and he held the Bombers to nine hits. Two errors gave the Senators their deciding tally without a hit in the second stanza and Carrasquel's careful hurling kept the Yanks from ever getting their tallies back.

Cleveland's victory in a night game was achieved on Jeff Heath's triple with two on in the sixth inning. The game was a tight pitching duel between Al Smith, who allowed six hits and fanned eight, and Buck Newsom, who gave only five safeties and struck out nine. It was Newsom's 15th setback.

Boston Red Sox scored their second straight one-run decision over Philadelphia Athletics 6-5 on the strength of a five-run splurge in the first inning. Pete Fox made three doubles to lead Boston's 13-hit attack.

AUTOMOBILE STRUCK BY SHUNTED FLAT CAR

Napanee, Ont., Aug. 6 — (CP)—The family car of Clarence Joyce, Selby district farmer, was struck by a flat car during shunting operations at No. 41 Highway crossing of the Canadian National Railway at the north end of the town. A slightly bruised arm suffered by Mrs. Joyce was the extent of the injuries. The left side of the car was stove in.

FORMER CHAMP.

James J. Braddock, former heavyweight boxing champion of the world, was signed by Promoter Frank Tunney, of the Queensbury A.C., to appear in Belleville as referee for the season's opening wrestling show at the Hume Arena on August 11th., when the Masked Wolf meets Lee Henning, the Iowa powerhouse grappler, in the main bout.

Held Donkey Race For Church Funds

Father John Caulfield, Known as "Jockey's Priest" Dies in England

London, Aug. 6—(CP) — Father John Caulfield, organizer of the Pinner donkey derby and known in racing circles as "the jockey's priest," is dead.

Priest of Pinner Roman Catholic Church for more than 25 years, Father Caulfield staged the donkey race annually to aid his church funds. Steve Donoghue, most famous of all British jockeys, established the race in 1925 to celebrate his sixth Epsom Derby victory.

Leading jockeys competed and each year the winner of the Epsom gave a silver cup to the Pinner champion. Jockeys sometimes presented the riding boots they wore at Epsom to be auctioned for church funds.

"Jockeys are all very good fellows and so are actors and actresses," Father Caulfield once said. "The popular idea about people on the stage being fast is all wrong."

Although he did not bet, Father Caulfield could spot a winner and his tips often were followed.

NUMBERS STICK

Calgary —(CP)— Stampede-goers this year kept tab of bronco busters when cow hands Dick Cosgrave and "Mac" MacDonald carved numbers on the flank of 100 beasts with electric clippers.

Previously painted numbers always rubbed off.

VARIED EXPERIENCE

Denver, Colo. —(CP)— Cac Hubbard, football coach at Denver University has acted as head coach of football, basketball, baseball, track, tennis and golf in more than 20 years of coaching experience.

Mule Races Provide New Entertainment

Greenwood, Miss., Aug. 6—(AP)—Negroes from Greenwood's Ram-Cat Alley and the aristocrats from the mansions built on cotton fortunes had a rush of sporting blood to the head today and dashed off to see Mississippi's fastest growing outdoor event—the mule races.

Additional throngs of negroes and rich and poor white plantation operators from all over the Delta land poured into Greenwood to watch 70 mules—the entry list—brought in from the fields to compete on a quarter-mile track for charity's sake.

The Junior Auxiliary, small-town cousin of the big city junior leagues, decided this year to raise its charity funds not with luncheons but with mule races.

Betting was expected to be heavy and the start by agreement had to be unorthodox:

A yell from the starter, micks by the jockeys, lavish use of the ship. Any mule that got off first, if blessed with singleness of purpose, was likely to finish first—unless it got the notion to jump the rope that served as rail.

Credit for fathering the new sport is generally given to Larry Pryor, Washington County planter. For four years one Delta Country Club has kept membership fees at a minimum through mule races with a club-operated betting shed and dollar admissions, plus a barbecue and cold drinks. The races draw thousands.

Feller Passes Army Medical

Cleveland, Aug. 6—(AP)—Pitcher Bob Feller was declared a perfect physical specimen as he quickly passed his selective service physical examination yesterday.

The Cleveland Indians' 22-year-old hurling ace came through with ease in a half-hour check-up by two medical examiners.

Robert is expected to be classified in a few weeks by his board, and will undergo a later test by army doctors before his expected induction late this year.

Modern Jockeys Start Too Young

Lexington, Ky. —(CP)— Jimmy Winkfield, the negro jockey who rode Kentucky Derby winners in 1901 and 1902 and finished second in 1903, says modern jockeys start too young and take too many chances.

"They go out there riding with their heads down and don't watch where they're going," he says. "In the old days, jockeys hung around stables for years before they were permitted to ride and they absorbed a lot of information modern youngsters don't possess."

"The biggest difference I see in today's riders and those of my time," he explains, "lies in riding ability, particularly in ability to judge pace. The old riders were great judges of pace and were willing to wait for openings instead of trying to ride over the field."

Referee's Son

Eddie Joseph, Jr., a sophomore tackle who likely will be a first stringer at Columbia this fall, is the son of the fight referee.

A plant that will be built in Brazil for the production of plastics from coffee will consume about 5,000,000 bags annually.

WOMAN TEACHER CRAMPED STYLE

Or Perhaps Brought Blushes to Swimmers at Town Pool

Heckmondike, England, Aug. 6 — (CP)—He-men of Heckmondike (population 8,991) must not be embarrassed by the presence of a woman when they have the town swimming pool to themselves so the council fired Mrs. O. Wilkinson who gave schoolboys swimming lessons there.

Costumes were scantier than when mixed bathing took place and "it is felt that presence of a woman would be embarrassing to the men," said Fred Kilburn, chairman of the swimming committee. He insisted Heckmondike "is not a bit prudish."

Cracked the 38-year-old Mrs. Wilkinson: "I am far too engrossed in teaching to take any notice of what sort of costumes the men wear." But Town Clerk G. Holt said "indoor bathing after all is rather different from an outdoor pool". So Mrs. Wilkinson is being replaced by a male teacher.

Boxing Bout At Glasgow Brings 30,000

Glasgow Aug. 6 (CP Cable)—Jim Brady of Dundee retained the British bantamweight boxing title last night outpointing Jackie Paterson of Glasgow over ten rounds. It was the first defeat in nearly two years for Paterson who holds the British flyweight crown.

A crowd of 30,000 watched Brady wage an uphill fight for fifteen rounds. A body punch in the first round sent Brady down for the count of nine. Both his eyes were cut early in the fight but despite this he kept up a non-stop pace to win a close verdict.

LAMBTON... SCENE OF THE 1941 CANADIAN OPEN GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

Links of INTERNATIONAL GOODWILL

FOR A CENTURY the tolerance, understanding and friendship between the United States and Canada have enabled the two countries to follow their own paths...work out their own destinies...and yet enjoy complete and satisfying international harmony. The boundary between the United States and Canada is geographical, and not military...a friendly border over which the citizens of both countries cross and recross...each meeting the other on an equal and friendly footing.

That is why the Canadian Open Golf Championship is something more than a major sport event. It is an international meeting place...a fairway of friendship where sportsmanship prevails and the golfing aces of the United States and Canada compete in friendly rivalry for the honour of winning the "Open" and the Seagram Gold Cup.

The House of Seagram extends greetings to all golfers from the United States and Canada whose presence makes possible this link in the chain of international goodwill.

LUCKY FOR LOVE

by JANE DIXON

CHAPTER 14

"Great shakes, Duchess", Al lowered his voice for Marilyn's ears alone. "I was afraid you'd spill all the apples. Keep on holding tight. She's bound to notice us any minute now. Let her have the first line".

Scarcely had Al finished reassuring Marilyn when the flame woman's roving eyes reached the table immediately in front of her stopped, blinked, widened, tried to regain their focus. She swayed tipsily ,regained her balance, tried again to clear her blurred vision. Al thought, "I'll give her a lift. Maybe if I give her a tinkle she'll catch on." He smiled, a sardonic lifting of the brows that might pass for a smile, nodded his head in nonchalant greeting.

He has been right. The gesture of recognition penetrated the fog, but the flame woman's reaction was so far from what he had reckoned, so sudden, so violent, that it caught him completely off guard.

Clara, steadying herself against the table, rose, fixed eyes of blazing wrath on Al, and screamed hoarsely, "That man—he's annoying me. Herman, he's insulted me. He's trying to pick me up—he made faces at me—he's laughing at me—Herman, stop him—"

The pudgy man jumped to his feet, followed the direction of his companion's glare, strode closer to the befuddled Al.

"You young oodlum," he sputtered, "I'll beat some manners into you. Get up from that table and git before I give you the beating you".

"I wouldn't try it if I were you". Al was calm now, steel calm. "You might get bruised. I happen to know the woman at your table, Clara Marsh. The young lady at my table is her sister".

Clara leaned forward, her voice rising like a siren of hate and unleashed passion. "He lies! I never saw him before! I have no sister! Herman, stop him! He made faces behind your back! He—"

Lashed by his companion's fury, the pudgy man lunged. There was a crash against the back of Al Martino's head. Al reeled, reached for support, crumpled slowly to the floor. Marilyn was aware of whirling lights, of crowding white faces, of muffled drums, of Clara screaming and screaming, and then — blank night.

When Marilyn opened here eyes the lights were no longer whirling. Drums were silent. People eyed her surreptitiously from nearby tables but the crowding white faces were gone. She was seated at a table against the wall, with two men. Both of them were strangers. She was quite sure she had never seen either of them before this moment.

"I—I—this the Blue Parrot, isn't it?" She could scarcely hear her own voice. "There was—Al— Al Martino, he fell down . . . he was hurt . . . where is he . . . where is Al . . . I must go to him. . . ".

"Yes, of course". The man at Marilyn's right spoke with quiet firmness. "Your escort had a slight —er—accident. Nothing serious. We thought it better to have him looked over by a competent doctor, just to be on the safe side, you know. He's in excellent hands, you may be sure".

Marilyn found she was trembling so that she could not rise.

"How can I be sure?" she demanded. "That horrible man, Herman Hess—the walter behind Al—he struck at Al—Oh take me to him —whoever you are—"

"Excuse me, but in the excitement I did not think to introduce myself. I'm Bruce Gordon. That is my friend, James Martin. And I believe you are Miss Marilyn Marsh. We happened to see what occurred at your table and cut in to block you out of an unpleasant situation. I should advise a cup of very hot, very black coffee—"

"Bruce Gordon"! Marilyn's cold hands grasped the edge of the table "You mean you are Bruce Gordon the Bruce Gordon of Clarco — oh. but you can't me—"

"My dear young lady, don't look so stricken". The young man laughed disarmingly. "I do happen to be Bruce Gordon of Clarco, and you are the new copy writer in the advertising and promotion department. I noticed you in the office only today—you weren't looking my way. I knew you at once this evening even though you came in hiding behind a corsage of orchids"

"I don't know what to say". Gordon saw the stunned, hurt look in the girl's eyes. "I guess there is nothing I can say; nothing that would not be better left unsaid. I'm not in the habit of going to night clubs, making scenes—in fact this is the first really truly night club I've ever been in. We came here—Al, this is, Mr. Martino and I—looking for my sister, the one in the flame-colored dress. Where is she?" She said with fresh alarm. "Oh, Mr. Gordon, I must find her— I must find Clara—did she leave alone—was that man with her— if you'll excuse me, please—"

"After you've taken your coffee". Bruce Gordon could out persuasion into an order. "The lady in red—your sister—left some minutes ago with her escort, the fat florid fellow who caused all the row. Jim and I—Mr. Martin—sent the chap you call Al to my apartment. It's only a few block away. My chauffeur drove him. He was all right, a trifle groggy but that will pass. There's a doctor just across the hall. I gave instructions to call him and have him give your friend a thorough going over. So you see, you need not be alarmed. Just apply yourself to the coffee; you nearly bogged down on us, you know".

Obediently Marilyn sipped the hot fragrant infusion. The warmth of it trickled through her body, to steady its trembling, to ease the thudding of her heart.

Now she dared take account of the two men at the table. Bruce Gordon was very tall and very lean and very fair. His gray eyes had darkish flecks in them and crinkled at the corners. One could see the muscles working along the edge of his slightly outthrust jaw. He gave the impression of physical fitness of streamlined strength beneath the easy vest of his dinner clothes. The young man with him was square-built, quizzical and tanned to the color of an old leather boot.

"Jim". Gordon said, "phone my flat, will you, while Miss Marsh finishes her coffee. "The doc should have finished his examination by now. If the patient is in the pink or nearly so, we'll drive Miss Marsh home. I'm sure she could do with a bit of quiet after this mad-house."

"But Al," Marilyn protested, "he may need me. It's my fault he was here—"

"If the young man needs you we will take you to him". Bruce Gordon said. "If it's not better to let him rest. Probably the doctor has given him a sedative. I'll leave my number. You can get in touch with him the first thing in the morning".

"But I must find Clara, my sister —she's not herself. If only I had an idea, the faintest even, where she has gone!"

There was no ripple along Bruce Gordon's jaw, there were no crinkles at the corners of his eyes.

"My dear Miss Marsh", he said in the authoritative manner men reserve for business conferences. "there are some hundreds of night clubs and restaurants in this city. Your sister might be in any one of them or she might be in none of them. Again, it is possible she has gone to her rooms or hotel or home or wherever she is stopping. In any case, it would be unwise for you to try to find her. Quite obviously she resents your presence She has a very definite idea that you are interfering with her or following her about—you will know better than I about that. The very sight of you drove her into a fury. It was like an explosion. At the risk of hurting you deeply, I must tell you that in view of the stormy state of your sister's emotions, you will serve her and ourself best by abandoning any thought of a search, at least for tonight. Another explosion might be more damaging—to you both.

"I can't leave her like that," Marilyn half sobbed. "She's in no condition—she doesn't know what shes doing".

Bruce Gordon signaled the waiter for the check.

"On that score", he said, "you need have no fear. I was watching the antics at her table several minutes before the explosion. I'm sure the lady in red is fully capable of taking care of herself".

Jim Martin returned to report that Al Marino had not suffered any serious injury and that he was sleeping comfortably and was to remain so for the night by the doctor's orders.

In the lobby of her hotel, Marilyn paused. "Thank you, Mr. Gordon", she said, feeling distressingly shy and alone. "And you too, Mr. Martin, I'm sorry to have been so much trouble. Good night and good-bye".

"Good-bye?" he asked. "Hardly anything so final as that. There's always tomorrow, and Clarco. You are not running out on a job you have only begun, are you, Miss Marsh?"

Marilyn's hand fluttered to her breast. "You mean," she managed, "that you want me to go on, that I may stay with Clarco, after what happened tonight?"

Bruce Gordon took Marilyn's hand, pressed it gently. The friendliness of the gesture warmed her. gave her courage to look straight into those serious gray eyes that were regarding her with compassion.

"What happened tonight has nothing to do with you as an individual or with your work with Clarco. I'm betting on your courage. That's why I expect to see you at your desk, nine o'clock, tomorrow morning."

Before Bruce Gordon and James Martin could respond to Marilyn's thanks and good night, she saw amazement on Martin's face, frowning displeasure on the face of Gordon. They were looking past her; neither made an effort to move away. Then Marilyn heard a voice she knew too well, saying:

"Well, if it isn't little sister surrounded by men! What didya do with friend Al? Drop him out of the window and pick up a couple of live fish?"

Marilyn turned to meet this new embarrassment. Clara's make-up, always applied with lavish hand was streaked and brazen; her hair was rumpled; her flame-colored gown was torn at the shoulder. She was still unsteady. and her tongue sounded thick.

"Clara!" Marilyn said, shocked by the unexpectedness and the disorder of her sister's appearance. "What are you doing here?"

"Why sister, what a question? After following me all over the place and spying on me too! So I came to call on you. So what? Aren't you glad to see me, Lynn dear?"

"Of course," Marilyn managed. "It was just that—you surprised me—"

"I'll bet I did. I sprized them dopes at the desk too when I asked for your key. They got snooty and wouldn't give it to me. My swell hotel wouldn't like me, trailing across their lobby in torn clothes. These cheap dumps ain't so particular. Herman said—hey, what do you think Herm did? He's yellow—he dumped me at your door. I screamed laughing!"

DOG RIDES RUNAWAY BOAT

Port Severn, Ont., Aug. 6 (CP)—With its only occupant a pet spaniel dog an outboard motorboat made a wild dash across the Sefern Rifer Monday and ran itself ashore undamaged.

Hundreds of holiday spectators watched the mile jaunt of the boat as it missed numerous other craft, glanced off a decayed stump and made its way across the lake at a 30-mile-an-hour clip.

Bobby Freeman of Freeman, Ont., had started the motor and climbed out o untie the rope on the dock. The rope broke and away went the boat—manned only by the spaniel.

WALL STREET

New York, Aug. 6 —(AP)— The stock market slid into slightly lower territory today after an early recovery effort bogged down under selling in Rails and Aircrafts.

A few Industrial specialties held modest gains near the fourth hour. Dealings were slow.

Stocks under water most of the time included Boeing, Douglas, Kennecott, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, Great Northern Pfd., and Texas Corp. United Aircraft gave up more than 2 points.

Showing periods of firmness were Johns-Manville, Union Carbide, U.S. Gypsum, American Can and Standard Oil (N.J.). New York Shipbuilding attained a high for the year. Newport News Shipbuilding also improved.

Canadian stocks were strong with Canadian Pacific gaining 1-8 and Lake Shore 1-4. Dome was easy, down 1-8. In the Bond Market Canada 4s advanced 1-4.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Aug. 6.— (CP)— The Western Oil stock made the best showing in the early session on Toronto Exchange today. They firmed .37 in the index by noon on gains of 5 to 10 cents for Home Oil, Calgary and Edmonton, Anglo-Canadian and Foothills. Other groups showed very little change. Turnover for the first three hours was 144,000 shares.

O'Brien was again a gold feature. It firmed 14 cents to $1.34. Other strong golds were Mining Corporation, Perron and Central Patricia. In the Base Metals better prices ruled for Hudson Bay, Noranda, Jack Waite and Denison Nickel while Steep Rock, Pend Oreille and Base Metals Corporation were down narrowly.

Steel showed gains and other industrial groups were steady. The Canadian Celanese issues dropped 1-4 to 1-2 and Walkers Common, Ford A, British American Oil and International Petroleum were down slightly.

TORONTO MAN ONE OF 114 KILLED

Toronto, Aug. 6—(CP)—Mrs. Harry G. Heather of Toronto said last night that she had been informed her son Robert, 27, was one of the 114 men, of the Merchant Marine Service reported killed at sea. Heather was a wireless oper-

Creamery Solids Have Sharp Rise

Toronto — Gains of 3-4 to 1 cent a pound by No. 1 creamery solids featured trading on the Toronto open produce market yesterday. Eggs managed to hold their advanced prices in rather quiet post-holiday action.

With receipts continuing very light, the odd sale of first grade creamery butter was made at 37 cents a pound in early trading, it was reported, but offerings at this price were soon cleaned up, and at the close sellers began asking and getting 37 1-4 cents. Second grade creamery solids improved to the range of 36 1-2 to 36 1-2 cents a pound. Retail quotations remained unchanged.

Prevailing prices held firm in quiet trading on the egg market as receipts were light and demand not good. Grades A-large, A-medium and A pullets closed at the unchanged quotations of 35, 34 and 28 cents a dozen, respectively. Grade B slightly strengthened its position in wholesale-to-retail trading.

Montreal Produce

Eggs: Graded shipments selling at A-large 36½-36; A-medium 35-35½; B-grade, 28-28 1-2; C-grade, 23½-24. Receipts, 11,851 cases.

Livestock

Toronto, Aug. 6. — (CP)—Good cattle sold steady on the livestock market up to mid-session today while trade was slow on common kind. Bulls were 25 cents lower at $6.50 to $7 for good butchers and $5.25 to $6 for bologna. Veal calves, lambs and sheep were steady. No price was established for hogs but indications were it would be steady. Unsold from yesterday was 1,200 head of cattle.

Receipts: Cattle 550; calves 490; hogs 700; sheep and lambs 220.

A few weighty steers $8.50 to $9.50; butcher steers and heifers $7.50 to $8.75; few light heifers $9; boners $5 to $6; butcher cows $5 to $6.75; canners and cutters $3.50 to $4.75; fed calves mostly $9 to $10.50 and stockers $5.50 to $7.65.

Choice veal calves sold at a general top of $12 with a few at $12.50 and common downward $7. Grass calves were still unsold.

Lambs $12 for good ewes and wethers and $10 to $11 for bucks.

Sheep $2.50 to $6.

Hogs previously $14.60 to $14.75 dressedweight at yards or plants.

Montread, Aug. 6—(CP)—Bulls were lower and the other classes of livestock barely steady today on Montreal livestock markets, it was reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

The few cattle offered consisted mostly of cows and bulls. Bulls were estimated to be fully 50 cents lower, selling at $4.50-$5.50. Canners and cutters drew $3.50-$4.50.

Veal calves ranged from $8-$11 with a top of $11.50. Drinkers made $6-$7.50 and grassers $5-$5.50.

Hogs were steady at $15 for B-1 dressed, $11.25 for B-1 alive, fed and watered, and up to $11.50 on trucks delivered. Sows sold for $8-$8.50 live weight.

Good ewes and wethers brought $11. Sheep ranged from $3.50-$6.

Hog Quotations

Toronto, Aug. 6—(CP)—Dressedweight wehe down 15c at Peterborough and prices were unchanged at Brantford, Chatham, Hull, London, Kitchener and Stratford in bacon-hog markets reporting today.

Liveweight Chatham $10.25.

Dressedweight: Brantford $14.15 plus transportation; Chatham $14.05; Hull, $14.25 plus transportation; London, $14.35 delivered; Kitchener, Peterborough and Stratford $14, plus transportation.

The market was unsettled at Stratford yesterday, the quotation falling from $14.25, plus transportation, last Friday, to $14 plus transportation.

Too Many Low-Grade Apples Reaching Market Says W. A. Fraser, M. P.

Too many low-grade apples from Ontario are reaching the consumer, and Nova Scotia and British Columbia apples are shoving them off the market, W. A. Fraser, M.P., of Trenton, Ontario, stated at the special conferences in connection with the forty-sixth annual convention of the International Apple Association, which opened yesterday at the Royal York Hotel. More than a thousand delegates from Canada and the United States are registered for the four-day convention.

Mr. Fraser suggested that low-grade apples should be fed to cattle in view of the fact that Canadian apple growers are producing three times as many apples as can be consumed by the Canadia npublic, and warned that "growers should not sabotage the market" by selling three of four types of apples in one container.

Need More Advertising

A more vigorous advertising campaign will be necessary if Ontario apples are expected to hold as large a place on the market as British Columbia, stated M. M. Robinson, Toronto, member of the Canadian Food Distribution Council.

Col. R. L. Wheeler, assistant director of marketing services, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, suggested a resolution be passed urging the department to appoint more men as inspectors of the Ontario apple crop. This suggestion followed complaints by several Ontario growers over the different types of inspections prevailing in various regions .The committee agreed that a standard mode of inspection should be maintained throughout Canada.

Support of efforts to assure that apple containers for transit be tightly closed was given by the committee after Charles Masson of Montreal told the conference that apple containers being shipped from Ontario to Quebec were left open with resultant damage to the apples.

Big Increase in Apple Increase

Mr. Wheeler said it would be "shortsighted and probably calamitous" to economise on costs of proper pest control, fertilization, pruning and thinning. Growers who survived the present crisis would be "in excellent position to cater to the discriminating consumer at home or abroad."

In support of this statement, Mr. Wheeler said production of pasteurized apple juice had increased from 120,000 gallons in 1938-39 to 300,000 in 1939-40 and 1,500,000 in 1940-41. Another processed form—the evaporated apple—would be revived this year.

A lively post-war market was predicted for "lumpy or home-style" applesauce made from two of Nova Scotia's export varieties, Gravenstein and Cox Orange.

Sketching problems thrust upon the apple industry by curtailment of markets in the United Kingdom and the European war zone, the speaker detailed federal assistance given in the last two seasons and reviewed arrangements for the third season which Canada now is entering.

Arrangements had been completed for Dominion assistance to the Apple Marketing Boards in Nova Scotia and British Columbia. Negotiations were under way in Ontario where export volume had not been large since 1933 but which still had 250,000 bushels of ordinarily exportable varieties.

Apple Grower in Difficult Position

Toronto (CP)—As long as prospects of resuming Trans-Atlantic exports curtailed by the war remain unpredictable, the Canadian apple grower is in a "most unenviable" position, R. L. Wheeler, Assistant Director of the Agriculture Department's fruit and vegetable marketing service, said in an address prepared for delivery today.

As an example of the existing situation, Mr. Wheeler said nearly 1,000,000 barrels of surplus apples grown in Nova Scotia probably will be processed for the Agriculture Minister's account in the present season.

This he told delegates to the 46th annual convention of the International Apple Association would be enough to "collapse fresh fruit markets for all Canadian producers" had not the government provided financial assistance.

Federal assistance, however, was not to be merely "sufficient for the purpose" and should not contribute to perpetuation of bad production and marketing practices.

"Varieties least desired in Canada are being excluded from assistance or scaled down" he said. "Minimum grade requirements and minimum sizes are being raised and assistance scaled down for lower grades."

Nazi Agency Puts Russian Dead At Three Million

Berlin, Aug. 6—(AP)—The German News Agency, D.N.B. claimed today that the Russian dead in the Eastern War were estimated at 3,000,000.

The estimate was made on the basis of the Nazi High Command's claim that Russian losses have been many times the number of prisoners, set at 895,000.

Including prisoners the Russian losses run close to 4,000,000, the German Agency said, with the result that the Red Army in the field "has fallen victim" to the German drive.

459,000 TONS

community of interests between Britain and the United States where liberty is concerned.

Mr. Attlee was interrupted once, by Leslie Hore Belisha, Liberal National, who inquired sharply "Where are the two fronts?" when the Lord Privy Seal had mentioned that Germany was now forced to face both ways in her battles.

Interruption by Hore Belisha

"The East and West," Mr. Attlee replied calmly.

"Where is the one in the west," Mr. Hore Belisha retorted. There was no reply.

Mr. Attlee said Britain is exercising the "utmost vigilance" in the Far East.

This was especially necessary, he said, because "the tone of the Japanese press does not agree with that of official assurances."

He said the flow of war material from the United States has surpassed any such aid during the First Great War and declared Britain's defences against invasion are "incomparably stronger" than a year ago.

"There are satisfactory features in the present phase of the struggle which make it difficult for many of us to prevent cheerfulness from breaking in," he said. "There is nothing wrong in being cheerful provided we do not relax our effort. We should realise that our better situation is only comparative........"

He said one change in the situation over that of a year ago was that "Hitler is now fighting on two fronts, which the German leader always have striven to avoid."

Invasion of Britain which seemed imminent last year has been "postponed," he said, but added that "nothing could be more foolish than to imagine that postponement means abandonment...."

Russia's Magnificent Fight

He referred to the fight on the Russian-German front as a "titanic struggle" and said "the Russian army and people are putting up a magnificent fight."

"It would be very foolish," he added, "for anyone to attempt to forecast the outcome of that struggle. But I think it abundantly plain that plans of the German High Command for a rapid victory have not succeeded.

"As long ago as July 13 the Germans claimed the Stalin line had been pierced at decisive points and that the roads to Leningrad, Moscow and Kiev were open. This claim certainly has not been substantiated. If these roads had been open all these weeks, why have not the Germans marched on their objectives?"

He declared the Russians still held the far north port of Murmansk, that attacking forces still had a considerable distance to go to reach the Leningrad-Murmansk rail line, and that the Baltic thrust toward Leningrad "has made no real progress recently."

Road to Moscow Barred

He said that despite "tremendous fighting now taking place in the Smolensk area" the road to Moscow still is barred, and Kiev in the Ukraine remains a bastion of Russian defence.

Nazis Disagreeably Surprised

"It is clear from the communiques of the German High Command that they have been disagreeably surprised by the determination, courage and fighting quality of the Russian army. It is clear that the Germans have sustained very heavy losses in men and material.

"We are doing our utmost to give all possible assistance to our Russian ally."

Referring to operations a week ago by British airplanes based on an aircraft carrier in the Arctic, he said "activities of our fleet at Kirkenes (Norway) and elsewhere in the north show how close is our physical contact with the Russian forces. . . . An essential feature of the aid that we can give is not that it will be spectacular but that it will be effective."

Stream of Aid to Britain from U.S.

Of British assistance from the United States he said:

"Not only does the stream of material exceed anything we received in the last war, but it is sent to us under the extraordinarily generous terms of the Lend-Lease Act.

"The visit of Mr. Harry Hopkins had for its main purpose the promotion of even greater assistance under this act.

"Important as is the physical help we are receiving, no less encouraging is the sense of spiritual unity between the English-speaking people.

"By independent but parallel action in relation to Japan, the United States of America and the British Commonwealth have again affirmed their community of interests wherever liberty is threatened.

Japanese Situation

"Despite official Japanese protestations that their motives are purely defensive, His Majesty's Government are maintaining the utmost vigilance, especially in view of the fact that the tone of the Japanese press does not agree with that of official assurances.

"There is plenty of evidence that Japan is directing her attention to Thailand in a manner which bears ominous resemblance to that which preceded the incursion into Indo-China."

British Imports Maintained

Turning to the Battle of the Atlantic, he said that it was being fought "over an immense area extending far toward the coasts of the U.S.A. and far south in the tropical seas of Africa" but that Britain's imports were being "maintained at a satisfactory figure in spite of all the enemy's efforts."

'Holding Our Own' In Atlantic

"No one with any judgment would contend that we have yet won the Battle of the Atlantic, but we can say that in this vital part of the battlefield we are holding our own...." he said.

"July was a good month. On the North Sea and Atlantic Coast we destroyed or damaged or put out of action 69 ships totalling 291,000 tons. This does not account for hits made on small craft, barges, tugs and the like.

"In the Mediterranean the numbers were 23 ships totalling 168,000 tons and another 30 ships were hit and considerably damaged.

.."Apart from attacks on smaller units and attacks on warships, 459,000 tons of Axis shipping were sunk, damaged or put out of action in that month....

Convoys Continue to Arrive

"Our convoys of vital supplies continue to arrive. From July 11 to July 28 the enemy was unable to broadcast a single claim of a successful attack by a U-boat."

He said U-boats made contact with a British southbound Atlantic convoy in the last few days of July when large forces were employed and a great effort made.

"A still greater effort was made by Nazi propagandists," he added.

The Nazis first claimed to have sunk 116,000 tons of shipping in addition to a corvette and a destroyer. The next day they boosted the figure to 140,000 tons, giving a vivid description of the convoy protected by destroyers, an auxiliary cruiser and Q-boats.

Actually, he said, there were no destroyers, no Q-boats, and no auxiliary cruiser. The convoy was protected by corvettes, which he said "gave a very good account of themselves, as the U-boats had reason to know."

Nazi Claims Exaggerated 350 or 700 Percent

He could give no exact details as to the tonnage sunk but knew it was enough to state the Nazi claims represent an exaggeration of at least 350 per cent and possibly 700 per cent.

He said Britain's Air Force in the Middle East during July "delivered 126 attacks on various targets, including Beirut, Bengasi and Tripoli" and "we have lost 285 aircraft while we have destroyed for certain 410 Axis units."

70 Attacks on German Towns in July

In the July air offensive against the continent "70 attacks were made on towns in Germany and 76 on towns in German-occupied territory" and a "heavy weight of bombs was delivered with great effect. These keen blows will be continued and intensified."

"Men of Many Nations Alongside Us"

Concluding, he declared "the men of many nations now are fighting alongside us, but there are millions in Europe who are with us in a common cause. There is evidence of the rising tide of resistance to Hitler's rule in all countries which he has invaded.

"We cannot forsee either the time or circumstances of our victory; we cannot tell the trials and difficulties that we have yet to endure but we know that when victory comes, as come it will, we shall have to take a leading part in helping establish a world peace and freedom and social justice."

Eden Reassures Turkey

Eden said "enemy propaganda" had suggested that "we might agree to some arrangement or other at the expense of Turkey. There is not of course the shadow of truth in any such suggestion."

He told the House he had been assured by the Russian and Polish governments that they are determined to work together under their recent agreement "with energy in order to make the maximum contributions they can to defeat Germany at the earliest possible moment."

Period of Greater Opportunities

Agreeing with a suggestion from another member, Eden said "it certainly is true that we now are entering a period of greater opportunities than we have had before for political warfare."

Embroidery Workers Granted War Bonus

Montreal, Aug. 6 —(CP)— Montreal dress manufacturers have granted a 7 1-2 per cent war bonus to embroidery workers, members of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, it was announced last night. The union, whose members have received a 10 per cent bonus, which has been incorporated into minimum salaries, since last September, had asked for another 10 per cent bonus.

Japan Warned By Gt. Britain Over Thailand

London, Aug. 6—(CP) — Foreign Secretary Eden disclosed to the House of Commons today that Japan has been warned her intervention in Thailand would "give rise to a most serious situation between Great Britain and Japan.".

Making his statment in a war review in which he and Clement Attlee, Deputy Leader of the House substituted for Prime Minister Churchill, Mr. Eden said Ambassador Sir Robert Craigie had warned the Japanese Foreign Minister on July 31 of the danger of intervention in Thailand.

He said the British government had noted that the Japanese Press was using the same kind of language regarding Thailand as it had employed before demands were made for bases in Indo-China.

Secretary Hull Expresses Concern

Washington, Aug. 6—(AP)—Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, said today that Japanese intentions toward Thailand and the Southwest Pacific area are a matter of increasing concern to the United States Government.

The United States Government has made clear, he told a Press conference, its vital interest and opposition to any moves of conquest in the Pacific and elsewhere. This, he added, applies to Thailand.

Referring especially to indications that Japan already was demanding military concessions in that independent state, Mr. Hull said the government here viewed these with increasing concern.

He expressed the interest of the United States in the integrity and independence of Thailand by referring to previous statements of policy regarding the Southwest Pacific.

A Japanese move into Thailand, Mr. Hull made clear, would be considered a step menacing American security and endangering American territory in the Pacific.

STORIES, MARKED

"Considerable Doubt at Ottawa"

The spokesman expressed "considerable doubt" that any such meeting was planned. The Washington rumors had it that the conference might be held in Canada or somewhere in the Atlantic Ocean.

"Certainly if the meeting were to be held in Canada, it would be most logical to expect we would hear about it in this office," he said. "No hint of such a meeting has come to our notice.

"And even if Mr. King were not invited to attend, it would seem likely he would at least be informed if any such meeting was about to take place on this side of the Atlantic."

London, Aug. 6 —(CP Cable)—The German-controlled radio at Lille, France, today took notice of speculation concerning the whereabouts of Prime Minister Churchill and broadcast an assertion that the Prime Minister has arrived in Canada by air for a meeting with President Roosevelt "on Canadian soil."

Asked about the enemy assertion, official quarters in London merely drew attention to their regulations forbidding disclosure of information concerning future movements of the prime minister.

Flow of U. S. Supplies Starts Towards Russia

Washington, August 6—(AP)—The United States, it was learned today, has unfrozen millions of dollars worth of Soviet orders and presumably the flow of American supplies to the fighting Russians already has begun.

Amounts and details were undisclosed but officials indicated they constituted an important beginning.

The government authorized the export of large amounts of materials long on order. How they were moving to Russia also was unrevealed but the United States has promised "favorable consideration" to Russian requests for the extension of available American shipping facilities presumably for transport across the Pacific to Vladivostok.

In addition Russia was said to have eight or ten vessels normally operating between American ports and Vladivostok.

Canadian Housewives Asked to Save All Animal Fats From Kitchens

Ottawa, Aug. 6 —(CP)— William Knightely, salvage office supervisor in the National War Services Department, announced a new angle in the salvage campaign today with an appeal to Canadians—especially housewives—to save all forms of animal fats from their kitchens.

Canadian consumption of fats and oils for years has been far greater than the amount produced in the country, Mr. Knightely said. The difference was made up by imported vegetable oils before the war but the tankers formerly used for importing the oils now are required for war needs.

Housewives are asked to put aside fats in separate parcels, when they will be collected, processed, and used in place of vegetable oils.

Valuable Material

Mr. Knightely said:

"All processors are co-operating fully with the drive to salvage this valuable raw material for the manufacture of poultry feed, animal feeds, soaps, glycerine and fertilizers. In urban areas civic authorities are asked to contribute their garbage collecting equipment.

"Our plan is to divide the campaign into two sectors. In urban municipalities, the garbage collection systems will be asked to gather up the animal fats and greases saved by the housewives. Special receptacles are to be carried in the garbage wagons for this purpose. All we are asking city householders to do is to keep kitchen bones and fats separate from the other garbage. The garbage men are asked to do the rest, as part of their voluntary home-front war work."

Mr. Knightely added that the civic collection systems will take fats and bones thus gathered to the city yards. The processing companies will be given an opportunity to contract for such material.

German Claims

Divided into summaries of fighting on the north, centre and south of the vast front from the Baltic to the Black Sea, the High Command issued these claims:

In the centre: The battle of Smolensk has ended in a German victory after a battle unmatched in history for ferocity and for losses such as the Russians have suffered:

In the south: The Stalin Line has been pierced and a wedge has been driven to the gates of Kiev, the Ukrainian capital; the Prut has been crossed and all of Bessarabia captured; Russian retreat has been cut off and an encirclement battle now is raging in full fury:

In the north: The stage has been set for a push towards Leningrad by another break through the Stalin Line, defeat of the Red Army in Estonia and smashing of strong Russian positions south of Lake Peipus.

Promised Details of Smolensk

The War Review promised further details tomorrow on the battle of Smolensk, but said the war in Finland, where a northern German-Finnish arm is striking also toward Leningrad, would have to be left for a later report.

Prefacing its analysis of the situation, the High Command claimed it was apparent "from numerous reports that the Soviet leadership no longer possesses a reliable picture of the situation of their own front."

Because it did not wish to disclose information which might aid the Russians, the communique asserted, the German High Command has been unable to give details of Nazi successes but the time now has come to reveal the results "of the tremendous struggle which began with the break-through of the Stalin line."

"The Fatherland had even to tolerate the fact that wrong conceptions arose and enemy countries disseminated misleading rumors," the communique said. "Now the time has come in the face of the beginning of new operations to cast light upon the course and results of the tremendous struggle which began with the break through the Stalin line."

New Peace Proposal Reported Coming

It is Said it Would Replace Hitler by 'Peace-Loving' German Army and Demand Axis Hegemony in Mediterranean

New York, Aug. 6—(CP)—Fight for Freedom, Inc., said yesterday that it had received "from leaders in the German underground movement" terms of a new peace proposal expected to be put forward by the Nazis within the next month.

The organization, which favors active United States participation in the war, listed five major points expected to figure in the proposal, including the temporary withdrawal of Hitler from the German leadership, as a concession to the consistent British refusal to negotiate with the Nazi leader or his group.

The terms, according to this outline, would include the maintenance, intact, of the British Empire, subject to British recognition of Axis Hegemony in the Mediterranean, in exchange for which British capital would be encouraged to develop Russia and the Middle East.

The German Government, according to Fight For Freedom, is seeking "proper" peace organizations in the United States through which to win support for the proposed peace terms here.

According to Fight for Freedom, the first of the German proposals would be for the replacement of Hitler in the leadership of the National Party by the "Peace-Loving" German army.

The third proposal would call for the disarmament of all European nations in favor of a "Pan-European Army" under German control.

Besides maintenance of the British Empire and encouragement to Britain to make investments in lands requiring refinancing operations—the fourth and fifth of the supposed peace points—the German government would make concessions to Protestant and Catholic churches, with special reference to the Vatican.

WINNIPEG FLIER REPORTED MISSING

Winnipeg, Aug. 6—(CP)—Flt. Lt. Theodore Ross Kipp of Winnipeg has been reported missing following air operations overseas Aug. 3, said word received here yesterday by his wife. Flt. Lt. Kipp, a member of the Royal Air Force, has taken part in many raids over Germany within the last few months.

Widow of State Senator Dies at Bradford, Pa.

Bradford, Pa., Aug. 6 (AP)—Mrs. Leta Card Emery, widow of the late State Senator Lewis Emery, died today at her nearby country home after an illness of a few weeks.

Born in Uxbridge, Ont., she came to Bradford in 1917 when she married Senator Emery who had championed independent oil producing interests in the state legislature in the 1880's.

She is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Frank Forrest, Toronto; Mrs. William Urquhart, Owen Sound, Ont., and Miss Alice Card, Port Hope, Ont., and two stepsons, Lewis and Carl Emery, of Bradford.

Defy Rainstorms To Blast Targets In S. W. Germany

London, Aug. 6 —(CP)— The Royal Air Force returned to its blasting at Germany during the night with "conspicuous success" despite a gale, the Air Ministry said today.

Objectives at Mannheim, Frankfurt and Karlsruhe were smashed with a great weight of the heaviest British bombs. Damage was widespread and severe. The bombers roared through bad weather on the outward and return journeys but visibility was clear over the target area.

Among other targets on which super explosives were dropped were factories and railways at Aachen and docks at Ostend in Nazi-occupied Belgium. A Beaufort plane of the coastal command scored a pair of direct hits on a Nazi supply ship in the port of Nantes.

Nine British planes were lost in these operations.

The Beaufort pilot reported that a dense pillar of smoke rose 150 feet above the supply ship which he described as being 400 feet long.

Little Nazi Air Activity Over Britain

Nazi air activity over Britain was on a small scale last night but some damage was done at a few points on the east coast of England and Scotland. Some raiders were said to have been sighted over the south coast after noon today and other enemy planes were reported in the vicinity of South Wales.

Reports from the southeast coast indicated the R.A.F. was following up its night operations with a new assault on Nazi-occupied France, despite blinding rainstorms which swept Dover Strait.

An hour after dawn, aircraft were heard flying east across the Channel and shortly thereafter anti-aircraft guns roared around Calais and Boulogne.

Attack on Nazi Convoy

There was no aerial activity over Germany yesterday but in a morning attack on a Nazi convoy off the Netherlands coast Blenheim bombers scored direct hits on a 2,000-ton vessel. Three Nazi patrol boats were struck by bombs in an afternoon attack off the German coast.

During yesterday British fighters carried out patrols over the Channel and Occupied France. Low level attacks were made on an airdrome and several planes on the ground were damaged.

'Rise in Holy War Against Invaders' Appeal by Russia

Moscow, Aug. 6—(AP)—Russia's military and political leaders on the northwest front appealed to the people of "territories temporarily occupied by the Fascists" to "rise in a holy people's war against the German invaders and enslavers".

The broadcast message, signed by Marshal Klementi Voroshilov, commander of the northwestern armies, and Alexei Zhadanov, Communist Party leader in the Leningrad district, was published today in the army newspaper Red Star.

Russian "Lost Division" Fights Way Back Home

Moscow, Aug. 6—(AP)—A Russian "lost division" has returned safely to Red Army lines after fighting for more than a month to break a German encirclement, it was reported today.

Col. T. Nokikov, Commander of "N" Infantry Division, wrote in Red Star, Red Army organ:

"The march of our division through the enemy rear lasted 32 days, covering hundreds of kilometres in battle through forests, swamps and across dozens of rivers.."

The Colonel estimated his division killed 3,000 Germans in battles along the way, routed one German motorized division and captured 300 automobiles and hundreds of armored cars, motorcycles and bicycles.

GARAGE OPERATORS PLAN ANNUAL PICNIC

Wednesday, August 13th, will be a big day for members of the Garage Operators' Association, Hastings and Prince Edward Branch, together with their wives and families, it being the occasion of their annual picnic, which, this year, will be held at the Sandbanks.

All members of the Garage Operators' Association are invited to take the day off, bring a basket lunch and enjoy the full afternoon's program which is replete with all kinds of children's and novelty races, softball games, etc. Drawing for the grand attendance prize is scheduled for six o'clock, while provisions for dancing in the evening have been completed.

ARMY COOKS KILL 'CHUTISTS

Moscow, Aug. 6 (AP)—The Red army gave space in its communique today to a tribute to that much-abused individual the army cook.

"X" regiment expressed its appreciation of the daring of junior Sergeant chief cook Ikonnikov and Red army man cook Zinin, the communique said, for not only getting hot meals to the front line soldiers on time, but also for killing four of a party of Nazi parachutists who landed near their kitchen.

("There can be no doubt that British and Russian—and, it may be added, American—interests alike demand that Russian influence in Eastern Europe should not be eclipsed by that of Germany."

("It may be presumed," the editorial went on, "that Russia, like the United States, will not remain aloof from any projected discussions with allied representatives in London....about the future ordering of Europe."

Turks generally have taken the attitude their country would benefit most by a stalemate in the Russian-German war, with both powers emerging so weakened neither could attempt any further expansion.

Flow of Nazi Arms Halts

British sources, meanwhile, reported that Nazi arms traffic across Turkey to Iran (Persia) had been stopped since the beginning of the Russian-German conflict.

The Germans, these sources said, formerly had been supplying rifles, light artillery and ammunition to the Iran Government, routing them from the Turkish Black Sea port of Trabzon to the Iran frontier by an agreement concluded with Turkey in 1937.

Because of the menace of the Russian fleet the Nazis were reported unwilling to risk further shipments of arms across the Black Sea.

Aspects Post-War Reconstruction

DOWNED BY NAZIS

Whitney Straight, millionaire former New York society racing driver and husband of Lady Daphne Finch-Hatton, was shot down by anti-aircraft fire during an aerial battle over the English channel, and is believed to be a prisoner of war in France. Straight, a wing commander in the R.A.F., was reportedly leading his squadron in a dive attack on a German convoy when his plane was struck.

WHAT! only $6.15 premium on a $5000.00 policy?
"Yes, that's your Monthly premium" (at age 30)

● Here is a new kind of life insurance that is giving thousands of Canadians who could not easily afford other types of insurance, the financial protection they need... security now and a guaranteed income in later life.

The plan works like this: you choose any policy that suits your needs, but instead of paying the first year's premium, you pay for one month only. For example, at age 30, the premium on a $5,000 Double Protection life policy is only $6.15. As a service to you, the company will accept your checks, one for each month of the year, all post-dated.

This system enables you to meet the extra demands upon your income—for war-time taxes and war-savings certificates—without letting your insurance program suffer. North American Life's monthly Budget Plan is the safe, modern, easy way to financial independence. THE WAR TODAY

(By DON GILBERT)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Britain's diplomatic difficulties in keeping Turkey firmly in the Allied camp have not been lessened by the Russo-German war. First there were the alleged Soviet designs on the Straits. Now the question of post-war spheres of influence has pricked the politically sensitive Turks.

According to dispatches from the Turkish capital today, the British ambassador in Ankara has found it necessary to give the Turkish government formal assurance that Great Britain has not, and will not, enter any undertaking with Russia inimical to Turkey.

An editorial in The Times of London had suggested that after the war leadership in eastern Europe could fall only to Germany or Russia, and that it would be in Britain's interests that "Russian influence in eastern Europe should not be eclipsed by that of Germany."

The views of the influential British journal apparently caused something of a tempest in Turkish politics, with the Turkish foreign minister calling on the British ambassador for an official disavowal. In eastern countries the impression that The Times has official status is deep rooted and it is widely regarded as speaking for the government. British diplomatic circles in Turkey described the editorial in question as "unfortunate."

In the early phases of the war British diplomacy in Turkey was handicapped by Britain's inability to come to an agreement with Russia. The Anglo-Turkish alliance, the British ambassador in Ankara was repeatedly told, could only be effective insofar as it did not disturb Russo-Turkish relations. Pressure from her big neighbor was popularly supposed to be keeping Turkey from implementing her mutual assistance agreement with Britain.

The German invasion of Russia could have been expected to alter Turkey's attitude as regards participation in the war, since fear of displeasing Russia was done away with and there was no longer the possibility of Turkey having to bear alone, or almost alone, the full weight of a German attack.

But as soon as Russo-German hostilities began the Turks professed to place credence in a Nazi-discovered Soviet plan to take over the Dardanelles, the waterway between the Mediterranean and the Black Sea which Turkey so jealously guards. This attitude of Ankara's became so embarrassing that Britain prevailed upon Stalin personally to send a denial to the Turkish president.

Now the Turks, apparently fearing that successful Russian resistance might cause the Germans to seek an easier route to the Russian oil resources in the Caucasus thru' Turkey, claim to be disturbed by post-war possibilities and Britain has had to give new assurances.

Three Brothers, Lacking Sweat Glands, Can't Work in Summer

Sometimes persons are born without sweat glands. Dr. F. W. Sunderman of Philadelphia, in reporting the lack of sweat glands in three brothers who were members of a family of ten children of Italian parents, says that when exposed to high temperature, these people developed fever and headache. Normal people have a continuous loss of fluid through the sweat glands which helps them to maintain a normal temperature. Neither of the two older boys in this group were able to work in the summer because of their inability to tolerate high temperatures.

New Clothes For Fliers

The newest device for sustaining aviators at high altitudes is an electrically heated flying suit. These suits are lighter in weight than sheepskin lined garments formerly used by aviators. In the ordinary Army's standard summer flying suit, wires were sewed in parallel lines; gloves, similarly wired at the back and at the wrists, were plugged in at the sleeves of the garment. Electrically, the complete assembly consisted of two circuits for the suit, one for the gloves and one for the boot inserts. These are connected to a switch box at the waist. The latest models are heavy woolen union suits similarly wired. When electric current is passed through these wires, the body is kept warm.

Infantile Paralysis Upsurge

Infantile paralysis is now widely prevalent, particularly in Florida, Alabama, Georgia and in the La Grange and Western Springs area near the city of Chicago. The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis is investigating the epidemics in co-operation with local and state health authorities, and preliminary evidence indicates the view that infantile paralysis is spread by way of the bowel through contaminated food or drinks is a correct one. Obviously methods of defense against such infection involve avoidance of contact with any substances taken into the body which might conceivably be contaminated by persons who are carrying the virus.

The Value of Nicotinic Acid

Nicotinic acid is the special vitamin that is significant in the prevention and treatment of pellagra. Apparently it is a dietary essential for man, for dog, for pig and for some bacteria. Without its inclusion in the diet these animals sicken and develop serious symptoms. Without nicotinic acid certain microorganisms do not grow satisfactory. Ordinary baker's yeast is fairly rich in nicotinic acid. It appears in relatively small amounts however, in rice, powdered dried peas, cabbage, spinach or whole wheat. Milk contains only little nicotinic acid. Commonly eaten meat products often contain more nicoinic acid than do commonly eaten foods of plant origin. Veal, calf's liver and ox tongue are relatively higher in nicotinic acid content than many plant foods.

Little Benny's Note Book

Puds Simkins and I were watching the puppies in the Pet Shop window and wondering if they were really enjoying themselfs as much as they seemed, and I said, Holey smokes the man is closing up the shop, it must be late as the dooce.

And we asked some man going passed what time it was and he looked at his watch, saying, Six 30 precisely.

Being a man with a little red feather stuck in his Panama hat, and we started to go home as fast as we could walk without actually running, Puds saying, G wizzickers I didn't expect it to get so late so soon.

Me neither, gosh shang the luck this will make about the 3rd time I been late this week and it's only Wensday, I said, and Puds said, Darn it all I bet I wont be allowed out after supper just for this. Who invented time anyways? he said.

That's what I'd like to find out, somebody must of been hard up for something to do, I said.

And we hurry up kept on going, and who did we see in front of us but pop and Pud's father, proving htey must of met on the buss or something, and Puds said, G, that's a funny one, my father is hardly ever late, he thinks too much of his supper, and I said, Neither is mine, he thinks too much of not wanting to make my mother mad.

Wich just then they heard us and looked around and saw us, me saying, What time is it pop? and he said, Just about 6, just in nice respectable time for dinner.

And he went in our house and Mr. Simkins went in Puds's house, and I said, Well what do you know about a guy like that, going around telling people the wrong time, and Puds said, Sure, and he said precisely too, to make it worse. Good night making us do all that hurrying for nothing, that's a heck of a note. O well, I might as well go in now and make the best of it, he said.

Wich he did and so did I, nobody giving me any special compliments for being early.

Russian Defence Forces Southern Drive by Nazis

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, Aug. 6—(AP)—Another German panzer spearhead has stabbed deeply into Russian defenses midway between the main Leningrad and Moscow battle fronts; but it is southeast of Kiev that the most ominous threat to Russian armies still is discernible.

Berlin advices claim the Nazis have overrun forty-three Russian defensive "bunkers," or field fortifications, in that area. Presumably this refers to the fighting in the region of Byelaya Tserkov, fifty miles or so south of Kiev. Nazi strategy in this movement is not clear, since information is lacking as to whether the reported new gains were in the direction of Kiev or southeastward, along the railroads meeting at the important Byelaya Tservok junctions.

There is warrant now, however, for the assumption that stubborn Russian defense on the Leningrad, Moscow and Kiev fronts has led to a revision of Nazi battle plans. Pressure on all three is being continued; but it seems possible that encirclement and destruction piecemeal of Russian armies still holding the Dniester front in the Southwestern Ukraine is being attempted.

Forced South of Kiev

That appeared possible with the first report of a German advance to Bel Tserkov. It appeared to be a deflection southward from the attempt to reach Kiev itself. If the course of new forward thrusts proves to be still southward down the west side of the Dnieper, there will remain little doubt that the Nazi High Command has changed its immediate objectives to concentrate on an effort to sweep the Southern Ukraine clear of Russian resistance.

It has always seemed possible that a revised German plan of that nature would develop if Russian Army resistance in front of Moscow proved too stubborn. Nazi spokesmen including persons at Hitler's headquarters have insisted that destruction of Russian armies not capture of particular cities or territories, was the purpose of the attack.

It is in the Ukraine, however, that food stocks and the routes to Russian oil fields, both essential to the German war effort, are located. It is behind that southern flank of the long battle line also, that the most important Russian industrial centres in the west lie.

Leningrad of No Value.

Except for the fact that capture of Leningrad might open a route via the Baltic for a sea-borne flank attack on Moscow, there has seemed no great strategic objective involved on that front. Leningrad itself was abandoned as Russia's capital because it was too exposed.

There is no evidence that Soviet war industries of any considerable scope are located in the Leningrad area. The fact that Nazi bombers have visited it only sporadically as compared to attacks on Moscow proves there are no vital military targets of that nature in or close to Leningrad.

The most perplexing recent development on the battle front, however, is Moscow's admission of heavy fighting at Kholm, a river town on the Lovat, almost due south of Leningrad. Presumably a Nazi panzer unit has reached that point.

Yet Kholm holds no great threat to either Leningrad or Moscow, according to the maps. It is not a rail-served area, is surrounded to the north and east by great marshlands, impending tank warfare, and is partly walled off by the most rugged mountain chain in Western Russia, the Valdaiskaya Ridge.

Just why the Germans stabbed up the Lovat to Kholm it is hard to see. Geographically it is the poorest road to either Leningrad or Moscow from the west. That a major attack is shaping there seems wholly improbable.

U. S. WATCHES THAILAND CRISIS

Japanese Pressure Seen Fraught With Potential Dangers for U.S. Interests

By LLOYD LEHRBAS
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Washington, Aug. 6 (AP)—The United States gave strict attention today to the intensifying Thailand crisis, which officials termed a Japanese pressure play fraught with potential dangers for American interests and possessions in the South Pacific.

Waiting on developments the State Department maintained silence as to what policy the United States would pursue if Japan should force Thailand to yield to its demands and become a part of Japanese-dominated "greater East Asia co-prosperity sphere."

There were broad hints in authoritative quarters today, however, that Britain was not prepared to sit idly by and watch Japan absorb Thailand—the last small independent nation remaining in South Asia. full support.

Full U. S. Support to Britain

Whatever action Britain takes, these sources predicted, will receive full support from the United States.

The belief was expressed, meanwhile, that the position taken by the U.S. government with regard to the recent Japanese penetration of French Indo-China might well apply to the threatened coup in Thailand.

On Indo-China, the Acting Secretary of State, Sumner Welles, assailed the Vichy government last week for bowing to Japanese demands under the "pretext of common defence."

Policy of U.S.

The policy of the United States, Welles said, "would be governed by the manifest effectiveness" with which the governments project their territories "from domination and control by those powers which are seeking to extend their rule by force and conquest, or by the threat thereof."

Welles' statement was authoritatively interpreted at the time as a broad hint that the U.S. would assist the remaining French colonies if they resisted Axis demands, and the resumption was that Thailand could qualify for similar help.

(Dispatches from Bangkok last night emphasized that Thailand was watching the United States attitude in the crisis with even greater interest than that of Great Britain, although Britain has been concentrating military forces nearby.)

U.S. interests in the zone affected by the Thailand crisis were described as vonsiderable, although Britain was conceded to have a much bigger stake. A Japanese occupation of Thailand probably would curtail American imports of vitally needed rubber and tin for National defence production as well as decrease or end American sales there for nearly $1(,000,000 annually.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

James W. Barton, M.D.

Tonsils and Adenoids and Infantile Paralysis

The tonsils are often compared to the filter on a water tap. As long as the water tap filter is in good condition, not clogged in any way, it does its work of filtering out harmful substances. When, however, it gets clogged by these harmful substances, it may actually allow more of these substances to get into the water than if no filter were on the tap.

Similarly, tonsils were put in youngsters to help ward off infections or at least to lessen the numbe of harmful organisms that would otherwise enter the blood. When, however tonsils get filled with these organisms and the poisons they manufacture, they do not filter out these harmful organisms as they should. In fact, some of these poisons in the tonsils drain into the blood stream an cause rheumatism and heart disease.

The thought, then, is that if tonsils are healthy, they should not be removed even if large (unless their great size is interfering with breathing). Tonsils remain in the throat until past usual time for children's diseases to occur, when, in most individuals, they gradually disappear.

However, in the late summer and early autumn, epidemics of infantile paralysis—poliomytlitis—occur, and research workers advise that if at all possible, it is better not to remove tonsils at this time.

Drs. A. E. Fischer, New York; M. Stillerman, Great Neck, N.Y., and H. H. Marks, N.Y., tell in the American Journal of Diseases of Children of their investigation of the 507 children from 3 to 12 years of age who were treated in Toronto during the 1937 epidemic of poliomyelitis. Of 507 children 231 had their tonsils and adenoids removed, 267 still had their tonsils, and the record of 9 could not be obtained.

Up to 6 years of age, most of the children still had their tonsils; after age of 6 most had had their tonsils removed. The number of cases was higher and the death rate higher among those who had recently had tonsils removed. This would show that the tonsils and adenoids help to prevent poliomyelitis.

"Therefore, the removal of the tonsil and adenoids had best be postponed while poliomyelitis is prevalent in a community".

TRAPPER FOUND BY TWO FRIENDS

$1,000 Worth of Spoiled Furs Found Near Tent—Death Due to Exposure

Pointe Bleue, Que., Aug. 6 (CP)—The lonely death of a trapper who had not been heard from since last August was reported to the Indian agent here Tuesday by two Indians who went by plane and foot into the "Great Woods" 250 miles north of this northwestern Quebec settlement to search for their missing friend.

The Indians, named Simeon and Germain, said they had buried the trapper, Charlot Pekutelagan, beside the isolated tent where they found his body. Apparently, they said, Pekutelegan, about 30 and unmarried, died during the winter from natural causes.

Near the tent and spoiled by months of exposure was $1,000 worth of furs.

Long Journey by Friends

Simeon and Germain told how they were flown July 2 by a Canadian Skyways plane to Lac Des Deux Descharges. From there they set out on foot to where they knew their friend planned to trap last year. After two hours walking they found the end of a burnt canoe.

A little further on, the Indians reported, they discovered a food cache which also had been burned. In a tree nearby, there was a notch, a sign of distress. Moving further towards the head of the Mouchalagan River, they found a pair of snow shoes suspended in a tree, and a little further they saw a tent.

Entering the tent, they said, they found the body of Pekutelagan lying on a sort of seat. The head was raised and the arms were crossed.

The pilot, a South African from Johannesburg, tramped, at night, 100 miles of desert patrolled by the enemy, and suffered only blistered feet and a riotous welcome as "The Glamour Queen of the Desert."

EXPECT SIAM TO RESIST ANY JAP ATTEMPT

Confident Nazis Won't Reach Kiev, Moscow, Leningrad

Red Army Engaged In Fierce Combat on Estonian Front

BATTLING IN UKRAINE

(By The Canadian Press)

Russian troops were reported battling fiercely to stem a two-headed drive on Leningrad today, with Nazi columns striking from the south along the shores of Lake Peipus and German-Finnish forces attacking from the north on the Karelian Isthmus, with 75 miles of the city.

Soviet reports indicated that the push from the north had temporarily abated overnight but noted heavy fighting south of the old-time capital of the Czars.

Littered With German Dead

A Red army bulletin reported that Russian troops had routed one of Hitler's elite death's head divisions, littering the field with 2,500 Germans killed and wounded.

German military dispatches pictured the strongest Nazi blows as falling on Russian forces in the Ukraine and the Germans declared that the remainder of Red Army troops surrounded in that grain-rich province were now "facing destruction".

An authoritative British war review in London declared that while the Germans still held the initiative in the 47-day old Russian campaign, the Nazi High Command was gravely concerned over "the slowness of the advance and the very heavy casualties"

Germans Turning Towards Caucasus

"Halted at Smolensk, facing Moscow, the Germans are turning southeast from Bel Tserkov, in the Ukraine, in a push toward the Caucasus", the British report said.

"There has been no great change in the situation in the last 24 hours.

"It is increasingly clear that on all other fronts the third great German offensive has been held and that progress in the Ukraine is very slow."

Moscow, Aug. 7 (AP)—The Russians indicated today that a new German-Finnish push toward Leningrad from the north had fizzled out, but reported heavy fighting south of that city, in the Smolensk sector west of Moscow and on the Ukraine front.

Failure of the afternoon communique to mention a battle which had been reported raging all day yesterday on the Karelian Isthmus northwest of Leningrad was taken here to mean that pressure on the Russian lines in that area had been relieved—at least temporarily.

The bulletin declared, however, that the Red Army was engaged in fierce combat all last night on the Estonian front, where the Germans have been trying to push northward toward Leningrad along the west shore of Lake Peipus.

Berlin Says Battle West of Smolensk "Ends Victoriously"

INFLICT BIG LOSSES

Berlin, Aug. 7—(AP)—The German High Command claimed today that German losses were moderate compared with the "extraordinarily high" losses of the Red Army in the Battle of Smolensk.

It reiterated its claim that the fierce struggle 200 miles west of Moscow has "ended victoriously" for Hitler's armies. This was the follow-up report in which the High Command yesterday promised to tell point by point how Germany's soldiers pierced the Stalin line and drove a salient deep toward Moscow.

On the Smolensk front alone, the communique claimed, 310,000 Russians fell prisoner and 3,205 tanks and 3,120 artillery pieces were captured. It said the Russians lost 1,098 planes in the battle and an "unsurveyable amount of other war material"

It then gave in detail the progress of German forces from the time Spearheads shot out from the twin battlefields of Bialystok and Minsk to what the high command claims now to be total success in the battle of Smolensk.

DNB, Nazi Propaganda and News Agency, reported what it called the last futile attempt of Russian forces to break out of encirclement east of Smolensk.

A Red Army unit, betrayed by the glint of its bayonets in a grain-field, it claimed, was annihilated by a German attack. Two cavalry regiments and 22 tanks were destroyed, the Agency said.

Nazi "Grim Satisfaction"

Of the staggering statistics of Russian losses in six weeks of bitter fighting on the 2,000-mile front from the White to the Black Sea, Hitler's newspaper Voelkischer Beobachter, declared today:-

"Our grim satisfaction over these monstrous successes is increased by the knowledge that our own losses in comparison with what we have accomplished are low."

Germans waited eagerly for the answer to the question, "what happened at Smolensk? But, in a sense, their interest has lessened since it is generally admitted that the focus of the fighting was shifted now to the Ukraine and the high command has promised a "new phase" of the German campaign.

New operations farther east of Smolensk, nevertheless, are said to be in progress now and this is offered as evidence that a threat to the Soviet capital is developing.

TANKERS TO CARRY AVIATION 'GAS' FOR RUSSIAN USE

Compulsory Plan to Conserve Gas on East U. S. Coast May Not Be Far Ahead

ICKES' STATEMENT

Washington, Aug. 7 —(AP)— Harold Ickes, Defence Petroleum Administrator, announced today four United States tanker ships are being turned over to Russia to transport aviation gasoline.

At the same time he said a shortage of aviation gasoline in the United States, with possible severe effects on military and commercial flying, was likely unless the capacity for producing this high octane fuel is increased immediately.

The transfers to Russia might contribute to a limited general petroleum shortage in west coast areas, he said.

Mr. Ickes told newsmen that a compulsory plan to conserve gasoline on the east coast "may not be vary far ahead." He said that gasoline consumption on the Atlantic seaboard had increased materially in the last two weeks despite the widespread effort to influence motorists voluntarily to curtail consumption.

The problem of increasing United states capacity for producing aviation gasoline, which requires special machinery, will be taken up by Mr. Ickes Monday at a meeting here of Chairman of Regional Oil Industry Committees.

Finns Acknowledge Russians Are Mighty Tough Customers

Soldiers Stay in Place Even When to Do so Means Sure Death—Terrain Hard to Fight in

RUSSIAN EQUIPMENT GOOD

(By LOUIS P. LOCHNER)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

With the Finnish Army on the Russian Front (by telephone via. Helsinki to Berlin), Aug. 7 (AP) — War in the Lake Ladoga area is different from anything I have encountered at any front, east, west or southeast.

The Finns and Russians are fighting with the most modern weapons in much the same manner as the Indians and their white adversaries fought long ago in the forests with crude weapons.

That queer shape some 50 yards ahead in the trees may be merely a natural bunching of leaves and twigs, or it may be a camouflaged Russian.

Hiding in one of the innumerable small dugouts the Finns have constructed near their staff headquarters, you may think you are safe, only to have Russian artillery, shooting from miles away, shatter a nearby tree so that you just escape being crushed as it falls.

Only yesterday three German newsmen visiting the Finnish front were crossing from one side to the other of a road leading through the forest when a shell hit the road and wounded one of them.

It is obvious that blitzkrieg methods are applicable only to a limited degree in terrain such as this.

Moreover, every general and Finnish statesman will tell you that this little republic cannot afford to lose many men. In fact, to recover from this war and the Winter war of 1939-40, Finnish sociologists will tell you that every married couple must produce at least six children.

Minimum Loss of Life

Hence, Finland's general staff relies on every native's excellent knowledge of the woods to attempt to conquer territory with a minimum loss of life.

It is claimed that the Russians are not as much at home in the woods and that success has been on the Finnish side.

Nevertheless, the key position of Leningrad is still a considerable distance away.

Bruno, Second Son Of Mussolini, Killed Testing Bomber

Rome, August 7—(AP)—Capt. Bruno Mussolini, 23, who abided by his father's admonition to "live dangerously," was killed today in the crash of a long range bomber he was testing as Commander of a detachment that was to use the plane.

He died at 10 a.m. near Pisa. Bruno was born April 22, 1918, at Milan while his father, as head of the young Fascist movement, was editing the newspaper Il Popolo D'Italia. Bruno was the Premier's second son.

Pilot and Mechanic Also Killed

Two other fliers—the second pilot and a mechanic—were killed in the crash while the remaining members of the eight-man crew were injured.

"This morning Capt. Bruno Mussolini died gloriously near Pisa following an accident in the flight of an experimental plane," said the official announcement.

Bruno was married in 1938 to Gina Ruberti. They had one child, Marina, now 17 months old. The death leaves Premier Mussolini with four children, Countess Edda Ciano, 30, wife of Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano; Anna Maria, 11; Vittorio, 24, and Romano, 13.

Bruno piloted planes for Italy in the Ethiopian war and in the Spanish war. Little had been known of his activities in the present war until the disclosure that he had died as a test pilot.

Inducted at 8 Years of Age

When he was eight years old Bruno Mussolini, reared in the Fascist pattern of the "Sons of the Wolf," was inducted into the National Balilla where boys learn the handling of a rifle and marching routine.

The next year he and his older brother, Vittorio, were taken for a ride in a seaplane and when Bruno was ten he was making frequent flights. He obtained his pilot's licence when he was 16.

When Fascist Italy started its aggressions in 1935 Bruno and Vittorio were ready for combat in the air and became officers in East Africa.

The desperate squadron to which they belonged boasted of killing about 2,000 Ethiopians in one attack alone.

LARGE OIL FIRE

Cairo, Aug. 7—(AP)—A successful raid on the submarine base at Augusta, on the Italian island of Sicily, by British naval planes Tuesday night was announced today by the Royal Air Force's Middle East Command.

Heavy bombs, dropped from low altitude, scored many direct hits and one touched off "a very large oil fire on a submarine jetty," the communique said.

Other planes machine-gunned searchlight positions in the port of the Sicilian coast facing the Italian Peninsula and inflicted casualties on the crews.

Hull's Statement Is No Surprise To Thailand People

Bangkok, Thailand, Aug. 7 (AP) —A high Thai official declared today that the United States well understands Thailand's position in the face of Japan's southward expansion and that State Secretary Cordell Hull's statement yesterday that a Japanese move into Thailand would be a matter of concern for the United States, therefore, was not surprising.

An excellent understanding, this source said, was effected at a meeting between Mr. Hull and the Thai minister in Washington, Nom Rajawongse Seni Pramoj.

Political sources emphasized that Thailand would welcome Anglo-American assurances counterbalancing Japanese aspirations. The consensus among observers was that concern in Washington and London for the independence of Thailand should deter Japan from any moves that might provoke a new crisis.

Junior Chamber Tours for 'Goodmill'

Ottawa, Aug. 7 —(CP)— Seventeen members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Binghampton, N.Y., will visit Canada Friday on a three-day international goodwill tour arranged by Ottawa Junior Board of Trade.

Accompanied by Charles S. Douglas, Director of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce and George H. Hale, Chairman of the Binghampton Credits for Canada Committee, the party will stay overnight at Brockville, Ont., Friday and Saturday morning will visit a Link trainer plant at Gananoque, Ont.

Remainder of the week-end will be spent in Ottawa.

British Aid Likely To Be Conditioned By U.S. Response

Informant Pictures Britain Much Stronger and Prepared in Middle East

SITUATION REVIEWED

London, Aug. 7—(CP)—Thailand is expected to resist any attempt by Japan to invade her and British aid, military or material, will be conditioned by the United States response to the situation, it was declared here today in the course of an authoritative review.

The source for this statement pictured Britain as much stronger and ready for offensive action in the Middle East where, the informant declared, Britain already has halted a Nazi drive toward the Suez Canal. This was a reference to the defence of Egypt's western frontier, west of Suez, and the dominance Britain has won in Syria and Iraq, the other flank of Suez.

British Position Stronger

Now, he said, the British military position from the border of Turkey to the border of Libya is so strong that "the Axis is talking nervously of British assaults on Libya, Sicily or the Greek Islands."

This source acknowledged that the Germans still held the initiative in the Russian campaign although, he said, the German High Command is gravely concerned over "the slowness of the advance and the very heavy casualties."

The world-wide military situation as described in this review, follows:

Middle East

British blows against the Germans at Salum, on the Egyptian-Libyan frontier, although apparently indecisive, have taken such a toll of German armored fighting vehicles that the possibility of a large scale German attack toward Alexandria and Cairo has been virtually ruled out.

Tobruk, Libyan strong point still in British hands, lies as a constant threat to the flank of any major Axis offensive into Egypt.

The landing of British infantry and artillery at Basra, Iraq, weeks ago stopped the Germans in Iraq and forced them to leave the rebel government of Rashid Ali alone in its unsuccessful fight against Britain.

The triumph in Iraq was one of the first brakes put on the vast pincer movement with which the Germans planned to take Suez and the Caucasian oil fields of Russia.

Other brakes were the fierce resistance of Yugoslavia and Greece which cost the Germans "time and heavy casualties," and Crete which used up such German forces as air troops which would have been vital for attacks on Syria and Iraq.

Far East Situation

London, Aug. 7 (CP)—Britain expects little Thailand to resist any Japanese invasion, and British aid in such event will hinge on the willingness of the United States to co-operate in strong measures, an authoritative source declared today.

The implication was that the United States must be willing to co-operate in more than an economic blockade of Japan if Britain is to give strong backing to Thailand.

That British, Australian and India forces were making ready for any Japanese thrust into Thailand —which might be either or both a threat to Singapore or the Burma Road lifeline of the Chungking Chinese government—was indicated by a Reuters Agency dispatch from Singapore.

Quoting the Singapore office of the Ministry of Information, it said that in Burma, and South China "all preparations are ready to smash any Japanese attempt to cut the Burma Road or move farther westward."

Anglo-American Co-Operation Expected

Britain is looking toward a policy of Anglo-American co-operation extending beyond diplomatic and economic measures, applicable not only to the possible situation of Thailand but to the entire Far East.

Thailand is in a "position of danger," a British informant said in an authoritative world military review. He added that the nation's army numbers only 50,000 and its equipment is limited but its air force "makes up in quality what it lacks in size."

Up to Japan to Decide

In Melbourne, the Australian Navy Minister, William M. Hughes, asserted that it was up to Japan to decide whether there was to be peace or war in the Pacific.

"Do they (the Japanese) think Australia can look on these movements which Japan is making in other countries—movements threatening the very foundations of the Empire and Australian interests in the Far East—and do nothing?" he asked.

Days have passed since it was first reported in London that Japan, with new footholds in southern French Indo-China, was demanding military bases in Thailand along with economic concessions.

Japanese in Indo-China

In today's military review, the London informant said that Japan had 50,000 troops in southern Indo-China and was occupying eight Indo-Chinese airfields, one 700 miles from Singapore and another less than 250 miles from Bangkok, Thailand's capital.

The Singapore fortress and naval base was said to have an air force superior in quality to any that Japan could muster and that an attack there would tax Japan's aerial resources to the utmost.

It is held here that Thailand is menaced by either of two courses open to the Japanese: (1) Infiltration by "tourists" along with economic domination and (2) actual military invasion which, if Thailand, might bring the forces of unopposed or opposed only by the Rising Sun to Thailand's frontiers with Burma and the Malay states.

Thailand's Attitude

The Thailand Government declared today that the nation was ready to do business with any nation but contemplated special treatment for none.

"The Thai market will not be closed to any country and certainly not to Britain, who will always be assured of as much of Thailand's commodities as she wants," said Nai Vanich Pananonda, director general of commerce for the Bangkok Government.

He added that a Japanese demand for a monopoly over rice, tin and rubber was "improbable" and that Japan already was buying large quantities of these things.

The Bangkok newspaper Pragmitra reported that Thailand ten times turned down Japan's request for recognition of the puppet state of Manchoukuo before finally agreeing.

Farmer's Son Killed By Lightning Bolt

Vaudreuil, Que., Aug. 7—(CP)—A lightning bolt killed 18-year-old George Sauve here yesterday while he was working with his brother, Albert, on their father's farm.

The bolt burned off all the clothes of the victim. Albert, working some distance from his brother, was knocked down from a binder and rendered unconscious.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Aug. 7—(CP)—Synopsis: Scattered thundershowers have occurred in the western provinces and northern Ontario, while in southern and eastern Ontario the weather has been fair and warm.

Rescued Crew of Torpedoed Ship Planned Mutiny to Prevent Seizure

(By The Canadian Press)

Survivors of the Belgian freighter Mercier, torpedoed in mid-Atlantic, told newsmen in Canada they had planned to mutiny and seize control of the ship that rescued them.

Three days after they were picked up by a Finnish boat the men said, Finland declared war on Soviet Russia. Fearing the ship might put back to her home port, the 45 torpedo victims seriously discussed seizing control of the vessel and sailing her for Canada.

But their fears were groundless—the little freighter continued on her way and dropped them at Norfolk, Virginia.

Only three Canadians were among the survivors, Stanley Gabriel of Glace Bay, N.S., Leo Steele of Halifax, and a third now in England. Belgian and English sailors comprised the rest of the crew.

Gabriel, a fireman aboard the torpedoed ship, thinks the boat was jinxed from the moment it left for England. They made the crossing safely, but had the misfortune to dock at a port that was being blitzed.

One night the dock where their ship was anchored caught fire, the flames spreading to the freighter. Quickly the crew took to the lifeboats, leaving seven or eight aboard to battle the blaze.

Hit by Two Torpedoes

After that scorching they headed for Canada, Gabriel said, only to stop two torpedoes in mid-Atlantic. In ten minutes the ship sank, the crew piling off in lifeboats.

The captain and six of the crew went down with the ship, Gabriel recounted, and as she was sinking the captain, in a gesture of a "thumbs-up" farewell, tooted the whistle four times.

Seven days later they were picked up after existing on one hard biscuit and 10 teaspoons of water a day.

After hearing of Finland's move against Russia the 45, made plans to overpower the 32 Finns aboard and sail the ship for Canada, but, as no attempt was made to change the course, the plot was never hatched.

Gabriel says he will return to the sea again, and firmly believes England will win the war. "I never saw people with such courage as the English," he said.

ATTACK AIRDROME

London, Aug. 7 —(CP)— The Royal Air Force reported today successful raids on industrial centres of western Germany and shipping off the Netherlands coast.

From the wide-ranging operations yesterday and last night 10 planes were lost.

It was indicated the assault was renewed on northern France today.

As on Tuesday night, last night's attacks were centred on Frankfurt, Mannheim and Karlsruhe in a continuation of the methodical pounding of German targets and a communique reported "huge fires were started and a considerable weight of bombs were dropped on each city." These raids cost eight planes.

JAP ACTION SEEN PART AXIS PLAN TO RULE OCEANS

Fits Into German Demands on Vichy for Bases at Dakar

VIEWS IN WASHINGTON

By LLOYD LEHRBAS
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Aug. 7 (AP)— The United States government, it was learned today, believes that Japan's pressure bid for control of Thailand is part of a well-patterned Axis plan to seize control of the oceans and thereby dominate the world.

The latest Japanese moves were described as dovetailing perfectly with German demands on Vichy for military and naval bases in French colonial possessions particularly at Dakar.

All evidence available an informed source stated points to a co-ordinated drive by Germany to control all strategic bases in the Atlantic while Japan seizes similar objectives in the Pacific.

Britain's Most Powerful Tank, The 'Churchill' Manoeuvres Easily

(By ROSS MUNRO)
Canadian Press War Correspondent

Somewhere in England, Aug. 7—(CP)—A "Churchill" clanked ponderously from a grove of trees in the camp of the Canadian Army Tank Brigade. It crunched to a stop beside another of these monster infantry tanks, being mass-produced in Britain now, and Maj. J. H. Perry of Whitby, Ont., said to us: "Okay, boys, board 'em".

These tanks a few weeks ago were on Britain's secret list and the Ministry of Supply modestly described them as "probably" the most powerful tanks in the world.

I grabbed the muzzle of a gun sticking out in front and pulled myself up on "deck". After walking along the huge treads to the turret, I dropped down into the commander's position.

"Put on the headphones and you can talk to one another when we're moving", said Lieut D. M. Irwin of Whitby. He settled down beside the driver, L. Cpl. E. B. McMillan of Beaverton, Ont.

The Churchill's Motors drummed like a bomber warming up and the tank churned the earth as it started. Heaving up a slope it gathered speed. It seemed to manoeuvre as easily as lighter armored fighting vehicles

Can Stand Upright Inside

Inside the tank we had plenty of room even to stand upright. Seats were padded and head protectors were conveniently placed so there would be no cracked skulls. There were small electric bulbs for light.

Gun mechanism jutted into the centre of the turret space but nothing looked very complicated.

It will take a large shell even to dint the heavy armored plating on these Churchills and Canadian troopers riding to battle in them will have more protection than anyone else in Canadian formations.

McMillan took the tank up a steep bank and drove over the roughest ground in the camp, finally crashing down an embankment. The Churchill just rocked a little more than usual plunged forward and straightened out. There are far worse bumps in small ships or in planes.

Two Belleville Men At Petawawa Camp Have Narrow Escape

Petawawa Military Camp—Three soldiers narrowly escaped death early Tuesday morning when the car they were travelling in turned over four miles west of Pembroke. They were on their way back to camp when the front wheel locked hurling them to the ditch. A fence post pierced the roof but the passengers suffered only minor injuries. The car was owned and driven by Sgt. Major Cecil Holway of Belleville. Bdr. Burt Rushworth also of Belleville and Sgt. Major Roy Howie of Napanee were passengers.

WOMAN RECEIVES BROKEN JAW WHEN CAR GOES OVER BANK

Wooler (Special)—When a car in which Mr. and Mrs. Jim Baker and their two children, 3rd concession of Murray Township and formerly of Trenton, were riding, is alleged to have gone out of control about one mile west of Wooler on Wednesday evening, Mrs. Baker suffered a broken jaw as the car careened over a culvert and down a ten-foot embankment, coming to rest on its bumper in a shallow creek.

Other occupants of the car suffered a shaking-up but were able to return to their home while medical attention from Frankford was sought for the injured woman, she later being ordered to the Belleville General Hospital where her injuries were attended by Dr. R. A. Flynn of the city. In addition to sustaining a broken jaw, Mrs. Baker suffered facial lacerations according to her attending physician today.

Remanded on Charge Of Wounding

Cornwall, Ont., Aug. 7 (CP) — Charged with wounding Jim Gibowsky, Canadian National Railway construction gang employee, Harry Noywosad, a fellow worker, appeared in Magistrate's Court here yesterday and was remanded until August 13th. Both men are from Montreal and are of Russian origin.

Cornwall Township police said Gibowsky was stabbed in a sleeping car of a C.N.R. work train after an argument. Gibowsky suffered a cut under his heart requiring six stitches, one on the left arm and several minor skin wounds.

Obituary

LATE JAMES H. McCREARY
(Thurlow Township)

The funeral of James Haight McCreary took place from his residence in the 7th concession of Thurlow Township on Wednesday afternoon, Aug. 6th, to the United Church in Plainfield where an impressive service was conducted by the Rev. George MacKenzie. During the service a vocal solo in keeping with the occasion was rendered by Mr. Clayton Tummon. Many friends were present at the service.

Interment was in Victoria Cemetery. The bearers were Messrs. Henry Larkin, William Collins, W. J. Hall, Donald Hall, Frederick Hall and William Van Allan.

LATE HERBERT CHARD
(Gunter)

Wooler (Special)—The funeral of the late Mr. Herbert Chard, formerly from here, and who has been residing at Gunter with his son, took place on Monday, August 4th. Mr. Chard had been in poor health for a number of years, although quite active. His death came suddenly on Saturday in Campbellford. A number of friends from here attended the funeral.

MISS MARY J. (POLLY) JOHNS

Miss Mary Jane (Polly) Johns died on Wednesday afternoon, Aug. 6th, at the residence of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Lew Johns, North Park Street, Thurlow Township. She was in failing health for some time.

The late Miss Johns, who was in her 86th year, was born in England, being a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Johns. She came with her parents to Canada at an early age and for the past eighty-four years she resided in the Belleville district. During her active years she was well known and throughout her long and useful life she was highly esteemed. In religion she was a member of the Church of England and associated with Christ Church parish.

Surviving her are one brother, Mr. Albert Johns, Kingston; her sister-in-law, Mrs. Lew Johns and several nieces and nephews.

The funeral anouncement is made elsewhere in this paper.

Kiwanis Club Will Hold Annual Karnival Aug. 20, 21

Despite the increased calls upon their efforts due to the exigencies of war, the Belleville Kiwanis Club has in no way relaxed in its interest and activities in its social work. This has been exemplified in the many acts of assistance to underprivileged children during the period since the war started. By the same token the popular city service club has held up its end in furthering the country's war efforts by its many generous contributions to war services and appeals.

For a number of years the club has enjoyed a well-deserved patronage of city and district residents when it provided functions for the purpose of raising funds for its immediate club needs. This year sees the same high-class entertainment offered. The now famous Kiwanis Karnival scheduled for August 20 and 21st is, if anything, bigger and better than the club has attempted along the same lines for a number of years.

As an additional attraction and incentive for people to attend the Karnival and at the same time provide much-needed funds for the club's exchequer, the clubmen are giving away a handsome 1941 model Plymouth automobile. Someone somewhere will on Aug. 21st be the proud owner of a brand new car at a cost of twenty-five cents or thereabouts.

The Kiwanis cause is a worthy one. Club officials are well aware of the drain on the people's funds through war appeals and other sources but they feel sure that the fine social and war work being done by the club will be shown appreciation in the form of a generous patronage to their Street Karnival.

The Karnival is not charity. The club has provided fine entertainment and every nickel spent will receive its full value. Handsome prizes have been secured for the many games. Amusement, music, mirth and melody will supply a background for two nights of entertainment. Help the Kiwanis Club and you help not only Britain and our fighting forces, but the poor children as well.

POLICE BLOTTER

Youth Admits Petty Thefts

Arrested on charges of theft, Charles Bulpit, 16, of this city, admitted to police he had been responsible for several petty breakins and robberies in Belleville of recent dates.

Bulpit appeared before H. D. Wilson, local Justice of the Peace today charged with breaking and entering the refreshment booth at Victoria Park and stealing money from the cash box of the pin machine. Also of entering the Belleville Yacht Club and stealing cigarettes, chocolate bars and gum. Charges of entering private homes in the east hill sector of the city are pending, Acting Chief Constable Arthur Harman revealed today.

Rabbits Stolen

Fred McCoy, 5 Yeomans St., complained to police regarding the theft of two valuable rabbits, stolen from his private pens last night.

Horse Found at Large

Several citizens found a horse wandering at large on West Bridge St., shortly before 1.30 a.m. today and finally managed to lead the animal to the police station where it was given into the custody of Acting Sergeant William T. Evans, who later stabled the animal in the Canada Bread stables nearby for security until the owner could be located today.

INJURIES PROVE FATAL

Ottawa, Aug. 7—(CP) — James Horner of Shawville, Que., died early today in hospital from injuries received in an automobile accident late yesterday. His car collided with a truck on the Hull-Chapeau, Que., highway.

POLICE COURT

Charles Plumb, Trenton, who was arrested following a motor accident near Stirling over the holiday week-end after he drove an automobile through a farmer's fence, appeared in County Police Court here today before Magistrate J. S. Garvin of Kingston, charged with reckless driving.

"We desire a remand for a week in this matter as there are several other charges pending against this man", requested Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C. Plumb, who is also alleged to have been driving a stolen car taken at Toronto on June 20th., last, was remanded in custody and without bail.

Case Enlarged

Charges of stealing beer from a Shannonville hotel and also of giving intoxicants to minors were enlarged for one week against Albert Lindsay of Shannonville, owing to the absence of Crown witnesses.

Fined for Careless Driving

A. Chandler, R.C.A.F., Trenton, was fined $10.00 and costs after pleading guilty to a charge of careless driving. "This man's automobile was completely demolished when it was in collision with an Air Force service truck" revealed Mr. Donnan, as the accused paid the fine.

Suspended Sentence

After a local citizen was convicted of stealing meats and butter from the Trenton R.C.A.F. station and given a suspended sentence, a charge of receiving the said stolen goods was dismissed against Reginald Proud, Toronto trucker, because of the lack of corroboration. Charles A. Payne K.C., appeared on Proud's behalf and held that when refuse was removed from the Trenton air station, Proud would be unable to discern the contents of closed boxes. His Worship upheld Mr. Payne's contention.

A domestic case concluded the morning's proceedings.

MEAT AND BREAD MAJOR PROBLEMS IN LIVING COSTS

Wartime Prices and Trade Board Strives to Prevent Inflation

STEPS TAKEN

(By R. K. CARNEGIE)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 7 (CP)—Because Canadians buy so much bread and meat these items have a big effect on the cost of living in the Dominion and controlling their price range is the major problem before the Wartime Prices and Trade Board as it tries to prevent inflation, officials said today.

Each month the Bureau of Statistics issues a cost of living index and any advance in the price of bread combined with recent jumps in the price of meat would be a serious setback for the board's anti-inflation efforts, they said.

Meat Problem Difficult

Meat presents the greatest difficulty. When he was asked what the board proposed to do about meat one spokesman asked a question in return: "How would it be possible to regulate the retail prices of meat?"

"In peacetime there was often a spread of from five to ten cents a pound between what one butcher would charge for meat of a certain cut as compared with his competitor in the same city," he said. "The quality of the meat, the service, the demands of a butcher's customers all enter into it.

"What we are doing is to see that the spreao between what the packer pays the farmer and what he charges the retail butcher is in line with the spread before the war. We are convinced that the bulk of the increase in meat prices is going back to the farmer."

Steps Taken in Bread

Bread was somewhat easier to handle. The government had cooperated by dropping the processing tax of 15 cents a bushel on wheat ground into flour for domestic consumption. The board had taken steps designed to cut bakers' selling costs and might go as far as to stop house-to-house delivery leaving all the selling of bread to the retail stores.

The Bureau of Statistics arrives at its cost of living index by a system of "weighing" the importtance of each price change. For example, the bureau has determined that the average Canadian family uses 12.1 pounds of bread a week. It knows approximately what is the consumption of meat and other products. It has decided that if the price of bread goes up one cent a pound it would add three fifths of a point to the cost of living index which, of course, might be offset by a drop in price of some other commodity.

An advance of a cent a pound on all meats would add two-fifths of a point to the index whereas an advance of two cents a can on tomatoes would mean only an index advance of less than 1 1-10 of a point because the average Canadian does not buy so much canned tomatoes as meat.

The cost of living index takes in the entire span of Canadian spending including rents, fuel, furniture, and clothing as well as food, but just now food costs are most before the board since the rental problems have been handed over to rental control boards.

The latest index figure as of June 1, issued July 10, was 110.5, which was 1.1 points higher than for May 1. The figure for July 1 will be issued later this week.

1,260 PC Increase In Light Tanks In U. S. Defence

Washington, Aug. 7—(AP)—Production of light tanks increased 1,260 per cent during the second quarter of 1941 over totals for the first three months of 1941, United States defence statisticians computed today.

The actual number of the 18-ton war machines produced was not disclosed but it was learned that more than 225 a month are being delivered.

The office of production management does not make public figures on the output of guns, tanks and powder but it was learned that it has just compiled these percentages on the increases during April, May and June over January, February and March:

Machine guns, 69 per cent.

Medium (27-ton) tanks, 237 per cent.

Smokeless powder, 126 per cent.

TNT, 46 per cent.

Bombers, 45 per cent.

Training planes, 40 per cent.

Airplane deliveries during the first six months of the year amounted to 7,423 craft.

WOMAN OF 77 TYPHOID VICTIM

First Death Reported From Outbreak of Seven Cases at Market Garden Where All Worked or Lived

Toronto, Aug. 7—(CP)—Mrs. Elizabeth Scott, 77, of suburban Scarboro Junction, died in hospital here last night after contracting typhoid last Tuesday. Mrs. Scott's was the first death reported from an outbreak of seven cases at a market garden in Scarboro where all the victims either worked or lived.

An emergency session of Scarboro Township Board of Health yesterday ordered immediate opening of a free clinic in the district where inoculation against typhoid will be given.

Reeve B. L. Clutterbuck said the farm where the outbreak occurred was about a mile outside the township water area and that water was obtained from a well. It is believed the germs came from this well.

Policeman Thrashes Attacker of Daughter

San Francisco, Aug. 7 (AP)—A policeman, outraged by a report his 11-year-old daughter had been drugged with whisky and criminally attacked, left his beat yesterday, hunted down the accused attacker and thrashed him in a hotel lobby.

The beaten man, who gave the name of De Witt Bell, 28, was jailed on rape charges and held in default of $5,000 bail. The girl was reported in a serious condition in hospital.

25,680 Prisoners And Dead Left In Evacuations

War Secretary Margesson Presents Statement on Greek and Cretian Campaigns

London, Aug. 7—(CP)—War Secretary David Margesson told the House of Commons today, in a written reply to a question, that British and Imperial forces left behind a total of 25,680 prisoners and dead in the evacuations of Greece and Crete.

This included Australian and New Zealand forces as well as those from the United Kingdom.

The War Secretary said the latest information showed that of the total British strength in Greece at the beginning of the German attack, 57,757 officers and men, 44,865 were evacuated. When the Germans attacked Crete the British strength was 27,550 and of these 14,580 were taken safely away.

Full details are not yet available but present information was said to show that the following was the total strength in Greece at the start of the German attack:

	Original Strength	Evacuated
British	24,100	16,442
Australian .. .	17,125	14,157
New Zealand .	16,532	14,266

The figures for Crete:

	Original Strength	Evacuated
British	14,000	7,130
Australian .. .	6,450	2,890
New Zealand .	7,100	4,560

The Crete totals at the start of the fighting included men evacuated from Greece but not re-evacuated to Egypt before the Crete operations. It is not possible to say how many of the missing are prisoners of war.

Prospector Hears Assay Shows Gold In Spectacular Degree

Toronto, Aug. 7 (CP)—William White, 32-year-old prospector, left here last night bound for Vancouver and the possibility of great riches from a British Columbia "strike."

Last Spring White and a companion staked four claims and reports of assays on ore taken from the claims are said to indicate spectacular deposits of gold. Scores of prospectors are reported to have swarmed into the remote area, 40 miles north of Lillooet, since news of the assays was revealed.

White said his partner, Tom Illidge, had sent him a report of the assay. "It's certainly encouraging," he said but added that "an assay itself doesn't mean anything."

White had been in Toronto several months awaiting a call to the Royal Canadian Air Force.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

A Difficult Situation

"I'm glad you came, Clara," Marilyn said quietly. "And now, if the gentlemen will excuse us—"

"No you don't." Clara raised her voice raucously. "None o' your tricks, Miss Lynn. You introduce me to your boy-friends. They look all right."

Lynn thought, "If only they'd go and leave me with Clara, I might get her into the elevator without a scene. But no. Bruce Gordon was watching Clara with narrowed eyes. The darkish flecks in them had turned to flecks of flame.

"My sister, Miss Clara Marsh," Marilyn said steadily. "Clara, may I present Mr. James Martin and Mr. Bruce Gordon." She indicated each as she named him.

"You don't say," Clara laughed fuzzily. "The names mean nothing to me, but if you told the boys that I'm th' ver' pop'lar Queen of Beauty, 1939, they might get excited and ask us out for a bite and a bottle. I could go for a bite and a b'l, couldn't you, Handsome?" This was addressed to Bruce Gordon.

"Oh, no," hurriedly from Marilyn, "we couldn't possibly. Mr. Martin and Mr. Gordon were just leaving when you—"

"When I barged in. That was then, Miss Prim. Maybe now they've changed their minds. It's prack'ly the middle of the ev'ning. I got a yen for foodn' drink, an' I kind of go for Handsome here. What you say, Handsome "

Bruce Gordon read the plea in Marilyn's eyes.

"Sorry," he said with cold courtesy. "We have an appointment. We'll have to hurry along, Jim. Good night Miss Marsh." He bowed ever so slightly to Clara. "Good night." He took Marilyn's hand, held it close for a moment. "I'll see you tomorrow."

Marilyn was conscious of the disapproving eyes of hotel attaches as she asked for her key, shepherded Clara into an elevator and finally found the sanctuary of her room. Perhaps she'd be asked to leave the hotel tomorrow. Clara's behaviour would certainly justify the management in such an attitude.

"Hey, Lynn," Clara was seated uncertainly on the side of the bed. "This is a bunk. Hardly wide enough for one. How we both going to get our beauty sleep in such a con—contrap—oh, skip it."

"It's not so bad once you're in it." Marilyn tried appeasement. "Take your things off. I'll hang them up. You may have the bed. I'll curl up in the chair by the window."

"Being noble again, huh?" Clara's grin was a taunt. "You sure get a kick out of that noble stuff. I will take the bed, Lord knows I need it, but not until I've had food and drink."

"I'll order sandwiches brought to our room."

"Sandwiches!" Clara scoffed at the thought. "Where I go we eat lobster Ther—Ther-mitty-jig, and we wash it down with bubbles."

"Where we are," Marilyn said, lifting the service receiver, "we eat sandwiches and wash them down with warm milk."

"Milk!" Clara cried. "I hate the stuff. It upsets my stummick."

Marilyn ordered sandwiches and a pot of steaming hot coffee. Clara, munching the last crumb of sandwich and, dropping a third lump of sugar into her coffee, suddenly looked up and said, slyly:

"How did you ditch Al, and where did you find the good-looking stranger?"

Marilyn said, "They were strangers. I didn't find them. They found me. They helped me, when Al was hurt, in the Blue Parrot. They helped me get away quietly."

"Maybe there was two but only one of 'em could take it away from Bob Taylor. The tall blond one with the eyes that burn you up. So the two of 'em played Boy Scout for you when that fresh Al Martino got what was coming to him? Maybe you're not as dumb as I thought you were, Sis. Picking up Handsome was a pretty smart trick. Are you going to see him again? Did he try to date you?"

"I can't very well help seeing him, sooner or later," Marilyn mused. "He happens to be my employer. He's an executive of Clarco."

The moment she spoke, Marilyn realized she had made a mistake. Her simple statement of fact all but bounced Clara out of bed. "You mean Handsome's in the office with you," she demanded, "in the very same office—"

"No," confusedly, in a vain effort to undo the damage. "He has his own office. I'm in the general office. He's one of the firm owners—of course he has his own suite—"

Clara's high pitched laughter was hysterical, frightening. "Look who's got her claws on the boss!" she cried, bending over and beating the coverlet of the bed with her laughtermfwy hrdl mfw ypmrm fists in a paroxysm of unholy glee. "Strangers, huh? You been in town a couple of days and you're sittin' pretty! A coupla days and Miss Prune and Prisms is the boss's girl friend! Wait till Millville hears the news. That'll be one for their picture books!"

"If you've finished," Marilyn said, her taut nerves humming like live wires, "I'll turn out the lights. It's late. I have to work tomorrow."

"Work?" Clara jeered. "That's a hot one!" She went on laughing in that poisonous way that was more like a cackle. "Maybe Handsome will give me a job, posing for Clarco pictures. Maybe I'll ask him."

In the chair by the window Marilyn fought for sleep. A few hours and it would be nine o'clock. She must face another day in competition with brains that were fresh and clean, bodies that were rested.

Marilyn had hoped that before she left for the office in the morning Clara would be sufficiently out of the fog to feel some contrition. In such a mood, Marilyn might persuade her to give up the idea of posing in the Blue Parrot, a spot Marilyn felt certain had been purchased for her by Herman Hess. If only Clara would consent to return to Millville! If only she would share an inexpensive room with Marilyn until she could find work on her own, a job not subsidized by a gross prowling man.

The hope was drowned in Clara's clamor, when Marilyn tried to rouse her, that her head was splitting, that she must have "a pitcher of ice and a bromide qiuck," that she was going to stay in bed for a week, that Herman Hess was a "yellow dog," that she wished people would clear out and let her sleep. Then she pulled the covers over her head and refused to listen further.

Down in the lobby, Marilyn rang Bruce Gordon's apartment. The clipped voice of a man servant answered. The young gentleman who had been injured was doing nicely. The doctor had been in very early. Mr. Gordon had gone out immediately afterward for a gallop in the park. He had left word when Miss Marsh called she was to be informed the young gentleman was doing nicely. The doctor found no concussion, but in view of the shock suffered, thought the young gentleman should remain quiet for another day, possibly two, that he should not be moved or receive visitors.

Marilyn thought, "No matter how muddled our lives are, we can always find reason for thanksgiving."

The mechanical precision of the office, the quiet undertow of its activity was manna to her troubled heart, her chaffed nerves, her careening thoughts. Determinedly she forced herself into the swing of work, felt herself carried along by the pressure of it.

Several times during the morning Marilyn felt the sharp eyes of Miss Edna Cook, head of the department, boring in on her from the observation desk at the end of the room. She must look ghastly under the office lights. At noon she'd freshen up her make-up, bear down on the lipstick a bit, and add a touch of color to her cheeks. By twelve o'clock she had written three pieces of copy she thought was especially good and sent it on its routine.

She gulped tomato juice and nibbled a cracker at a drugstore lunch counter. Then she walked swiftly, trying to whip life into her numbed body. She phoned her room at the hotel. No answer. Clara was probably asleep or in a pet and would not answer. She was careful about her make-up. Too much would be more telltale than none at all. When she returned to the office at the close of the lunch hour the three pieces of copy that had been ground out so laboriously were on her desk. It bore the initials "E.C.", accompanied by a criticism which would curl the hair of a less sensitive worker than Marilyn.

She knows I've been burning the candle at both ends and she's riding me," Marilyn told herself. "She's right, I must pull myself up. I must show her I can take criticism and profit by it." Marilyn settled down to the task of hewing, polishing, injecting new color, new vigor into the copy that had seemed so special only a little while ago. She would shut out that other world which was buffeting her about. She WOULD.

At three o'clock an office boy came to her desk with a memo. She held it in her lap to steady her hands as she read:

"Please come to my office. The boy who delivers this note will show you the way.—Bruce Gordon."

Marilyn folded the note and tucked it into the pocket of her blouse. This was the end, of course. Miss Cook had told Bruce—told Mr. Gordon—how utterly she was failing. Miss Cook had told how dull, how vapid she was, how empty. He would understand after last night, after the scene in the Blue Parrot, and Clara.

KISS YOUR TIRED FEELING GOODBYE!

Pepless Many Suffer Low Blood Count—And Don't Know It.

The baffling thing about low blood count is that you can weigh about as much as you ever did—even look healthy and strong, yet—you can feel as if you had lead in your legs, dopey, tired and pepless.

Low blood count means you haven't got enough red blood corpuscles. It is their vital job to carry life-giving oxygen from your lungs throughout your body. And just as it takes oxygen to explode gasoline in your car and make the power to turn the wheels, so you must have plenty of oxygen to explode the energy in your body and give you going power.

Get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today. They are world-noted for the help they give in increasing the number and strength of red corpuscles. Then with your blood count up, you'll feel like bounding up the stairs as if you were floating on air. Ask your druggist for Dr. Williams Pink Pills today.

John T. Boyd, Winnipeg, Heads Knights Templar of Canada

58th Assembly Concludes Session Here With Election of Officers

136 DELEGATES

The 58th. Assembly of the Sovereign Great Priory of the Knights Templar of Canada concluded here on Wednesday with the annual election of officers. The Assembly was attended by members of the Knights Templar from all parts of Canada while several States were represented from south of the border. The convention was presided over by retiring Supreme Grand Master F. Davey Diamond of this city, while Rt. Em. Kt. Garn Dobbs, also of Belleville, was the general chairman of the three-day conclave.

The Most Em. Sir Knight John T. Boyd of Winnipeg, was elected Supreme Grand Master of the Sovereign Great Priory of Canada at the annual election of officers held at Albert College, the seat of the Assembly, yesterday. Other officers elected were: Deputy Grand Master, R. L. Dobbin of Peterboro; Grand Treasurer, J. M. McCulloch, Peterboro; Grand Registrar, W. P. Youdale, Belleville, and Grand Council, B. S. Bailey, Winnipeg; John Marr, Toronto; J. H. Eydt, Hamilton; F. B. Reilly, Regina, and C. H. Minchin, Calgary.

Meet at Albert College

The 58th. annual assembly of the Sovereign Great Priority of the Knights Templar was opened in the Albert College chapel here by Most Eminent Knight F. Davey Diamond on Tuesday.

The opening day of the convention was taken up with the presentation of reports of several committees as well as the reports of the secretary, treasurer and Board of Governors of the Knights Templar Orphans' Fund, which is set aside for the education of the children of deceased members.

In his annual address the Grand Master referred to visits to all parts of Canada and rulings upon dispensations granted. He also made reference to the destruction of the Temple Church in London, England, by the "Hun." This church has been associated for eight centuries with the Templar Order in England. The Grand Master also made mention of the fact that it was ust four months after the Assembly met in Belleville in 1918 that the last Great War ended and sincerely added, he hoped the present Assembly might see the same result in the present conflict.

Dispensations Made

It was disclosed that during the year the order had invested $4,000 in Victory Bonds, as well as sending 400 pounds sterling to the Lord Mayor's Fund of London; one hundred pounds to the Canadian Beaver Club; $500.00 to the Canadian War Services and $2265.00 to the Grand Lodges of several provinces who were contributing to the Grand Lodge of England War Relief Funds.

Prior to Monday's church service parade, Em. Kt. C. E. Buskard, presiding Preceptor of King Baldwin Preceptory of Belleville, extended a welcome on behalf of the local Sir Knights. The church parade to Christ Church was headed by the Belleville Municipal Band, while the service was in charge of Rev. G. G. Wright, rector of Christ Church. The sermon was preached by the Grand Chaplain of the order, V. Em. Kt. the Most Rev. J. Hackenley, D.D., of Halifax, the Archbishop of Nova Scotia. The Grand Master read the lesson.

Many Visitors

In the absence of His Worship Mayor Thompson, Alderman Harry Rollins extended a welcome to the Assembly on behalf of the city of Belleville. Numerous prominent Knights Templar visitors attended the Assembly, including Most Em. Kt. Harry Pollard, of Lowell, Mass., who is the Grand Master of the Grand Encampment of the Knights Templar in the United States of America. Other prominent American Knights Templar visiting in Belleville for the Assembly included E. A. Glad, Chicago, P.G.C. of Illinois; G. M. Billous, P.G.C., of Chicago; Charles Clark, P.G.C. of Iowa; G. P. Love of Pennsylvania, and J. E. Empey, G. P. of the Grand Chapter of Canada.

Thanks Tendered

The 136 delegates present from all parts of Canada extended their personal thanks to the officials of Albert College, where the Assembly was held; Rev. Dr. Bert Howard; Rev. G. G. Wright, and all in Belleville who had made the 58th. annual convention of the Knights Templar the success it enjoyed. Rt. Em. Kt. Garn Dobbs of Belleville, proved an apt general chairman throughout the entire assembly.

PAST GRAND MASTER PRESENTED WITH JEWEL

As a token of their esteem a signal honour was bestowed upon Retiring Grand Master F. Davey Diamond by the members of the Winnipeg Knights Templar when the Manitoba delegation presented him with a platinum diamond-studded Grand Master's cross. The conventional „Past Master's jewel was also presented to Mr. Diamond by the Assembly upon his retirement after two years of successfully heading the Knights Templar in Canada with untiring efforts.

2 Canadian Cities Import U.S. Ice

Distributors Did Not Harvest Large Enough Crop Last Winter

Montreal, Aug 7—(CP)—Canada may be noted for its winters, but this summer the cities of Montreal and Quebec have to import their ice for refrigeration purposes—from the United States.

P. Baillargeon Et Fils, largest distributors of ice in Montreal, said yesterday the dealers did not take in a big enough crop last winter and as a result have to import artificial ice from Vermont. The ice will be brought in by rail later this week.

At the same time, Baillargeon said he was seeking authority to charge more than 10 cents per cake, the price now permitted for the commodity. He said the cost of importing the ice would be considerably above the $4 per ton wholesale price set by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board recently.

Three plants of The Ice Manufacturing Company Limited here are operating 24 hours a day but their owners said they were unable to supply the demand.

Nursery Schools For "Under Fives"

More Than 45,000 of This Age May be Moved From London

London (CP)—The problem of evacuating children under five years old whose parents cannot leave London may be solved by the establishment of small nursery units in private homes in the country.

The idea of the units resulted when Col. R. W. Fennel took 10 little tots from one of the worst bombed East End districts to Wyham Abbey, near Oxford. London authorities worrying about some 45,000 "under fives" look to similar evacuations to private country homes where trained nurses might care for the babies.

In the country areas to which older children have been taken, the problem of obtaining school rooms is becoming more and more difficult. Many schools are being used to house evacuees and persons who have been bombed out.

This Postwoman Makes a Record

Jane Preston, 68, Has "Beaten" 140,000 Miles and Hopes to Go Years Yet

Cockerham, Eng. (CP)—Called the "most remarkable postwoman in the world," Jane Preston has carried the mails in this little North Lancashire village for 45 years.

Now 68 and still going strong, Jane says she has walked 140,000 miles in her heavy clogs, making her rounds. She hopes to keep going until she's 100.

Known to the villagers as "Old Jane," she travels about 10 miles a day over the foothills of the Pennines and through the salt marshes and sands of Morecambe Bay. The weather has never been known to upset her punctuality.

Some years ago, Jane also carried the night mails from Cockerham to Bay House Station, three miles distant. She used to load the mail bags in a perambulator which she pushed about. Her dog "Gyp" trotted at her side as she plodded the dark roads, lighting her way with a candle-lamp.

Australians "Likely to See More Of U.S. Navy" States Rear-Admiral

Brisbane, Australia, Aug. 7 (CP)—Rear-Admiral Sherwoode Taffinder, commanding two United States cruisers visiting here on a training cruise, said "You are likely to see more of the United States navy while the war lasts."

The cruisers probably will not visit any other Australian port, Admiral Taffinder said, because "they merely called at Brisbane for fuel and supplies."

Commenting on the visit of the cruisers, Australian Navy Minister W. M. Hughes said at Melbourne: "The visit did not escape notice of our friends in the north. Although there are only two warships here we are encouraged to believe there are others about."

Brisbane gave the United States sailors a gay welcome.

THE WAR TODAY

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Foreign Secretary Eden's statement that Britain's formidable forces in the Middle East "are being strengthened for their next forward blow" has focussed attention on that theatre of war.

Weather suitable for military operations in North Africa is due the latter part of September and a British offensive to destroy the German and Italian forces in Libya and thereby put an end to the Axis menace to the Nile Valley would be a logical development.

The winter's campaigning may take a surprise direction, however. In the House of Commons statement Mr. Eden spoke of the nations "bounded on the west by the Suez Canal and on the east by the frontiers of India," indicating the government is keeping fully in mind the larger strategical considerations of the spreading world conflict.

Position of Persia

Particularly did Mr. Eden dwell on the position of Iran (Persia) disclosing that Britain has drawn the Iranian Government's "serious attention" to the dangers of allowing Germany to build up a potential Fifth Column in the country. The Foreign Secretary said he hoped the Teheran regime "will not fail to heed this warning...... and will take the necessary measures now."

Iran will occupy a position of enormous importance if Germans succeed in breaking the Soviet defences in Western Russia and carry the fighting to the Caucasian Mountains where Russia's oil wells producing 25,000,000 tons a year are located.

The Caucasus

The Caucasus, nestled between the Caspian and the Black Seas, is bordered on the southwest by Turkey and on the southeast by Iran. To supplement an attack from the north, made difficult by a communications line some 1,200 miles long, the Germans would have to get a force into either Turkey or Iran.

It is on the latter that German infiltration methods have been concentrated. Hundreds of German "colonists, experts and tourists" have arrived in Northern Iran. Many have been expelled, but others appear as quickly. Britain is now bringing strong diplomatic pressure on Iran to act with decision.

Forcible measures may be in store if Iran fails to heed Mr. Eden's warning. Britain's position as regards Iran has been consolidated in recent months by the occupation of Syria and Iraq, and in the Foreign Secretary's words can be read a determination to deal firmly with any challenge to British rights and interests east of Suez.

Nazis Bomb Civilian Hospitals, Soldier is Witness

NAZIS BOMB .. .. ..NKM- a

Halifax, Aug. 7 (CP)—Pte. C. E. Fraser of New Glasgow, N.S., invalided home from England, is one eyewitness who can tell how the Germans bomb civilian hospitals. Seventeen patients in the London hospital where he was were killed in their beds during one Hun raid.

Fraser was taken to the hospital suffering a fractured skull and other injuries inflicted by concussion from a bomb.

"It was a civilian hospital," he said, "and I was brought there because it was nearest. A few nights later the Jerries came over.

"They didn't manage to hit the munitions plant, but scored on one section of the hospital. Seventeen people were killed.

"It wasn't a nice feeling lying there, hearing those planes overhead and exploding bombs not many hundreds of yards away," he said.

Detective, Missing For Ten Days, Brings Back Man

New York, Aug. 7 (AP)—Ten days ago Detective John Gallagher left New York on vacation and went to Salem, Ohio, (Pop. 12,288). His fellow detectives couldn't decide why. Gallagher didn't say.

Yesterday he returned with Joseph Scianablo, 21, formerly of New York, who was arrested on a John Doe indictment charging he and three other men held up a poker game here April 7.

The three arrested after the hold-up were sentenced June 6 to five to 10 years imprisonment for assault and robbery.

Gallagher explained today he had been anxious to close the case and was tipped that the fourth suspect was in Salem. Salem police were unable to find him from a description he forwarded, Gallagher said. Gallagher lived at a tourist court and walked around the town until he spotted his man. Scianablo waived extradition.

"I had a good vacation," the detective said.

AP 'Rumor Deflator' Deflates Wild Stones

New York, Aug. 7—(CP)—Wild rumors, of the type not carried by The Associated Press or The Canadian Press, flood the world almost daily. From time to time, as these reports are deflated, the AP plans to note the fact.

Today's AP "rumor deflator" concerns a July 15 Stockholm dispatch published in London—and widely republished abroad—saying that Germany would sever diplomatic relations with the United States within 48 hours.

Construction Contracts Are Announced

Ottawa, Aug. 7 (CP)—Awarding of six construction contracts on which work begins immediately was announced last night by the Department of Munitions and Supply.

The contracts, approximate cost, type of construction, approximate completion dates and the contractors employed included the following:

MR. ATTLEE REVIEWS PROGRESS OF WAR

Deputy Leader Clement Attlee, who substituted for Prime Minister Churchill in the British Commons on Wednesday who was busy on "urgent matters connected with the war," gave a broad review of the war and some most important facts were disclosed. One of these was the terrific loss which had been inflicted upon enemy shipping in July when without taking account of the result of attacks on small enemy ships and on Axis warships, the British inflicted a loss of 459,000 tons of shipping on the Hun either sunk, damaged or put out of action. There was also the statement that at least 350 per cent to perhaps 700 per cent exaggeration marked German claims of damage to British shipping. The Lord Privy Seal cited a typical German story.

Mr. Attlee described in clear words the British policy towards countries between the Suez Canal and the western frontiers of India as the desire to see them "leading their own life in security and peace."

The Deputy Leader's speech was notable for the statement that "there are satisfactory features in the present phase of the struggle which make it difficult for many of us to prevent cheerfulness from breaking in. There is nothing wrong in being cheerful provided we do not relax our effort."

He expressed the opinion that the Germans had underestimated the strength of Russia, the determination, courage and fighting quality of the Russian army.

Praising American aid under the Lease-Lend measure he also struck the note of the spiritual unity between the English-speaking peoples.

For the Germans the speech opened up no vista of cheerfulness, for he promised heavier bombings of military objectives in Nazi cities. He told of the heavy weight of British bombs which fell on 70 cities in Germany in July and on 76 towns in the Nazi-occupied territory. "These keen blows will be continued and intensified," he said. He was no doubt thinking of the lengthening nights which will leave little rest to the production plants in Germany and occupied areas.

Mr. Attlee speaking of the assurance of victory for Britain and her Allies, said: "we know that when victory comes, as it will, we shall have to take a leading part in helping establish a world peace and freedom and social justice."

He had spoken of the Far East situation. Mr. Eden, Foreign Secretary, also referred to the warning which had been given Japan, and of his hopes the words might be heeded. The Eastern situation is bringing China and Britain closer together, which friendship he hoped and prayed will continue to grow.

Messrs. Attlee and Eden made memorable a day in the House with their statements.

HOW HITLER TELLS THE GERMANS

No one outside Germany is taking seriously the Nazi claims that three million Russians have been killed in the war with Germany, that 13,145 tanks have been destroyed by the Germans and over nine thousand airplanes and 10,388 artillery pieces of the Russians have been seized or destroyed.

The explanation is that this statement is not meant so much for the world as for that part of the world, Germany, where loud speakers din the exaggerations and false statements into the ears of the Germans who know only what is given them by the Nazis.

But the Nazis it is noticed have not been able to redeem the pledge they made that the Germans would in brief space overrun Russia. They are very indefinite now instead of being detailed in their statement. There is no mention of any great city falling into Nazi hands, because they have not taken any. Nazi communiques are more political and propaganda than ever—they do not record actual accomplishment.

Hitler's headquarters can tell little for the Nazis do not desire to reveal their losses and reverses.

BULLETIN BOARD CHATTER

The battle-scarred old jalopy chugged and snorted to a stop near the bulletin boards. Its driver and owner, a wizened old gent of some three score and ten years, leaned out to get a better view of the morning news. Presently a wheezy hail greeted him and a friend who must have carried the same girl's books at school walked to the car.

"So you got yourself a car," quoth the sidewalk visitor. "How are these gasoline thingamabobs goin' to affect you, now?"

The ancient Jehu raised a silver eyebrow. "Dunno as it will make much difference, fer all the drivin' I do," he replied. "However, us motorists are lucky here in Canada, at that."

"Meanin' what?" comes back his crony.

"Waal," and the old gent lifted a creaking knee over the other, "I was readin' in a Montreal paper the other day how folks down in New Zealand were gettin' along, and believe you me, brother, if you think things are tough in Canada when the government asks yuh to let up a bit on your drivin', you'd better have that old noggin of your'n examined."

"Down there," he continued, "each car-owning New Zealander gets coupons entitlin' him to eight imperial gallons of gas per month. An occasional month he may get ten gallons. If you are working for somebody you are allowed 30 gallons for business purposes."

"New cars down there are scarcer than rent decreases in our fair city. Not one has been offered for sale since the war started."

"How about the merchants?" asked his pal.

"The government has looked after that," he replied. "Butchers, bakers, milkmen have certain areas to cover so they won't overlap. And the folks take what they've got—and like it. The laundry is delivered twice weekly now instead of daily. And the boys and gals, big business men and whatnot who used to drive their own cars to work now ride six and seven in a bus. Why they even kid each other as to who can get the most mileage out of a gallon."

"Easy," he replied. "The gas coupons are good for 1, 2, or 4 gallons. Yuh can't go far on 8 gallons, the monthly ration, so the boys chip in and loan each other their coupons. And so it goes around the gang until all can have a holiday."

"But the motor driving buckaroos 'down under' have hit upon another plan in order to drive the family chariot. Down there they have a coal-burning attachment which provides the power but with less efficiency. Right now several companies are workin' full capacity making these gadgets. The car starts in the regular manner, then the driver touches a button or sumpin, and the coal-burner takes over the power chores. Over 20% of New Zealand cars are fitted with these jiggers and more are goin' in the remainin' cars daily."

He chuckled into a stubby beard. "One load o' coal," he rumbled, "is good for 300 miles, but its danged inconvenient to have tuh stop and shovel out ashes every hour or so."

"The service stations close at seven," he continued, "not because they have to but because there is no business. They take turns in stayin' open for emergencies."

Reports from swimming beaches and holiday spots of the district reveal that many husbands are teaching their better halves how to swim. It must be the thrill of telling them to keep their mouths shut.

COAXING THE BISHOP

Said I to the Bishop:
"It's Friday tomorrow.
There's none in the market,
And none we can borrow;
There's none to be had
In the village, and so
I am sure you'll agree
'Tis our duty to go!"

Said I to the Bishop:
"It's Friday tomorrow,
To see you go hungry
Would fill me with sorrow.
Since fish you must dine on,
I think you should know
The wind's in the south.
It's a good day to go!"

The Bishop put down
The good book he was reading:
"Tomorrow it's Friday
And fish we'll be needing.
Oh, it isn't so often
The proper winds blow.
And the need is so urgent."
Said he: "Let us go."

Letter to The Editor

THINKS VICTORIA PARK COULD BE IMPROVED

Dear Mr. Editor:

In the past two months during the torrid weather we have experienced, I have thought a good deal about Victoria Park, and have wondered if anything has been done to clean it up or in any way assist nature to beautify it since last May when I visited it.

I was in Belleville at that time and one day late in May I had a sentimental longing to visit the old park and recall some happy times spent there twenty years ago. The approach to the park was melancholy, indeed, but I hoped for better things as I wandered on—over a road upon which it was almost impossible to walk on account of the sharp stones. Someone had made or caused to be made a roadway across the north end of the park which altogether spoiled the appearance of it from that end, and I was amazed to see that the grass had not been cut for weeks, nor had the flower beds been planted. A few transients were lying on the ground, and two women with little children were having a picnic lunch, but the whole place had such an untidy, uncared for appearance that I did not linger even to look at our beautiful bay.

I came away deciding that the Parks Committee was not functioning. Years ago when a caretaker was in charge, Victoria Park was a very attractive spot and is still an ideal place for people to visit, who want to be near the water and have no means of transportation, but even the poor appreciate cleanliness and beauty in their surroundings.

If cars and bicycles were barred from the park and the roadway narrowed to a wide path and finished off with a hard surface of gravel and tar, crowds would flock down there on hot summer evenings, but who cares to go when they are showered with dust?

I had intended writing this letter before, but soon after I visited the park I noticed a letter in the paper from Mr. Zufelt complaining about the accumulation of slime and dirt in the harbour, so I put off writing until now, and hope by this time the park is at it should be —a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

Thanking you for this space in your interesting paper,

Sincerely yours,
AN OLD BELLEVILLE GIRL.

German Claims Of Victories Discounted

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON)

Washington, Aug. 7—(AP)—If the German victory claims trumpeted from Hitler's headquarters are correct the war in Russia should be all but over, yet the Nazi leader tells his people that the greatest battles are still to be fought.

Recently the Germans estimated that 9,000,000 troops were engaged in the titantic struggle and now they report that Russian losses to date have aggregated almost half of that number—from 3,000,000 to 4,000,000. Russian war gear, planes, tanks and guns by the tens of thousands have been taken or destroyed, Hitler asserts. Yet as the upshot of all this, he can only tell his people that his armies stand "at the gates of Kiev" and are still 100 miles from Leningrad and twice that far from Moscow.

What is still holding the Germans at bay on all three fronts if the flower of the Red Army is already destroyed, Russian leadership paralyzed and without accurate knowledge of the situation as the German broadcasts say? And why, with complete and crushing victory all but in his grasp, did Hitler find it necessary just now to feed his people nerve-tonic in such liberal doses?

"Military Miracle"

He had but to wait a little, according to his own version, and all Western Russia from the Baltic to the Black Sea would be in his hands, including Leningrad, Moscow, Kiev, and Odessa. If that is not so, and formidable Russian armies still oppose his legions along the vast fighting front, a military miracle has been achieved. Moscow has conjured new millions of soldiers, new resources of fighting gear out of nothing and transported them westward under impossible conditions to keep up the fight.

Aside from the staggering Hitler statements about Russian losses in men and battle equipment, the barrage of claims thundered from Hitler's headquarters discloses only one significant development to support promises to ultimate, German triumph. That is in the Leningrad zone, the least important in a strategic sense of the three main fronts.

The German official version reports a break-through northward between Lake Peipus and Lake Ilmen to a point "close to Narva". If that is true, it means that a Nazi thrust has been driven northeast of Lake Peipus from the Pskov-Porkhov line to outflank Russian defenses of Leningrad on the extreme Baltic wing. Narva is the junction point where the Tallin-Leningrad and the Pskov-Narva railroads meet. If it falls, all Russian forces still in Esthonia and north and west of Lake Peipus will be caught in a trap.

Nearer to Leningrad

The Germans also claim capture of Tapa, which is on the Tallin-Leningrad railroad northwest of Lake Peipus. If Narva also is taken the great water barrier of the Peipus Lake system guarding Leningrad on the west will have been passed and investment of Leningrad itself be only a matter of time.

The Hitler resume of the situation on the Kiev front was definitely enlightening. It confirmed a growing impression that an attempted sweep southward to destroy Russian armies holding the Ukraine flank to the Black Sea was in progress rather than a Nazi frontal assault on Kiev.

"With this break-through deep beyond the Stalin line (to Bel Tserkov)," the Hitler bulletin said, "it became possible to turn southward in a broad front between the Dniester and Dnieper Rivers, cut off the enemy's retreat and begin an encirclement battle which presently is raging at full fury".

Successful German advance southward from Bel Tserkov would force Russian evacuation of all the Southwestern Ukraine at least to the Bug River and possibly to the Dnieper. That is the gravest threat discernible in the latest grist of war news.

Hardening of Arteries in Brain Does Not Always Cause Mental Symptoms

I was sympathizing with a friend whose mother had recently died.

"Oh, mother hasn't really been mother for the past three years; she was getting old and was childish in some of her ways."

This is the attitude of many sons and daughters who believe that because the parent is getting old, mental symptoms must naturally occur due to the arteries getting hard so blood cannot circulate properly in the brain.

That hardened arteries cause mental symptoms is true but that hardened arteries cause mental symptoms in all cases is not true.

Fortunately for our old folks today, a new specialist in medicine is at hand to help them. He is called a geriatrician, just as the child specialist is called a pediatrician. This specialist investigates the cause of mental symptoms in the old and does not take for granted that all these symptoms are due to old age.

Dr. G. Wilse Robinson Kansas City, Mo., in the Journal of the American Medical Association, presents some interesting experiences of geriatricians who have investigated the cause of mental symptoms in old people. Thus Dr. W. B. Wartman found in 500 consecutive examinations of the bodies of people who had died that 90 per cent of the men and 85 per cent of the women over 60 years of age had hardening of the arteries in the brain, yet it is known that 90 percent of the men and 85 per cent of the women over 60 are not afflicted with mental symptoms. Reports by other investigators also definitely show that hardening of the arteries in the brain does not necessarily cause mental symptoms.

What, then, causes mental symptoms in old people? Just as mental symptoms may occur in the young and middle-aged due to infection, injury, following operations and other causes, so can the old be similarly affected.

In a series of 50 cases of individuals over 60 years of age under treatment for mental symptoms at the Neurological Hospital only 14 had symptoms due to old age itself. Thirty-six of the cases were due to other causes and 90 per cent of these recovered sufficiently to go home in a few weeks under treatment given similar to that given the young or middle-aged.

MONKEY FACE NUT

Activated carbon, essential in making effective gas masks, will be produced from cocoanut shells by a factory being built in Australia.

The coco palm from which coconuts are obtained is one of the most useful trees in existence.

Certainly it is the most important palm trees under cultivation.

Every part of the coco palm is used for something.

The large coco palm pods containing the seeds are light and impervious to moisture and the seed is peculiarly adapted to dispersal by water.

Accordingly coco palms easily establish themselves on small islands and low shores throughout the tropical seas.

For this reason nobody knows for certain just where the coco palm was native, but it is believed to have originated in tropical America.

Coco, which has no relation to cocoa, the source of chocolate, is a Portuguese word meaning bugbear.

It is supposed that coconuts were so named from the monkeylike face at the base of the nut.

Coco palm leaves are used as a thatch for roofs and as a straw for weaving hats, baskets and fans.

The midrib of the leaf makes a fine canoe paddle.

Coconuts, ripe or unripe, raw or cooked, have been a staple food since time immemorial.

The terminal bud, known as palm cabbage, is esteemed a delicacy, and even the inner part of the young stems is eaten.

For centuries the natives of the tropics have made a toddylike drink from the juice of coco palm flower buds.

The outer fibrous husk of the coconut is made into matting, bagging, door-mats, brushes, sails, ropes and cables.

Coconut ropes and cables are prized because in salt water they are more elastic and buoyant than hemp.

This husk is also used as fuel and nurserymen like it for packing seedlings and cuttings because of its moisture-resisting qualities.

The trunk of the tree, known as porcupine wood, is hard, fine and susceptible of high polish; the root is chewed as a narcotic; coconut shells are used for cups, ladles and bowls; and from the dried coconut meat, the copra of commerce, comes the valuable coconut oil, widely used in candles, soap, cattle feed, vegetable butter, lard and margarine, and many other products.

Presentation to Bride-to-Be

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thrasher, Centenary, was the scene of a most pleasant evening on Tuesday, when friends and neighbors gathered to pay honour to Miss Dorothy Thrasher and Mr. Walter Zigler, who are being married on August, 16th.

The popular young couple were pleasantly surprised when they found they were to be the honoured guests of the evening.

Mr. Edgar Ray capably acted as chairman. With the young couple seated in the specially decorated chairs, he called the gathering to order and led in community singing which was enjoyed. He then called on Mrs. Elwin Hart who read a most appropriate address, while Miss Mary Roblin and Miss Coza Calvert on behalf of the community presented the happy couple with a beautiful set of dishes.

Miss Verna Keene on behalf of the young people then read an address and Miss Neta Calvert presented a lovely silver and cut glass butter dish and server.

Walter and Dorothy very graciously thanked their friends for the lovely gifts and kind thoughts and invited one and all to call on them in their new home.

A social hour was enjoyed and coffee cake and sandwiches served by Mrs. Thrasher and her assistants, brought to a close a very happy evening.

Weddings

WANNAMAKER—SMITH

A pretty wedding took place at eight o'clock on Wednesday evening at the United Church parsonage at Trenton, Rev. J. T. McKee officiating, when Frances, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Smith, Carrying Place, became the bride of Harold Wannamaker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wannamaker, Trenton.

The bride, who was unattended, were twilight blue sheer, with matching hat and accessories. After a wedding trip to points north, Mr. and Mrs. Wannamaker will reside in Toronto.

BRENNAN—CRAVEN

The marriage took place in St. Clare's Church, Toronto, Saturday morning of Bette Marie, daughter of Lieut. George Craven, G.G.H.G., and Mrs. Craven, to Lieut. Francis Charles Brennan, No. 20 (Basic) Training Centre, Brantford, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Brennan of Deseronto.

Capt. the Rev. Padre Johnson, officiated at the ceremony. Clement O'Brien was at the organ and the soloist was Mrs. A. J. Hiff.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was lovely in a white silk jersey gown made up on long lines with train, and finger tip veil arranged with a Mary Queen of Scots cap trimme with lily-of-the-valley. She carried a bouquet of Dream roses.

Mrs. Robert Orange of Sudbury, sister of the groom, was the bride's only attendant. Her gown was of forget-me-not blue sheer with small pleated turban to match and she carried a bouquet of pale pink roses. Major Paul Brennan of Montreal, brother of the groom, was the best man, and Lieut. R. W. Barker and Lieut. W. J. Vanstone, both of Brantford, were the ushers.

The reception was held in the yellow room of the King Edward Hotel. Mrs. Craven received wearing a navy blue crepe gown trimmed with white, white accessories and corsage of roses. She was assisted by Mrs. Brennan in a peri-winkle blue lace gown with burgundy accessories and corsage of American Beauty roses.

The couple left for Muskoka and on their return will live in Brantford. The bride went away in a smart turquoise ensemble with dark brown accessories.

Medicine in the News

By MORRIS FISHBEIN, M.D.

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

WONDERS OF DIGESTION

The pathway of food from the mouth to the final elimination of waste material from the body is 25 to 30 feet in length. It takes from 24 to 36 hours for a meal to be changed to the ultimate chemical materials that are used by the body for repair of tissue and growth and also to supply the necessary energy.

The first step is the preparation of the food so that the tissues of the body can act upon it. When food is properly chewed, it is broken up into small portions and moistened by the saliva. The saliva also acts to digest starches and to change starches and cane sugar into simple sugars. Starchy foods taste sweeter after they have been acted on by the saliva. The glands which produce saliva develop about three pints a day. Of course, the saliva is constantly being secreted to keep the mouth moist even when it is not being used to digest starches and sugars. Saliva itself is so important in relationship to digestion that it starts flowing at the mere sight, smell or thought of appetizing foods.

Chewing is one part of the process of digestion which we can control. After the food has been chewed and swallowed it is largely outside any control that the human being may voluntarily exert upon it. It takes from 5 to 10 seconds for the food to drop from the mouth to the stomach although some foods may go much more rapidly and may be felt in the stomach almost immediately after being swallowed. Other foods are delayed at the upper opening of the stomach. In the stomach the food may remain from 1 to 4 hours.

The ordinary stomach holds from a quart and a half to two and a half quarts of food. If it is distended, it holds a larger amount. Some persons, of course, keep their stomachs constantly distended with too much food.

In the stomach the food is subjected to other digestive juices which act on protein materials. In fact, three important substances are included in the gastric juice One is hydrochloric acid which prevents the growth of bacteria and aids digestion; another is rennet, a substance which can curdle milk, and the third is pepsin which changes solids to semisolids or liquids. Digestion becomes thoroughly started with the juices of the stomach. Even when the food passes from the stomach into the intestines, these digestive juices helps to digest the food and which may continue to act until modified by the action of those materials which come from the intestines.

Fashion Flashes

IT LOOKS LIKE a big revival of fringe. Fringed skirts in black for daytime and in black as well as white for evening frocks appear in many collections. Usually the fringe, especially on daytime clothes, is arranged in triple tiers on the skirt.

THE LAST SUIT of the season can easily carry over into autumn if rightly chosen. Sheer wool in a slightly than lighter navy blue is used for a smart suit whose fitted jacket has high revers and heart-shaped flaps on pockets placed above the bustline. White saddle stitching marks flaps and revers. Slim skirt.

THIS IS ABOUT the round-up of what one is likely to note as the dominant characteristics of the new frocks. Long sleeves, dolman armholes, slightly sloping shoulders marked by soft padding, plunging necklines, tunic lines or peplums. Fine fabrics in black and interesting colors. Much taupe.

THE GRAND DRESS is always shown at important collections and always finds a buyer, and many who copy. A beautiful evening frock is in ivory white taffeta, the full skirt marked by an interesting scroll and arabesque design in narrow black velvet ribbon.

A HOLDOVER into Autumn is the off-the-face halo hat. Now it is big and dashing, fashioned of inky black velvet with draped veiling or a handsome jewelled pin.

WE WANT LEISURE. A beautiful lounging pyjama costume has trousers of black silk faille and tunic jacket of black faille striped in white satin. Thet tunic is fitted at the waist and curves low in the hem in back. White satin collar and white satin gauntlet cuffs held with onyx links.

Writing Needn't Be a Task

A letter from the handsome lad you met on vacation!

How pleased you were to receive it. But now with pen and paper in your hand, you feel letter-shy.

There's no reason why you should be. If he liked you he should like your letters, for you can easily put your best self into them. Just close your eyes and imagine you're talking to him. Of course you'd say you were delighted to hear from him, you'd remind him of the good times you had together.

"Will you ever forget the terrific cloudburst the day we hiked to High Point? Or those delicious baked beans and blueberries we finally had for supper . . ."

So easy to ramble along like that — and people like it. Just remember to talk lots more about HIM than about you — and you'll not fail to hold him.

But don't let ignorance of good form in letter-writing ruin delightful new contacts. Our 32-page booklet gives samples of all kinds of letters, friendly and business. Includes invitations, congratulations, sympathy. Has pointers on correct form, how to make your letters interesting.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of GOOD LETTER - WRITING MADE EASY to The Ontario Intelligencer Home Service, 166 Front St., Belleville, Ont. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

The Stars Say

For Friday, August 8

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

WHILE the trend upward and onward is under splendid solar impetus, yet, judging by other configurations, there may be some erratic tendencies, with dubious situations to tax the acumen and good judgment. This latter problem may have factors of a public nature, in which group, fraternal or other collective issues seem of importance. These demand sound consideration and forethought and also there may be obstructions, limitations or frustrations not anticipated. While ambitions are kept worthy and with ideas of community well-being intact, all obstacles may be vanquished and definite progress attained.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of ultimate success with the accomplishment of their greatest desires and ambitions, in spite of the sudden development of a strange, erratic, or novel situation as well as the opposition of an elder or superior, which may tend to delay or disappoint. Public, community or group interests are uppermost in the attention and these may be incited to call for some mode of drastic action in order to compose or advance collective welfare.

A child born on this day should have great mental vitality and adaptability, with its sympathies leaning toward humane or cultural advancement. It may encounter some peculiar oppositions and obstacles but should eventually win out against all antagonisms and attain its goal.

MELROSE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The regular July meeting was held on the 31st at the home of Mrs. Wm. McMechan with an attendance of forty including a number of school girls.

The usual opening exercises were followed by a business period. War charities conveners reported on their work. Money on hand amounting to $30.00 was donated 2-3 to Red Cross the balance to Salvation Army. A quilting and sewing day was arranged for Aug. 12 at the church hall. Those wishing to donate money for honey for the troops were asked to hand it in to Mrs. R. Badgley who would see that the tins were filled and returned to local Red Cross headquarters.

The members are asked to memorize the short Institute Creed and use it at their meetings. The secretary will supply copies.

Mrs. Roy Badgley, convener of Education, took charge of the meeting. A questionnaire re the new course of study was very clearly answered by Mrs. Harry Davis This way of dealing with a subject proved very interesting and can be recommended to other conveners in dealing with other subjects on the program for the year.

Mrs. F. Pringle gave a paper on "Painting on glass" displaying several specimens of this work.

Mrs. Badgley gave as her topic "Munitions of the mind" and suggested we widen our vocabulary by trying to use a new word each day. We can benefit by making more use of our dictionaries.

Nearly all members responded to the roll call, an interesting book I have read or an incident in my school life.

Mrs. S. Anderson gave a short paper on "George Bernard Shaw's after which Miss Audrey Demille played a piano solo.

Regrets were felt that the school pupils were not prepared to put on their musical number because of the absence of their teacher. An interesting display of Melrose school art work appeared at this meeting and both teacher and pupils were highly complimented on the skill shown especially in the project "the building of Melrose."

A fine collection of knitted articles, garments and a quilt were handed the war work conveners and plans were made for continuing the work for the month.

Canvassers are to call at the homes in the community for contributions to carry on war charities. This plan is being adopted as it has met with excellent success in other places. An institute member will make visits before the regular August meeting and it is hoped a generous amount can be collected to carry on the much needed work of keeping our soldiers in comforts and relieving the sufferings of British War Victims.

Collection amounted to 4.22. The meeting closed with the National Anthem. The hostess assisted by the school girls server refreshments.

DEFIES NAZIS AT 104

London (CP)—Miss Ellen Webber said on her 104th birthday that no German bombs will make her leave London. "I'll stick to the old home," she declared.

"They take away BABY'S TEETHING FEVER"
SO writes Mrs. B——, of North Sydney. Then a Toronto mother says: "I used Baby's Own Tablets and the babies were always so good. No cramps, pain or trouble when teething. In fact, I hardly knew they were cutting their teeth as they never were any trouble at night."
Baby's Own Tablets are quick, safe and effective, sweet-tasting and easy to take. Contain no opiates or stupefying drugs. Try Baby's Own Tablets not only for teething troubles but also for colds, constipation, upset stomach and other simple ailments of babyhood. 25 cents. Your money refunded if you are not satisfied.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Girls Have Amusing Idea for Farewell to Recruit

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We're a group of six girls and we want to do something nice and original for a friend of ours who is going to camp. What would you think of our giving him a shower? Of course, we know as well as the next that men don't have showers, so that's why we want to give one to this boy.

Six-Merrie-Maidens.

Good for you. The idea of a shower for a man is refreshingly original and I don't see why it wouldn't start a downpour of them all over the country. Why not make it an out-of-doors picnic? Take along a grill. They may be bought from a dollar up, and a bag of charcoal, over which the steaks, chops or hot dogs may be cooked costs only a trifle. Have a good substantial supper; men have good appetites.

Don't you think it would be a good idea to have one or two of the girls wander off with the guest of honor, and then bring him back to find a clothesline stretched from one tree to another, or from set-up posts, on which the various gifts hang? The more absurd the gifts, the more the fun. All sorts of amusing things can be bought at the Five-and-Ten.

You haven't told me whether this party will be restricted to the "six-merrie-maidens" and the boy, or not. Let him invite his own buddies if you're going to have other boys.

Her Friends Are Made to Feel Unwelcome in Her Own Home

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a girl of 16, one of five children. My married sister and her husband and their baby live with us.

I have a great many friends who seem to like me. They call for me to go walking or to go tor parties, ets. After they've gone, my sisters and brother tell my mother they're no good and find fault with everything we do. Even my brother-in-law insults them when they come to the house. My mother believes all the worst things about my friends and tells me not to let them come around any more. I feel terribly upset because I know my friends are good or they wouldn't be my friends. I don't like to make enemies.

My problem is how can I please my family and also have my friends.

Buddie.

I strongly urge families to let their young daughters meet friends under the parental roof. Sometimes older sisters who are married and have families of their own, are very unsympathetic to younger sisters, forgetting entirely that once they were equally keen on having their own young friends. If, as you say, these are creditable young people, try and win your mother over to letting you see them openly and above board. Take her into your confidence and make her your ally.

Should Bride Have Page Girls at Her Wedding

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm to be married soon and am having a large wedding group, consisting of best man, matron-of-honor, three bridemaids and three ushers. I would like to know if it's correct to have page girls. The girls I have in mind are twelve years old. I want to do what's right and woud appreciate any advice you can give me.

K. T.

In these days of independent action, brides are a law unto themselves in wedding arrangements. Usually boy pages, dressed in quaint costumes, hold up the bride's train. But if you should prefer to have girls as train-bearers, there is certainly no law, social or otherwise, against it. In a good many parts of the country, little girls act as flower girls, scattering flowers on which the bride walks. Picturesque as this addition to a wedding group undoubtedly is, it is now regarded as a bit outmoded.

What to Say When Replying to Messages of Condolence

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Recently I had a death in my family and I have received many letters of sympathy. I am at a loss to know whether I should answer these.

S.

Yes, these letters of sympathy should be answered. It is not necessary for you to answer them at once, for any friend will understand a delay of course, and it is not necessary for you to write a long letter—just a sentence or two will be sufficient.

Below are two forms to write in acknowledgment of letters of sympathy:

Dear Miss Robbins:

You were most kind to send me such a beautiful message of sympathy and I do want you to know how deeply I appreciate it.

Sincerely yours.

Dear Mary:

Thank you deeply for the message of sympathy that you and Fred sent to us in our sorrow, and for the beautiful roses. You were most kind and we appreciated so much your goodness and friendliness.

Affectionately,

How to Eat Bouillon

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Will you please tell me if it is good form to drink soup from a bouillon cup, and if so, should both hands be used?

2. When dining with a gentleman, should he sit to my right or left?

In Doubt.

1. First we take a few sips of the soup with the bouillon spoon or tea spoon, to test the heat of the soup, and then we drink the rest of the soup from the cup, as we would dring tea. And we take up the bouillon cup with the right hand, as we lift the cup. We shouldn't use both hands.

2. "The lady on the right of the gentleman" is a good rule.

Engagement No Dance Bar

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A young man I know and I have had an argument which we would like to have you settle. He says that it is proper for an engaged girl to ask a young man to dance, providing she knows him, and that it is not proper for him to ask her to dance. Recently we met at a dance and he, not knowing my fiance very well, did not ask me to dance later giving me the above explanation. I cannot agree with him because I have always expected a man to ask a girl to dance, whether she be single, married or engaged. My opinion is that the young man should ask the girl in her fiance's presence and then ask his permission. We will appreciate it if you will settle this argument for us.

E.

Courtesy Tip

It is atrocious taste—and I mean atrocious — to send a "ready-made" card, printed, or engraved, to express your thanks or to express you sympathy. You should write a note of thanks, a note of sympathy.

FASHION FLASHES . . . .

NO MATTER the season, many women want a white hat. An advance autumn model is an off-face brimmed hat in white felt, the brim fabric softly draped and shirred. A white veil dotted with white chenille covers the hat and is tied under the chin.

ALWAYS SMART is the slim-skirted dinned dress. A good-looking dress with collarless white crepe blouse buttoned down the front has a draped sarong skirt of lacy crepe. A wide band of navy crepe finishes the raglan-shouldered sleeves.

FINE FEATHERS make fine hats. A new little sailor, worn forward-tilted, is made entirely of the colorful feathers of a tropical bird in red, bright blue, yellow and gray.

JUST ONE VISIT to any smart resort is sufficient to establish the popularity of the white evening gown. White silk jersey, the bodice draped up and over one shoulder with the other shoulder uncovered, the skirt embroidered in plume design in crystals and rhinestones, is the description of one of the prettiest dresses seen this season.

NO MATTER where you go, you'll find that a tweed travelling coat is a good companion. Kelly green tweed cross-barred in gray and pale yellow makes a handsome coat with back fullness, dolman sleeves and collarless, yoked, neckline.

GOING BIG for autumn is the little dress, that good frock so unobtrusively right for daytime occasions. A nice model is in dark purple silk crepe made with high neckline and triple ruffled hip peplum. Long tight sleeves and shoulder with slight padding and dropped seams.

LOW HEELS FOR WAR

London (CP) — Standard footwear for women is expected to be in effect by autumn. Manufacturers say low heels will be the vogue.

Used Clothing Now in Ration

British Government to Stop "Racket" in Second-Hand Stockings and Other Clothes

London (CP) — Second-hand clothing costing more than certain specified prices is rationed under revisions in the clothes rationing scheme first announced in June. Various classes of furnishing fabrics are exempt and variations are made in the number of coupons required for certain articles.

In the case of second-hand clothing, the Board of Trade fixed a maximum price fo reach coupon value above which the buyer must surrender the full number of coupons.

Maximum prices in Canadian equivalent per coupon:
Hand knitting yarn, cloth, stockings and wollen socks for men and boys, eightpence (15 cents); undergarments, stockings and socks for women and girls and socks other than those mentioned above, one shilling (23 cents); boots, bootees, shoes, overshoes, slippers and sandals, one shilling sixpence (35 cents, other rationed goods, two shillings (46 cents).

This means a man who buys a second-hand suit for more than 52 shillings (about $11.75) will have to give up 26 coupons, the standard number for a new suit.

"We have done this to put a stop to what might have proved a serious racket in second-hand clothing," said a Board of Trade official.

If Gas Rationing Comes New York State Will Allow 15 Gals. Weekly

New York, Aug. 7 (AP)—Gasoline rationing plan for New York State has been drawn up for possible use beginning in September and has been submitted to federal officials as a model for other eastern seaboard states.

The plan, suggesting a limit of 15 gallons a week for pleasure car owners to conserve eastern gasoline supplies already threatened by lack of oil tanker transportation, was devised by the State Motor Vehicle Commissioner, Carroll Mealey, at the request of Interior Secretary Harold Ickes.

The plan was proposed as an alternative in case the dusk-to-dawn gasoline purchase curfew does not reduce consumption by one-third.

DONATES PROFITS TO GOV'T

New York, Aug. 7 (AP)—For United States national defence, William Saroyan will give film rights to his play, "The Time of Your Life," to any Hollywood studio which will donate production costs and turn over proceeds to the government.

Kellogg's win—vote 4 out of 5!

"What's your family's favourite breakfast cereal?" During three successive years impartial investigators put that question to over 5000 Canadian housewives. Each year Kellogg's Corn Flakes won by a large majority. Last year the specific question was also asked: "Which brand of corn flakes tastes best?" 84%, or more than 4 out of 5 said, "Kellogg's!" Your family, too, will prefer Kellogg's more mellow, distinctive flavour. Easy to prepare, this "30-second breakfast" costs only a few pennies a serving for the whole family. When you breakfast out, ask for the triple-wrapped individual package!

Dodgers Again Top Cardinals In Exciting League Race With Pirates Still a Threat

Johnny Vander Meer Halts Cards While Brooklyn Humbles New York Giants

PIRATES WIN

Dodgers Run String of Victories to Six, While Pirates Only Eight Games Off Top

Associated Press Sport Writer.

Somebody is always rocking the boat in the National League. The boys ride along on an even keel for a couple of days and then, just when the fans take a deep breath of satisfaction, the jitterbugs start bouncing up and down.

Today Brooklyn Dodgers are back in first place in the senior circuit with a six-game winning streak and a margin of three percentage points over St. Louis Cardinals.

Furthermore the Pittsburgh Pirates, who yesterday were nine games out of first place, today are only eight away and still spouting fire and fury.

The Cardinals backed out of the scene by losing a 5-1 struggle to Cincinnati Reds, whose southpaw star, Johnny Vander Meer, was in good form again. He limited the Cards to eight hits, fanned nine and walked seven.

Hits Homer

The important factor in the victory of the Reds, however, was a three-run homer in the third inning by Mike McCormick. It was a rare sight for the Cincinnati fans because it was the first one a Cincinnati player had hit since July 20.

With the score of Cincinnati's conquest posted on the big black board in the Polo Grounds, the Dodgers stormed out in front of 52,791 New York fans last night and downed the Giants 3-1.

Dolph Camilli hit his 20th home run in the second inning and after that the game was a pitching duel between Kirby Higbe and Carl Hubbell.

In the ninth inning the irrepressible Dodgers broke through Hubbell's masterful hurling for the deciding runs. Joe Medwick doubled, Dixie Walker tripled and Jimmy Wasdell singled. This was enough to send the Giants crashing to their 14th defeat in 16 games.

The Pirates achieved their fifth straight and 17th triumph in 20 games by overwhelming Chicago Cubs 13-3. Five-hit hurling by Manny Salvo brought Boston Braves a 6-0 shutout against the Phillies in another night game.

Yankees Split

New York Yankees divided a doubleheader with Boston Red Sox, but still managed to increase their big American League lead by half-a-game through Cleveland's loss to Detroit.

Tex Hughson and Mike Ryba held the Yanks to six hits in the first game as the Red sockers smashed their way to a 6-3 victory. Hughson hurt his arm in the third inning and Ryba pitched the rest of the game to take credit for the victory. In the nightcap Marvin Breuer held Boston to five hits and DiMaggio doubled two runs across in the sixth inning for the margin of a 3-1 triumph.

Detroit Tigers scored 11 runs in one tremendous third inning explosion to beat the Indians 11-2. The big rally, tying an American League record, brought the Tigers to bat 17 times before they were stopped.

St. Louis Browns made use of a five-run fourth inning to take the first game of their doubleheader from Chicago White Sox, 9-6, but Lefty Thornton Lee came back with a six-hit pitching job to give the Sox the second 5-2.

Washington whipped Philadelphia Athletics 5-1 in a night game.

Gene Sarazen Seeks to Win Canadian Open

39-Year-Old Golfer Has Yet to Win Canada's Richest Golf Prize

SIXTH QUEST

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, August 7—(CP)—Gene Sarazen, the little fellow who continues to hurl gay defiance at Father Time, teed off today on his sixth quest for the Canadian open golf championship—one of the few major baubles that has eluded his grasp.

And, although the Dominion's golf fans would like to see a home-bred links star win the title for the first time in 27 years, there would be no tears of sorrow if stocky Gene went home with the Seagram gold cup packed away among his spare socks and shirts.

The 39-year-old former caddy, who struts about on legs which were built to carry a grand piano, is still one of the most glamorous men in the game. When he played his final practice round over Lambton Golf and Country Club with Samuel Jackson Snead yesterday they attracted a gallery that would have done credit to a major competition. And it'll be the same all the rest of this week—the crowds will be following the squat star who this year appears to have regained a lot of the form that won him the British open, the U.S. open and a carload of other titular bric-a-brac.

Of course, the stocky squire of Tuckahoe, N.Y., isn't the only American who's liable to win this three-day battle which started at Lambton today. Sam Snead—who won it last year—is still around. And Gargantuan Johnny Bulla, who plays with a 45-cent drug store ball, has been thumping his way furiously around the course on practice rounds.

But this is one year that the Americans aren't going to have things all their own way. The four hottest rounds of the final day's practice were fired by Canadians. Bobby Reith, of Windsor, and formerly of Winnipeg, had a 67; Sam Kerr, of Toronto, paired two 34's for a 68; Bob Lamb, of Toronto, and Jules Huot, of Quebec, had 69 each. Par at Lambton is 70.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Rip Sewell, Pirates—Pitched steady nine-hit ball and hit home run himself to beat Cubs.

Mike McCormick, Reds—Smacked three-run homer to bring victory over Cardinals.

Elden Auker, Browns and Thornton Lee, White Sox—Former pitched winning ball in first game and singled to start five-run rally; latter allowed only six hits in nightcap.

Al Benton, Tigers—Pitched six-hit ball to check Indians

Kirby Higbe, Dodgers—Hurled four-hit ball to beat Giants.

Grooms Strike At Hamilton?

Hamilton, Ont., Aug. 7—(CP)—Threat of a strike by grooms at the Hamilton Jockey Club was before officials today as the track entered the second half of its six-day summer meet.

The strike movement started during Wednesday's program when a petition signed by 80 grooms said strike action would be taken before today's races if their request for a $5 fee for every prize-winning mount was not accepted.

A second petition, signed by three grooms whose names did not appear on the first petition, urged that the $5 fee proposal be considered at the next meeting of the Incorporated Canadian Racing Association, the governing body in Ontario.

At the conclusion of the eight-race card, J. J. Conway, President of the Hamilton Jockey Club, issued a statement saying that the paying of grooms was not a matter for individual tracks, but solely one for the I.C.R.A. to decide. "As a matter of fact," the statement said, "grooms are licensed through the identification of the I.C.R.A. and will be governed by the I.C.R.A."

Cementmen Make it Two Straight Over Corbys; Win The Second Game 13 to 6

"Ding" Luffman Hurls Second Victory Over Corbys in Successive Nights

15 LEFT ON

Corbys Outhit Winners, but Eighth Inning Pt. Anne Rally Gives Homesters Seven Runs

It's two up and only two to go for Bubby Gaulin's Point Anne "Cementmen" in the City Softball League finals for the championship.

After soundly trouncing the Corby's A.C. here on Tuesday, the Cementmen repeated the dose on their home diamond last night, downing Corby's 13 to 6 as the result of a belated eighth inning batting spree that netted them seven runs. Point Anne are now sitting in the play-off driver's seat with two wins and no losses in a best-in-seven series for the Bank of Commerce Trophy.

Pitchers' Battle

After pitching an eight-hitter the previous night, "Ding" Luffman returned to the Cementmen's mound and although nicked for 13 safeties, Luffman was strong in the clutches as he left 15 Corby runners stranded on the runways. It was a ding-dong battle for seven and one-half frames with Connie Harris and Luffman hooking up in a sterling pitchers' duel and the count standing at six-all when the balloon ascended in the bottom half of the eighth, when the homesters scored seven runs on three hits. Two walks, three errors and a fielder's choice all were jammed into that hectic eighth as the Cementmen ran wild around the base paths to cinch the piece. Corby's got two aboard in the ninth, but Luffman struck out two and made a third roll to first without allowing a score.

Winners Outhit

Corby's outhit the Cementmen 13 to 12, but the latter nine took full advantage of the miscues of the Bawdenites and made their hits count into runs. The opposing first basemen, Doug Bennett and Johnnie Hamilton counted the only extra base hits of the game, doubles. Whitehead and Green each collected three hits for the winners, as the Cementmen gave Luffman sterling support in the field, while Corby's kicked the ball around for five costly errors, four entering into the winners' scoring efforts. The teams resume hostilities at Coleman Flats Friday.

KINGSTON TEAM WINS LAWN BOWLING TROPHY

39 Teams Compete in Annual Mixed Doubles Tourney Staged by Belleville Club

The major honors of the annual district mixed bowling doubles sponsored by the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club here yesterday went to Peterborough and Kingston. The top honors and Queens Hotel Trophy was taken by the team of Mrs. Doughty and Fire Chief George Gimblett of Peterborough, while the second honors and the Tip Top cup went to Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Edney of Kingston. Belleville teams won lesser prizes.

Six district bowling clubs participated in the tournament, that lasted long into the night as 39 teams of mixed doubles competed. Five teams were from Campbellford, three from Peterborough, five from Kingston, two from Stirling, one from Madoc and 16 from the home Belleville Club. The tournament was under the supervision of H. C. Argue, games chairman of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club, who today revealed the fact that Mr. Edney, winner of the Tip Top cup, had also been on the Kingston men's doubles team that won the Robertson cup here a few weeks ago.

The results of the tournament were:

Three games high for the Queens Hotel Trophy: Mrs. Doughty and Geo. Gimblett, Peterboro, score 36 plus 16.

Three games high for Tip Top cup: Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Edney, Kingston, score 36 plus 6.

Third three games high: W. E. Taylor and Mrs. Kenman, Peterboro, score 36 plus 5.

Fourth three games high: Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Smith, Campbellford, score 35 plus 6.

Fifth three games high: Mr. and Mrs. Ab. Wonnacott, Belleville, score 33 plus 8.

Two games high: C. N. Sulman and Mrs. Lent, Belleville, score 36 plus 4.

One game high: Alf Symons and Mrs. Flack, Belleville, 35 plus four.

Playground News

Scoring an even dozen runs in the fourth frame, the East Hill softballers triumphed 21 to 7 over their West Hill rivals in a Belleville Payground softball game yesterday.

Bunton twirled for the league-leading Easterners and had little trouble as his team-mates were hitting Adams' slants with regularity.

The line-ups:

CANNIFTON WINS 10 TO 3 OVER SHANNONVILLE

Winners Advance to S. H. Loop Finals Against Latta

3-HITTER

Orval May Lets "Hawks" Down With Three Hits in Fine Hurling Effort

Sparked by the three hit offensive performance of Lorne Jarrell and the five hit spot pitching by Orval May, their ace righthander, Cannifton disposed of the Shannonville "Hawks" in the third game of a best-of-three semi-final series when out at Cannifton last evening they scored a decisive 10-3 victory. Cannifton now meets Latta in the final series commencing at the latter village on Friday evening, the winner to take the Tummon Trophy, emblematic of South Hastings baseball supremacy.

The offensive stickwork of the winners proved too much for the Shannonville lads in the do-or-die tussle at Cannifton with the home-town boys connecting for a ten hit assault against the offerings of Smith, the loser's starting hurler, and Juby who went in to relieve as a concerted scoring splurge in the fourth drove Smith to cover.

Strike Out Many

Despite the fact that hitters were to the fore, the pitchers on both sides showed their stuff in the strikeout column, May for the winners whiffing seven Shannonville batters while nine of the winners went down swinging before the combined slants of Smith and Juby. Hurlers on both teams rather mitigated their performances by wildness however, with walks putting them in the hole.

After retiring the Shannonville boys in the first inning without a run, the home team took the lead in their half as they scored three times sparked by Lorne Jarrell's homer to start the inning. Shannonville got one back in the third as Cook scored after hitting safely but the homesters put the game beyond all doubt by pushing six across the plate in the fourth, adding one more in the sixth. The losers threatened in the fifth when they pushed two across on hits by Snider, Maracle and Coutts and again in the seventh when a hit and an error put two aboard. May rose to the occasion however and retired the side on strikes.

Lineups: Shannonville—L. Maracle, 1b; Cook, ss; Hill and Reid, 2b; Houston, 3b; Smith and Juby, p; Barberstock, lf; Snider, cf; G. Maracle, rf, and Coutts c. Cannifton—L. Jarrell, 2b; Gannon, rf; Collins and Hall, 3b; Bleekman, cf; E. Jarrell, c; Cearley, 1b; Eves, lf; Guay, cc and May, p.

FAVOURITE WINS HAMBLETONIAN TROTTING STAKE

R. J. Johnson's Bill Gallon Comes From Behind to Win Richest Harness Race

REALIZES DREAM

By ORLO ROBERTSON

(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Goshen, N.Y., Aug. 7 — (AP) — Three years ago R. J. Johnson, wealthy Charlotte, N.C., cotton textile manufacturer, sat in the stands at Good Time Park and thrilled to the sight of Mclin Hanover winning the classic Hambletonian.

He decided he would like to see his silks coming down there in front. And having been converted to the old buggy whip sport the southerner quickly changed his thoughts into action.

A year later he stepped into the sales ring at Lawrence Sheppard's Hanover, Pa., shoe farms and bid in Ashley Hanover for $1,800. He promptly changed the name of the son of Sandy Flash to Bill Gallon, the name of a close friend and former business partner from New York.

His next step was to turn the colt over to Lee Smith, 47-year-old, 145-pound trainer from Edadeville, Ala.

Yesterday the combination of horse-trainer and owner won the Hambletonian before 25,000 fans. With Smith giving Bill a perfect drive the Johnston-owned colt came back from defeat in the first heat to win the final two miles and the purse of $20,365.

His Excellency, the $6,100 yearling from Bill Strang's Brooklyn stable, won the first heat in the slow time of 2:07 1-4 as the southerner got off to a bad start and finished sixth. But Smith made no mistakes in the second as Bill outgamed His Excellency to force the race into extra heats for the first time since 1934. It took the camera to separate them but Bill's nose was in front 2.05 1-2.

With second money of $7,405 going to His Excellency, third went to Patrick Sullivan's Merwynna of Machias, Maine, who aided by a disqualification, took second in the initial test.

Toronto Wins Doubleheader

Leafs Beat Jersey City Both Ends of Dual Bill

ROYALS SECOND

There seems to be some hope for Toronto Maple Leafs after all, faint as it may be.

For a good half of the International League baseball season, the Toronto situation looked just about hopeless. On July 4 the Leafs had won but 21 of 79 games and were buried deep in the cellar. They still are there, but their recent improvement and the amazing slump of Baltimore Orioles has allowed a few days of sunshine through the coal-hole.

The Leafs won a doubleheader from Jersey City Giants last night, 7-2 and 5-1. That fact wasn't particularly important alone, but it was more than a little promising that Dick Fowler won his fourth straight victory, pitching two-hit ball in the opener, and that Porter Vaughan chalked up his fifth in a row with a five-hit nightcap.

Baltimore, meantime, suffered its 13th straight defeat, a 7-3 drubbing at the hands of Montreal Royals, and now is only five games in front of the Leafs. Montreal thus climbed into second place ahead of Buffalo Bisons, beaten 5-2 by the league-leading Newark Bears. In a single afternoon contest, Syracuse Chiefs beat Rochester's Red Wings 6-3.

Jake Powell and Roy Hughes banged out three hits apiece to lead the 16-hit attack on three Baltimore pitchers that gave the Royals their fifth successive triumph.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

London, Aug. 7—(CP)—A bad ankle, the result of army boots and training on hand tracks, may spoil Sydney Wooderson's chances of trying to better his world record for the mile run. Wooderson hoped to go after the record at Glasgow this month but, after limping in fourth in a services meet at Epsom, it was doubtful whether he will run again this season.

Corporal A. Littler, of the Royal Air Force, won the mile at Epsom in the fastest time run in Great Britain this year, 4:23.07 minutes. Littler, who had trained for the 880 yards, was in the dressing room having a leg massaged when that event was called and missed the race.

"I'll win the mile instead," he said. And he did.

Eighteen-year-old Jean Nicol, who played on the famous centre court at Wimbledon in the 1939 all-England championships, is Great Britain's tennis find of the war. A natural player, she promises to play an important part in England's post-war tennis plans.

Two autumn features of British horse racing, the Cambridgeshire and the Cesarewitch, will be run at Newmarket again this year. The Cambridgeshire will be run Oct. 8 and the Cesarewitch Oct. 22.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ
Associated Press Sport Writer.

New York, Aug. 7 (AP)—Talk about Joe DiMaggio getting $80,000 next year gives everybody a laugh. Just the same he's already getting a whole lot more than the $35,000 he was supposed to have signed for last winter. Joe is no dumb gazabo. He knows when he's well paid. He may ask for a healthy raise, but not in Babe Ruth's class.

The port side of it.

Lefthanders have been more effective than righthanders in the American Association this year.... The only club which has a winning percentage against both pitching styles is Louisville.

Sports cocktail.

Connie Mack has conceded the pennant to the Yankees. He told us as much at the world series last year.....He picks his own A's to finish in the first division....Lou Nova, still vacationing in Maine, thinks he can knock Louis out in less than 10 rounds....Pete Fox, who hit three doubles in a game Tuesday for the Red Sox, hadn't made an extra base blow till last week....Out in Utah H. Colbert of the Heating Centre Ball Club got a home run on a ball that should have been a double....Outfielder Jack Green caught his pants on the barbed wire fence and Colbert had circled the bases before he could squirm loose.

Between Innings

GOSSIP NEWS COMMENT

Bubby Gaulin's Point Anne "Cementmen" are in the driver's seat, as far as the City Softball League championship is concerned. After beating Corbys 14 to 5 on Tuesday night, the Cementmen returned home to rally in the eighth, score seven runs and win 13 to 6 last night. The hero of the show was "Ding" Luffman, who pitched wins over Corbys on successive nights, which is no mean mound chore. Last night Corbys outhit the Ox Point nine 13 to 12, but the fact that Luffman left 15 of Harold Bawden's charges stranded on the runways just about proves how effective he actually was. For seven and one-half innings the game developed into an interesting pitchers' battle between Luffman and Connie Harris, twirling for Corbys. In the bottom half of the eighth, however, the homesters scored seven runs on three hits, Corby errors and a couple of free ones via the four ball route proving the undoing of the Corbys. Skipper Gaulin's charges have played much stronger defensive ball in the series thus far and well deserve their position.

The press boy at Scott Park in Hamilton nearly got the "hot-foot" the other night when fire gutted the main grandstand. However, the blaze was not discovered until three a.m., several hours after a wrestling match in which James J. Braddock, who is scheduled to referee at the Hume Arena next Monday night, was the third man in the ring. Don't tell us the grapplers got so hot they started a fire.

Matchmaker Frank Tunney of the Queensbury A.C., announced yesterday that Jim Braddock, the cinderellaman of the boxing world had been signed to referee here in Belleville next Monday. When Braddock arrives in Belleville he will be the first man to wear the heavyweight crown to visit this city since Jack Johnson was here in 1910, or thereabouts. Braddock won the title in 1935 and lost it to Joe Louis in 1937. Wrestling fans can be assured the actual contestants will behave themselves and ply their trade in true wrestling style with Braddock as the third man in the ring.

Do you remember when Eddie Gerrard, famous hockey player and coach, died at Ottawa four years ago today. The great Ottawa defenceman ended his playing career in 1923 and two years later led the Montreal Maroons to the National Hockey League championship as manager.

When it's covering ground around the keystone sector, the greatest 2b of all-time is still Frank Fordham Flash Frisch, according to the figures. No other major league keystoner ever handled more than 1,000 fielding chances in one season before or after Frisch set the all-time record of 1,037 with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1927. The American league record is Lajoie's 988 in 1908.

Mel Currer of Toronto Summit won the Eastern Ontario open golf championship at Kingston on Civic Holiday with a score of 152. Tommy Carruthers of Belleville, carded a 166 and finished 15th in a field of 60 of the best golfers in the east. Harry Ridley had a 175 score and Joe Legault carded a 183 for the 36 holes. Dr. Harry Batstone, the old ball player, shot 179, while Fred Bentley former Napanee baseball and hockey player, was well up in the tournament with a 159.

Those old diamond rivals of the South Hastings League, Cannifton and Latta meet again this year in the league finals for the Tummon trophy. The "Sluggers" eliminated Shannonville in the loop semi-finals, winning 10-3 last night, thanks to the fine mound effort of Orval May and Lornie Jarrell's timely three hits. Cannifton pounded the offerings of two Shannonville hurlers for ten solid base blows, but the wildness of the pitchers detracted somewhat from good baseball.

Bobby Jones may be through as a tournament golfer but he's still a fair-to-middlin' week-end player. In recent months he's had a pair of 63's—equalling the record he set years ago at the East Lake club, Atlanta, Ga.—two 64s, a 65, 66, 67, a pair of 68s and a 69. And he also broke 30 for the first time for nine holes, registering a 29.

Stanley Lipka, the brilliant young third sacker from Niagara Falls, was refused entrance into the United States at Port Huron, Mich., yesterday. Lipka was en route to Grand Rapids, Mich., where he was to have joined the Grand Rapids baseball club of the Michigan State League, a farm team of the Brooklyn Dodgers. Lipka was recommended by a Brooklyn scout and told to report to Grand Rapids. Immigration trouble to the tune of $1,000.00 bond was the principal reason for the U.S.A. authorities' refusal of admittance.

SPORT SPICE — See where Bucko McDonald, the "socko kid" of the Toronto Maple Leafs' hockey club, is entered in the Canadian Open Golf Championships. . . . The management of the Ottawa Rough Riders rejected the Toronto proposals of an exhibition pre-season grid appearance versus the Winnipeg Blue Bombers. . . . After finishing sixth in the first heat, Bill Gallon, R. H. Johnson's fine trotter, went on to win the next two heats in an impressive manner and take the rich Hambletonian Stakes at Goshen yesterday. . . Walt Gerow's Toburn Beavers eliminated the Lake Shore nine from the Northern baseball picture yesterday. . . . After due consideration the big-wigs of the Ladies' Softball loop moved to play a best three-in-five series in their semi-final playdowns, which open Friday. . . . Those sizzling Pirates knocked off the Cubs and the Reds beat the Cardinals while the Dodgers were taking the Giants to complicate matters in the National League. Now the Cards are one-half a game behind the Dodgers, while the charging Pirates are the real menace in the senior circuit. . . The torrid race in the National this year has resulted in a dropping off of attendance in some of the junior circuit cities. . . . It's whatever you make it.

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J. S. McKeown or any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

CHEMIST AWARDED PARACELSUS MEDAL

London, Aug. 7—(CP)—Sir Robert Robinson, a leading authority on organic and biological chemistry, yesterday was awarded the highest honor of the Swiss Society of Chemistry, the Paracelsus Gold Medal. He is the first recipient.

AT THE BELLE

"Love Crazy"

When William Powell and Myrna Loy are billed together, audiences are sure of laughs. But never was the promise of laughs more bountifully filled than in "Love Crazy," their latest "man-and-wife" adventure, now playing at the Belle Theatre.

Miss Loy becomes jealous of Powell and decides to divorce him; Powell discovers that a wife can't divorce her husband if he's crazy, so sets out to convince her and all and sundry that he's as mad as a March hare.

His method takes the form of a series of screwball antics such as chewing up phonograph records and digging a hole in Fifth Avenue. But when the alienists are called in, the antics fool them and they take his craziness seriously and commit him to an asylum. Then Powell's struggles to extricate himself from his own web of deceit make him look all the crazier, until he finally escapes, dressed as a woman, to work out his salvation and be reconciled to his wife.

Powell's debonair handling of the absurd situations is engaging and hilarious, and Miss Loy's performance as the wife, as usual, leaves nothing to be desired. Gail Patrick plays the "other woman" convincingly, and Jack Carson adds comedy as the rival for Powell's affections after his separation. Florence Bates also garners laughs galore as Powell's mother-in-law.

Jack Conway directed with deft skill. It is his first work with Powell and Miss Loy since "Libeled Lady." Contributing excellent support are Sidney Blackmer, Sig Rumann, Vladimir Sokoloff, Donald McBride, Sara Haden, Kathleen Lockhart, Fern Emmett, Joseph Crehan and George Meeker.

A smart tuneful revue and an interesting screen miniature precede the feature attraction.

Dashing Cesar Romero is again seen as the Cisco Kid, romantic rascal of the range, in the 20th Century-Fox film, "Ride On Vaquero," now showing at the Capitol with the feature attraction "Rookies On Parade," new army comedy hit with music.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Rookies on Parade"

"Rookies on Parade" breezy new comedy with music, now at the routines of which the film has routiens of which the film has plenty. A fine cast includes Bob Crosby, Eddie Foy, Jr., Ruth Terry, Marie Wilson, William Wright, Gertrude Neisen, Sidney Blackmer, Cliff Nazarro, and William Demarest. Novel, in that it had a rookie training camp for background, the film is one continual laugh-fest and jam session of fun and tunes from opening to ending.

The story deals with the troubled romance of songwriter Crosby with Ruth Terry, his showgirl sweetheart. They are always becoming engaged, then having to call it off, because Bob's lost his money playing poker. When the limit of human endurance is reached, Ruth calls the whole thing off—permanently, it seems. Aggrieved, Crosby and his pal, Eddy Foy, Jr., whip up a new musical comedy, and get a wealthy playboy, played by William Wright, to back it. But it comes out that Wright and Ruth are now romantically inclined, and that he intends to have her as the show's leading lady!

Then Crosby, Foy and Wright are drafted, and Ruth goes along to the camp as an official hostess. Crosby proposes that the show be produced at camp with Ruth as leading lady. Ruth enthusiastically agrees. Then she finds out that Crosby is not doing this just to entertain his fellow-rookies, but in order to "test" the show for professional production. Crosby's attempts to convince Ruth that he's really trying to play 'fair', and his rivalry with Wright, bring the film to a fast and hilarious finish.

'Ride on Vaquero' Packs Action, Drama and Thrills

A girl knows enough about Cisco to hang him, but yet the handsome rascal rides into her arms, and on the Capital screen you'll see what happens after that when "Ride On Vaquero" makes up a very entertaining double bill.

Cesar Romero, again accompanied by his fast-shooting friend Gordito, played by Chris-Pin Martin, scores sensationally according to previewers, in his latest Cisco Kid vehicle. They say that it even has more action, more romance, and harder riding than the other Cisco Kid films.

Mary Beth Hughes, Lynne Roberts, Robert Lowery, and Ben Carter are also featured. Herbert I. Leeds directed and Sol M. Wurtzel was executive producer.

The popular Universal News reel and 5th Chapter of the thrilling serial "The Mysterious Dr. Satan" closes this grand entertaining program.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Blondie in Society"

The newest "Blondie" laugh hit, "Blondie in Society" is now showing at the McCarthy and here is a swell show for the "Blondie" fans and others looking for entertainment. Everybody is in for a "movie" treat. "Blondie in Society" is packed with fun and pranks that emerges as the best to date in the popular series. Everyone may wonder where the title came from, as it has nothing to do with the story, but regardless of title, it's real sparkling entertainment that will be enjoyed in a big way. Peggy Singletone, Arthur Lake, Larry Sims, Daisy and the other regular members of the cast, turn in top-flight performances, aided by Edgar Kennedy and Chick Chandler in fine comedy characterizations.

In short, Director Frank R. Strayer and Producer Sparks, the team responsible for the previous "Blondie" hits, have delivered a swell piece of family entertainment this time in "Blondie in Society" and for all looking for fun entertainment, the McCarthy should be your "spot."

"Men Without Souls"

Rounding out a most pleasing program offering, the second feature now showing entitled "Men Without Souls" which is a power packed prison drama co-starring John Litel, as the prison chaplain, and Barton MacLane as a ruthless leader of prison convicts, is one of the most gripping films to flash on the screen this year. "Men Without Souls" is not a horror melodrama, it is not a comedy-drama, but for worthwhile screen-fare with punch in every scene, it is a picture that tells a thrilling story and at the same time teaches a lesson, bound to have telling effects in favour of the present campaign against all manner of crime. "Men Without Souls" is a document of proof that "Crime Does Not Pay." It might also be mentioned by this reviewer that "Men Without Souls" is an ideal added feature in perfect contrast to "Blondie in Society." A clever technicolor cartoon "In the Land of Fun" and also the closing chapter of "The Green Archer" makes every minute of this program "swell entertainment."

NEW DRILL FOR U.S. ARMY

Now under way at Fort Devens, Ayer, Mass., is new type of training, that of teaching men to swim with full packs and in full uniform. Pack, carried on soldier's back, weighs 50 pounds. First to receive training are men of 1st Medical Battalion, shown ABOVE, who will teach others later. Such training will eliminate drownings in landing manoeuvres.

AS HARRY L. HOPKINS, JOSEF STALIN MET IN MOSCOW

That important meeting in Moscow between Harry L. Hopkins, the lend-lease administrator and personal representative of President Roosevelt, and Dictator Josef Stalin of the Soviet Union is pictured above in a radiophoto just transmitted from the Red capital. Hopkins, who has been in London, talked with Stalin for three hours. It was believed he discussed U.S. aid for Russia in the war with Germany.—Central Press Radiophoto

CHAPTER NINETEEN

A Difficult Situation

"I'm glad you came, Clara," Marilyn said quietly. "And now, if the gentlemen will excuse us—"

"No you don't." Clara raised her voice raucously. "None o' your tricks, Miss Lynn. You introduce me to your boy-friends. They look all right."

Lynn thought, "If only they'd go and leave me with Clara, I might get her into the elevator without a scene. But no. Bruce Gordon was watching Clara with narrowed eyes. The darkish flecks in them had turned to flecks of flame.

"My sister, Miss Clara Marsh," Marilyn said steadily. "Clara, may I present Mr. James Martin and Mr. Bruce Gordon." She indicated each as she named him.

"You don't say," Clara laughed fuzzily. "The names mean nothing to me, but if you told the boys that I'm th' ver' pop'lar Queen of Beauty, 1939, they might get excited and ask us out for a bite and a bottle. I could go for a bite and a b'l, couldn't you, Handsome?" This was addressed to Bruce Gordon.

"Oh, no," hurriedly from Marilyn, "we couldn't possibly. Mr. Martin and Mr. Gordon were just leaving when you—"

"When I barged in. That was then, Miss Prim. Maybe now they've changed their minds. It's prack'ly the middle of the ev'ning. I got a yen for foodn' drink, an' I kind of go for Handsome here. What you say, Handsome?"

Bruce Gordon read the plea in Marilyn's eyes.

"Sorry," he said with cold courtesy. "We have an appointment. We'll have to hurry along, Jim. Good night Miss Marsh." He bowed ever so slightly to Clara. "Good night." He took Marilyn's hand, held it close for a moment. "I'll see you tomorrow."

Marilyn was conscious of the disapproving eyes of hotel attaches as she asked for her key, shepherded Clara into an elevator and finally found the sanctuary of her room. Perhaps she'd be asked to leave the hotel tomorrow. Clara's behaviour would certainly justify the management in such an attitude.

"Hey, Lynn," Clara was seated uncertainly on the side of the bed. "This is a bunk. Hardly wide enough for one. How we both going to get our beauty sleep in such a con—contrap—oh, skip it."

"It's not so bad once you're in it." Marilyn tried appeasement. "Take your things off. I'll hang them up. You may have the bed. I'll curl up in the chair by the window."

"Being noble again, huh?" Clara's grin was a taunt. "You sure get a kick out of that noble stuff. I will take the bed, Lord knows I need it, but not until I've had food and drink."

"I'll order sandwiches brought to our room."

"Sandwiches!" Clara scoffed at the thought. "Where I go we eat lobster Ther—Ther-mitty-jig, and we wash it down with bubbles."

"Where we are," Marilyn said, lifting the service receiver, "we eat sandwiches and wash them down with warm milk."

"Milk!" Clara cried. "I hate the stuff. It upsets my stummick."

Marilyn ordered sandwiches and a pot of steaming hot coffee. Clara, munching the last crumb of sandwich and, dropping a third lump of sugar into her coffee, suddenly looked up and said, slyly:

"How did you ditch Al, and where did you find the good-looking stranger?"

Marilyn said, "They were strangers. I didn't find them. They found me. They helped me, when Al was hurt, in the Blue Parrot. They helped me get away quietly."

"Maybe there was two but only one of 'em could take it away from Bob Taylor. The tall blond one with the eyes that burn you up. So the two of 'em played Boy Scout for you when that fresh Al Martino got what was coming to him? Maybe you're not as dumb as I thought you were, Sis. Picking up Handsome was a pretty smart trick. Are you going to see him again? Did he try to date you?"

"I can't very well help seeing him, sooner or later," Marilyn mused. "He happens to be my employer. He's an executive of Clarco."

The moment/she spoke, Marilyn realized she had made a mistake.

Her simple statement of fact all but bounced Clara out of bed. "You mean Handsome's in the office with you," she demanded, "in the very same office—"

"No," confusedly, in a vain effort to undo the damage. "He has his own office. I'm in the general office. He's one of the firm owners—of course he has his own suite—"

Clara's high pitched laughter was hysterical, frightening. "Look who's got her claws on the boss!" she cried, bending over and beating the coverlet of the bed with her laughtermfwy hrdl mfw ypmrm fists in a paroxysm of unholy glee. "Strangers, huh? You been in town a couple of days and you're sittin' pretty! A coupla days and Miss Prune and Prisms is the boss's girl friend! Wait till Millville hears the news. That'll be one for their picture books!"

"If you've finished," Marilyn said, her taut nerves humming like live wires, "I'll turn out the lights. It's late. I have to work tomorrow."

"Work?" Clara jeered. "That's a hot one!" She went on laughing in that poisonous way that was more like a cackle. "Maybe Handsome will give me a job, posing for Clarco pictures. Maybe I'll ask him."

In the chair by the window Marilyn fought for sleep. A few hours and it would be nine o'clock. She must face another day in competition with brains that were fresh and clean, bodies that were rested.

Marilyn had hoped that before she left for the office in the morning Clara would be sufficiently out of the fog to feel some contrition. In such a mood, Marilyn might persuade her to give up the idea of posing in the Blue Parrot, a spot Marilyn felt certain had been purchased for her by Herman Hess. If only Clara would consent to return to Millville! If only she would share an inexpensive room with Marilyn until she could find work on her own, a job not subsidized by a gross prowling man.

The hope was drowned in Clara's clamor, when Marilyn tried to rouse her, that her head was splitting, that she must have "a pitcher of ice and a bromide qiuck," that she was going to stay in bed for a week, that Herman Hess was a "yellow dog," that she wished people would clear out and let her sleep. Then she pulled the covers over her head and refused to listen further.

Down in the lobby, Marilyn rang Bruce Gordon's apartment. The clipped voice of a man servant answered. The young gentleman who had been injured was doing nicely. The doctor had been in very early. Mr. Gordon had gone out immediately afterward for a gallop in the park. He had left word when Miss Marsh called she was to be informed the young gentleman was doing nicely. The doctor found no concussion, but in view of the shock suffered, thought, the young gentleman should remain quiet for another day, possibly two, that he should not be moved or receive visitors.

Marilyn thought, "No matter how muddled our lives are, we can always find reason for thanksgiving."

The mechanical precision of the office, the quiet undertow of its activity was manna to her troubled heart, her chaffed nerves, her careening thoughts. Determinedly she forced herself into the swing of work, felt herself carried along by the pressure of it.

Several times during the morning Marilyn felt the sharp eyes of Miss Edna Cook, head of the department, boring in on her from the observation desk at the end of the room. She must look ghastly under the office lights. At noon she'd freshen up her make-up, bear down on the lipstick a bit, and add a touch of color to her cheeks. By twelve o'clock she had written three pieces of copy she thought was especially good and sent it on its routine.

She gulped tomato juice and nibbled a cracker at a drugstore lunch counter. Then she walked swiftly, trying to whip life into her numbed body. She phoned her room at the hotel. No answer. Clara was probably asleep or in a pet and would not answer. She was careful about her make-up. Too much would be more telltale than none at all. When she returned to the office at the close of the lunch hour the three pieces of copy that had been ground out so laboriously were on her desk. It bore the initials "E.C.", accompanied by a criticism which would curl the hair of a less sensitive worker than Marilyn.

She knows I've been burning the candle at both ends and she's riding me," Marilyn told herself. "She's right. I must pull myself up. I must show her I can take criticism and profit by it." Marilyn settled down to the task of hewing, polishing, injecting new color, new vigor into the copy, that had seemed so special only a little while ago. She would shut out that other world which was buffeting her about. She WOULD.

At three o'clock an office boy came to her desk with a memo. She held it in her lap to steady her hands as she read:

"Please come to my office. The boy who delivers this note will show you the way.—Bruce Gordon."

Marilyn folded the note and tucked it into the pocket of her blouse. This was the end, of course. Miss Cook had told Bruce—told Mr. Gordon—how utterly she was failing. Miss Cook had told how dull, how vapid she was, how empty. He would understand after last night, after the scene in the Blue Parrot, and Clara.

KISS YOUR TIRED FEELING GOODBYE!

Pepless Many Suffer Low Blood Count—And Don't Know It.

The baffling thing about low blood count is that you can weigh about as much as you ever did—even look healthy and strong, yet—you can feel as if you had lead in your legs, dopey, tired and pepless.

Low blood count means you haven't got enough red blood corpuscles. It is their vital job to carry life-giving oxygen from your lungs throughout your body. And just as it takes oxygen to explode gasoline in your car and make the power to turn the wheels, so you must have plenty of oxygen to explode the energy in your body and give you going power.

Get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today. They are world-noted for the help they give in increasing the number and strength of red corpuscles. Then with your blood count up, you'll feel like bounding up the stairs as if you were floating on air. Ask your druggist for Dr. Williams Pink Pills today.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Aug. 7 (CP)—Interest was concentrated in the mining issues through the early period on the Toronto Stock Exchange and index gains were posted at noon for golds and base metals. Industrials weakened narrowly and the western oils were unchanged and in dull action. Turnover was the heaviest of the week at 190,000 shares for the first three hours.

O'Brien advanced 15 cents to 1.65 in active trading. Preston gained 15 cents to 3.45 and small gains were netted by Aunor, Malartic Gold Fields, McLeod-Cockshutt and Chesterville. Hudson Bay, Waite-Amulet, Noranda and Denison Nickel were the base metal gainers.

The industrial department was quiet. Foods, steels and utilities held unchanged. Distillers-Seagrams weakened 3-4 to 22 1-4 and minimum fractions were dropped by Imperial Oil, C.P.R. and Mercury Mills.

Home Oil sold at 2.25, off a cent and Foothills was unchanged at 65.

WALL STREET

New York, Aug. 7 —(AP)— A few specialties were relatively strong in today's stock market but many leaders drifted aimlessly.

American Woollen Common and Pfd. ran up to new highs for 1941, again reflecting optimism over the company's six months' showing and expectations sizable accumulations on the senior issue would be paired.

Elsewhere small fractional variations either way were the rule from the start. Dealings, fairly active for a while, frequently came to a standstill near the final hour. Transfers were at the rate of approximately 550,000 shares.

Cartoonists Win Wage Increases

Hollywood, Aug. 7 (AP)—Striking cartoonists at Walt Disney studio won wage increases ranging up to ten per cent and back pay for about 30 per cent of the time they were off in a Federal arbitration award made public yesterday.

The studio said back pay will total $27,000 and the annual increase in salaries will approximate $156,000.

Under terms of the award, workers receiving under $50 weekly — comprising an estimated 75 per cent of the total employment—will receive a blanket 10 per cent boost. Lesser increases scale upward to $85 a week. Above that figure, there will be no wage raises.

The American Federation of Labor Screen Cartoon Guild demanded back pay for the entire nine weeks of the strike, but the arbitrators made the award for 100 hours, or 2½ weeks.

Butter and Egg Prices Strengthen

Toronto — Butter and egg prices were slightly strengthened in rather quiet trading on the Toronto open produce market yesterday, as, in both cases, offerings continued very light. Prices of creamery butter solids improved 1-4 of a cent a pound while butter quotations to the retail trade were increased 1 to 1 1-4 cents a pound. Top-grade eggs advanced 1-2 to 1 cent a dozen in wholesale-to-retail trading.

Co-incidental with the report that fresh receipts were extremely light on the butter market, the Ontario Creamery Association last night revealed that production of creamery butter in this Province for the week ending July 26, amounted to 1,006,071 pounds, compared with 1,100,128 pounds for the same week last year. This represents a decrease of 8.54 per cent.

With demand only fair, the volume of sales of No. 1 creamery solids at the advanced price of 37 1-4 cents a pound was not heavy.

The egg market retained a firm tone and, though the volume of fresh receipts was light, all requirements were met. Quotations in the country dealer section of trading held unchanged, while in wholesale-to-retail trading, grades A-large and A-medium advanced to 38 and 37 cents a dozen respectively.

Montreal Produce

Butter — First grade solids, jobbing price, 37½-38.

Eggs — Graded shipments selling at: A-large, 36-36½; A-medium 34½-35; B grade 28; C grade, 23 1-2-24. Receipts—971 cases.

Hog Quotations

Toronto, Aug. 7 (CP)—Dressed-weight were down 5 cents at Brantford and prices were unchanged at Chatham, Kitchener, London and Stratford in bacon-hog markets reporting today.

Liveweight: Chatham 10.25.

Dressedweight: — Branftrod 14.10 plus transportation; Chatham 14.05; Kitchener and Stratford $14 plus transportation; London 14.35 delivered.

Livestock

Toronto, Aug. 7—(CP) — Cattle trade was slow on the Livestock Market up to mid-session here today on a plain quality supply. The hog market was weak at Wednesday's low of $14.60 dressedweight. Lambs were steady. No sheep or veal calves were offered. Unsold from yesterday was 600 head of cattle.

Receipts: Cattle 60; hogs 300; lambs 10.

A few good to choice weighty steers, $9 to $9.35; butcher steers and heifers, $7.50 to $8.75; boners $5.50 to $6 and bulls $5.50 to $6.85.

Hogs $14.60 dressedweight.

Lambs $12.

DANISH NATIONALS VOLUNTEER TO JOIN 'FREE DANISH' UNIT

Montreal, Aug. 7—(CP)—A number of Danish Nationals living in Canada have volunteered to join a "free" Danish army unit being formed in Great Britain, it was disclosed in a statement today on behalf of E. Hertel, member of the executive committee of the Danish council, who has returned to Britain after heading the council's Canada-United States delegation.

The unit will be incorporated in the East Kent Regiment of the British army, of which King Christian of Denmark is colonel-in-chief.

The delegation asked that Danish Nationals wishing to enlist in the Danish army unit communicate with Dr. O. Nordland of 152 Albert St., London, Ont.

SOLDIERS INJURED IN BLAST

Pembroke, Ont., Aug. 7 (CP)—An officer and four soldiers, all members of the Royal Canadian Engineers at nearby Petawawa military camp, were injured in a dynamite blast at the camp yesterday. One of the men may lose his sight.

Names of the men and details of the accident were not available last night.

Smallest Apples That Can Be Sold Must Measure at Least 2¼ Inches

Toronto, Aug. 7—(CP)—P. W. Hodgetts, director of fruit for the Ontario Department of Agriculture, said today that according to a new regulation in the Province the smallest apple that may be marketed in Ontario must measure at least 2¼ inches.

Hodgetts said the new restriction had been enforced at the request of the Dominion Department of Agriculture and aimed at maintaining a higher standard of preventing unfair competition from small imported apples that measured as small as 1¾ inches.

He said a few truckers with imported apples had gone through to Toronto and Montreal earlier in the season but that Government fruit inspectors had cleared this type of fruit from retail stands.

Ontario apples below the standard may be sold for making of cider and vinegar and pulp.

Hails Sign of U. S. Collaboration In Struggle With 'Bloodthirsty Hitler', Common Foe of World

Moscow, Aug. 7 (AP)—Pravda, Communist party organ, hailed today what he called accumulating evidence of collaboration between the Soviet Union and the United States in "the struggle against humanity's common foe—bloodthirsty Hitler."

An editorial devotetd to Russian-American relations charged that Germany, pursuing aims of world conquest, was trying to wrest Atlantic bases from the Vichy government in preparation for an attack on America.

As testimony of co-operation between Moscow and Washington, Pravda enumerated the visit to the Soviet capital of Harry Hopkins, President Roosevelt's personal envoy; renewal of the trade agreement between the U.S.S.R. and the United States and the exchange of notes between Sumner Welles and Russian ambassador Constantin Opmansky over the United States decision to render all practicable aid to Russia.

Duke Clips off 30 Minutes in Mountain Climb

Banff, Alta., Aug. 7 (CP)—Invigorated by two action-filled days of holiday in this Rocky Mountain resort, the Duke of Kent will leave here early today for Calgary to continue by air his inspection tour of establishments of the Commonwealth Air Training plan.

The Duke arrived here Monday night and in the short time since then has climbed two mountains, ridden many miles on horseback, driven himself around the park in an automobile and seen most of the sights.

Yesterday he and his aide, Inspector H. J. Evans of Scotland Yard, clipped 30 minutes off the generally-recognized record for climbing Mt. Rundle. The pair negotiated the tricky and, in many sports, dangerous route to the 9,665-foot peak and back in six and a half hours.

'Daring Feat'

Herb Ashley, veteran park warden who followed an hour behind them, described their feat as "daring and strength-testing".

Previously, the Duke had made the comparatively-easy ascent of Sulphur Mountain.

Shortly after his return last night, the Duke went for a brisk 45-minute pony ride along Banff's "Rotten Row" to the end of the golf links. Later he paid a visit to the Beaver Dams west of the town where Major P. J. Jennings, superintendent of the Banff National Park, told him of the habits of the Canadian National animal.

FINNS

force of Finns has proved to me that the Russians are mighty tough customers. They stay put even when to do so means sure death.

At defensive tactics the Russians are regarded as unparalleled.

From commanding generals down to the simplest soldiers, every Finn admits that the Russian is a formidable enemy who fights fatalistically, without fear of death, who has been excellently trained all these years, who is eminently well-equipped.

The rifles of individual Russian soldiers are so good that any Finn is happy when he can capture one. Russian munitions are said to be more than sufficient.

I visited the northernmost tip of the Stalin Line—a giant fortification system extending all the way from Lake Ladoga to the Black Sea—as we pushed southward into Old Russia.

What I saw of abandoned bunkers and pillboxes was quite on a par with the Maginot, Siegfried and Metaxas systems.

But in this particular area the Finns adopted the same tactics of circumvention and surprise that the Germans employed against France and Greece.

CHARGE COBOURG MAN WITH MALICIOUS DAMAGE TO CAR

Walter Green, Cobourg, was arrested and remanded in the Prince Edward County jail in Picton today charged with malicious damage and disturbance of the peace. The arrest was made by County Constable Earl Marvin, Wellington who laid the charges after Green is alleged to have wilfully damaged a car. His wife operates a store in the village of Consecon.

According to the police officer, Green, who has not resided with his wife for the past two years, paid her a visit. Later he found the car parked in front of the store and inflicted damage estimated at $25 to the vehicle with a tomato crate. The windshield was broken and other damage done.

MENNONITES SEEK GREEN PASTURES

Fact Disclosed as Young Mennonite Refuses to Have Photograph Taken for Passport to S. America

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 7—(AP)—A young Mennonite's refusal to have his photograph taken for a passport disclosed today that Pennsylvania's picturesque "plain people" are seeking greener pastures in South America. The promise of free frontier land in Paraguay, where they would not be vexed by such North American matters as crop restriction, conscientious objections to military service and consolidated public schools, has caused the Mennonites to contemplate a migration.

Their plans became known when it was learned 26-year-old David Newswanger had been selected by the sect to travel to South America and spy out the land.

But the photograph barrier intervened. Newswanger and a co-religionist, John W. Martin, visited the State Department in Washington and explained the taking of pictures was forbidden by their church's rules.

He has the alternative of travelling on a Paraguayan passport, minus the photograph. He would not have the protection of the United States while travelling.

CONFIDENT NAZIS

Red Command Confident

(Reuter's News Agency reported today from Moscow that the Soviet high command "is confident that the Germans will reach neither Kiev nor Leningrad, let alone Moscow itself, said a London broadcast heard by Columbia Broadcasting System.)

The battle of the Karelian Isthmus, first reported in the early morning communique told of fighting in the vicinity of Kakisalmi, 75 miles from Leningrad.

The first Soviet war bulletin of today indicated the German and Finnish forces on the Karelian Isthmus were attempting to advance along the south shore of Lake Ladoga against stiff Russian resistance. The area where the fighting was reported was ceded to Russia by Finland under the treaty ending their 1939-40 war.

Fighting in Smolensk Sector

The Russians also reported heavy fighting raged yesterday in the vital Smolensk sector on the road to Moscow and in the vicinity of Bel Tserkov, south of the Ukrainian capital of Kiev.

The communique gave no indication of the turn these battles were taking, merely reporting Russian troops as "fighting stubbornly."

The Nazi air force, meanwhile, struck at Moscow last night for the fourteenth time at night since the war started, but the Russians said the raid—as those which preceded it—had been unsuccessful.

Contradicting Nazi claims that most of the Soviet air force has been knocked out, the Russians said their planes delivered heavy blows yesterday at Nazi ground forces. Fourteen Nazi planes were destroyed during the day against Soviet losses of seven planes.

LORD BENNETT'S FIRST OFFICIAL ACT

London, Aug. 7 (CP Cable) — Viscount Bennett performed his first official duty since entering the House of Lords when he sat on a three-man Royal Commission today to signify Royal assent to a number of acts.

Replendent in scarlet and gold robes and black cocked hats, Lords Bennett and Daryngton were on either side of Lord Simon who, as Lord Chancellor told the Yeoman Usher of the Black Rod to summon the Commons.

SPECULATE ON MIDDLE EAST

Some Strategists Suggest Aid to Russia May be Given Through Oil Fields, Others That Italian N. Africa May be Attacked

London, Aug. 7—(CP)—Commentators speculating on the direction of the "next forward plunge" in the Middle East pledged by Foreign Secretary Eden in the House of Commons suggested today two alternatives—another attack on Italian North Africa or a move into the Russian oil field area to aid Russia.

A seasoned army of 500,000 men now is ready, these sources said, equipped with planes, tanks, guns and munitions which have poured in from Britain and the United States in recent months.

Some strategists suggested a holding force might be left on the Egyptian frontier while troops based in Syria could move to oppose any Nazi thrust at the Russian oil fields. These troops might move through friendly Turkey, Iraq or even Iran, they said. British forces now in Syria also might help to protect Turkey.

Some observers thought a drive into Cirenaica for a real clean-up of the Axis forces in Africa was likely.

One source said he believed the Allies could take Libya tomorrow but doubted whether the gain would be worth the expenditure of men and arms.

JAP ACTION SEEN

"When—and if—Germany and Japan accomplish that ambitious objective" a ranking official said, "The Axis powers could join forces across the southern oceans and dominate the seas, isolating the Americas for a co-ordinated attack from the Pacific and the Atlantic."

Axis Plan For Stranglehold

To win that "stranglehold on the world," it was pointed out, the Germans and Japanese must first seize the British and French strong points that dominate the world's seaways and officials said the aggressive plans now in motion have that objective.

Since Japan represents one of the jaws in the gigantic pincers movement, an authoritative source stated, Japanese encroachment in Indo-China and Thailand cannot be considered in the category of isolated aggression but must be treated as a vital element in the Nazis's strategy.

For this reason, it was explained, the United States has assumed a forceful diplomatic policy designed both to stiffen Vichy resistance to German demands and to warn Japan against further military adventures in the south Pacific before it is too late.

Sate Secretary Cordell Hull emphasized the tremendous scope of Axis plans it was pointed out, when he declared Monday that the recent developments in Europe and Asia provided "the most clinching demonstration" that "a world movement of conquest by force" is in progress.

Clues to Axis Strategy

As outlined by informed sources the present clues to the Axis grand strategy are:-

1. German demands on Vichy for the base at Dakar for naval operations in the South Atlantic and also for bases along the Mediterranean to give the Nazis control of that strategic sea and to facilitate the capture of the Suez canal.

Spain to permit the passage of troops for an attack on Gibraltar that would permit the Italian navy, now imprisoned in the Mediterranean, to move into the Atlantic.

3. Japan's expansion of the naval and military bases obtained in Indo-China and the resultant threat to British Malaya, Singapore and the Philippines.

4. Japan's demands on Thailand which, if won, would put the Japanese in strategic position not only for attacks on Singapore and the rich East Indies but also for an overland thrust through Burma and India to meet Axis forces striking southeast through Iraq and Iran.

16 YEAR OLD MEMBER OF R.N.A.F.

Toronto, Aug. 7 (CP)—Sixteen-year-old Peter Svedt is the youngest member of the Royal Norwegian Air Force stationed at Little Norway here. He escaped from internment in Dakar, French West Africa and travelled half way around the world to join the R.N.A.F. here.

He joined in a daring escape from Dakar with three other Norwegians. They escaped through ninety miles of open South Atlantic in a tiny boat to the British Gold Coast. Peter boarded a British freighter which took him to Freetown from when he headed to Toronto.

LOCATOR INVENTED

London, Aug. 7 (CP)—A radio locator for finding persons trapped under debris of bombed buildings has been invented by R. C. Moore, Brighton electrical engineer.

It is an electrical amplifying device and padded loudspeaker three feet tall. The bell of the horn is placed against heaps of ruins absorbing every sound. Tests showed deep breathing, tapping and whispers were clearly heard.

BRITISH PARLIAMENT RECESSES

London, Aug. 7 — (CP Cable)—Parliament recessed today until September as a drab sitting came to a sudden ending when it was discovered the necessary quorum of 40 members was not present.

BRITISH AID

The British and Free French invasion of the French mandate of Syria was "the final blow to the whole German middle eastern plan."

The remaining Italian troops in East Africa, specifically Ethiopia, are ready for the taking. There are pockets of resistance at Gonda (3,000 Europeans and 6,000 natives) and at Uolchefit (3,000 Europeans and 1,000 natives) but these are expected to be speedily mopped up, solidifying the East African section of the Middle East lines.

European Russia

Halted at Smolensk, facing Moscow, the Germans are turning southeast from Bel Tserkov, in the Ukraine, in a push toward the Caucasus. There has been no great change in the situation in the last 24 hours. It is increasingly clear that on all other fronts the third great German offensive has been held and that progress in the Ukraine is "very slow."

The Russian army in Siberia is a "very strong, well equipped and highly trained" organization of about 1,000,000 men. In past frontier clashes with the Japanese "this army has proved its superiority in equipment, training and leadership." The Siberian forces are organized as troops of the Trans-Baikal military district, the first Red Banner army in the Maritime Provinces around Vladivostok and the second Red Banner army on the Manchoukuo and Amur River frontiers.

The Japanese army in Manchoukuo numbers a quarter million and has been steadily reinforced for the past two weeks. Strong defensive positions have been prepared in Manchoukuo and it also is reported that the Japanese are massing "what may be a striking force" in the area between Harbin and the northern border of Korea.

Japan Tied Up In China

In China the Japanese army "apparently is stuck in the mud of immense military, political and economic problems." Although it is in no danger of being defeated in the field, a great part of Japan's military strength is tied up in China.

In Southern French Indo-China up to 50,000 Japanese troops have been landed at Camranh Bay and Saigon and in French Indo-China eight airdromes have been occupied by the Japanese Air Force. Japanese planes at Soktrang Airdrome are 700 miles from Singapore while others based at Siemreap are less than 250 miles from Bangkok, capital of Thailand.

Singapore is "considerably stronger" than it was at the outbreak of the war, with an air force "superior in quality" to anything Japan could muster. Singapore is "more than a stronghold and if the Japanese were to attack, their resources would be taxes to the utmost."

R.A.F. ATTACKS

Attack Nazi Convoy

The Air Ministry said that Blenheim bombers "searching for enemy shipping in daylight yesterday" attacked a destroyer-protected convoy off the Netherlands coast and "after the attack one ship was seen to be down by the stern with smoke pouring from it."

During the night an airdrome in German-held Norway was attacked and "an enemy vessel" torpedoed off the Norwegian coast by a British plane.

Six German planes were destroyed in the last 24 hours, five fighters by R.A.F. fighters in a series of sweeps yesterday and a sixth fighter by a British bomber which it attacked over Germany last night.

In other attacks last night, hangars of an enemy airdrome in northern France were set afire and bombs dropped on runways. Docks at Calais were blasted.

British day raiders, carrying out the round-the-clock schedule of air assaults, made a big sweep over the channel and northern France today. Several waves of planes crossed toward Calais, Dunkerque and Ostend.

Another pair of Nazi planes was destroyed in light German attacks over East and Southeast England during the night, the Ministries of Air and Home Security reported. A few persons were injured and slight damage was done at a few points.

A lone Nazi plane attacked some northeast coast towns after daylight today, spraying machine-gun bullets from a low altitude. It was chased by British fighters.

It was the second successive night of British attacks on targets in the cities of Frankfurt, Mannheim and Karlsruhe.

Winds Aid Bombers

In the raid Tuesday night the British bombers were whirled along by a gale that made them as fast as Fighters. Fire and destruction was spread as super bombs dropped on shipping, railway and industrial targets.

Last night the Nazi-occupied French ports of Calais and Boulogne were attacked following daylight raids on the French coast and German shipping in the English Channel.

In Tuesday's daylight sorties an airdrome near Cherbourg, two tankers off the French coast, a motor torpedo boat and a coastal radio station were among the targets. Approximately a dozen Nazi planes on the ground of an airdrome were attacked with machine-gun and cannon fire and a Nazi Fighter that rose to the challenge was shot down. Two escorting Nazi Fighters were downed later when the R.A.F. attacked Nazi tankers, leaving smoke rising from one of the ships.

In Tuesday night raids on the German cities, fires were left raging and the attack on Mannheim was particularly severe. Here, one explosion was so effective it lighted up clouds at 8,000 feet. At Ludwigshafen, across the river, bombs smashed a large chemical factory and another great explosion occurred. Flames leaped hundreds of feet into the air.

At Karlsruhe a large factory was destroyed and fire roared in railway yards and industrial areas as the bombers headed for home. Another large explosion appeared to be from a burning ammunition dump.

German gun emplacements on the French coast shelled the Southeast English coast last night. Two men and three women were injured and 20 dwellings damaged.

Complete Preparations To Resist Japanese Moves to Cut Burma Rd.

London, Aug. 7—(CP)—A Reuters dispatch from Singapore today quoted the Singapore office of the Ministry of Information as declaring that "In Burma and South China all preparations are ready to smash any Japanese attempt to cut the Burma Road or move further westward."

This apparently referred to the possibility of a Japanese move into Thailand from bases in Indo-China or an attempt to invade China's southwestern province of Yunnan, through which the Burma Road, chief supply line of the Chinese armies, runs.

Warnings Hailed

Reuters said that the parallel "hands off Thailand" warnings by the United States Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, and Foreign Secretary Eden were received in Singapore with great satisfaction. Authorities there said that should the warnings need to be backed up with action it would be shown that Malaya and Burma were ready to meet any emergency.

The recent arrival of new reinforcements for the British forces in that part of the world was described as "no isolated event."

Although there was no confirmation of insistent reports that a sizeable British naval force already is in the vicinity of Singapore, the Reuters dispatch said it was emphasized there that the statement of W. M. Hughes, Australia's Navy Minister, that Britain was able to send a fleet to the Pacific was no idle boat.

Therefore, the dispatch said, it was clearly indicated that it would not be distortion of the facts to say that a substantial British naval force may be "just around the corner."

Bottleneck Moved— A Boston Bull

St. Louis, Aug. 7 —(AP)— The No. 1 bottleneck in the way of expanding the $89,000,000 small arms munition plant here was removed yesterday at the government's expense.

Mutzie, a Boston bull terrier and expectant mother, was the bottleneck.

The government had offered to move her owners, Mr. and Mrs. Boundy, at its own expense, but they refused to move until Mutzie's litter arrived. Additional construction of buildings was contingent only on demolition of their house, and army construction officials said they already were three days late on the job.

"After all, Mutzie can have her pups in our new house, she is 100 per cent American, just like the rest of us," said Boundy.

The Boundy residence is one of 24 buildings in the area acquired by the government to make way for further construction of the defence plant.

BEETLES RIDE ON PLANES

New York, Aug. 7—(AP)—The latest word in the fight against the Japanese bettle is that the pesky insects have taken to aerial hitchhiking in their quest for happier hunting grounds. R. W. Sherman, plant quarantine inspector for the Department of Agriculture, says the beetles virtually are thumbing rides on the airliners and have forced the posting of inspection squads at large eastern airports to keep them out of the still-uninfested cornfields of the South and Middle West.

VICHY SEEKS TO REASSURE UNITED STATES

Vichy, France, Aug. 7. —(AP)—The Petain government handed the United States Embassy a note last night which was reported reliably to have "assured" Washington that Vichy will defend the French Empire by means which she thinks best.

The note was said to have been couched in general terms. It was not made public here.

COMMUNIST APPEALS

Vancouver, Aug. 7—(CP)—Fergus McKean, interned secretary of the Communist party of British Columbia, will appear before an appeal board Aug. 11 at Camp Petawawa, near Ottawa, to present his case.

John Stanton, Vancouver lawyer retained as McKean's counsel by the local "committee for labor justice," is en route east to see his client Aug. 7 by permission of the Justice Department.

BERLIN SAYS

reports previously had claimed the Russians had been cut off from the Dnieper River and Black Sea harbors 150 miles south of Kiev, the Red army now is asserted to have lost its rearline communications.

German propagandists spoke optimistically of "expected" new successes through large-scale envelopments and said the Russians were faced with encircling Germans pouring between Zhitomir and the Ukraine capital in front of them and the Dnieper and Black Sea at their backs.

The Lokal Anzieger said the Ukraine operations were more extensive even than the Battle of Flanders and the Voelkischer Beobachter spoke of them as covering more than 100 miles in width and depth.

Hitler was reported to have been at the side of his southern commander, Field Marshal General Gerd Von Rundstedt, yesterday and a newsreel shortly will disclose to the Germans that he consulted recently with Col.-Gen Ritter Von Leeb on the Baltic front.

It was under Leeb's command that German troops cracked the Maginot Line in France and his forces also are credited with having broken through the Stalin Line on the northern wing where it guards the approaches to Leningrad.

Unlike the Smolensk front in the centre, the Germans do not present the northern wing as a finished job. Part of Germany's Baltic forces are said to have been forced into trench warfare in order to fix the Russians for encirclement.

Napanee Man Recruits Canadian Home Guard in U. K.

London, Aug. 7—(CP Cable)—Formation of a Canadian Home Guard Unit to act with the American Unit under Brig.-Gen. Wade Hayes is under way.

R. A. Sills, native of Napanee, Ont., and a resident of Britain for 10 years, recruited the group from Canadian business men in London and Britons who served with the Canadian army in the last war.

They have been drilling with the Americans for a week and wear the American Eagle on their uniform pending acquisition of their own emblem.

Native Canadian members include R. A. Armstrong, Saint John, H. R. Blair, Longueuil, Que., N. M. Clougher, Toronto, D. E. Derrick, Montreal and A. C. Harvey, Guelph, Ont.

First Traffic Policeman Dies in Ottawa

Ottawa, Aug. 7—(CP)—Sgt.-Maj. James Edward Humphrey, Ottawa's first traffic policeman who retired in 1930, died last night at his home, aged 74. He had been in failing health for six months.

He joined the Ottawa police in May, 1898, at the age of 25 after 10 years of work as a lumberman on the Ottawa and Gatineau Rivers. In 1910 he was made a Sergeant, and five years later became Sergeant-Major. For 15 years he held that rank.

Two children, a son, James Thomas and a daughter, Mrs. Verne Brown, both of Ottawa, survive.

Bob Crosby, Eddie Foy, Jr., and Cliff Nazarro in a scene from "Rookies On Parade," new army comedy hit with music now at the Capitol. On the same program "The Cisco Kid" in "Ride On Vaquero."

Boys of Camp Mazinaw Give Concert To Aid Tweed Red Cross Branch

Tweed — A unique program was given on Friday night in the Community Hall, Tweed, by the boys of Camp Mazinaw, under the auspices of Tweed Red Cross Branch. The entire proceeds of the concert were turnd ovr to Tweed Red Cross were given to Tweed Red Cross K. Hambly, President of Camp Mazinaw and his staff for this very fine gesture.

Camp Mazinaw is an unusual boys' camp in many of its aspects, as Mr. Hambly explained in a brief address. It stresses not only the boys' physical development, in which it resembles other similar organizations, but also the mental and moral welfare of each boy.

Every member of the camp staff is a specialist in boys' work, the majority being successful Collegiate Institute and Public School teachers of the province. Outstanding in the camp's activities is the instruction given in instrumental music. The instructor, Mr. N. S. Tuckwell, of Welland, is himself able to perform skilfully on thirty-five musical instruments and has organized and trained a camp orchestra of twenty boys, whose contributions to the program were most enjoyable.

Art appreciation and sketching occupy a leading place on the program of activities. No expense has been spared to secure the best leadership and Mr. Barrie Rennie, of Toronto, one of Canada's outstanding young artists, has charge of this important branch of the camp program.

Boys who are backward in their school work receive private tuition during the summer and return to school in the autumn better equipped to meet the demands of a new term's work.

The excellence of the program provided by the boys reflects great credit not only on themselves but on their instructors as well. The following program was presented:

Part I.

Camp Mazinaw Victory March, by Norman S. Tuckwell—The Camp Orchestra; Over the Waves, Waltzes, by Rosas and Dance of the Teddy Bears, by Weidt—The Camp Orchestra; Two Selected Readings—John Turney; Medley of Stephen Foster Gems — The Camp Staff Quartette; The Wizard March, by Daggett — The Camp Orchestra; Music at Mazinaw, a Word from the President of the Orchestra—Jerry Anderson; Novelty Number, Donald Duck — Don Hargraves; Venetian Song, Traditional Tune, Trumpet Solo by Ian Firstbrook, with the Orchestra; Art at Mazinaw—Barrie Rennie; Land of My Sunset Dreams, Alto and Tenor Saxaphone Duet, played by N. S. Tuckwell and Jerry Anderson, Bob Robinson, accompanying; Aloha Oe, and One, Two, Three, Four—Sung by the Camp Quartette; Barcarolle, from Tales of Hoffman, by Offenbach, Whistler and His Dog, by Pryor, Wiener Blut Waltzes, by Strauss and Anchors Aweigh, march by Zimmerman—The Camp Orchestra; Piano Solo, selected—Bob Robinson; Two Selected Readings—John Turney; A Talk and Demonstration on Musical Instruments and Music Appreciation—N. S. Tuckwell.

Part II.

The Spoiled Young Brat—one-act farce comedy, written and directed by N. S. Tuckwell:

Scene: The living room of the Sterling home, Spring, 1941, evening. The Spoiled Young Brat, (Jr.)—Bill Lytle; Mr. Seymour Sterling, the father—Jim Brisby; Roger Sterling, his son, an author—Ian Firstbrook; Sylvia Sterling, his daughter, an art student—N. Brisby; Jeoffrey Sterling, his son, pianist and composer—Bob Robinson; Greta Svorgenson, the maid—Larry Mennell; Archibald Rhyming, poet friend of Sylvia—Don Hargraves; Prof. Forgetsoone, teacher and friend of the Sterlings—Warren Moore; Prof. Storey, visiting professor of literature — Walter Stewart; Prof. Paynterupski, visiting professor of art—Robert Redelmeier; Prof. Pianoffski, visiting professor of music—Jerry Anderson.

After the singing of the National Anthem, Mr. Rennie exhibited a number of his latest sketches.

The camp staff—P. K. Hambly, President; H. R. Hull, Archery, Life Saving; M. D. Hager, Canoeing, Programme; W. F. Hunt, Nature Study, Wood Craft; J. M. Main, Photography, Secretary; N. S. Tuckwell, Music, Drama; Barrie Rennie, Art; Mrs. W. Rashleigh, Camp Matron; Mrs. W. H. Hunt, Assistant Matron; Miss A. Cleaver, Nurse.

30 KILLED AT SUEZ

Cairo, Aug. 7—(AP)—Axis bombers raided the Suez Canal zone early today, killing 30 persons and wounding 35 and damaging property, an Egyptian communique said. High explosives and incendiaries were used. Cairo itself had an alarm but no bombs.

It's love and laugh time again, for the screen's most popular Mr. and Mrs. are back in the funniest comedy hit ever scored by William Powell and Myrna Loy. "Love Crazy" is their latest co-starrer, and is now at the Belle.

British Patrol At Tobruk Harvests Prisoners, Weapons

Cairo, Aug. 7 —(AP)— Heavy dust storms in the North African desert limited British raiding activities at Tobruk, besieged Libyan port, but the Middle East Command reported today that one patrol attacked an Axis post under cover of dusk and returned with prisoners and weapons.

On the Egyptian-Libyan border the British and Axis forces exchanged artillery and machine-gun fire, a communique said.

German 'Chutists Try to Take Islands, Soon 'Accounted for'

London, Aug. 7 —(CP)— German parachute troops who attempted to capture the islands of Dagoe and Osel off the west coast of Estonia in the Baltic were "quickly accounted for," Exchange Telegraph reported today from Goteborg, Sweden.

HER MAJESTY'S THANKS

Ottawa, Aug. 6 —(CP)— Warm thanks to the people of Canada for "their kind message on my birthday" was expressed by the Queen in a message made public today by the Earl of Athlone's office.

Felt Nervous, Rundown; Couldn't Sleep and Was Full of Aches and Pains

Is Thankful for Grand Relief Syntona Gave. Often Due to Faulty Action of Stomach, Liver, Kidneys or Bowels. "Feel Fine Now," She Says.

MRS. MARY BATHURST

"I am so thankful for the grand results I got by taking a treatment of Syntona that I will be glad to have other sufferers know about it," said Mrs. Mary A. Bathurst, 228 Grosvenor Ave., Hamilton, only a few days ago.

"I had always enjoyed fairly good health until a short time ago when my stomach began to give me trouble. No matter what I took, it just kept getting worse, until everything I ate soured in my stomach and caused gas, heartburn and acidity. Sour, undigested food woud rise right up into my throat, particularly at night, so I couldn't sleep and I became nervous and rundown. Then I began to have pains in my back and limbs.

"I read in the paper about how Syntona was helping so many people and I knew some of these people, so I asked them about it and I was persuaded to try Syntona myself. That was just a few weeks ago, and today, I am thankful to say, I feel just fine again. The pains are all gone from my muscles and joints. I am free of that awful stomach distress and I don't get headaches and dizzy spells like I used to. I always had faith in herbs and now I am convinced that Syntona is one really effective herbal medicine."

The reason such good results are produced by a medicine that is compounded to treat the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels at the same time is simply this: The organs of assimilation and elimination are so closely related in their functions that when one becomes ailing, it so often affects one or more of the others. Food that should nourish the body only ferments in the stomach and poisonous waste matter remains in the system.

Come to DOLAN THE DRUGGIST, Belleville, and get yourself a treatment of Syntona. It has helped hundreds here and may do the same for you too. Remember the name, "Syntona" and avoid disappointment.

CANADA BOASTS 50,000 BREEDS OF INSECT LIFE

About 3,000 Are Enemy Pests and Experts Watch Them Now in Their Most Active Season

Ottawa (CP)—The Agriculture Department's bureau of investigation, a branch which examines and distinguishes the good citizens and criminals of the insect world, is in the midst of its busiest season.

Tens of thousands of dead insects, carefully preserved, lie in glass covered drawers in high cabinets in the Confederation Building here which houses the agriculture department offices. Day after day insects which have caused damage—or merely curiosity—are received from all parts of Canada for examination and report.

The study of insect pests which cut millions of dollars from the value of Canadian crops each year, reaches its highest point during the summer when insects become most active.

"There are more than 600,000 known species of insects in the world, each capable of a tremendous rate of reproduction and possibly many thousands of others await discovery," said one official.

"In Canada there are more than 50,000 native to the country of which 3,000 can be classed as enemies.".

Sawfly Pest

Officials at the insect museum can receive an unidentified insect and by close examination quickly establish its general classification. They displayed a case in which were dozens of wheat-stem sawflies, now classed as Western Canada's No. 1 insect pest of 1941.

Entomologists have estimated that millions of bushels of wheat will be lost because of the activities of the pest. Larvae in wheat-stems saw through and cause the grain to topple to the ground. "One of the major problems is that the 3,000 insect enemies native to Canada have been assisted by several hundred species which have come here from othr countries," an expert said. "Pests like the European corn borer, the Hessian fly, the European spruce sawfly and the Colorado potato beetle are among the pests which appear to have come as unwelcome visitors and are determined to stay."

The collection of insects in the offices here facilitates speedy identification which may be vitally important in determining measures to reduce losses and organize campaigns against the pests quickly.

In the collection are nearly 4,000 drawers of pinned insects, microscopic slide preparations of minute insects and thousands of specimens preserved in alcohol. Each specimen is carefully tabulated and all available information concerning it is immediatey available.

Not only must Canadian entomologists watch out for insects known to be destructive but they must be on guard against changes in any insect's way of life which will change it from a harmless creature into an enemy," a spokesman said.

He recalled records of the pale western cutworm which before the prairie lands were broken was a harmless insect living on the natural vegetation. When crops began to grow the cutworm turned from his old food and landed with delight on his new diet. Valuable information concerning the cutworm was made available by entomologists and methods of fighting it were developed.

"Entomologists are co-operators because they know the task is not one which can be accomplished by one or two men," he said. "For that reason people in all parts of the Dominion assist our work by their watch on incests."

Start Harvest Of Britain's Historic Crop

Great Armies of Men, Women and Boys Begin Gathering in Record Wartime Yields

London (CP)—A mighty army of men, women and boys have begun to harvest Great Britain's biggest crops in history. Four million new arable acres will yield their harvest this summer in ad-

Mixed Company

ular crop lands growing corn, wheat and hay.

Most of the harvesting will fall to the skilled men whose callup was postponed until at least the fall, but the Minister of Agriculture expects to be able to draw upon an additional 30,000 to 50,000 hands.

Mixed oCmpany

The Ministry of Labor promised 10,000 unskilled workers, there will be County Council laborers from the roads, thousands of members of the Women's Land Army, 10,000 schoolboys for whom 300 camps are being established, and members of Voluntary Land Clubs. Never will there have been "reaper bands" of such mixed company.

If this year's harvest is great, next year's will be greater. A great drainage campaign has started to make available another 2,000,000 acres of arable land.

Takes Degrees As a Husband

Oregon Male Student Figures It's Wise to Know of Babies and Housewifing

Eugene, Ore. (CP)—Buck Buchwach, isn't even engaged but he's already a full trained "husband."

Weathering two full terms of razzing from his schoolmates, Buchwach has completed a course in "Household Management" and one in "Child Care and Training" at the University of Oregon. In each case his grade was "superior." In the first course Buck was the only man in the class of 61 co-eds, and in the second was alone among 38.

"I didn't do this as a gag," Buck explains, "I want to get married by the time I'm 21 and think everyone should be a parent when he's 25, so he can be a real pal to his growing children. All I've done is to get a head start by learning about real problems regarding homes and children."

Buchwach has a year more of college and then looks forward to a career as a sports writer.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was around at the fire house talking to Mr. Riley the hooken ladder driver, and he showed me Leon's picture in the back of his watch, being the trained fire horse he used to have, and I said, What did he do when you stopped using horses on fire engines?

O' he didn't have such a bad time of it, Mr. Riley said. We used to let him hang around the first house as a sort of mastcot. He'd follow the engines to a fire instead of leading them, that was about the only difference. On quiet days he used to amble around the streets by himself for exercize. Usually a loose horse has no privacy in city streets, because somebody is always trying to lead him somewhere, but everybody knew old Leon so he wasn't bothered. It was too bad his instinct was so strong, Mr. Riley said.

What instinct? I said, and Mr. Roley said, His fire instinct. One day he came galloping back to the fire house with the old familiar light in his eyes, neighing like mad. We knew right away he had spotted a fire, so we manned the engines and Leon galloped on ahead and we followed him, and sure enough he led us smack to a burning stable. Well sir, that sort of thing began to happen so regularly that we began to get sispicious, but we didn't really catch on till one day somebody smelled sulpher on Leon's breath. Matches, Mr. Riley said.

Do you mean he started the fires himself? I said, and Mr. Riley said, That's the size of it. He caught on to the trick of chewing packets of matches till they took fire, and then he'd drop them into some likely place that was full of straw or old rags, like a stable or a junk shop. So we had to send him to a farm, where his greatest pleasure was watching the sunsets. The fokes there thought he had a poetic streak, but of course the sunsets just reminded him of fires, and now I've got a little polishing to do, Mr. Roley said.

Meaning the end of the subject.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, AUGUST 8, 1941

SIXTH CANADIAN DIVISION IS AUTHORIZED

* * *

REPORT RUSSIAN AIR FORCE ATTACKED BERLIN

Mobilization Progressive Says Defence Minister

Present Enlistment Rate 325 to 350 Per Day 6 Days a Week

RECRUITING MACHINERY

Ottawa, Aug. 8 (CP)—Authority has been granted to proceed with mobilization of the 6th. Canadian Division of the active army, Defence Minister Ralston told reporters at a press conference today.

The armored division, already in training at Camp Borden, Ont. and scheduled for movement overseas during the year, has been named the 5th. Canadian (Armored) Division. The 4th. Division previously was given authorization for mobilization and a good portion of the 3rd. Division already is overseas with the 1st. and 2nd. Divisions.

At the same press conference the Minister told newspapermen the National War Services Department had been asked to enlist 830 women for service in the Canadian Women's Army Corps, starting September 1.

Precautions on Pacific Coast

He said, too, that because of the situation in the Orient all necessary defence precautions are being taken on Canada's Pacific coast.

"Authority has been granted to proceed with the mobilization of the 6th Division," said the Minister. "That mobilization will be progressive. As a matter of fact, as is already known, all but one or two of the infantry units which will be needed are already mobilized.

"The technical units, Artillery, Engineers, Signals and Army Service Corps will be mobilized from reserve army units."

The first step will be the organization of three complete brigade groups each containing an infantry brigade and a full complement of other arms and services. Later divisional troops would be mobilized and a division headquarters created.

The Minister said he could not say where the 6th Division would be stationed but indicated the brigade groups would probably be concentrated having regard to the needs of particular areas and training facilities available.

In the First Great War five divisions were in existence at one time but the Fifth Division was broken up to provide reinforcements for the other four divisions which fought in France and Flanders as the Canadian Corps.

Col. Ralston said he anticipated training of the 4th and 6th Divisions in Canada would be carried to a more advanced stage than was the case with the first three divisions.

Objective in Training

"I said before our objective is to have our troops fully trained and equipped before they leave Canada," he said. "I think that objective is coming in sight."

The 6th Division will be equipped as quickly as possible although there are still a few items of equipment which can not be obtained in Canada.

Sufficient Equipment

"I am informed we have sufficient equipment to fit this division for training and operational needs in any likely emergency," Col. Ralston said.

The 4th, Division, already mobilized and from which some troops

Duke of Kent Not Recognized By Aged Cripple

Vancouver, Aug. 8—(CP)—An aged and crippled native of Quebec Province trundled himself in his wheel chair three miles to the Civic Airport yesterday for "the most excitement of my life," but he didn't know till later he had shaken hands with the brother of King George.

Bono Gilbert, 82, who was born in a little parish near Riviere Du Loup, Que., wheeled himself to the airport where the Duke of Kent arrived for a brief pause, before leaving for Victoria, westernmost point in his tour of the Dominion.

The Duke was just preparing to step into his plane for the Victoria flight when a British Columbia police constable wheeled Gilbert onto the runway for a "look at the distinguished visitor."

The Duke turned, saw the man in the wheel chair and came back and spoke to him.

With a happy grin, Gilbert replied: "I wish I could fly with you, Boy, we'd sure beat them Germans."

As the plane wheeled around for the takeoff, the constable told Gilbert he had been speaking to the Duke of Kent.

"Oh, I didn't know that," said Gilbert, then stiffened in his chair and saluted smartly as the plane sped down the runway.

Chungking Suffers 2-Hour Jap Attack

Chungking, China, Aug. 8 (AP)—Seventy Japanese planes in two waves attacked Chungking today in the first raid since the United States gunboat Tutuila was damaged July 30.

The alarm lasted almost two hours.

The first wave of 43 planes concentrated on Chungking's downtown area.

The second wave drubbed the district where the press hostel is located. The hostel compound was peppered with fire bombs. The building had been damaged in an earlier raid.

It was the 24th. raid of what is called the bombing season here.

Canadian Awarded D.F.C. for Daring

London, Aug. 8 —(CP Cable)—Sqdn.-Ldr. K. C. Forsythe of Fort Garry, Man., today was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for a daring attack on an enemy convoy in July.

He was the leader of Royal Air Force Squadron 110 which blew up a 7,000-ton ship loaded with ammunition and so badly damaged a 6,000-ton supply ship an hour later that only the stern was above water.

ESSEN ARMAMENT FACTORIES HIT BY SUPER BOMBS

Great Damage Also Caused in Attacks on Dortmund and Hamm

4 PLANES LOST

London, Aug. 8 (CP)—Great damage was caused and widespread fires left burning in Royal Air Force night bombing attacks on the German industrial centres of Essen, Dortmund and Hamm, the Air Ministry said today—anniversary of the start of the battle of Britain.

Other planes during the night blasted at the docks at Boulogne in Nazi-occupied France, at enemy-occupied airdromes in Denmark and France and attacked shipping off The Netherlands coast.

Tons of the R.A.F.'s super bombs blasted armament factories at Essen. Favorable weather and excellent visibility favored the attacks.

Three planes of the bomber command and one of the coastal command were lost in these raids.

There was no mention of an air assault on Berlin, which was announced in Berlin as having been made last night and denied by official British sources.

(This denial suggested possibility the raid reported by Berlin might have been made by Russian planes although the Red air force had not previously made such an attack.)

Again on their round-the-clock schedule, British planes—now holding the offensive—ferried their bombs across the English Channel today.

A year ago the Nazi air force threw 300 bombers and 500 fighters against a British convoy in the channel to start the greatest air battles the world has known. On that day the Nazis lost 53 planes but continued their sustained attack until Oct. 31 at a total cost of 2,375 planes and their crews.

Correspondent Learns to Jump And Duck Quickly While at Front

(By LOUIS P. LOCHNER)
Associated Press Staff Writer

With the Finnish Army on the Russian Front, Aug. 8 (AP)—During five days spent with the Finnish army I have had occasion to work my way to the foremost lines of the front—to within 50 yards of the Russians.

I discovered that unless you can duck quickly, jump alertly and crawl easily on your stomach you're not likely to qualify as a Finnish soldier.

After giving us an insight into the military situation, a colonel ordered a lieutenant to take us forward to the outermost sentinels. These lads know the forest.

We had hardly left the colonel's dugout when artillery fire began on both sides.

Numerous shot-off trees indicated that shells often hit about where we were. So our young lieutenant guide motioned us to jump, always throwing ourselves on our stomachs when we reached a new position.

"Be careful of mines," was his cheering admonition. "Stick close to the path I make. I know where the mines are."

Soon we came to a 150-foot wide river, with the Russian town of Toulos about two miles away. The Russians were holding one section of the town.

We got into the forest on the opposite shore without incident. A few moments later half-a-dozen planes hove into sight.

Russians Alert

"Everybody take cover," our guide cautioned, "until I make out whether they are friend or foe. The Russians seem to have plenty of ammunition and don't hesitate

St. Lawrence Seaway Project Given Approval

Rivers and Harbors Committee of United States House of Representatives Sends Bill on to Congress

REJECTS SUGGESTION OF TOLLS

Washington, Aug. 8—(AP)—The House of Representatives Rivers and Harbors Committee approved today the $285,000,000 St. Lawrence seaway and the $160,000,000 Florida ship canal for inclusion in an Omnibus Rivers and Harbors Bill soon to be submitted to Congress.

Committeemen reported the vote on the controversial seaway, advocated by President Roosevelt as a national defence project, was 17 to 8 and on the Florida ship canal 14 to 10.

The committee adopted a provision calling for tolls on the Florida canal but rejected suggestions that tolls be provided for in the seaway development.

Chairman Joseph Mansfield, (Dem. - Texas) said that under treaties with Canada Congress could not enact legislation requiring tolls on the St. Lawrence waterway.

Who Bombed Berlin? Nazi Scoffs at Idea Of Russian Bombing

British Air Ministry Denies British Planes Visited Berlin—Nazi Command Refers to 'Individual Planes'

London, Aug. 8 (CP)—A reliable source with Soviet contacts said today he had been informed the Red air force attacked Berlin last night.

This source gave no details.

The Air Ministry denied British planes had bombed Berlin, a communique limiting last night's German targets to Essen, Dortmund and Hamm.

(In Berlin a Nazi spokesman contended the bombers were "undoubtedly British" and added that "the British (through their denial) are doubtless trying to inject a new, intriguing note and awaken a forlorn hope that the Russians start visiting us. But anyone knowing the Russian military situation appreciates it is impossible.")

Berlin Does Not Identify "Individual Planes"

Berlin, Aug. 8 (AP)—This capital was raided by air last night but the German high command, aside from an implication that the raiders were British, did not identify the "individual planes" which bombed Berlin.

(British authorities denied that Berlin was one of the Royal Air Force's targets last night, raising the probability that the Russian air force, which the Germans had pictured as no longer an offensive threat, had spanned the Russian-German battle front and flown 600 miles to their target.)

Two communiques touched on this raid. A special report issued in early morning said:

"Weak enemy forces flew into western Germany last night. Only a few planes succeeded in advancing as far as Berlin. The limited number of explosives dropped caused minor damage to buildings, killing several civilians."

Reference to "Individual Planes"

The subsequent regular communique of the high command had this to say:

"The enemy last night attacked a number of places in western Germany, among others Dortmund. Individual planes dropped bombs on the Reich's capital. The civilian population suffered a small number of dead and wounded. Night chasers and combat planes brought down six enemy planes."

(It is to be noted that while the first report indicated that the attack was simply another of the British forays into western Germany, with some planes pushing on to Berlin, the description of the attack in the second does not carry that implication so sharply.)

No Relaxing of Gasoline Restrictions Says Cottrelle

Toronto, Aug. 8—(CP)—G. R. Cottrelle, the Federal Oil Controller, said today that "relaxing our restrictions on gasoline is absolutely out of the question."

He said that conditions today are much more urgent than at the time the appeal was made to conserve gasoline and oil and at which time restrictions were placed on the sale of gasoline and oil.

In his statement Mr. Cottrelle referred to the supply of tankers available to carry fuel to Britain. He said Canada cannot expect to keep tankers flying her flag, manned with British sailors, in protected areas when the United States, "not at war, are turning over ships of U.S. register and manned with U.S. citizen crews."

He added that neither could Canada "expect to keep in our service tanker ships flying the Norwegian flag and which are chartered to Canadian oil companies when Norwegian ships in the U.S. service are being turned over for the combat zone."

"Everyone must get out of their minds that there are ample supplies of gasoline in Canada," Mr. Cottrelle said. "They must face the facts that the inventories are short and becoming shorter. This is a war and an emergency."

Salesman Killed When Tire Blows Out

Ottawa, Aug. 8 (CP)—Clarence L. Devitt, 62, Ottawa salesman, was killed Thursday when a tire of his automobile blew out about 12 miles from Renfrew, Ont., overturning the car into a ditch.

Mrs. Devitt, riding with her husband, suffered severe chest and leg injuries when she was pinned under the overturned vehicle. Her condition is serious.

Third occupant of the car, Helen Elrick, employed as a maid by the Devitts, was not seriously hurt.

Mr. and Mrs. Devitt and Miss Elrick were on their way to their summer home at Round Lake, 130 miles northwest of Ottawa, when the accident occurred.

12 Finnish Ships Reported Detained In British Empire Ports

London, Aug. 8—(CP)—Reuter's said today that 12 Finnish ships, totalling about 30,000 tons, had been detained in British Empire ports since the break in Anglo-Finnish diplomatic relations.

13 SURVIVORS LANDED

Las Palmas, Canary Islands, Aug. 8—(AP)—Thirteen survivors of the 3,576-ton Greek freighter Nikoklis who had spent 20 days in a lifeboat were landed in this island port from a Spanish rescue ship today.

The survivors said their ship, in British service since the Axis conquest of Greece, had been torpedoed by a German submarine off the Azores.

EXPECT TO FILL BACON CONTRACT BY SEPT. 15TH

Believed Plea to Restrict Pork Consumption May Be Relaxed

MARKETINGS HIGHER

Ottawa, Aug. 8 (CP)—The Bacon Board is on its final drive to fill its contract with the British Food Ministry for 425,000,000 pounds of bacon and ham by September 15.

The contract as originally signed was to be filled in a year beginning November 1, 1941, but owing to pressure of United Kingdom needs the Food Ministry asked if it could possibly get the contract filled six weeks earlier on September 15, instead of October 31.

"We may not be able to send over the entire 425,000,000 pounds by September 15 but we are making a good stab at it," an official said today. "The appeal to the people of Canada to eat less pork is having its effect and the run of pigs to the markets is well above last year."

From January 1 to July 31 this year the hog gradings totalled 3,310,000 as compared with 2,695,836 for the corresponding period last year and the gradings for the present week which will be announced later today will be about 86,000 as compared with 69,000 the corresponding week last year.

One bacon authority said it was believed that the plea to Canadians to eat less pork would not be necessary after the fall because hog marketings will be sufficient to meet needs.

More hogs are being produced in the Prairie Provinces than heretofore, and, as compared with last year, marketings are about 16 per cent higher for Western Canada.

PLANE COLLISION KILLS TWO AIRMEN AT MONCTON, N.B.

Second Crash in 48 Hours at Eastern Air Station—Four Men Killed in Two Accidents

AT LOW HEIGHT

Moncton, N.B., Aug. 8—(CP)—Moncton's second air crash in as many days yesterday caused the death of two more airmen, bringing the 48-hour toll to four.

Lac. E. J. Stanley of Toronto was killed instantly when two Royal Canadian Air Force Avro Anson training planes from No. 8 Service Flying Training School here collided and crashed over Moncton Airport yesterday. Lac. F. D. Geldard, also of Toronto, died in hospital shortly after being removed from the wreckage of his aircraft.

Wednesday a Harvard training plane from No. 9 Service Flying Training School at Summerside, P.E.I., crashed and burned at Havelock, about 30 miles from here, carrying to their deaths an instructor and a student pilot.

The two Avro Ansons collided at a height of about 250 feet as they approached the airport from the north. Both crashed to the ground a short distance from the runway, dropping so rapidly neither pilot had an opportunity to parachute to safety.

Mussolini Sends Son's Body to His Home Town

Pica, Italy, Aug. 8 —(AP)—Premier Mussolini sent the body of his son Bruno to Predappio, his home town, for burial after a funeral procession today through the streets of this ancient city.

Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano, the Duce's son-in-law, did not accompany him to the funeral. An official announcement said he was "indisposed" in Rome, but did not specify the nature of his illness.

Russians State German Losses 1,500,000 Men

Red Losses Set at 600,000—Hitler's Claims Called 'Arabian Fairy Tales'

FIGHTING IN S.W. RUSSIA

London, Aug. 8—(CP)—Authoritative quarters said today there were indications the Germans were making some progress in a drive into southwestern Russia aimed at encircling the Black Sea port of Odessa.

The main railway between Odessa and Smolensk has been cut and the Germans are within 75 miles of two subsidiary lines, these sources said.

(The Nazis claimed last week that important Russian rail communications in the Ukraine had been severed.)

Moscow, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Branding as "Arabian Fairy Tales" Hitler's claims of vast military successes, the Russians estimated today that 6 1-2 weeks of war had cost the Germans more than 1,500,000 men, put their own losses at 600,000 dead, wounded and missing and declared the Nazi blitzkrieg a failure.

While acknowledging the conflict had resulted in terrific casualties and heavy destruction of equipment, A Soviet communique characterized as "fantastic" German assertions that 895,000 Russians had been captured and many times that number slain.

Claim Nazi Morale Shaken

Such claims, it said, were made only to bolster the morale of the German people, who, the Russians claimed, have been rendered uneasy by rumors of Nazi reverses and a shortage of food supplies at home.

The Russians admitted the loss of 5,000 tanks, 7,000 cannon and 4,000 planes, but said these losses were small when compared with those which the Nazis had suffered.

A series of special German communiques Wednesday claimed the Russians had lost 13,145 tanks, 10,377 guns and 9,082 planes.

Heavy German Losses

As a matter of fact, the Russians declared, the Nazis have lost 6,000 tanks, 8,000 cannon and 6,000 planes and have suffered a severe blow to their fighting capacity and morale.

The Soviet war bulletin said that as ridiculous as the German reports of Russian casalties are their claims to have broken the "Stalin Line".

In reality, the communique added such thing as a "Stalin Line" never existed and Russia's defences still are unimpaired despite territorial losses on various sectors of the far-flung front.

Name "Invented by Germans to Justify Losses"

"The line was invented by the Germans to justify their tremendous losses, which are due not to the existence of a 'special line' in defence of the U.S.S.R," declared the Russian information bureau, "but to the fact that the Red Army and the Soviet people defend their native land with the greatest bravery and courage and transform every inch of the native land into fortifications."

Chiding the Nazis for failure to report on their own losses, the Russians accused the enemy of padding reports on the number of Soviet prisoners captured by including thousands of civilian prisoners.

Nazis Count Civilian Prisoners

"Occupying a Soviet district," the communique said, "the Fascists immediately and forcibly mobilize the population, rural employees, etc., for arduous hard work and drive them to the rear, declaring this population be war prisoners.

"Certainly in this way one may not only count 895,000 war prisoners allegedly captured by the Germans during the war but even considerably more."

Undoubtedly, the Russians said, the Germans did not without reason publish "the obviously false information" contained in their special communiques yesterday.

Germans Claim Supreme Commander of Soviet 6th Army Taken

IN LOWER UKRAINE

Berlin, Aug. 8—(AP)—The German High Command claimed today that German armies, midway between Kiev and Odessa in the lower Ukraine, had captured the supreme commander of the Soviet 6th Army, annihilated his assault force and taken 30,000 other prisoners.

Although it was reported in other quarters here that Kiev, the Ukraine capital, had been encircled by fast-driving German forces, the war bulletin from Hitler's headquarters indicated that the main southern offensive is stretching southward toward the Black Sea coast instead of eastward and is aimed at shearing off the big port of Odessa.

It said the captured Russians were encircled southeast of Uman, which is about 125 miles south of Kiev on a branch railway connected with Odessa, and about halfway between the Ukraine capital and Black Sea port.

Say War Material Captured

With these forces, it said, the Germans and their Balkan allies captured large quantities of war material.

(Authoritative sources in London said that a German drive in the Ukraine aimed at cutting off Odessa appears to be making headway and said the main Odessa-Kiev railway had been cut and a subsidiary line threatened.)

The communique also reported progress on both sides of the pincers as supposedly being closed down around Leningrad from the north and west.

In Estonia, it said, German forces have penetrated to the Gulf of Finland shore and have captured Wesenberg, 68 miles southeast of Tallinn.

It gave no details from the Finnish front, saying merely "the attack of German and Finnish troops is making further successful progress."

Says Kiev Encircled

A German broadcast from the front claimed that Kiev, third largest Soviet city and an important objective of the German drive, was encircled and that its defenders faced destruction.

For the first time German sources began speaking of the Black Sea as one of the confines of the great Ukrainian battlefield.

They outlined the battle area, roughly, as bounded by the Dniester, Black Sea and Dnieper River.

Military commentators claimed that on the northern front German troops had reached the Finnish Bight between Tallinn and Lake Peipus, on the west side of the lake.

After the report by the High Command of the victorious conclusion of the four-week battle around Smolensk, Nazi commentators said they were in a position to state that "new operations" going on in this area demonstrated a decrease in the Soviet power of resistance.

Italy Reports Bombing Of Malta and Cyprus

Rome, Aug. 8.—(AP)—The Italian High Command reported today that Italian planes bombed the British Mediterranean Islands of Malta and Cyprus last night.

On the North African front, the Italians reported artillery activity around the British-held Libyan port of Tobruk and claimed German pilots shot down two British planes.

London, Aug. 8.—(CP)— Dispatches from Nicosia, Cyprus, today said enemy planes bombed coastal areas of Cyprus last night, causing a few casualties and slight damage.

THREE MINOR FIRES REQUIRE ATTENTION

After almost one full week in which no alarms were rung in at the local fire station, members of the Belleville Fire Department were given a busy evening on Thursday when two grass fires and a fire at the city dump kept the reels busy. Shortly after the supper hour the brigade was called to MacDonald Avenue to extinguish a grass fire that was out of bounds and later were recalled to the scene when fire in a decayed tree trunk broke out again. Later in the evening the reels were called to the city dump to subdue a blaze. No damage in any of the cases was reported by firemen this morning.

BAND CONCERT SUNDAY AT FAIR GROUNDS

The Belleville Municipal Band with Lieut. Fred Jobson conducting, will present another of their popular Sunday evening band concerts at the band stand of the Belleville Agricultural Park on Sunday evening, beginning at 8:30. Requests from out-of-town music lovers at these concerts have prompted Bandmaster Jobson to include several popular numbers on the program. The program to be given follows:

March, "National Emblem," Bagley.

Suite, "Atlantis," (The Lost Continent), Safranck.

March, "The Spotlight," Klohr.

Selection, "Squires' Popular Songs," Arr. O Hume.

March, "Sons of the Brave," Bidgood.

Waltz, "Old Timers," Lake.

Selection, "The Sunny South," Lampe.

Intermezzo, "In a Monastery Garden," Ketelby.

March, "Argyll Light Infantry (Tank)," Hinchey.

HARVEST 23,500 BOXES RASPBERRIES FROM 11-ACRE PATCH

About 23,500 boxes of raspberries will comprise the total 1941 crop from the eleven-acre patch of Baitley and Channel, Wellington, Ont., growers.

To date 22,500 boxes have been shipped to a county canning factory and the final picking which is now under way, is expected to yield another 1,000 boxes.

Last year, the patch which was then ten acres, yielded over 30,000 boxes. Early season drought was given as the reason for the decline in this year's crop. Late season rains however, brought a new lease of life to heat-jaded canes and the earlier estimates were much lower than what was later realized.

While Baitley and Channel did not divulge prices for their crop, other growers stated they received 14 cents the box, an increase of 6 cents over last year's prices.

JOINS DISTRICT STAFF OF POLICE

Constable L. Rathwell, formerly of Iroquois Falls, reported for duty at District Headquarters of the Ontario Provincial Police here today. Constable Rathwell will replace Constable R. S. Patterson who was granted sick leave from the Department recently. Two other Provincial Officers from Ontario headquarters in Toronto are expected to report here to Inspector Frank Gardner tomorrow

AIRMAN CHARGED WITH STEALING TRUCK

Alleged to have been somewhat the worse for drink, LAC. E. Simpkins of the Trenton R.C.A.F., was arrested Thursday night on a charge of stealing a transport truck from Trenton. Simpkins was taken into custody by Motorcycle Patrolman J. H. Hatch and held without bail after the truck which he is charged with taking had been involved in an accident immediately east of Trenton.

Sent to Trial, Freed on Bail

Truro, N.S., Aug. 8 —(CP)— Frank Elliot, owner of a travelling show from Amherst, N.S., was committed for supreme court trial Thursday after his preliminary hearing on a charge of shooting with intent to wound Trooper Dick Dufresne, Montreal soldier. He was freed on $10,000 bail.

Two witnesses testified to seeing Elliot fire a revolver on the show grounds here July 30 during an argument at one of the booths. They were Rifleman Herbert Spearman and 14-year-old Keith Harview who was working in the booth.

(The night after the alleged shooting, 500 soldiers from nearby Gebert military camp invaded the show and wrecked it almost completely.)

Dufresne, who suffered a superficial hip injury, took the stand at his own request and said he had jumped into the booth and pulled down the lights. "I don't remember taking any money but I remember dropping it after the gun was fired," he said, adding he was quite drunk.

Young Harview said the argument started when a soldier claimed he had won $5, though the boy had not seen him win it.

Obituary

PHILIP WALSH
(Deseronto)

Philip Walsh died at his home in Deseronto on Wednesday, August 6th. He lived by himself and death came suddenly while he was alone. He was a bachelor.

The late Mr. Walsh was born 63 years ago in Tyendinaga, being a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Walsh. He was engaged in farming in that township nearly all his life. For the past four years he lived retired in Deseronto. In religion Mr. Walsh was a member of St. Vincent de Paul Church, Deseronto, and was a member of the Holy Name Society. By many friends and acquaintances he was highly esteemed and his sudden passing has brought to them sincere regret.

Surviving him are two brothers, Messrs. Frank Walsh and Andy Walsh, both of Belleville.

The funeral took place this Friday morning from the Pinkston Funeral Home, Church Street, to St. Charles Church at Read where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father R. A. Carey, who also said the prayers at the graveside in St. Charles' Cemetery.

The bearers were Messrs. Thos. Phillips, Leo Walsh, Thos. Walsh, Andy Walsh, Edward Buckley and Francis Buckley.

Letter to The Editor

Another Neglected Park in the City

Belleville, Aug. 7, 1941.

To the Editor of The Ontario Intelligencer:

Dear Sir,—I have read with interest in today's issue of your valuable paper, a criticism of Victoria Park signed "An Old Belleville Girl." I consider her criticism very fair and justly called for.

I would like to know who is responsible for the disgraceful condition of the grounds which surround the "Cenotaph," which was erected in memory of the boys of Belleville who paid the supreme sacrifice in defence of our homes?

You will find pigweed and many other kinds of weeds, some a foot high, even at the foot of the monument; paths partly covered with large cinders.

It is the custom wherever the annual assembly of the Sovereign Great Priory of Canada is held for that body to march to the monument and deposit a wreath on the cenotaph. Fortunately this week, while this body was meeting in Belleville, I did not have this done, but I headed a staff of Past Supreme Grand Masters and deposited our wreath. The condition of this park was very humiliating to myself and the Belleville members of our order who drove us to the park.

The same thing must be to the members of the families whose loved ones' names appear on the monument. Then what will the hundreds of visitors who have to pass this park when arriving by trains, think? We are known as "Belleville, the Beautiful." No one can call the park at the corner of Station Street and the Cannifton Road a beauty spot.

Wake up, Parks Board, as I presume you are the responsible body.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for publishing this protest, I am

Recent Rains Boost Growth Of Tomatoes

Recent beneficial rains are causing tomato growers to cast appreciative eyes at fields that are slowly turning into a red gold. Heavy downpours of some days ago have proved the turning point from what appeared to be a more or less dismal outlook due to drought, to what now appears to be a fairly good yield.

Eighteen days ago the outlook for any kind of a crop was poor. Came heavy rains and the tomato picture changed practically overnight. Today the tomatoes are ripening quickly. Poor looking fruit changed magically into red luscious samples. Prices during the past week have tumbled like a thermometer in a cold snap. Ten days ago 6-quart baskets priced at $1.25. Today they are available at 40c each.

Canning factories are rushing operations for the pack. Machinery for juice and whole tomato preserving is being readied. Advertisements are appearing in county and urban papers asking for both male and female help for the plants.

Corn likewise benefited by the rains. "My corn grew a foot almost overnight" a Sidney township farmer stated. Ensilage corn is shooting up and filling out at an appreciable rate. Other plant crops are looking 100 per cent better than they did two weeks ago.

"It wasn't a million dollar rain" an Ameliasburg farmer smiled "it was worth a dollar a drop."

POLICE COURT

There was no session of police court held in Belleville today. "All cases pending trial were summonsed for Monday," revealed Acting Chief Constable Arthur Harman.

Several summonses were issued to citizens who are said to own or harbor dogs, but who have not procured their 1941 dog licences. These cases likewise will be heard Monday when Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., is expected to have returned from his vacation period.

Otherwise all was quiet and serene in and around local police circles for the past 24 hours, the only arrest being necessary being the apprehension of a soldier lad, who was absent without leave from Camp Borden. It is the third such occasion that Belleville police have been requested to seek the whereabouts of the same man.

CAR ROLLS OVER, THREE ARE INJURED

Accident Occurs on Highway Three Miles North of Belleville

When the automobile in which they were riding failed to negotiate a sharp turn in the road and rolled over five times into the ditch abruptly stopping when it struck a telephone pole, three Trenton men sustained injuries shortly after 1.30 a.m. today on Highway No. 14 three miles north of Belleville. Those injured were Roy Wannamaker, Carmen Windover and Douglas Tyler, all of Trenton.

Wannamaker, the driver of the vehicle, was taken to the Belleville General Hospital suffering from lacerations sustained by broken glass and internal injuries. The injuries of the other two were given medical attention at the scene.

The motor car driven by Wannamaker turned over five times as it rolled across the shallow ditch and struck a telephone pole with full force. The car was practically demolished. Motorcycle Patrolman J. H. Hatch, who investigated, stated it was little less than miraculous that the men escaped with such minor injuries.

MOUSTACHES RULES OUT

Springfield, Il., Aug. 8—(AP)—Superintendent Leo Carr has served notice that upper lip adornments no longer will be permitted among the 350 patrolmen on the Illinois State force. Carr didn't say that he thought some officers were apt to spend too much time cultivating their facial fringe but he indicated that was one consideration leading to the order.

Stafford Grist Mill at Rednersville Destroyed by Fire of Unknown Origin

Fire of an undetermined origin, discovered as the owner was about to start his mill for the day, completely destroyed the large metal-clad frame grist and lumber mill owned by Mr. Ralph Stafford, of Rednersville, shortly after ten o'clock on Friday morning. The frame dwelling occupied by Mr. Stafford and his family was threatened by the flames and at one time appeared doomed but heroic work by a volunteer fire brigade quickly gathered, saved the building.

Destroyed in the fire, in addition to the large mill, valued at approximately $6,000, was a small amount of grain together with some custom lumber which had been left at the mill after being sawed. A number of sawlogs awaiting processing at the mill were hauled out of danger.

The fire was discovered by Mr. Stafford as he was about to start the grist mill for the day's operation and had closed the switch turning power into the electric motor, when turning around he discovered the frame interior of the building to be blazing. It being impossible to cope with the flames single-handed, Mr. Stafford quickly raised the alarm but by the time neighbors had gathered the building was doomed and efforts were concentrated on saving the Stafford residence.

An urgent call was immediately despatched for the assistance of the Mountain View fire fighting equipment when it was seen that the nearby residence was in danger, but the volunteer fire-fighters, about fifty in number, had dampened the roof and walls of the building and the danger was past when the Airport equipment arrived on the scene.

Mr. Stafford carried no insurance on the burned mill, the building and equipment being a total loss.

Cutting Out Sliced Bread Sales Reduces Bakers' Working Hours

On Monday morning housewives, restaurant owners and others will slice their bread themselves. Nor can they take time off from their duties to run to the nearest bakery to get it sliced. And in addition they must get their day's supply when the baker calls on his regular trips, for there will be no more special deliveries.

This is the edict handed down to bakers of the city by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board today. It goes into effect on and after Monday, August 11th.

As far as the baker is affected, he must wrap his bread in single wrappers of one color only and upon which is inscribed printing of one color. However, the edict says, any baker can utilize other wrappers which he may have in stock, until that stock is exhausted.

But it is an ill wind that does not blow somebody some good. In this instance, according to a well-known city baker, the staff and drivers will see their working hours shortened considerably.

Bread which formerly took six hours to cool preparatory to being sliced, can now be wrapped and delivered in two hours.

"The new ruling may result in some cases in a reduction of staff," the baker pointed out, "but at any rate it will mean much shorter working hours than heretofore."

He stressed the point that bakers are absolutely prohibited from slicing bread, and also from slicing it for persons who may bring their loaves to the bakeries for that purpose.

SIDNEY COUNCIL

The August meeting of the Sidney Council was held last Monday.

The clerk was instructed to furnish the Provincial Police, Belleville, with a copy of Bylaw No. 1101 re Sunday dancing in Sidney Township.

Copies of Bylaw No. 1139 re expenditure on township roads were ordered to be sent to the District Municipal Engineer, and the necessary specifications required for surfacing the township road on the west side of the Air Station obtained after which tenders will be called.

Necessary bylaws for obtaining the township taxes were passed through their various readings and council adjourned to meet Tuesday, September 2nd. —W. H. Nobes Clerk.

Results of Field Crop Competition Are Announced

By Arthur L. Burke, Secretary of Belleville Agricultural Society

The Belleville Agricultural Society have for a number of years sponsored a field crop competition which has been open to all growers of registered seed in the counties of Prince Edward and Hastings. The growing popularity of this branch of the Society's activities is evidenced in the increased number of applications each year from farmers in both these counties who are anxious to improve the quality of their seed and command better prices in the open market.

Following is a list of growers who took part in the Field Crop Competition this year in Oats and Barley crops. The first eight competitors in each class are prize-winners.

Cleveland Boy Gets Chance To Photograph Sleeping Bear

Marmora (Special) — Jack Coy who with his parents Dr. and Mrs. Coy of Cleveland, Ohio, spends summer holidays at the family's summer home at Beaver Creek had his first vision of a Canadian bear on Thursday. Bruin was basking in the sun on the bank of the creek and Jack having his camera with him at the time saw a good opportunity for a picture. Crawling along the grass to within twenty-five feet of the animal, he took two more snapshots to add to his already good collection. The bear was of the adult class, Jack reports.

Investigate Complaints Over Tobacco Parcels, Advice Given Mailers

Ottawa, Aug. 8 (CP)—Postmaster General Mulock said today that investigation has shown a large number of complaints from men in the forces overseas respecting non-delivery of tobacco parcels are based on promises in letters from persons in Canada who either forget to order the cigarettes or tobacco or greatly delay doing so.

"If mailers would refrain from mentioning in their letters that gifts are being sent until the parcels have actually been despatched much disappointment and many unnecessary complaints will be avoided," the minister said.

EXECUTED FOR BURGLARY

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 8—(AP)—Frank Bass, 22, Negro, was electrocuted at Kilby prison today, first man to die under a 1935 Alabama law making burglary of an occupied dwelling at night a capital offence. Governor Frank Dixon said records showed Bass beat Virginia Canterbury on the head with a hammer when she surprised him in the act of burglarizing her parents' home.

GERMANS HEARING 'FREEDOM' RADIO

This One Attacks Nazi Party But is Strongly Anti-Jewish

London (CP) — A new German Freedom Station — the second in operation—which broadcasts violent attacks against Nazi Party leaders has been established somewhere in Western Germany according to reports reaching London from neutral sources.

The station, heard occasionally by the BGC Listening Post, is believed to be directed by former members of the Nazi Party who are strongly anti-Jewish and anti-communist. The station operates nightly on the 31-metre band and announcements, advocating fulfillment of the original Nazi program, complain that the Nazi leaders are compromising the party by dealing with Jews and bringing it into disrepute by scandalous conduct.

Attacks against the Nazis, include a claim that Dr. Robert Ley, German Labor Front Leader, made huge profits by compelling Bremen householders to buy fire extinguishers from a company in which he is a big shareholder while another said that during a Royal Air Force raid on Bremen party leaders fled from the city in motor cars and that fire fighting services were hopelessly deficient.

The other Freedom Station was heard first shortly after war broke out and repeated German attempts to locate and silence the station have failed.

to machine-gun even small groups."

We waited for him to scan the horizon cautiously with his field glasses. "They're Finnish," he said with a grin.

On we walked, crouching most of the time until we reached a tiny tent containing merely field telephone equipment and maps. A first lieutenant on duty was reporting to artillery staff headquarters on where the Finnish shells had struck at Toulos.

Noise Terrific

A few moments later violent artillery shooting was resumed on both sides. The noise above our heads was terrific. But we were mere interested in the sharp reports of rifles we heard ahead of us.

"Be especially careful from now on," our lieutenant cautioned. "Don't talk. Crouch or crawl and always take cover behind a tree."

After about 200 yards we could detect ahead of us what seemed to be huge mushrooms at intervals of several feet. Occasionally some mushroom would come to life and the next moment there would be a sharp rifle report.

The mushrooms, it developed, were the steel helmets of Finnish outposts lying in "Fox holes" with rifles ready for action should they see some Russians move along the Soviet lines scarcely 50 yards away.

For about a quarter of an hour we lay in our positions with the Finnish outposts who detected Russians where our untrained eyes saw nothing but forest.

Days More Quiet

"This isn't so bad," our guide whispered. "During the day the Russians stay over in their own section and we need merely to fire a warning shot from time to time to prevent them from sallying. But at night they come over here regularly and then we must all be on our guard.

"But last night we picked off three who were trying to sneak over here for a surprise attack."

As we reached the river again the Finnish artillery was giving the Russians so much to do that they did not have time to bother with us and singly at intervals of about twenty feet we crossed the stream safely.

Soon we were eating hardtack, potato soup and canned fish in the thick of a forest as guests of the colonel.

We left as we came in, seven cars driving at considerable intervals.

We were told that Russian artillery can spot Finnish cars otherwise invisible merely by noting the dust they raise.

Bones of Tecumseh Will Be Buried On Walpole Island

Sarnia, Ont., Aug. 8—(CP)—After 128 years the bones which are said to be those of Chief Tecumseh are to be buried on Walpole Island.

In a small mahogany casket two feet long, a foot high and a foot wide, donated by the late Chris C. Smith, founder of the Chris-Craft Crp., in Algonac, repose what Smith claimed to be the bones of Tecumseh, the Indian warrior who died in the Battle of the Thames on October 5, 1813, and whose resourcefulness won for him the title of Brigadier from the British Empire.

Tecumseh will be honored at a special Indian ceremonial on the island August 23. Plans for the event are being made by the Indians with the assistance of the Rev. William Hall, pastor of the Walpole Island Anglican Church.

Tutor is Dismissed At Education Trial

New York, Aug. 8—(AP)—A Board of Higher Education trial committee yesterday convicted Arthur R. Braunlich, Jr., City College English tutor, of neglect of duty and conduct unbecoming a public teacher, and recommended his dismissal.

Braunlich was convicted by the committee in connection with the Rapp-Coudert legislative inquiry into subversive activities in New York City schools.

The committee said testimony and documentary proof offered at Braunlich's trial proved he was a Communist who helped organize a secret City College unit. Braunlich denied the charges.

C. I. O. Group Votes To Enrol Million Members by 1945

Buffalo, N.Y., Aug. 8—(AP)—The C.I.O. United Automobile, Aircraft and Agricultural Implement Workers voted yesterday to intensify the campaign to organize 1,000,000 in the Union by 1945 and placed special-emphasis on the aircraft industry and plants in Chicago and New York.

Changing its name to embrace aircraft and farm implement employees, but retaining its former initials, the U.A.W.-C.I.O., agreed at its sixth national convention that the drives should include unionization of "70,000 unorganized white collar office workers" falling within its jurisdiction.

Keep the Wheels Turning!

Chewing Relieves Nervous Tension

Workers, whether in offices, stores, factories, or munition plants are seeking in these vital days to do more work, better work. Management is quick to adopt ways and means to help employees keep refreshed while on the job. Recent tests made in some munition plants show that chewing gum while working helps relieve fatigue and nervous tension. As a result many industrial plants provide facilities so that employees may have chewing gum available at all times. Recent tests conducted by Wm. Wrigley, Jr., Company, Limited, in co-operation with plant management, indicate workers find refreshment by chewing gum while they work, the chewing helping to relieve fatigue and nervous tension. To bring this important factor before all employers and work people, Wm. Wrigley, Jr., Company, Limited, is making very extensive and additional use of daily newspapers throughout Canada.

FUGITIVE CONVICT IS RECAPTURED

Toronto, Aug. 8—(CP)—Ian Mellon, 24, alias Mallonchuk, who made a daring escape from sheriff's officers while being taken to Kingston Penitentiary to serve a 10-year term for armed robbery, was recaptured here early today.

Police caught Mellon following a tip that he would be in the St. Clair Avenue West district, in Toronto's north end, sometime during the night. He offered no resistance as police cars closed in on the automobile he was driving.

THE FAR EAST CRISIS

Japan, whose early course in Manchuria created for her Manchoukuo, which was the first aggression of that long series of aggressions which have disturbed the world, seems to have modelled her course along the line that Hitler has taken with his neighbors. Japan took a step years ago when she invaded China but has been unable to reach a military decision with China. Lately she entered French Indo-China after negotiations with the Vichy government. Now she has been "advising" Thailand and the pressure she has been using seems to be fraught with grave danger for peace in the Far East. All this is done in the interests of her "new order" for Asia. Britain and the United States have both warned Japan regarding Thailand and there is seen ground for belief that Thailand will resist if any attempt is made by Japan against her liberty.

Japan knows she is closely watched by Britain and the United States.

Britain in the Far East has strengthened her forces greatly. She has the powerful naval base of Singapore. The United States is deeply interested in the course of events.

RECALLING HITLER'S WORDS OF 1939

The Hitler who lied to Europe is the same Hitler who is lying and will lie to the German people and the world about the progress of German arms in the war with Russia. The rest of the world has found out how fiendish is the spirit of the man who has protested himself a man of peace, yet plunges a world into war. The Germans have yet to know. That same Hitler is capable of anything even to those who have been his associates.

The New York Herald Tribune quotes his speech of the day when he began war; "My love of peace and my endless patience must not be mistaken for weakness, much less for cowardice.......Germany has no interests in the West, the Westwall is for all time to come the frontier of the Reich ....The neutral states have assured us of their neutrality. This assurance we consider a sacred obligation, and as long as no one infringes on their neutrality, we too shall painstakingly observe."

Those are the words of the man who makes opportunity for himself by manufacturing lies. Hitler's deceit and treachery can explain his foul acts in Denmark, Norway, The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg. In his own foul time he broke his promises.

He referred to the pact made with Russia saying that Russia and Germany had decided "to enter into an agreement which will exclude any application of force between us in the future......This decision is absolutely final.........In the Great War Russia and Germany fought against each other. That will never happen again."

Yet Hitler is the man who manufactured the charge which gave him the excuse to break his pact with Russia and try to conquer that country. He entered war with Russia when he wanted to fight Russia.

The New York newspaper brings to memory Hitler's words about the leadership of the Reich, when he said "Should anything happen to me in this war, my first successor shall be party-member Goering. Should anything happen to party-member Goering his successor shall be party-member Hess."

Well, Hess is out of it, he is a prisoner of war in Britain, and Goering is reported in disgrace, the Ottawa Journal notes. Goering in his castle is possibly thinking how foolish he was to have trusted the Austrian renegade.

Famous British names appear in recent news. Among the bombed churches in London are St. Luke's of Chelsea and St. Andrew's, Holborn. The former was given its communion plate by the famous Sir Thomas More, known to every student of English history. One of the great dramatic names of English stage is John Webster who wrote "The Duchess of Malfy" and "The White Devil" which are held by William Hazlett, to come nearest to Shakespeare's Webster was onetime clerk of St. Andrew's.

A MORNING MESSAGE

The radiant-faced and world-awakening day,
Refreshed from slumber in the lap of God,
This phrase of wondering worship framed for me:
"O Nature dear! O spirit gone abroad
Thru all the dawn space, keep me in the way
Of exaltation, though beset with fear!
The key-note of thy triumph whisper now
So clear, though low, my hungering heart may hear
And understand!"
The birds sang on the bough
Flooded in sunlight, and a voice came in
And nestled near the beating of my heart
And said: "Wouldst thou be one with us? Begin
By giving. Give with generous joy. They part
With many a sorrow who forget to ask,
But only serve.......The world is very fair;
Be glad of it!......Covet some constant task,
However lowly........And the morning air
Go with thee."
Was it not an answered prayer?

DIARY OF AN AMOROUS AIRMAN

Aug. 1st—Took out an ash blonde. Beautiful but thought a counter-attack was a basement bargain sale.

Aug. 2nd—Dated a brunette from Picton. She didn't want to neck near the hangars because there were too many "observers" around.

Aug. 3rd—Met a dame from Collingwood. Said she was a college graduate and wouldn't consider any dates unless it was with a Harvard Trainer.

Aug. 4th—Had suds with the air-station widow, who claims that service police are alright in a pinch, but air-gunners are a "drogue" on the market.

Aug. 5th—Conversed with a dizzy brown-head from the Sandbanks who had a yen for non-commissioned officers. Sergeant-majors, she claimed, are the same in the air force as they are in crown and anchor, liable to turn up at any minute.

Aug. 6th—Contacted a redhead from Saskatoon, who had had a lot of fun with one of the air force "bank messengers." Later I found out she had been partying with a security guard.

Aug. 7th—Stood near the tarmac with an olive-brown from Chicoutimi. A plane coasting to a landing suddenly struck a small knoll and crashed. "A topographical error," giggled the dame.

WHAT A COW!

Here's the favorite story of Scotty Chisolm of Winnipeg, Manitoba:

The way was rough, the night was cold, the minister was infirm and old. He was to preach in the village church next day, and arrangements for his bed and board had been made at Farmer Duncan McDonald's. Being very tired and weary after his long walk from the station he retired to bed early, only asking that a glass of hot milk be taken up to him after he had got between the blankets.

"Look here, Jean," said Duncan, "they tell me that he's a stern teetotaler, but I'm thinkink' an inch an'a half o' whiskey in his milk wad dae the auld man nae harm. What dae ye say, woman?"

Jean agreed after some coaxing. So up she went to the minister's bedroom and handed him the hot "milk."

He took it from her, tasted it, smacked his lips and then quaffed it off. Putting down the tumbler, he remarked: "God bless us, what a cow!"

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

Winston Churchill

London, Aug. 8—(By wireless)—At luncheon time in the Ritz, Dorchester and Savoy hotels can be found Britons who are judicial and critical. They say Prime Minister Winston Churchill has bad advisers. They say he surrounds himself with personal friends. They complain that he has put a trade unionist in charge of labor who doesn't push the workers hard enough. They say he has failed in some branches of service.

When you ask mildly, "Why don't you get somebody else?" they look horrified. They say, "We didn't mean that, of course. He is indispensable. Nobody could take Winston's place. But still one must admit—" And they are at it again.

It is often very hard to remember at such luncheons whether one is in London or New York, and whether the topic of the conversation is Winston or F.D.R.

• • •

But the Man in the Street not only has faith in the Prime Minister, he loves him. He loves him because he is a gentleman; because he speaks the King's English; because he is very brave and because he never puts on.

The Man in the Street—and I have talked with hundreds in London and in the provinces—loves the Prime Minister because he is aware of Churchill's burdens, which are only an enlargement of his own. The Man in the Street is aware, but not completely, that he wants to get on with the war. He wants everybody to do his best. He is furious if he thinks something is not being done that ought to be done, but he is patient, the average Englishman, with mistakes that arise from false calculation, if only he is doing his best. The average Englishman doesn't doubt that the Prime Minister is doing his best, and his best is the best that can be done.

• • •

The Prime Minister always presents to England his most sanguine face. What doubts and fears he has he keeps within the circle of his friends. In public he is debonair. In private he concentrates; he is wary, skeptical and pessimistic as a matter of policy.

Let the country be optimistic; he believes in anticipating the worst. The country believes England will not be invaded. The Prime Minister believes an invasion will be attempted and he does not write off the possibility of its success.

It is true that practically every man, woman and child is in some part of the plan of the defence of the British Isles. It is true that any army hurled against these shores will confront the same passionate rising of the people that quenched the fires in London with water and sand and with their coats and their burdened bodies.

• • •

But Winston, who speaks with romantic reason and passion to the English soul, weighs the odds with a cold logic.

Ask him "How are you going to win the war?" and he replies, "First we shall see that we do not lose it."

He surrounded himself with an atmosphere most sympathetic to him—women, pretty ones, and young people, preferably girls and devoted friends. The atmosphere is informal. He appears late at meals, sometimes attired in a siren suit, which is exactly like the uniform of a garage mechanic. He is likely to look you full in the face without seeing you, walk away and then suddenly turn and recognize you and begin to speak.

His mind is on something else; on the desk he just left with reports and decisions and an unfinished speech. He is mercurial. He drums absently on the table with a fine, small hand; he changes the course of the conversation with a non sequitur.

• • •

But when he smiles and plunges into an exposition or argument it is with logic and eloquence. He has his eyes on Adolf Hitler, an eye full of hate, but an eye that takes full appraisal of the enemy.

When Winston Churchill speaks one expects him suddenly to draw a sword. In his most casual speech the fine and tilting phrase comes spontaneously. Of the Nazis he said, "their structure is brittle, but their front is brazen."

• • •

He takes the stand with stanced limbs, his cold blue eyes cast upon absolute faith in the people of Britain. It is impossible to pay him a compliment.

"I am nothing," he says "But the people—have you seen the people? Do not bother about the bigwigs. Talk to the people."

When he speaks of the people a kind of cool fury obsesses him. "They suffer so, and never a whimper. They suffer so for this stupid war that never would have happened if we had not been so blind; this war that should have been won before we fought it, and that now must be fought through to the end."

When he speaks of the people he sees them as they were at Stepney, Poplar and Bermondsey. "All their possessions were wiped out in one blast, the savings of a lifetime. And what are they? Some pitiful sticks of furniture, curtains and bed linen A bit of crockery, and an old woman fishing around in the debris for a scrap of her wedding china to see if perhaps she could find something else some time of about the same pattern."

With an abrupt change of tone: "An Englishman's home—it is a fine phrase. It was never so fine a reality. No one can govern England again who forgets the people They saved England, you know, a year ago and again after the great blitzes. They deserve to win. They deserve to win gloriously. It is true not all who deserve win, but the English people deserve to win and they shall."

He takes his guests aside one by one, walks up and down on the green lawn somewhere in the country, twenty paces up and twenty paces down, back and forth—Such a stake! The hopes of three-fourths of the people of all the world; a family in a remote Chinese village, the people on the Russian steppes, the cowering men and women in Poland, those in the rabbit warrens of Paris, on the dykes and fjords of Holland and Norway, all the disarmed and the helpless—are crying silently to the Anglo-Saxon world to 'rescue us.' And the price of all this suffering . . . our transitory lives . . . not all of us will grow old."

Again an abrupt change of tone. "Why should the people work and toil and never have a full belly or a secure roof, and wealth going to waste everywhere? Why not strike an international balance sheet on surplus commodities . . . give . . . share . . . produce . . . use?

"Must the Chinese peasant live forever on rice and scrap fish? Why should he?

"Did the Dutch ever do anybody any harm? Did they govern their colonies badly? Did they neglect their people? Did they waste wealth? Did they trample on other nations?" He glares. "There will be so much to do when all this is over. This can be a wonderful world if you help make it so. We can do it only with the help of Americans. You know that, don't you? We can't do it alone. This is clear, isn't it?"

He mutters something to himself and breaks away for the deliberate walk. "That speech," he says, "I must finish it."

BRITAIN'S TASK

Britain I have been thinking what a great world this will be
When you rid the earth of Hitler and the rest of Germany.
You must deal with Mussolini he is the next you will agree;
He is as bad as Hitler, you must drive him from the sea.
Now there's Norway, Poland, Belgium not forgetting all the rest,
Give them back their independence then our Empire will be blest.
When this is done we will have freedom, peace on earth, on land and sea.
Pray that God will give us victory save our King and Empire free.

Countess Isbel Marion Solito de Solis, heiress and Los Angeles socialite, has divorced the man she charges cost her $1,500,000. She obtained an uncontested decree from Count Aldo Solito de Solis, Italian concert pianist who, she had claimed, squandered that much of her fortune since their marriage in 1922.

WHITE RABBITS

Of course, said I, to grandma, you are much too old to know
The joy of owning rabbits, pink of eye and white as snow,
And I've no wish to feed them; for myself I'd never think
Of ever buying rabbits, either brown of eye or pink,
But I've gone and bought a couple — 'twas the least that I could do
To delight a little fellow who is turning half-past two.

You say rabbits are a nuisance—well for us I guess that's so,
But remember how we loved them in that distant long ago?
And remember in our childhood what it meant to us back then
To have a pair of rabbits in a warren or a pen.
Well I thought that thrill of gladness was a joy he ought to know
So I've bought a pair of rabbits—and they're just as white as snow.

Yes, I know you think I'm foolish, but if you were half-past two
I am sure you'd want your grandpa to bring rabbits home to you.
And if you weren't old and fussy I am sure you'd never tire
Of watching pretty rabbits in a coop of chicken wire.
So I bought a pair this morning, white as snow and pink of eye,
And he thinks it fun to watch them—and the truth is, so do I.

You'd Be Surprised!

THE FIRST FLIERS

The gods of old Greece must have smiled when they looked down from Mt. Olympus and saw that great aerial battle between the Nazis, the British and Greeks over Crete.

For Crete is associated with man's first effort to fly like the birds.

According to Greek mythology, a skilful artificer named Daedalus built the famous Labyrinth for King Minos of Crete.

Later, however, Daedalus lost the favor of the Cretan king and was imprisoned in a tower.

The artificer succeeded in escaping from his prison, but was unable to escape from Crete because the minions of Minos kept a close watch on all ships leaving the island.

Daedalus said to himself: "Minos may control land and sea, but not the air." Whereupon he decided to make wings for himself and his young son Icarus with which to fly to another land.

Young Icarus stood by day after day while the father wrought feathers together with thread and wax until he had completed two sets of wings like those of a large bird.

Daedalus spent many days practicing with his wings and teaching his son how to use his. The father, after charging Icarus to keep at a moderate height to avoid the moisture of the sea and the heat of the sun, took off from the ground and bade the boy follow.

Shepherds and plowmen were amazed when they looked up and saw the man and boy flying over their fields.

But Icarus did not heed his father's warning. Exulted by the power of flight he left Daedalus and soared higher and higher until he came so near the sun that the heat melted the wax in the wings and caused most of the feathers to fall off.

Powerless to help, the father saw the youth flutter desperately with his arms and fall into the sea.

Daedalus located the body of the drowned boy by floating feathers and buried it on the near-by shore which he named Icaria. That part of the Aaegean where Icarus drowned became the Icarian Sea.

The father flew on to Sicily where he built a temple to Apollo and dedicated his wings to the god.

Ice-Cream Social At Burr's Church Well Attended

Burrs—The annual ice-cream social was held at Burrs United Church on the evening of August fourth. It was planned to have a program by boys from the Mountain View Airport. They were confined to their barracks owing to receiving inoculations and were unable to come. Local friends of talent kindly came to assist on very short notice and due to this a very pleasing program was enjoyed.

A large crowd gathered at the church and was served ice cream and cake. Rev. W. J. Parsons acted as chairman. All were asked to join in the singing of "O Canada" as an opening number. Mr. Westerby of Toronto then sang a comic song, followed by a violin selection by Mr. C. Phillips of Victoria, accompanied by Mrs. Phillips at the piano. Margaret Foster of Schoharie gave a very amusing reading. Jean Maxine and Gerry June Phillips sang two songs. Mr. Harry Hall and Miss Elsie Hall played two selections on harmonica and mandolin. Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Margetson and Mr. Ralph Margetson of Melville were well heard in two songs with guitar accompaniment. Mr. Don Johnsen of Stockdale gave a reading entitled "Jemima's Courtship." The singing of "The Maple Leaf" followed by "God save the King" brought to a close a pleasant social time. Proceeds for the evening were $48.50.

Miss Doris Blakely is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Harold Noxon, Christian St., and was in attendance at Crofton S. S. picnic at the Outlet on Thursday, also the regatta at Picton on Monday.

Save Gasoline

Better a tortoise than a hare these days when gasoline is so precious. Don't try to beat the other fellow to the light. Slide gently into your drive—go easy on your car and your gas.

Keep the "50-50" Pledge—join the Canada-wide band of co-operating motorists who are saving gasoline for the Navy, the Army and the Air Force. These wise drivers are looking ahead together to offset the shortage caused by the diversion of tankers to overseas service. Well do they know that half a mile is better than none, and these days half a gallon better than none. They have banded together and pledged themselves to save 50% of their gasoline consumption. Stay with them. Display proudly on your car the 50-50 insignia. Save today to save tomorrow!

It is also vitally important that you reduce the use of domestic and commercial fuel oil.

17 easy ways towards a 50% GASOLINE SAVING
(Approved by Automobile Experts)

Reduce driving speed from 60 to 40 on the open road.
Avoid jack-rabbit starts.
Avoid useless or non-essential driving.
Turn motor off when not in use, do not leave idling.
Don't race your engine; let it warm up slowly.
Don't strain your engine; change gears.
Keep carburetor cleaned and properly adjusted.
Tune up motor, timing, etc.
Keep spark plugs and valves clean.
Check cooling system; overheating wastes gasoline.
Maintain tires at right pressure.
Lubricate efficiently; worn engines waste gasoline.
Drive in groups to and from work, using cars alternate days.
For golf, picnics and other outings, use one car instead of four.
Take those short shopping trips ON FOOT and carry parcels home.
Walk to and from the movies.
Boat owners, too, can help by reducing speed.

Your regular service station man will gladly explain these and other ways of saving gasoline. Consult him.

The Stars Say

For Saturday, August 9

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

CONFLICTING though not entirely adverse conditions prevail on this day according to the dominant astral testimonies. The inner urges and faculties will be found keyed to high levels of enterprise, adventure and innovation, with brilliant strokes of genius directed toward the inauguration of new and important undertakings. While the energies and abilities may justify this, danger lies in overdoing, over optimism and enthusiasm, to the extent of squandering the wherewithal, financial and physical, to the hazard of worthy propositions. With extravagance, speculation and high chances eliminated there might be surprising success. Intimate associations are subject to similar exaggerations. Moderation and temperate behavior will be beneficial in all affairs.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year in which their own powers of restraint, calmness, moderation and sagacity may prove the determining factor of their success and happiness. Under the urge of greatly stimulated forces and faculties in the direction of major enterprises, through new and audacious methods and perhaps radical innovations, there might be great accomplishments. But these may be jeopardized by a spirit of excess, extravagance and prodigality, manifested in lavish use of finances, energy, ideas, and emotions as well. Such perils also enter into the personal and intimate relations.

A child born on this day while it may be endowed with qualities of genius, generosity and magnanimity yet may be a spendrift of its substance — mental, emotional and financial. It may be easily victimized.

CHECKS ARE REQUIRED patterns no matter the season. A smart autumn travelling suit is in blue and gray checked tweed with tiny pink nubs through the fabric. The fitted jacket has a one-button closing at the waist and a box-pleated skirt.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

How to Handle Your Guests at an Evening Bridge Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. In an apartment where one enters through a long narrow hall and where both myself and husband cannot be at the door, who opens the door for the guests? 2. Should I greet them after they are in? Should I stand at the far end of the hall? 3. What is the appropriate hour to serve lunch at an evening bridge? 4. Who should stand at the door when the guests leave? Should I, or my husband, or both? 5. When they thank us for a happy evening are we both to stand together and acknowledge their thanks with, "We were very happy to have you," or what phrase would you suggest? 6. Do you shake hands with guests—both men and women—upon their arrival and then again when they leave?

Uncertain

1. It is easier for all, I think, if the host appoints himself the receiving committee at the door, and thus leaves the hastess to entertain the guests who have already arrived. 2. Greet your guests as they enter the living-room, where the first arrivals will be. 3. Customarily, about tne o'clock or half past ten, supposing it starts about eight and guests are to leave at 11.30 or 12. 4. If the guests all leave together both you and your husband could go to the door with them. But if they leave in different groups you should stay with the ones remaining and have your husband go to the door with the departing ones. 5. The phrase that you suggest cannot be improved upon. The hosts should thank the guests for coming, just as the guests thank the hosts for inviting them to come. 6. Yes. Both the hostess and the host shake hands with each guest when he and she come and when they leave.

Seating Plan for Dinner

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to have an informal dinner for twelve people. The party will include my mother and father, three married couples between thirty-five and forty years of age, my married sister and her husband, and my boy friend. Please tell me how the party should be seated at the table.

J.

I am sure that you would want your mother to have her accustomed place at the had of the table, with your father seated opposite her, at the foot of the table. Then your place might be in the center of one side of the table, and your young man friend might have the place opposite you. If you wish to give honor to your sister and her husband, you might place your sister at the right of your young man and her husband at your right. Or you might properly select another couple for this seating of honor. If your mother and father are the real hosts of this dinner, seat at your mother's right the man to whom you wish to give most honor, and at your husband's right the woman guest of honor. Remember that a husband and wife are not seated next to each other at a dinner party.

Announcing An Engagement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly let me know if it would be improper for a mother to announce her son's engagement, since the girl has no mother, and she lives many miles away?

It is not proper for the fiance's mother to announce the engagement. This announcement should be made by some member of the girl's family. If the father of your son's fiancee is living, he would be the one to make the announcement; if he is not living, her grandparents (or a grandparent) or her aunt and uncle might make this announcement.

I have a pamphlet giving suggestions about engagement announcements. If you will send a stamped, addressed envelope I shall be happy to mail it to you.

A Slip in Your Manners Ruins a Nice Impression

Blunder Makes Him Dubious

Such a cute looking girl, he just had to tell her, "I'm glad I met you!" But immediately she plants a doubt in his mind with her crude "It's mutual, I'm sure!"

If only she'd learned a correct reply such as "I enjoyed meeting you, too!" As it is, he's glad he didn't ask her for a date—she might embarrass him wherever they'd go.

It's natural for a well-bred man to have such doubts. "Suppose I took her dancing," he thinks. "She's the type who'd say 'Thank you' after a man danced with her. Probably thanks waiters, too. And how my friends would stare if I took her to a tennis match and she cheered the whole time."

The poised type of girl he admires would let the man say "Thank you" after a dance; she'd perhaps reply, "It was fun!" She'd thank a waiter only for a special service, such as getting her a substitution on her order. And of course she'd never applaud at tennis while the play is going on.

She'd know the etiquette of dating through and through. Our 32-page booklet explains what's correct for men and girls, when dancing, dining, driving, at theatres, on week-ends. Discusses petting, "good-night kiss." Gives etiquette of introductions, travel, tipping.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of ETIQUETTE FOR YOUNG MODERNS to The Ontario Intelligencer Home Service, 166 Front St., Belleville, Ont. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

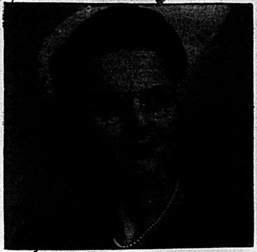
Wear Specs If Eyes Need Help



Becoming glasses will correct beauty faults.

By HELEN FOLLETT

THOSE who are in a position to know say that about fifty per cent of the women who suffer from impaired eyesight are wearing specs. The neglectful ones fancy that glasses detract from personal charm so they postpone the day when the poor little lamps will have the help they need. Vanity! The soul orbs are under a strain. They're tired, do not carry the pretty sparkle that lend enchantment.

Because impaired vision causes constant readjustments, squinting becomes a habit. That means turkey tracks. Of all beauty burdens, wrinkles are the most hateful. Better a pair of healthy, comfortable eyes behind glass than sad-looking tired ones. Think it over, if you are among those who are abusing their soul lanterns.

Causes Headaches

Defective vision is responsible for many a case of violent headache. Any kind of a physical strain will manifest itself on the countenance and the behavior of the central nervous system. Why invite discomfort? Why not get specs and be done with it?

The business girl, especially the desk worker, must have relief from impaired vision. Good eyesight is necessary for powers of concentration and accuracy, for a keen mind and steady nerves. It sometimes happens that if glasses are worn when trouble starts they will correct the condition; can be discarded later.

The short-sighted woman who refuses to use lenses puts herself in danger. She will appear to be confused. She will stumble over steps, make awkward movements.

Optical specialists are putting their shoulders to the beauty wheel, doing all they can to reconcile women to the wearing of glasses by offering frames and lenses of various designs that make for becomingness. The correct selection can make a long nose look shorter, a short nose longer. The man behind the counter will tell you all about them.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I went with him for two years but didn't realize how much I cared for him until about eight months ago. Then I made the mistake of telling him I loved him. Now we don't go together any more. I'll never make the same mistake again.

My problem is that I can't forget him and think of him constantly. I am employed all day and go to night school three nights a week, just to forget him, but it doesn't work. No matter what I'm doing, he's always in my thoughts. The minute I relax simple little incidents keep running through my mind.

It's really getting serious when it affects my health and disposition. My nerves are shot to pieces" and I'd be so grateful if you could only tell me what to do to forget him, if only for an hour or two a day.

Sincerely.

Some men are like that. They like to be kept guessing. They're known as honey-sippers at every flower, and they're apt to marry for worldly considerations late in life. I don't think you've really lost very much in this case. And please let me congratulate you on being so sensible as to take up a course at night school. Go out more, make new contacts, keep up with your night school work, and eventually you'll see everything was for the best.

They Have No Faith in Each Other

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been very much in love with a young lady for six months. I believed she loved me too, but when I came home from college for my summer vacation, she said I was just giving her the usual college line. She's afraid to believe in me for fear of making a fool of herself.

She claims I do not stress a desire for dates with her. I think if she wants me to have these dates she would have mentioned it, and I too don't want to be a "sucker."

I'm really deeply in love with this girl. What do you think I ought to do? She also claims she thinks more of me than of any other boy. I haven't seen her for two weeks.

Backward.

The trouble with you both is that you haven't faith in each other. She imagines you're trying to make a fool of her, and you think she's trying to make a "sucker" out of you. The result is suspicion, mistrust and a general looking-for-trouble. These doubts and fears will become realities if you persist in this frame of mind. Make up and stop looking for trouble.

He Has No Cause for Jealousy

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been married eight years, and my wife and I are more devoted than we were the day we we married. We're both about 34 years old. We get together ith a group of married folks occasionaly and play bridge or dance at the country club, or have suppers at each other's homes.

This is just as it should be. The men are in the same line as I am, and it's good for my work to have these social get-togethers. But sometimes I just see red when my wife dances with another man. I could murder him for putting his arms around her, even while dancing.

I know this feeling is utterly unworthy of a decent human being, but I just can't overcome it. And it seems, instead of getting better, this jealousy is getting worse. Then I take my grouch out in being rotten to the best of wives.

Groucho.

You make me think of those medical specialists who recognize all the symptoms of a common cold but wouldn't dare prescribe the simplest of remedies for themselves. You've put all the cards of your problem on the table and have closed your eyes to the trick to be taken.

I hate to remind so intelligent a correspondent that experts declare that jealousy, such as you describe, is a form of fear. Why are you afraid of these other men, when you and your wife have been devoted for eight years? It's dangerous to raise up this fear spectre. Sometimes, dwelling on a thing morbidly starts something going.

Does Marriage Change Sons' Duties?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Am I any relation to my sons now, after they are married? My four daughters-in-law say that I am not, and they don't want my sons to go out of their way to do a thing for me. I get so discouraged, and am beginning to wonder if we're any relation at all.

A Reader.

Marriage does not in the least degree change the actual relationship of a mother to her sons. But very often selfish daughters-in-law try to persuade their husbands that wives should come first, last and at all times. However, decent sons aren't so gullible.

Silk Stockings In U.S. Exhausted In Two Months

American Women Will be Shopping for Other Types of Hose

Washington, Aug. 7— (AP)—Silk manufacturers and representatives of their employees assembled here today hopeful of remedying confusion into which the industry was thrown last week by the United States government order abruptly freezing all silk stocks.

Yet, in advance of the meeting, a survey of hosiery manufacturers indicated that in two months or less American women would find the retail supply of silk stockings exhausted and would be shopping for other types of hose.

The conference was called, in part to discuss changeovers in knitting processes which would assure continued glamor for the feminine American ankle but with fibres other than silk.

Keeping Down Unemployment

Another big problem was to keep down unemployment as a result of the drastic changes made necessary by the freezing order and the consequent dwindling supply of silk. Thirteen mills in Eastern Pennsylvania partially suspended operations yesterday. Approximately 2,300 silk workers in the Bethlehem area were laid off, and thousands of others expected to lose their jobs or go on reduced working schedules within a week or so.

Cotton Lisle Yarns

Alexander McKeown, president of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, declared at Philadelphia that a large part of the $100,000,000 a year in American credits which have been going to Japan for silk could be shifted to Britain by buying cotton lisle yarns there.

Fashion Flashes

BIG DASHES of color make a bright splash in the dark clothes that feature autumn collections. A lovely evening frock is of lemon yellow silk crepe and it becomes a dinner costume with a long-sleeved, high-necked jacket top of crepe in a brownish plum color with all-over thread embroidery.

DON'T DRESS evenings and mer in uniform make the smart street-length frock of particular importance. Black silk jersey or crepe with a deep or sweetheart neckline, draped bodice, tiered or fringed skirt plus handsome costume jewelry is the formula for this costume.

No matter what you use to wash with your white wash needs blue to prevent clothes from turning yellow
• Rinsing does more than anything else to prevent that greyish-yellow tinge.
There are plenty of ways of washing and they mostly get things clean. But there's only one thing to make them really white — the last rinse in blue water!

PATTERN 7060

Cutwork — rich needlework — durable—fascinating but simple to do! This doily would look lovely done in one or varied colors. Pattern 7060 contains a transfer pattern of a 14-inch doily and two 7 1-2 inch ones; materials needed; illustrations of stitches; color schemes.

To obtain this pattern send twenty cents (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) to The Ontario Intelligencer Household Arts Dept., 166 Front St., Belleville, Ont. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and PATTERN NUMBER.

Is YOUR JOB more strain than exercise?
"Take my Tip" says this hard-working grocery-store cashier. She has a shut-in job that gives her little exercise—yet she keeps well. How? "No harsh cathartics! Instead, I eat delicious Kellogg's Bran Flakes every morning in the year."
Bid the "Blues" Good Riddance!
Just take these two simple steps to health: 1. To get well, see your doctor; 2. To keep well, watch your habits. And especially if you're cooped up indoors all day, guard against the blue days, the headachy feelings, that are so often just the result of incomplete elimination. The thing to do is to get enough "bulk" in your diet to move the food wastes promptly. And to get this bulk in a form so delicious you'll gladly make it a daily habit.
Happy thousands have found the answer! They eat KELLOGG'S BRAN FLAKES WITH OTHER PARTS OF WHEAT every day! Gently laxative in a natural way, they help supply valuable minerals and proteins, too. And they taste simply swell! Order Kellogg's Bran Flakes tomorrow in the golden-yellow package, now in two convenient sizes. Ask for the triple-wrapped individual package when you eat out. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

KEEP FIT WITH KELLOGG'S every day in the year!

Say General Dentz Is Interned

London, Aug. 8—(CP)—A Reuter's dispatch from Beirut, Syria, said today that Gen. Henri Dentz, the former High Commissioner and Commander-in-Chief of the Levant States, had been interned by the Allies.

Gen. Dentz led the Vichy defence forces against the British and Free French in the 31-day Syrian conflict which was ended by an armistice July 14.

Thirty - five other Vichy officers also were reported interned. The reason was failure to release some British and Free French officers who were flown to an unrevealed destination just before the end of the war.

U.S. Women to Work In Plane Industry

Sacramento, Calif., Aug. 8—(AP)—The demand for more defence labor, particularly in the mushrooming aircraft industry, is forcing California to turn to women to swell its reservoir of workers.

R. G. Wagenet, state director of employment, says there is no question but what the employment of ever-increasing numbers of women in the construction of vital defence weapons is coming.

The use of women in airplane factories, munitions plants, in the making of tools and in industries no directly connected with the defence program, thus freeing men for heavier work, would substantially increase the state's sorely-taxed manpower, Wagenet believes.

"Roughly speaking, certain industries could substitute women for 25 to 40 per cent of their workers".

DUMART STRIKE SETTLED

Kitchener, Ont., Aug. 8.—(CP)—Nearly 300 employees of Dumart's Packing Company, on strike since July 30, are scheduled to return to work next Monday.

Settlement of the walkout was announced last night following a conference of company and employee representatives before an industrial disputes committee of the City Council. It was said that company did not accede to demands for union recognition.

William Powell and Myrna Loy in "Love Crazy," without question the funniest love and laugh frolic of the year, now closing at the Belle Theatre.

AT THE CAPITOL

Rookies On Parade"

Wittier, brighter and more colorful than any comedy of the season, and with a theme as modern as 1941, "Rookies On Parade," presented tunes and laughs and a cast which included Bob Crosby, Eddie Foy Jr., Ruth Terry, Marie Wilson, Gertrude Neisen, Cliff Nazarro, Sidned Blackmer and William Wright to a capacity audience at the Capitol theatre last night, and won lusty applause.

The film presents bandleader Bob Crosby as a happy-go-lucky songwriter, who is always having trouble with his showgirl girl-friend, enacted by Ruth Terry. Crosby's inability to save his money for a marriage finally causes a complete break. Crosby then writes a musical comedy with Eddy Foy, Jr., but William Wright, the wealthy playboy whom he gets as backer, turns out to be Ruth's new boyfriend. Then Crosby, Foy, and Wright are dratfed, and the scene changes to a training camp. Ruth goes along as an official hostess. Wright and Ruth agree to help Crosby stage his show at the camp, but balk when they find that his intensions seem purely mercenary. With Crosby fighting to clear himself in Ruth's eyes, and attempting to put Wright in disfavor, the film came to such an hilarious close that it nearly had spectators rolling in the aisles.

Crosby and Miss Terry are admirably teamed, as are Marie Wilson and Foy as laugh-providers. From top star to lowliest extra, everyone pitched in to make this a sure winner at the nation's theatres.

A four-star rating should go not only to the picture but to Associate Producer Albert J. Cohen and Director Joseph Santley, as well. Much credit is also due to writers Karl Brown, Jack Townley and Milt Gross who wrote the screenplay from an original story by Sammy Cahn and Sol Chaplin.

'Ride On Vaquero'

Caramba! The Cisco Kid is back again!

Cesar Romero again plays the dashing outlaw in "Ride On Vaquero", which opened last night as the second attraction at the Capitol.

The story, like the characterization, is tops. Mary Beth Hughes, Lynne Roberts, Chris-Pin Martin, Robert Lowery, and Ben Carter are featured members of an excellent cast.

Bruce Cabot and Marlene Dietrich in one of the many comedy sequences of "The Flame of New Orleans," starting Sunday midnight at the Capitol Theatre.

AT THE BELLE

"Love Crazy"

With William Powell and Myrna Loy teamed in their maddest, merriest series of comedy adventures, "Love Crazy" now closing a highly successful engagement at the Belle Theatre.

The screen's famous husband and wife find discord in the new picture when Myrna becomes jealous of Gail Patrick and wants to divorce Powell. He learns that an insane man cannot be divorced, so stages all manner of queer antics to feign insanity. But the trouble is that he fools the alienists who take him seriously and want to bundle him off to an asylum.

Gail Patrick plays the beautiful "school friend" who precipitates the husband-and-wife quarrel, and Jack Carson complicates matters by laying siege to Miss. Loy's affections. Florence Bates has a big funmaking part as Powell's mother-in-law.

A timely screen miniature, and Jan Garber and his orchestra in a smart tuneful revue, procede the feature attraction.

"Billie the Kid" in Color

Robert Taylor makes his debut as a western star in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Billy the Kid," action-packed Technicolor production this week-end at the Belle Theatre.

Although Taylor was virtually born on a horse in Nebraska and has owned his own ranch and stables since becoming one of Hollywood's most popular stars, the new picture gives him his first opportunity to show his riding ability on the screen. He has been asking for the chance for almost five years.

Brian Donlevy, who attained stardom in "The Great McGinty," heads a brilliant cast which includes, Ian Hunter, Mary Howard, Gene Lockhart and Lon Chaney, Jr.

The story concerns the exploits and fate of a terror of the range during the cattle wars of the 1870's. He enters the picture with a reputation as a "killer" but after first joining up with the Dan Hickey gang, he swings over to the more lawful forces of Eric Keating, an English rancher.

Influenced by the Englishman, Ian Hunter, and Brian Donlevy and Miss Howard, he appears to be reforming until Hunter is killed. Swearing to revenge the death of his friend, he trails and shoots the Hickey men responsible but finally meets his own end in a showdown with Donlevy, sworn in as a deputy to stop the lawlessness.

David Miller directed the picture, produced by Irving Asher. Cameramen were Leonard Smith and William Skall, who achieved remarkable outdoor color effects on four location sites in Arizona.

Excellent Varied Featurettes

The Belle latest world news events, "Rookie Bear," a cute, cunning color cartoon, and "Memory Tricks," a Pete Smith specialty completes the program. Continuous shows will be presented tomorrow.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Blondie in Society"

A "must" for brides is a look at the wardrobe which Penny Singleton wears in Columbia's "Blondie in Society," now at the McCarthy Theatre with Arthur Lake, Larry Simms and Edgar Kennedy also featured. Penny's house dresses definitely bring "oomph" into the kitchen and make it possible for the little woman to be surprised at her work, looking quite as attractive as when dressed for the street.

Young matrons should realize that it is a serious error to buy their dresses with the attitude that "it'll be all right to wear around the house." It is just as easy and just as inexpensive to plan clothes which are smart as well as practical.

One of Penny's "at home — at work" dresses, a cotton jumper, has a blouse of Kelly green and white print, with a tiny apron of the same material. Green shoes match the jumper. She has alternate blouses and aprons of crisp white organdy and of yellow and white checked gingham.

In one scene Blondie prepares the evening meal in a smart little shirtmaker dress of blue cotton with white paper clips scattered over it. A small apron of starched white pique with a pleated ruffle gives her a "neat-as-a-pin" look, at the same time serving as a trim for the dress.

From Penny's own wardrobe comes another interesting combination of color and material. It is a red and white striped cotton dress with which she wears a navy blue apron and navy shoes.

"Men Without Souls"

A picture that will grip you with excitement and hold your every interest is the added feature "Men Without Souls", featuring John Litel and Barton MacLane, also now showing at the McCarthy. A new technicolor cartoon entitled "In the Land of Fun" is also tops in swell entertainment. The closing chapter of "The Green Archer" in which the identity of the real Green Archer is exposed, rounds out this fine week-end program. The performance tomorrow will be continuous: send the children early!

Mort Cooper's Return Hoists Cardinals Stand in Senior League by 3-2 Overtime Win

After Long Rest Cooper Bats and Pitches Way to Win Over Cincinnati

PITCHERS' DUEL

Pirates Chalk Up Sixth Consecutive Victory by Beating the Cubs 4 to 3

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

St. Louis Cardinals are back on top of the National League seesaw today, but their position in the standing is not as important as the fact that Mort Cooper is back with his pitching magic.

Until he developed elbow trouble in June the 27-year-old righthander figured to be the ace of Billy Southworth's pitching corps. Then he had to have an operation.

Cooper returned to the lineup July 27 and pitched part of the ninth inning against Boston Braves. Then he was given a good rest and given a starting assignment against the poor Phillies last Sunday. He pitched a six-hit victory.

Yesterday came the real test. Cooper was sent out against Cincinnati Reds and pitched and batted the Cardinals to a 3-2 11-inning victory that put St. Louis in front of the idle Brooklyn Dodgers again by just a shade.

Cooper held Cincinnati scoreless till the seventh in a pitching duel with Bucky Walters, whom the Cards cut for a run in the second. Then they struggled on scorelessly till the 11th, when Johnny Mize singled, Enos Slaughter doubled, and Estel Crabtree and Cooper singled for two runs.

The Reds got one of these back in the 11th, bringing Sam Nahem to the mound to make the final out, but this scarcely detracted from Cooper's ninth victory and the fact the Cards' staff is complete again.

Yankees Lost

Only one other National League game was played and Pittsburgh Pirates were in it—winning a 4-3 decision over Chicago Cubs on Al Lopez' home run with two out in the ninth. It was the Pirates' sixth straight triumph and their 18th in 21 games.

New York Yankees dropped a 9-5 verdict to the Boston Red Sox to divert their recent sluggishness into a full-grown slump with five losses in their last seven. Ted Williams hit his 22nd home run and two singles.

The defeat did not cost the Yankees any of the American League lead, however, for Detroit downed Bob Feller and Cleveland Indians 4-3 in 13 innings. It was Feller's seventh setback against 20 victories. He struck out 13, but walked 11 and in the eighth inning forced in one run with a pass when the bases were loaded.

Chicago White Sox went on a hitting spree in the last four innings of a night game, pounding out 17 hits to beat the St. Louis Browns 11-1.

STAGGERED STOP-WORK

London (CP) — To spread the rush traffic and provide faster service for homeward bound workers the rail and bus companies have induced some employers to "stagger" the stop-work whistles over 15 minute periods so that all don't quit at once.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Morton Cooper, Cardinals—Pitched and batted St. Louis to victory over Reds, hitting single for deciding run in 11th inning.

Dick Newsome, Red Sox—Kept Yankees in check on eight hits.

Al Lopez, Pirates—Hit ninth-inning home run to beat Cubs.

Buck Ross and Taft Wright, White Sox—Ross stopped Browns with seven hits and Wright led Chicago attack with four as Sox won 11-1.

IRON-MAN

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 8.—Warner (Lefty) Strunk, La Crosse hurler, pitched his team to two victories in the Wisconsin State League Tuesday night, beating Janesville 6 to 0 in the first game of a doubleheader and 5 to 1 in the second. Both were seven-inning affairs. He allowed only three hits in the first game and four in the second.

LEFTY BATTERS HOLD MAJORITY LEAGUES' TOPS

Seems to be Portsiders' Year in Major Baseball But John Cooney Holds Own in Boston Braves

Boston, Aug. 8—(CP)—Most of the power in big league baseball this season is being swung from the port side of the plate.

Pace Setters

As the August campaign began, Williams of Boston, DiMaggio, Cecil Travis of Washington, Jeff Heath of Cleveland and Roy Cullenbine of St. Louis were the American League pace setters while Reiser of Brooklyn, Cooney, Nick Etten of the Phillies, and Enos Slaughter, John Hopp and Johnny Mize of the Cardinals were out front in the National.

For the past decade the National league has been a left hander's circuit and the American league a right hander's. And by the same margin: Left handers have won the National league batting championship seven times in ten years; while right handers have won the American league honors seven times.

Remember These?

Chick Hafey, 1931; Joe Medwick, 1937 and Ernie Lombardi, 1938, were the National league right handers who won the hitting crowns. Frank O'Doud, 1932, Chuck Klein, 1933, Paul Waner, 1934 and 1936, Floyd Vaughan, 1935, Mize, 1939 and Debs Germs, 1940, were the portsiders.

Lou Gehrig, 1934, Buddy Myer, 1935 and Charles Gehringer, 1937, were the left handers who won the American league championship in that period. Al Simmons, 1931, Dale Alexander, 1932, Jimmy Fox, 1935 and 1938, Luke Appling, 1936, and Joe DiMaggio, 1939-40 were the right handers.

Mize in the National and DiMaggio in the American are the only former champions who are making much of a serious fight for this year's crown.

Orioles Break 13-Game Losing Streak by Beating Toronto in 13-Inning Game

(By The Associated Press)

It's no easy task to break records in the International Baseball League, which has produced many fine ball players in its 58 years of existence, but a couple fell last night and there may be more.

The two record performances were strictly minor affairs which took place while Syracuse and Montreal split a doubleheader. Moody Williams, Syracuse shortstop, stretched his hitting streak to 19 consecutive games—a new record for his club—by getting a single in each contest. Montreal's Jack Graham smashed his 27th homer of the season in the opener to tie his team's record, set nine years ago by Chick Shiver.

The Chiefs won the opener 4-3 but had to go an extra inning before Gene Hasson settled the argument with a homer. The Royals struggled back to win 6-5.

Newark's Frank Kelleher made his 30th four-base wallop of the season to lead the Bears to a 3-1 nightcap victory over Rochester after the Red Wings had taken the opener 2-1.

Another performance that threatened to run to record length finally came to an end when Baltimore Orioles, after a 3 1-2 hour struggle, drove over two runs in the 13th inning to beat the last-place Toronto Leafs 6-4. This ended a 13-game losing streak for the Birds.

Homer Howell did the trick with a single with two out and the bases loaded in the 13th. Toronto's Herman Besse went the full route against four rivals, of whom relief men Ken Trinkle and Elmer Burkart were the most effective.

Jersey Giants, who hadn't been hitting often enough to get exercise finally decided to do something about it at Buffalo and hammered out a dozen blows to beat the Bisons 9-4.

Like Father Like Son

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 8—(AP)—Thirty years ago Smokey Joe Wood smoked a baseball past St. Louis Browns for a no-hit, 5-0 shutout for Boston Red Sox in the American League.

Last night he sat in the stands and watched his son duplicate that feat for Scranton Miners against Albany Senators in the class "A" Eastern League.

It was like-father-like-son as Joe Wood, Jr., graduated from Yale University two months ago, set the Senators down without a hit to give his mates a 5-0 triumph.

Only 29 batters faced the 25-year-old righthander who said after his masterpiece, "I was just lucky."

JIM BRADDOCK TO REFEREE HERE

Former World Heavyweight Boxing Champion Coming to Belleville

Next Monday night's wrestling show is shaping up as the biggest night in the history of wrestling in Belleville with the former world's champion, James J. Braddock, coming to town to referee on this important card. The main bout between huge Lee Henning and the notorious Masked Wolf has got the fans all steamed up. This is an important ranking match which many a larger city has angled for and the fans are in for a thrill when these two huge mastodons of the mat game go to work on each other. The visit of "Jersey Jim" Braddock has added still more appeal to the show for the ex-champion is one of the most popular figures in fight circles and in spite of his sudden turn to wealth and fame, the big Irishman has lost none of the likeable qualities of his championship days. Braddock is still a top-ranking athlete, keeps himself in condition and still has the punch which beat Maxie Baer for the world title, and of which Joe Louis admitted it was the "hurtin'est he evah did feel." The Brown Bomber still respects the dynamite in Braddock's fists and so must the heavyweight grapplers. That is they should, only this Masked Wolf has shown very little consideration for either the reputation or power of opponents or referees, so this bout may produce fireworks apart from the rivalry of the two grapplers. In confirming his arrangement to come here Jim Braddock stated emphatically he will make the wrestlers stick to the rules but what will happen when he starts to ride hard on men like Henning and the Wolf is intriguing Belleville fans considerably.

Letters to the Sports Editor

Belleville, Ontario.
August 6, 1941.

Sports Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Dear Sir,—

Re: Your suggestion of a game in the near future between Sunday Morning Class and Corby's. Why all the plugging for Corby's?

Surely you must realize that only 5% of all the crowds at ball games, irregardless of whether Corby's are winning, losing, playing Reliance or Point Anne, are cheering for Corby's. They are the most unpopular aggregation I have ever seen, and I would like to know just what they are doing for sport in this town.

If you really want to raise some money for the Red Cross, why not a game between the Sunday Morning Class and Reliance, who are very popular here in Belleville, and who, through last year's hockey games, have been heard of in Toronto, or a game between Sunday Morning Class and Point Anne who are much more popular than Corby's and appear to be the better ball club.

Yours very truly,

KENNETH J. SODEN,
Secty.-Treas. Reliance Sport Club.

Just What Makes A Golfer Click?

Chicago, Aug. 8—(CP)—Do you want to become a great golfer?

Listen to Ben Hogan, who has been "in the money" in 50-odd successive tournaments; who finished in a tie for third in the U.S. Open and who was voted the greatest shotmaker in the business by his fellow stars:

"There is no secret, magic way. It's a matter of long hours and hard practice.

"After a fellow masters his practice shots he tunes them, then, to competitive play. Frequently the shots that are good in practice are no good in competition, because the player goes to pieces under pressure.

"So it's just practice, practice, practice. And then compete, compete, compete.

"That's what good golfers are made of."

Between Innings

DID YOU KNOW—every game played in the National Baseball League on June 29th last ended in the same score, 3 to 2.... Johnny Hamilton, rangy defenceman with the Reliance Aircraft seniors last winter, recently had an offer to go to Northern Ontario and play for the Buffalo-Ankerite sextette next winter.... Duke Smith's Joka ran off with the "A" class honors in the sailing races staged in connection with Picton Civic Holiday regatta .... At their present rate of winning both the Dodgers and the Cardinals bid fair to reach the low mark in the National League win column this season.. Yes and don't be surprised if the New York Yankees establish an all-time high win mark for the majors .... "Doc" Empson is anxious to sponsor a baseball team in the Intermediate playdowns of the Ontario Baseball Association.... The gals' softball loop big-wigs drafted their semi-final play-off schedule that opens tonight.

Jim Braddock, former heavyweight champion of the world, appeared in Ottawa as the third man in the ring Tuesday, which would indicate the "cinderella-man" of the squared circle intends to keep his obligations with Promoter Frank Tunney of the Queensbury A.C., and actually be in Belleville next Monday to referee the Masked Wolf-Lee Henning main bout at the Hume arena and not—take a walk-out powder a la Tony Galento. With the cooler evenings setting in these fine nights it will be comfortable for the patrons. With headliners the calibre of Lee Henning, the Iowa powerhouse, and the Masked Wolf, who has never been defeated, the grappling fans can't miss on this one.

The softballers are at it again tonight when Corbys tangle with the Cementmen at the Flats, while Zellers and Vikings pry off the gals' loop play-offs at the armouries. Harold Bawden's Corbys are facing a tremendous task tonight, as a loss will practically count them out.

Do you remember when Joe Burke stepped down voluntarily one year ago today from the pedestal he occupied for nearly three years as world amateur sculling champion. Burke said he wanted to give the "other fellows" a chance at the Diamond Sculls, American and Canadian single sculls and the Gold Challenge Cup titles he then held.

Mel Ott, Giants' home run king, can't explain why he lifts his right foot off the ground when he starts to swing his bat at the ball. He's the only great hitter in baseball history with this oddity in his style. He also can't remember when he began doing it. "I started playing ball when I was four years old," he testifies. "You can't remember much before about your fourth birthday. I just always did it. I'll tell you one thing about it, though. When I get a bad hitting slump I just kick that right leg about a foot higher and boom! I'm hitting again."

Elsewhere in today's issue appears a letter received from Ken Soden, Secretary of the Reliance A.C., which speaks for itself in more than one trend of thought. However, the reason this corner suggested a possible game between the Sunday Morning Class and maybe Corby A.C. was simply because the Corbys are the only intermediate "A" O.A.S.A. entry from the city. However, later your newsboy talked with Point Anne softball heads regarding an amalgamated team from the Cementmen and Belleville clubs to exchange batteries with S.M.C. if that club could return before the snow flies, which at this writing seems rather remote. Pertaining to the raising of funds for the Red Cross it would appear as though the local ladies league heads have done less talking and more work than any other sporting organization in the city with the result they will turn over likely $800.00 to the Red Cross following Monday's show. This wasn't accomplished by idle prattle, but by the wholehearted co-operation of the entire organization.

It was like old times in Peterboro last evening when upwards of 2,000 baseball fans jammed their way into Riverside Park for the Charlie Kearns Memorial game. For seven innings it was a swell game between the Kingston Ponies and a team composed of former "C.B.O.Lers" from Peterboro and Oshawa, Kingston getting three in the eighth and winning 7 to 4. "Peg" Hurst, "Moose" Matthews, "Red" Jubenville and the rest were there from Oshawa, Cy Whaley, Eddie Murphy, Fred Ash and many others helped swell the Peterboro throng, as the patrons got a great kick out of the parade of "ex's." Joe Jakafby, Eddie Whitehill and Archie Dyell hurled for the sponsors, while Jack Jarrell did a smart seven inning mound chore for the Kingston club, Jarrell showing plenty of promise for a 17-year-old southpaw. Belleville's Joe Kelleher finished the Ponies' pitching job. Jimmie Arniel, Mickey Compeau, Bob Elliott and the rest of the boys were on hand in Pony uniforms for a fine array. Even Joe Daley and Knotty Lee came out of retirement to be at the helm of the opposing teams and add color to the picture.

Wally Beger, who played for the Reds, Braves and other major league clubs in days gone by, discarded his loved baseball uniform in Los Angeles yesterday and announced he was "all washed up." Beger was given his unconditional release by the "Angels" and announced he intended to enter into the business world.

Bits of this and that—All clubs in the American League are adopting the Yankee defence against Ted Williams, the Boston swatsmith.... They play him for a sharp pull-hitter and swing the shortstop to the right side of second baseman.... Well, as the confident Mr. Williams undoubtedly says to himself, there is still no defence against a home run.... Incidentally one of the odd things about Williams is that he hasn't hit a triple all season.... It seems that Ted is one of those short-winded individuals who gets tired about the time he gets as far as second base.... As the Dodgers were idle the Cardinals regained the top spot in the National League by beating the Reds yesterday.... Otherwise there weren't any changes, even if the Yankees did lose.... The torrid Pirates chalked up their sixth consecutive win and are but 7 1-2 games terday.... Otherwise there weren't close enough.

Unheralded Amateur Leads Pack in Canadian Golf Open With Sub-Par Score

Tom Draper, St. Louis Amateur, Shoots a 67, Four Below Sam Snead

SNEAD BEEFS

By JIM COLEMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Aug. 8—(CP)—The clamorous customers at the Canadian Open Championship, currently being played here at the Lambton Golf and Country Club, are getting into the thinning hair of Sammy Snead, the defending title-holder.

Yesterday Snead shot a 71—one over par — to finish four strokes behind Tom Draper, Jr., a St. Louis amateur, who showed the way to a field of nearly 130 link stars in the opening round of the Dominion's outstanding 72 - hole test. And Snead was rather prone to blame his defection on the enthusiastic gallery that stampeded around him all afternoon as he essayed to cope with the tricky, heavily-trapped Lambton course.

In any event, Sammy lodged a quiet and gentlemanly beef with the authorities at the conclusion of yesterday's round. He merely requested that his starting time be moved ahead so that he can complete today's 18-hole test before the more clamorous members of the gallery make their appearance.

The officials of the Canadian open readily acceded to his request. The champ was scheduled to tee off around noon today instead of his originally-planned time of 3 p.m.

Scores a 67

Meanwhile, the Canadian golf world was buzzing with the name of Tom Draper, the Gargantuan "mystery man" who cracked out a three-under-par 67.

Draper sheepishly admits he has the unenviable record of being one of the most ineffectual match golf players in the world. He has qualified for the U.S. amateur championship nine years in a row and hasn't yet been able to win a single first-round match.

He "just happened to drop in here" yesterday on his way to qualify for this year's U.S. amateur and promptly scorched the Lambton fairways which are suffering already from the excessive heat of the past three weeks.

But there is no reason to believe that Draper's sizzling first round will give him any licence to make claims to the title. Three of the top - ranking U.S. professionals, Horton Smith, Johnny Bulla and Lloyd Mangrum — were breathing close upon the curly hairs that shroud his nogging after they carded snappy 68's.

Two more men—Archie Skinner of St. Andrew's and bandy-legged Bobby Cruickshank— were knotted with 69's and there were four others with 70's, Gene Sarazen, of Tuckahoe, N.Y., W. A. Francis of Altoona, Pa., Gerard Proulx of Montreal, and Bobby Gray of Toronto.

New York, Aug. 8—(AP)—Like to wear a diamond-studded gold and silver belt?

The late Warren Lincoln Travis, self-billed "world's greatest weight lifter" who died July 13, has willed the diamond belt awarded him by the Police Gazette in 1906 to any one who can duplicate his ten most famous feats.

So the belt's yours if you can do the following—all within thirty minutes:

2.—Pair of 90-pound weights brought from side of body to shoulders, then slowly pressed to arms' length over head.

3.—Teeth lift from floor hands behind back, 350 pounds.

4.—350 pounds from floor with one finger, eight times in five seconds.

5.—One-finger lift from floor, 560 pounds, once.

6.—Two-hand grip lift, straddling the weight, from floor, 700 pounds, twenty times in ten seconds.

7.—Hand and knee lift from floor, 1,600 pounds once.

8.—Back lift, 3,660 pounds once.

9.—Harness lift, 3,580 pounds, once.

10.—2,000-pound back lift, 250 times in seven minutes.

"It's too darn hot," complained George.

"Hot?" cried Mr. Picobac indignantly. "Picobac's never hot. It's cool as a breeze off Lake Erie. Picobac's always a .::"

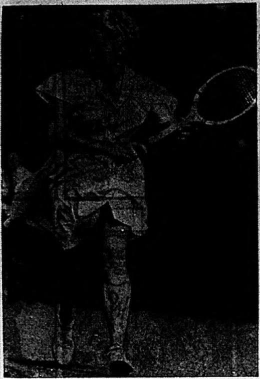
GROWN IN SUNNY SOUTHERN ONTARIO



NEW STAR IN TENNIS WORLD

Pictured in action here is Louise Brough, 17-year-old Beverly Hills, Cal., girl, who has created a sensation in tennis circles by defeating Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke in the quarter finals of the Maidstone club tourney in East Hampton. It was first defeat for Mrs. Cooke in her last seven meets.

"Boots" Poffenberger Wants Another Chance

Denver, Aug. 8—(AP)—Rather aggrieved and considerably too plump, Cletus (Boots) Poffenberger wondered today if he'll ever get another chance to pitch in the big leagues. "Boy, am I ready," he said.

Baseball fans know Poffenberger, late of Detroit and Brooklyn, as a "bad boy" of the mound but Boots, sometimes called "the Baron," says "I don't believe I was so bad, only broke a few rules, and anyhow, I'm reformed."

"Boy, oh boy, if some big league club would just give me one more chance," said the blackeyed right-hander with the Maryland drawl. "Sometimes I feel like giving up baseball for keeps, but you gotta make a living and baseball's the only thing I know. I've never made too good a living from it, either."

Right now Poffenberger is under a 90-day suspension for smacking an umpire with the ball while pitching for Nashville after they wrangled over balls and strikes.

"Hit him right on the chest protector," Boots said. "Silly thing to do. First time I ever was th'owed out of a ball game in my life."

HOW TO SWIM

In some respects the sidestroke is a semi-crawl stroke

In some respects, the side-stroke is a semi-crawl stroke. The movement of the right arm, for example, is similar to the arm stroke in the crawl. It also is a stroke that does not require as much energy as the other strokes, for it is not essentially a speed stroke although personal variations can turn it into a speed stroke.

In doing the sidestroke, start out with the face-down float and perform the following steps:

1. Assume a side position in the water, either right or left, with your head cushioned on the water, but not submerged.

2. Lift whichever arm is out of the water, above your head, and make a single stroke, bringing it out again, near the hip, with elbow bent.

3. With the submerged arm make a downward stroke, and bring the arm up near the hip in a circular motion.

4. While making this stroke with the submerged arm, perform the scissors kick. To do the scissors kick, simply spread your legs as though you were going to take a great stride and then bring them swiftly into an "in line with body" position.

The sidestroke may be varied to suit your own individual bent. It is an easy stroke, restful and is particularly good for persons whose eyes are easily irritated by water.

Greenberg Up To Old Tricks

Jackson, Mich., Aug. 8.—Three months of army life have not dimmed the batting eye of Hank Greenberg.

The former Detroit Tiger star blasted a 390-foot home run, two doubles and a single for a perfect day at the plate in a game yesterday at the state prison for Southern Michigan. Hank played first base for the prison nine and his booming bat helped defeat the Fort Custer reception centre team, 10 to 2.

Greenberg, cheered heartily by the 4,000 inmates in the stand, doubled to left field in the second inning in his first trip to the plate since he was inducted early in May. He came up again in the third to blast out his long circuit blow off pitcher Ralph Leonard; then added a double in the fifth and a single in the sixth to his record.

Greenberg, assigned to the fifth army division at For Custer, never has played with the post team. However, he accompanied the squad to the prison yesterday, and on insistence of the prison inmates, took over the first base job for their team.

CANADIAN PLAYS CRICKET AT LORDS

Lieut. Clarke Bell Chosen for British Empire Eleven Aug. 7

London, Aug. 8—(CP)—Sir Pelham F. Warner has invited Lieut. Clarke (Sparky) Bell, well-known Toronto cricketer, to play at Lord's famous home of the Marylebone Cricket Club, for a British Empire Eleven against a selected team on Aug. 7.

Bell, also a rugby and hockey star, is overseas with a Central Ontario unit and is organizing sports officer at a Canadian camp somewhere in England.

Best known as a cricketer, Bell played for Ridley College and Toronto Cricket Club and was one of the leading batsmen on Hon. R. C. Matthews' Canadian cricket team that toured England in 1936. On that occasion he played against M. C. C. at Lord's. Before leaving for the United Kingdom he played for Camp Borden in the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

Ponies Win Benefit Game

Peterborough, Aug. 8 (CP)—Kingston Ponies defeated Peterborough-Oshawa Combines here last night 7 to 3 in a Memorial game held following the drowning of Charles J. (Chuck) Kearns, former manager of Petes, who was drowned in Rice Lake about three weeks ago. More than 2,500 fans paid admission to see this, the first baseball game here this season.

From the combined offerings of Jakafby, Whitehill and Deyell, Kingston banged out fourteen hits; they walked two and struck out four. Jarfell and Kelleher, pitching for the Ponies, gave up eight hits, struck out seven and walked none.

Fred Cochrane Joins Naval Reserves

New York, Aug. 8 (AP)—Freddie (Red) Cochrane is in the naval reserves, the first world's boxing champion to enlist in the armed forces of the United States.

Less than two weeks after he dethroned Fritzie Zivic for the welterweight title, the Elizabeth, N.J., fighter joined up yesterday for a four-year term. He is likely to be assigned to work with Lt.-Cmdr. Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion, who is athletic director at Pensacola, Fla.

"Having fulfilled my ambitions to win a world's boxing championship" Cochrane said "I am happy to announce that I have joined the United States naval forces. I always wanted to enlist. It is up to us young men to do any actual fighting that might come along and the uppermost thought in my mind was to be ready and fit when the call came."

Governor General's Trophy Play Opens Here

The first stages of the Governor General's Trophy for the Lawn Bowling Championship of Ontario will get under way in several Eastern Ontario towns this evening.

Two Belleville rinks have entered the tournament. One of the local rinks will meet a Kingston men's rink here tonight while the second rink will journey to Kingston and engage a Kingston rink. At the same time Stirling and Campbellford playoff in a similar manner. The winners of these preliminaries will then meet and the ultimate victor advance into the semi-finals for the Governor General's Cup at Ottawa.

All games will be 21 ends. The two Belleville rinks will be skipped by Ab Wonnacott and Ernie Vanner, the former skipping the home team at the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club this evening, while Mr. Vanner's rink goes to Kingston.

HOW DO YANKEES WIN PENNANTS?

Sport Writer Gives His Impressions of the 1941 Team

By DILLON GRAHAM
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Aug. 8—(AP)—The Yankees win pennants because they have adequate pitching and fielding and the hardest punch in baseball.

No team with a two or three run advantage in the ninth inning can afford to feel too optimistic, for the Yanks are dangerous until the last putout. Any man in the line-up can explode a triple or homer.

Other teams boast a higher squad batting average but the Yanks are far out front in homers, runs-batted-in, and total bases. Where other teams may get their scores in ones or twos the Yanks often get theirs in clusters of three and four.

The Yanks are leading both leagues in homers and runs-batted-in with Joe DiMaggio and Charley Keller setting the individual pace. They have players who can spark the club, as DiMaggio did with his record-breaking 56-game consecutive contest hitting streak.

Good Pitchers

New York doesn't possess a single great pitcher this year but it has a large squad of good pitchers with the veteran, Red Ruffing, first with a dozen victories. Manager Joe McCarthy has used nine starting pitchers and in a recent 9-game stretch McCarthy used eight different starters and won eight games. He has a crack pair of left handers in Marius Russo and Vernon Gomez.

It's a good defensive club. Joe Gordon is regarded by many as baseball's best second baseman and DiMaggio as the No. 1 out-fielder. Bill Dickey still is tops as a catcher. Phil Rizzuto and Gordon are threatening the league double-play record.

The Yankees, too, have a habit of coming up with at least one star rookie every year. There was DiMaggio in 1936, Gordon in 1936, Keller and Atley Donald in 1939, Ernie Bonham in 1940 and Rizzuto in 1941.

So: You can't tab a single factor and say that's what makes the Yankees click. It's a combination of all things, starting with the scouts and going through the farm system, crack players, competent managers, good morale, power, pitching, fielding. That's your champion Yankees.

A NEW-WORLD FRIENDSHIP
Deep-Rooted as the Oaks at Lambton

As a symbol of this international friendship, the Canadian Open Golf Championship has a significance over and above its importance as a major sport event. That is why the House of Seagram is proud to pay its respects to the golfers of both countries competing for the honour of winning the Canadian "Open" and the Seagram Gold Cup.

FRIENDSHIP between the United States and Canada is rooted deep in the common ground of respect and goodwill. For over a hundred years the two countries have lived side by side in peace and tranquillity... their citizens crossing and recrossing a boundary unmarred by a hostile gun ... meeting each other in business, in sport and in recreation... setting the world a new design for living in which aggression is outlawed by mutual tolerance and the free interchange of ideas.

LUCKY FOR LOVE

by JANE DIXON

CHAPTER TWENTY

A Summons, A Dinner Date

"Gee, Marilyn, what's happened?" Kathleen Garvan leaned over from her desk to inquire. "You look like a ghost. Can I get you a glass of water?"

Marilyn said, so low that Kathleen had to strain to catch the words, "Thanks. I'm all right. I'm fine. I guess it was the memo—it sort of surprised me. It's from Mr. Gordon, Bruce Gordon. I'm to see him in his office."

"From the boss? Personal form B.G. himself?" Kathleen's eyes were so wide they resembled twin blue pools. "Gee, that really is something!"

Marilyn followed the boy, conscious only of the heaviness of her feet and the dryness of her lips. He led her through a series of two outer offices in which typewriters clicked busily, and motioned her through a door. Across one corner of a room flooded with sunlight was a great mahogany desk. It was the largest, the handsomest desk Marilyn had ever seen, the deep red-brown of its surface burnished to shining satin, the carved figures across its front standing out in bold relief like living things marching. Behind the desk, the height of him commanding its expanse, sat Bruce Gordon.

"Come in, Miss Marsh," he called cordially and turned to a slim dark girl who obviously had been taking dictation. "That will be all for the present, Miss Thompson." The girl left immediately, closing the door after her.

"Sit down, won't you?" Bruce Gordon rose and drew a chair closer to his own. "You admire the desk, don't you? It was father's. Rather a beauty. Not easy to live up to always, nor to him—father. You're wondering why I sent for you. There's a little matter—"

"I know, Mr. Gordon," Marilyn said, surprised by her own calm, now that she faced the inevitable. "I'm sorry."

"You know?" It was the man, now, who showed surprise. "I'd have sworn—but I'm afraid I'm the one to be sorry. I owe your sister an apology, Miss Marsh."

"You owe my sister—you owe Clara an apology? What for? Why should you apologize to Clara—after last night—"

"For being pretty abrupt when she telephoned me a half hour ago and asked me to dine with her in her hotel apartment this evening. She said that you, too, are to be a guest. Somehow the invitation didn't quite ring true. I pleaded another engagement."

Marilyn flushed so painfully that Bruce Gordon turned his head to gaze out the window. Suddenly he wanted to take her in his arms, to hide her face on his shoulders.

"The invitation was not true, so far as I am concerned in it, Mr. Gordon," Marilyn said. "I know nothing about dinner with Clara. This is the first I've heard of it—from you."

Those flecks of fire came into Bruce Gordon's eyes again. "I suspected as much," he said. "So I declined. Said I had an engagement. Perhaps it was wishful thinking. Perhaps—would you dine with me this evening, Miss Marsh?"

The question was so unexpected, so eager, so ringing with sincerity it brought Marilyn to her feet. Impulsively she held out her hand.

"Why yes, of course," she said, tingling with a new joy. "I'd love dining with you."

* * *

A few minutes after half past seven the house phone in Marilyn's room rang and a voice that quickened her already racing pulse said, "This is Bruce Gordon. I'm downstairs in the lobby."

"Oh yes, Mr. Gordon, I'll be down at once."

Marilyn rushed back to the mirror to complete her toilet. She was wearing the black frock of the night before and a chic little pillbox of a hat, black and saucy, accenting the copper-red in her hair. The hat had been a hasty and reckless purchase on her way home from the office. It was the first money she had spent for herself from her Clarco prize award, aside from actual necessities. But tonight she wanted to be bright and gay and attractive, and what can better make a woman feel bright, gay and attractive than a smart new bonnet?

Marilyn had returned to her room in the hotel to find it empty save for a maid quickly engaged in trying to bring order out of chaos. Clara had left clothing strewn about, and toiletries scattered over bureau and tables. Talcum dust and soiled towels littering the floor.

"The young lady who was here," Marilyn inquired, setting to work at once to help the fuming servant who was at no pains to conceal her contempt, "she has gone?"

"That she has," snapped the maid, "an' good riddance to bad rubbish. Her ringin' for service ever' other minit, orderin' this an' orderin' that, shoutin' at myself, she did, because she couldn't get in them clothes in the closet on account of them bein' too small so's she couldn't pry 'em on even with a shoehorn. So then she sent to her own hotel an' a maid from there brung her clothes. An' she left without as much as a thankya after turnin' this place downside up till you'd think wild horses'd been trompin' in it."

"I'm sorry," Marilyn said. "I'll help with the room and pay you. Cla—the young woman leave?"

"Near four of the afternoon I'd say it was." The maid was mollified. "Right after she'd called up some man on the phone. What he said made her so hoppin' mad she threw a airbrush under the bed an' stomped her feet an' then she sailed out like she was a queen 'stead of nothin' but a huzzy—begging your pardon, miss."

Marilyn thought, "I should excuse myself to Bruce—to Mr. Gordon. I should go on trying to get hold of Clara, trying to help her get hold of herself. Maybe if I went to Herman Hess, if I begged him to help me, to help Clara—"

But indignation over Clara's unbelieveable behaviour — indignation and a disquieting urge to sit across a table from a tall young man with sun in his hair and flecks of light in his eyes, these were stronger, tonight, than a sisterly sense of duty.

When Marilyn stepped from an elevator, Bruce Gordon hurried forward to take her arm. The touch of his hand on her elbow was friendly, comforting. He knew the exact proportions of courtesy and intimacy necessary to put a girl at her ease.

"This is sporting of you, Miss Marsh," he greeted her. "It was cheeky of me to ask you to share your evening with me but—well, I wanted a part of it so very much, and the question just popped out before I could do anything about it. Have you a favorite eating spot, by the way?"

"No favorites," Marilyn said. She felt warm and safe and exultant. "I'm a stranger in the city, you know. I'm glad the invitation popped before you could get it under control."

"We'll make better time in a taxi," Bruce Gordon said, handing Marilyn into a cab. "I've an idea for you, to take or reject as you like. Martino is feeling much better, in fact he is sitting up. I though you might like to stop and pay him a call. I've arranged to have the doctor stand by for a while in case you decide to honor us. He is there now and will wait until he hears from me."

"Oh, could we?" anxiously. "I've felt terribly about not being able to see Al. It was my fault, his being hurt. He went to the Blue Parrot to help me—about Clara—he might have been badly hurt, even killed. He's such a real friend, so loyal and—and—well, Al is just about the best friend a girl could have."

"Friend?" The question was made to sound like a casual one, but there was deeper meaning behind it.

"Why yes," Marilyn went on enthusiastically. The deeper meaning had escaped her. "You saw what happened in the Blue Parrot. I had to find Clara. Poor Al! Being my friend hasn't brought him much luck, has it? A near-broken head—it's pretty high price to pay—for friendship."

"Thanks," Bruce Gordon said, cryptically and drew Marilyn's hand through his arm. "At least I hope—I understand. Here we are. I'll have the taxi wait. The doctor says you're to stay only a few minutes. Poor devil got quite a shock."

The taxi drew up before a tall building with stone balustrades just off Fifth avenue. Inside luxury was so restrained it was almost severe. The elevator ascended noiselessly, and Marilyn was in a spacious room of leathers and rich dark woods and deep chairs that invited. A pungency of fine tobacco was in the air. She judged there must be hundreds of books in comfortable disarray lining the walls.

"May I present Dr. Lentz," Bruce Gordon introduced a spare little man with thick pince nez astride his nose. "Miss Marsh, Dr. Lentz. How's the patient?"

"Tsck, tsck, tsck," the doctor clucked. "Insists on getting up and going about. Headstrong young pup. Says he has work to do. Humm—who hasn't? I've threatened him. I've promised to give him a bump on the other side of his head if he doesn't settle down and obey orders."

Bruce Gordon laughed heartily. "The doctor believes in strong medicine," he explained to Marilyn. "I know. He palms his concoctions off on me whenever he gets a chance. He's been doing it since I was cradle-high and too weak to fight back."

N. Y. STOCKS

New York, Aug. 8—(AP)—Specialties accounted for the feeble rallying flurries in today's stock market while most leaders shifted indifferently over a narrowly irregular route.

Some buying cropped up on the theory a come-back might be in the offing after the nine-session stalemate. The majority of gains that appeared were in minor fractions and declines were plentiful near the final hour. Dealings were relatively sluggish, transfers being at the rate of about 500,000 shares.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Aug. 8.—(CP)— The Toronto Stock Exchange today held fairly steady through the early period apart from moderate realizing in O'Brien. Industrial stocks had a few more gains than losses at noon. Heavy trading in Naybob, totalling about 50,000 shares in the first three hours, helped to lift the aggregate volume for the first three hours to 196,000 shares.

O'Brien sold back to $1.40 for a loss of 15 cents and prices were down a bit for Kerr-Addison, Preston, Upper Canada and Malartic Gold Fields against narrow gains for Pickle Crow, Wright-Hargreaves and Naybob.

Action in the Base Metal shares was confined mainly to Steep Rock and the price was down nine cents to $1.71. Noranda firmed slightly. In the Western Oils Calgary and Edmonton was off a cent to $1.40 and Royalite added a minor fraction.

Bell Telephone, Distillers-Seagrams, Consolidated Paper, Cement Pfd. and Steamship Pfd. were among the industrial gainers.

U.S. ACQUISITION OF DEFENCE BASES ATTACKED IN BERLIN

Berlin, Aug. 8—(AP)—All Berlin evening papers today directed columns-long broadsides against American acquisition of defence bases, charging the United States has or is negotiationg for 121 naval and air bases in Central and South America.

They asserted that some were obtained under the "pretence" of fostering civil aviation and alleged that pressure was brought on Latin American countries by shutting off fuel supplies.

The commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland said the United States has bases in both Greenland and Iceland and plans to establish others in Northern Ireland, the Azores, the Cape Verde Islands, and Dakar, Freetown and Liberia.

Kingstree, S.C., Aug. 8—(AP)—A man returned a marriage licence to Probate Judge Flora K. Snowden with this notation: "I got the licence to have it ready whenever my girl said 'Yes.' But when I get drunk she refuses to marry me and when I'm sober I wouldn't have her."

Weekly Livestock Report

Toronto, Aug. 8—(CP) — Bulls were down fully 25 cents this week while other grades of cattle held steady on the Livestock Market here. Some 400 plain killers and stores were unsold at the close.

Calves were steady to 50c higher on vealers and 50c lower on grassers.

Hogs dropped 15 cents at the close.

Lambs were down 50 cents while sheep held steady.

The Toronto market was open on Monday, Civic Holiday.

Buying was fairly good in the cattle section but some 2,000 cattle were left unsold at the end of Monday's trade. During the week weighty steers sold at $8 to $9.25 with three loads at $9.50. Butcher steers and heifers sold at $7.50 to $8.85 with occasional tops at $9. Butcher cows were $5 to $6.75 and a few at $7. Canners and cutters sold at $3.30 to $4.75. Bulls were slow, closing at $5.50 to $6.25 for bolognas and at $6.50 to $7 for butchers. Fed calves were $9 to $11. Stockers were slow sellers at $7.50 to $8.40 for the pick of the supply with others downward to $5.50. Packer buyers took some thin cattle as boners at $5 to $6 cwt. Good milkers and springers sold steady at $85 to $95 each.

Veal calves were strong to 50c higher at $11.50 to $12.50 for choice with common downward to $7. Stock calves sold at $6.50 to $8 and grassers were mostly at $6 cwt.

Hogs opened at $14.75 dressed and closed at $14.60. Orders for out-of-town packers were below normal and buying by local butchers was also slack. Sows sold at $9.75 to $10 dressed.

Lambs opened steady with last week's decline at $12.50 for good ewes and wethers but dropped to $12 on Tuesday, holding to the close. Bucks closed at $10 to $11. Sheep were steady at $2.50 to $4 for culls and up to $6 and $6.50 for light ewes.

Produce Lines Firm

Toronto, Aug. 8 — Prices on all lines held steady in rather quiet trading on the Toronto open produce market yesterday. Though demand was only spotty, offerings continued light and a firm undertone was evident in both butter and egg trading.

Prevailing prices held firm on a dull egg market, as fair demand proved sufficient to move light supplies. Grades A-large, A-medium and A-pullets closed at the recently advanced quotations of 36, 34 and 27 1-2 cents a dozen, respectively, in the country dealer section of trading and 37, 36 1-2 and 31 cents a dozen in wholesale-to-retail action.

No. 1 creamery solids held steady at 37 1-4 cents a pound under spotty demand and light offerings on the butter market. Prices of creamery prints held unchanged in wholesale-to-retail trading.

Churning cream was firm at the recently improved prices of 37c in the country and 40c delivered to Toronto.

LINER GEORGIC IS DAMAGED BY ENEMY ACTION

All Crewmen of 27,759-Ton Vessel of Cunard-White Star Line Safe Except Chief Barkeep

NO TROOPS ABOARD

London, Aug. 8—(CP)—The Cunard-White Star liner Georgic has been damaged by "enemy" action, the Ministry of Information disclosed today.

There were no troops aboard the 27,759-ton passenger liner at the time, the announcement said, and all crewmen were reported safe except the chief barkeeper.

Neither the time nor the place where the damage occurred was disclosed.

SENATE APPROVES EIGHTEEN-MONTH DRAFT EXTENSION

Washington Administration is Firm for Indefinite Extension of Army Service

'WITHOUT LIMIT'

Washington, Aug. 8 —(AP)— The House of Representatives wasted no time today in calling up United States Army service extension legislation, and administration leaders stood firm for an indefinite extension in preference to an 18-month maximum just voted by the Senate.

The Senate approved the 18-month extension by a 45-to-30 tally yesterday, providing $10-a-month more pay for service beyond one year, and House leaders promptly ordered an unusual session today with the determination to get a vote by Monday at the latest.

Manifesting no misgivings as to how the House vote would go, Chairman Andrew May (Dem.-Kentucky) of the military committee predicted that the Chamber would disregard the Senate's 18-month time limitation.

Without Limit

"I'm getting sick and tired of this question of whether we are going to defend our country for six more months, or 12 more months or 18 more months," May told reporters. "I believe in national defence without any time limit."

The heart of the Senate measure was the provision that would add a maximum of 18 months additional military duty to the present "hitches" of all selective service recruits, national guardsmen, reserves, and regular army enlisted men. All are now subject to only one year's service, except the regulars who sign up for three years.

Pay Boost

But before the measure passed at the end of a stormy session lasting more than six hours, the Senate wrote in a provision that would give all men with more than a year's service a $10-a-month pay boost. This would have the effect of upping the present base pay of a private soldier to $40 a month after the first year.

War Department officials said wording of the amendment as adopted was such that it was possible the pay boost might be retroactive, so that a regular enlisted man who had spent 25 years in the army might draw the additional $10 a month as back pay for 24 years.

DUKE IS WELCOMED AT PATRICIA BAY

Spent Busy Day of Inspections of Air, Naval and Army Establishments

Victoria, B.C, Aug. 8 — (CP) — Welcomed to Vancouver Island yesterday at Patricia Bay Air Station 18 miles from here, by one of the largest crowds which has yet greeted him on his Dominion tour, the Duke of Kent today was ready to fill a busy program of inspections of naval and army establishments in and near this British Columbia capital.

He will be guest of honor at a luncheon at noon of Royal Canadian Air Force officers of the Western Air Command headquarters, senior officers of the navy and army and government officials. Later in the afternoon he will attend a tea and reception of officers in the officers' mess at Work Point Barracks.

Western Air Command Inspection

His program includes an inspection of headquarters of the western air command, inspection of the quarters and reception of officers at the naval barracks, inspection of military units and the march past at Work Point Military Barracks.

The Duke will leave later in the afternoon for Patricia Bay Royal Canadian Air Force station, where he is scheduled to arrive at 7:15 p.m. (P.D.T.) 10:15 p.m. E.D.T., and be received by a guard of honour before taking off by plane for Vancouver.

Yesterday, a crowd estimated by officials at close to 2,000, watched and cheered as the Duke's plane taxied in to a landing at Patricia Bay Air base.

They stood for nearly two hours in a broiling hot sun while the Duke inspected a guard of honor, took a royal salute and march past and inspected the base establishment in a tour of the grounds.

And along the route of the ducal party followed from Patricia Bay to Victoria, small groups of nearby residents waved British flags and cheered as the Prince drove to the capital city in the same car used by the King and Queen on their Canadian tour.

2 ATTENDANTS KIDNAPPED

Mojave, Calif., Aug. 8.—(AP)—A man and a woman held up a filling station today, warned two young attendants not to notify police, then returned and kidnapping both youths after a police alarm had been broadcast. They also stole special Deputy Sheriff Frank Webb's car.

Captain Scott of the Highway Patrol said the man, about 35, and woman, about 30, got $70 from a filling station.

MOBILIZATION

were drawn for the armored division now is about 2,000 under strength for the units authorized and all but two of the units for the division have been authorized, said the minister.

Rate of Recruiting

Since July 5, recruits have been enlisted at an average rate of 325 to 360 per day for six days a week, the minister said. In the last week which was included in the average there was a slight falling off, probably due to seasonal activities such as farming operations. Steps are being taken to keep up the flow of men into the army by way of further organization of recruiting machinery.

The minister expressed satisfaction at the way men called up for compulsory training are volunteering for overseas service.

"Out of the first four-month training class which numbered 4,012, we have enlisted 2,414," he said.

Air Force Recruiting

"The air force now is engaged very actively in recruiting and there is a complete understanding between the air force and the army as to certain fields where the air force is given the right of way."

Army liaison officers are stationed in air force recruiting offices and air force liaison officers in army offices. Thus if a man fails to meet air force requirements, possibly because of a slight eye defect the army representative can see him and perhaps enlist him.

The minister said no Canadian-made tanks have yet been issued to the troops. Some ten Canadian-made 25-pounder guns have been issued for training purposes in Canada.

Tank Situation Brightens

"The tank situation has brightened in the last month, I am informed, but it is a long hard pull," he said. "There are prospects of some deliveries next month.

Canada, however, had an agreement with Great Britain whereby the British would issue to the Canadian forces the tanks needed for operational and training overseas on the basis of their being replaced by Canadian tanks delivered to the British as available.

Consideration is being given to the design of a badge for issue to men who offer themselves for enlistment and are rejected, Col. Ralston said. The badge will be the same for all three armed services and regulations already drawn up have been submitted to the three services for approval."

Enforced Savings Talk Grows in U.S.

By Paul GESNER and JOHN BECKLEY

Associated Press Financial Writers

New York, Aug. 8 —(AP)— Talk is growing in United States business circles about enforced savings.

With reductions planned in automobile production and in many other civilian goods lines, people with lots of money are going to bid up prices, it is believed. But if the government could force individuals to save their money, they would not be such fierce competition for available consumer goods as manufacture of peace-time things is reduced.

John Maynard Keynes, British economist, devised a sort of enforced savings plan for Great Britain which apparently is working smoothly.

Part of Income Tax

The British plan is a part of the income tax. Certain percentages of the amount paid in income tax, the government promises, will be returned to the payer at the end of the war in the form of postal savings receipts, which are cashable.

A married man with no children in Britain, who has an income of £200 ($890) a year, pays a total income tax of £13. At the end of the war, under the enforced savings provision, this man gets his entire £13 back.

As the income rises, the proportion of tax to be returned at the end of the war under the enforced savings plan decreases. A glance at taxes on higher incomes shows the trend.

A married man with no children and income of £400 a year, pays an income tax of approximately £81. At the end of the war he gets back £26.

A man of similar status, with an income of £500 a year, pays £126 and gets back £31.

On an income of £10,000 the British tax is £6,832 and under enforced savings the earner gets back £65.

That is the ceiling of return under the enforced savings plan. No matter how much a man earns in the five-and-six-figure brackets, he gets only £65 back for each annual contribution.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL CATCHES OTTER ON HOOK WITH WORM

Toronto, Aug. 8—(CP)—D. J. Taylor, Deputy Minister of Game and Fisheries, said today he had received word from Attorney-General G. D. Conant that he had the unusual experience of catching an otter while fishing on Lake Opeongo, Algonquin Park.

Mr. Taylor said the catch was made while Mr. Conant was using a worm and that it was the first time he had ever heard of such a catch. Otters, Mr. Taylor said, feed on fish and clams.

Australia Orders Large Transports For Air Force

Menzies Says 'We Are Immeasurably Better Equipped for Defence Than in 1939'

UNITS IN MALAYA

Adelaide, Aug. 8.— (CP)—Prime Minister R. G. Menzies said today that "Australia stands with bated breath in a most vital hour of her history".

He said that in the past week "the war has taken an ominous turn for Australia, but we are immeasurably better equipped for defence now than in 1939".

"Australia has never yet run away from the foe", Mr. Menzies added.

At Melbourne, Air Minister John McEwen said British Empire Air forces in the Far East, including Australian units now in Malaya, are strong enough to meet any emergency.

The Australian units in Malaya, he said, are being steadily reinforced without weakening the Commonwealth's Air strength.

Mr. McEwen announced he had ordered a number of large transports primarily for use of the Australian Air force. These, he declared, would permit concentration of air strength from distant stations and could be used as regular troops carriers if necessary.

Russians Rout Hitler Division, 2,500 Casualties

(By The Canadian Press)

Russian troops were reported battling fiercely to stem a two-headed drive on Leningrad today, with Nazi columns striking from the south along the shores of Lake Peipus and German-Finnish forces attacking from the north on the Karelian Isthmus, with 75 miles of the city.

Soviet reports indicated that the push from the north had temporarily abated overnight but noted heavy fighting south of the old-time capital of the Czars.

Littered With German Dead

A Red army bulletin reported that Russian troops had routed one of Hitler's elite death's head divisions, littering the field with 2,500 Germans killed and wounded.

German military dispatches pictured the strongest Nazi blows as falling on Russian forces in the Ukraine and the Germans declared that the remainder of Red Army troops surrounded in that grain-rich province were now "facing destruction".

An authoritative British war review in London declared that while the Germans still held the initiative in the 47-day old Russian campaign, the Nazi High Command was gravely concerned over "the slowness of the advance and the very heavy casualties".

Germans Turning Towards Caucasus

"Halted at Smolensk, facing Moscow, the Germans are turning southeast from Bel Tserkov, in the Ukraine, in a push toward the Caucasus", the British report said.

"There has been no great change in the situation in the last 24 hours.

"It is increasingly clear that on all other fronts the third great German offensive has been held and that progress in the Ukraine is very slow."

EXCHANGE VISITS OF EXPERTS PLAN

British and American Labor Experts May Study Defence Problem in 2 Countries

Washington, Aug. 8—(AP)—The office of production management was reported last night considering a plan for exchange visits of British and American labor experts to study defence industry problems in the two countries.

It was understood that a tentative invitation had been sent British labor groups, but that the State Department had received no definite acceptances as yet.

In the background of present plans, informed persons said, was an invitation originally extended to the American Federation of Labor by the British Trades Union. The A.F.L. accepted and chose George Meany, A.F.L. Secretary-Treasurer, to make the trip.

Subsequently, these persons added, the White House suggested that a Congress of Industrial Organizations delegate accompany Meany as evidence of labor unity in the United States, and the visit was called off.

Machine Gun Regiments Given Special Drill

Canadians 'On Their Toes When They Can Press Button and Let Bullets Fly'

By ROSS MUNRO

Somewhere in England, Aug. 8—(CP)—Every Canadian machine gun regiment is going through concentrated firing and tactical training on ranges here this summer.

One at a time the regiments come to this sunbaked camp for two or three weeks of highly-advanced work under direction of British army instructors who have handled these guns for years.

"This is the type of training the men really enjoy," said a Montreal colonel.

"It makes all the difference in the world when they actually fire the guns. They might seem to take it easy on exercises when firing is hypothetical, but when they can press the button and let the bullets fly they are on their toes.

One company was commanded by Maj. J. G. McBride of Montreal with Capt. George Logie of Sherbrooke, Que., as second-in-command.

Platoons were dispersed over a broad front. Lieut. J. H. Morehouse of Montreal led one on the right while platoons commanded by Lieut. F. G. Kay and Lieut. C. W. S. Scotcher, both Montreal, were deployed to the left In the centre was a platoon under command of Lieut. K. A. Mackenzie another Montrealer and one of the regiment's newest officers who came from the base holding unit recently.

The Colonel watched Lieut. Mackenzie's platoon as Sgt. S. F. Brown of Westmount, Que., hustled the guns into action. The troops crept forward to set up weapons behind bushes and clumps of scrub, ammunition boxes were lugged over the rough ground and trucks moved to the rear. As the Morehouse platoon opened fire from the gorse, the other guns picked it up like an echo.

ESSEN ARMAMENT

Predict Larger Offensives

As the British offensive, which began June 15, continued, Britons talked of a still-larger offensive to come with the combined United States and British production of planes. One commentator predicted the R.A.F. might soon drop 1,000 tons of bombs on Berlin in a single night with arrival of longer nights.

Planes also are playing a major role in the battle of the Atlantic which took a more favorable turn in July the First Lord of the Admiralty, A. V. Alexander, said last night in a speech at Newcastle.

Although giving no figures, he said July shipping losses were lowest in more than a year as a result of the joint effort of planes, convoys and north Atlatnic patrols. He warned the public, however, that the battle is not won.

The previous low month during the last year was last January when 306,002 tons of British, Allied and neutral shipping were sunk.

Feeble Raids on Britain

Nazi raiders, meanwhile, bombed a few places in eastern England and Scotland last night, injuring some people and causing some damage.

Durig daylight yesterday the R.A.F. smashed at a Nazi airdrome near St. Omer in occupied France. Enemy shipping and other targets near Gravelies were bombed. Four Nazi planes were shot down in these daylight sweeps, while Britain lost 10 fighter planes.

The assaults followed a storm-defying raid Wednesday night on northwestern Germany industrial centres of Frankfurt, Manneheim and Kalsruhe for the second successive night. During these night attacks a German night fighter was blasted from the skies as the R.A.F. roared through snow, sleet and electrical storms.

15,000 Students Help To Harvest Ont. Crops

Toronto, Aug. 8—(CP)—Fifteen thousand students and teachers have been placed on Ontario farms and orchards to assist farmers harvest crops, Department of Labor officials announced today.

Alex MacLaren, director of farm service, said today that in addition to between 900 and 1,000 farmerettes placed on farms, the fruit growers of the Niagara Peninsula expect to get about 500 soldiers from the Niagara-on-the-Lake camp to assist them in harvesting.

Mr. MacLaren said he is endeavoring to obtain another 500 boys, over 16, to meet farmers' immediate requirements. He added that from 118 volunteers, 60 youths are now encamped in the first boys' centre set-up at Harrow, working for the peach and tobacco growers in that area.

GERMANY WARNS IRAN AGAINST NAZI EXPULSION

More Than 2,000 Germans Estimated Now in Iran

NAZIS' REPORTED BOAST

Ankara, Turkey, Aug. 7—(Delayed)—(AP)—Germany was reported today to have warned Iran (Persia) she would sever diplomatic relations if the Iran government expelled German Nationals from the country. The warning was said to have been delivered by the Nazi minister at Teheran.

German diplomats also were understood to have boasted to the Iran government that the Nazi armies in Russia would be standing on Iran's Caucasian frontier before winter.

According to British estimates there now are more than 2,000 Germans in Iran employed in various technical and advisory capacities.

The Nazi warning was said to have followed a move by the Iran government to obtain native understudies for German engineers employed by the power, light and radio systems.

JAPANESE CHARGE DEMOCRACIES WITH ENCIRCLEMENT

Cabinet Bureau Spokesman Says Military, Political and Economic Cordon Formed

OFFICIAL COMMENT

Tokyo, Aug. 8 —(AP)— Japan has recognized officially military, political and economic encirclement of her empire by Britain, the United States, China and the Netherlands East Indies, Koh Ishii, cabinet information bureau spokesman, said today.

Ishii's blunt statement was the first government comment charging formation of a cordon around Japan. Before today the Japanese press alone had been sharply critical of reported American, British and Chinese preparations to forestall any possible Japanese military expansion beyond French Indo-China and had asserted the Americans, British, Chinese and Netherlanders were bent on offensive encirclement of Japan.

When Ishii's attention was called to a statement by the British Foreign Secretary, Anthony Eden, that preparations were being made at Singapore for any eventuality in Malaya or southern Asia, he said:

"Why is it necessary for the British to make such preparations? It is reported the British are concentrating troops near Thailand. Whether encircling or not they are making military preparations."

In a dispatch from Bangkok, capitol of Thailand, the Japanese news agency Domei claimed there was every indication the United States, Great Britain and China are making efforts to check Japan and that encirclement had been tightened by establishment of British air bases in Malaya and Burma.

(The official Thai radio commentator in a broadcast from Bangkok said last night:

("Thailand is extremely grateful to those offering her protection, but begs to decline same with thanks."

(He said the Thai government has enough officers and men to look out for its bases, but would welcome the assistance in the form of war materials which are needed.)

When asked if Russia were included in the alleged encirclement bloc, Ishii said, "That remains to be seen."

Lt.-Cmdr. Tota Ishimaru, regarded by Japan as one of her most authoritative naval experts, writing in the newspaper Hochi, said:

"Manchoukuo, China, Indo-China and Thailand have joined the co-prosperity sphere. Now we can draw on Indo-China and Thailand for iron, coal, rice and other food.

"Getting the (Netherlands) Indies oil and Malay rubber is a bit difficult, but should be a cinch if we tackle the problem after German fashion."

Japs Confiscate U.S. Oil

Shanghai, Aug. 8 (AP)—A Japanese navy spokesman said today approximately 2,000 barrels of oil aboard the Standard Oil tanker Meiyo had been confiscated by the Jajanese navy after "investigation disclosed the oil was destined for guerilla territory on the north bank of the Yangtse River" a few miles from here.

A Japanese Embassy spokesman denied a report that United States citizens unable to reach Shanghai from Japan "are being held as hostages." He said they may be unable to travel in trains or ships "due to congestion."

PEACE GLESIAS TO VISIT CANADA

Liberty, Another Daughter of Puerto Rican, Will Stay in New York

Washington, Aug. 8 — (AP) — Canada can look for Peace this summer but Liberty will stay in New York.

Peace and Liberty are two of the eight grandly-named daughters of former resident Commissioner Santiago Glesias of Puerto Rico.

The two girls disclosed today they had decided to devote their vacations this year to spreading the spirit of peace and liberty in the hemisphere — Peace fostering the spirit of peace, and Liberty doing the same for liberty.

The idea seemed so good that their six sisters—Equality, Fraternity, Justice, Light, America and Victory—chimed in with the announcement that they, too, would undertake similar missions on their vacations and seek to spread the ideals which inspired their names.

Peace is going to Canada, she said, with the hope of bringing peace to the British Empire. Liberty is going to New York to climb the statue of Liberty, among other things.

Weygand's Arrival Awaited in Vichy

Vichy France Aug. 8 (AP)—With Vichy awaiting the arrival of Gen. "The United [illegible] hesitate, as soon as it judges it expedient, to [illegible] strained words to unre[illegible] deeds," the editorial declared. "On that day French West Africa and Dakar, as well as Morocco, will be in danger."

Britain to Turn Clock Back Hour After Double Summer Time

London, Aug. 8 (CP)—Britain will turn the clock back one hour at 3 a.m. Sunday morning after three months of "double summer time," which is two hours ahead of Greenwich time.

Under "double summer time," a device to get the most out of sunlight and conserve electric power during the long summer daylight hours, London time was six hours ahead of Eastern Daylight Time. Now it will be five.

U. S. Nurse Who Labored in Balkans Homeward Bound

Lisbon, Aug. 8—(AP)—Alice Carr, a United States nurse who fought poverty, famine and disease in the Balkans and Middle East for more than 20 years, is homeward bound —retiring after war made her work hopeless.

The white-haired woman, a native of Yellow Springs, O., who went overseas with the American Expeditionary Force in 1917, saw bombs and shells wipe out most of the back-breaking work she has done through thousands of days and nights in Greece.

"I have had enough," she said. "I am retiring.

"It is hopeless now. There is no food, no medicines, nothing—and no way to get any. There are just people with hunger in their eyes, staring at you. It is worse than it was 20 years ago."

Miss Carr worked with the Red Cross in Serbia, Poland and Czecho-Slovakia after the First Great War.

One of her most conspicuous activities was the part she played in ridding Greece of malaria. Beginning in the mid-20's she achieved her goal when doctors of the Rockefeller Foundation organized a campaign in 1935 to wipe out the malaria-carrying mosquito which ranged over a wide area after leaving the century-old swamps of the marathon plain.

For her work in Greece she was decorated by the government three times.

She also helped the Turks conquer malaria, paving the way for construction of Ankara as the modern capital of Turkey.

RAF AIRCRAFTMAN HELD AT ROUYN

Addressed Service Club at Rouyn in Guise of Pilot Who Brought Duke of Kent Across

Rouyn, Que., Aug. 8 (CP) — A leading aircraftman of the Royal Air Force who addressed a service club here in the guise of a pilot who brought the Duke of Kent across the Atlantic was being held for military authorities here today.

The aircraftman, a student at the Commonwealth Air Training School at Port Albert, Ont., was scheduled to speak over a local radio station on the subject of his supposed transatlantic flight when Rouyn police uncovered his hoax and arrested him on instructions from the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

The student flier visited here last March when he claimed to have come over from England to take advanced training in bomber flying. Two weeks after he left, he wrote a letter to friends here saying he had been promoted to the rank of Flight Lieutenant and would be returning to England within a couple of weeks to take part in the defence of London.

When the aircraftman returned this week-end, he was wearing the stripes of a flight lieutenant and the ribbon of the Distinguished Flying Cross. After he was taken into custody, police said he admitted the stripes and ribbon were home made.

On his arival here, the aircraftman was reported to have told friends he commanded a fighter squadron in England until two months ago when he broke both ankles in a bad landing.

THE WAR TODAY

BY DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The Japanese have revived an old device of Nazi propaganda, the "encirclement" charge that Hitler used with such effect in formulating his war plans.

The official spokesman for the Japanese government charged today that Japan is faced by a gigantic encirclement — military, political, economic—sponsored by Great Britain, the United States, China and the Netherlands East Indies, with Thailand pictured as being sought as an additional link in the chain.

In the pre-war years Hitler sought to justify all his moves as necessary to forestall the encirclement allegedly plotted by France, Great Britain, Russia and pro-Allied countries in the Balkans. Apparently Japan is now adapting to her own uses another leaf of Mein Kampf.

The Japanese spokesman professed not to understand why it is necessary for Britain to make military preparations in Layaya and Burma adjacent to Japanese-coveted Thailand. The implication of this line of comment is that Japan hopes to concoct a few specious excuses few affording Thailand "protection" against alleged British scheming.

Thus the Domei News Agency today claims it learned from Thailand sources that Britain has approached Thailand for use of military bases there as part of the alleged encirclement. In return, Domei claimed Thailand was offered a "consideration" regarding territory in Malaya and Burma which once belonged to the Siamese.

News from Thailand seems to indicate a readiness to resist any Japanese aggression providing immediate British support is available. For the present the Bangkok government appears anxious not to give Japan any unnecessary excuses for action, while at the same time welcoming Anglo-American assurances and hoping for immediate material support in the way of military equipment.

While there are no outward signs that an explosion in the Far East is in immediate prospect, Prime Minister R. G. Menzies said at Adelaide today that in the past week "the war has taken an ominous turn for Australia", which he said "stands with bated breath in a most vital hour of her history".

Another Australian leader, Air Minister John McEwen, said at Melbourne that British air strength in the Far East, including Australian units in Malaya, are strong enough to meet any emergency.

Brisbane, Australia, Aug. 8 (AP) —Cheering citizens showered streets here with confetti and streamers today as 500 sailors and marines from United States cruisers and 400 New Zealanders marched through the city. Mounted troopers and strong police lines prevented the men from being mobbed by the welcoming throngs as was the case on a previous visit.

2,000 VICHY SOLDIERS JOIN

London, Aug. 8 (CP)—Free French headquarters announced today that more than 2,000 Vichy soldiers had joined Free French forces in Syria up to July 31. They were mainly men who had escaped without waiting for the armistice which gave every Vichy French soldier the right to choose between repatriation to France or enlistment in the forces of General Charles De Gaulle.

Put Duce in Middle Of Desert Says Soldier Who is Serving There

Following is a reprint of a story which appeared in a Brighton, England newspaper. The context is a letter written to his father by a British soldier serving with the middle east forces. The clipping was sent to Mrs. A. Ayling, 63 Harriet Street, this city by a sister, who is a relative of the writer.

The Western Desert, thrice accursed hole! If Musso's so keen on it I wish they'd give it to him; he can have it all so far as I'm concerned! I'd like to stick him in the middle of it, give him some bully, biscuits and a water-bottle and tell him to march to the nearest oasis—if he could find one!

I've marched in it, worked in it, fought, slept, drilled, been inspected, played (football and chess), laughed and at times nearly cried in it. I've done all that ever a soldier can do in it. I often think doing so much in it has got into my soul. It must be in my system anyhow, for I've had it in my tea, water, food, books, tobacco, pipe, match-box, soap, shaving-gear, under my nails, in eyes, nose, ears and throat—and am fed up with it! Camping at night on the hills, bitterly cold with one blanket (if lucky), sweat-soaked during the day and mist-soaked at night, with scorpions and centipedes for bedfellows.

We're building on the edge of a banana grove—queer looking things banana trees, blossom about 3-4ft., shaped something like a tulip but with more petals, colour deep crimson, turning purple, almost black near the tips of the petals. The latter fade and the small bananas sprout and grow on a stem behind the flower, which then hang downwards. The shade of banana tree is great broad leaves. Small pied wagtails haunt this grove; it's welcome change to see these tiny birds instead of the eternal big crows and vultures.

These colonies are settlements of Jew refugees who have bought the land and laboured on it to grow things where nothing grew before. This particular one is peopled with Czechoslovaks and Polish Jews, very nice folk too, far different from the Palestinian Jew. Polite, happy, smiling and generous!

The women work besides the men in the fields, look after the cows and chickens. Their life is communal; they share all they possess, eat altogether in a long dining-room; all take turns at the different kinds of work. Scrupulously clean, food simple, almost wholly vegeterian, plenty of it and good. Today I had for brekker four eggs, bread and marge, semolina pudding, tomatoes, tea—not great this tea, but as it's milkless its weakness doesn't much matter—and jam. Somewhat better than army grub, eh! Bread, buff colour, crust rather tough, but well made and baked.

R. C. A. F. Issues 61st Casualty List

Ottawa, Aug. 8.— (CP)— The Royal Canadian Air Force, in its 61st casualty list of the war today announced names of thirteen men killed overseas, seven missing overseas, two killed in flying accidents in Canada, one drowned in Canada and one death in Canada from natural causes.

The list also included the names of two airmen now known to be prisoners of war after having previously been listed as missing.

Today's list brought to 525 the number of men reported dead or missing in R.C.A.F. casualty lists since the war started.

By categories today's list reported: killed during air operations overseas, one; killed in overseas flying accidents 12; missing in air operations overseas, five; missing in overseas flying accident, two; previously reported missing now prisoner of war, two; seriously injured in overseas flying accident, one; killed in Canadian flying accident, two; drowned in Canada, one; died in Canada from natural causes, one; seriously injured in Canadian flying accident two; seriously ill in Canada, one.

IS ROOSEVELT MEETING CHURCHILL IN ATLANTIC?

Persistent reports from both Washington and London indicate that President Roosevelt, LEFT, and Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain, RIGHT, heads of the two great democracies of the world, will meet, or are meeting somewhere on the Atlantic Ocean . Reasons given for this belief are that unusual secrecy surrounds the President's "vacation" cruise aboard the presidential yacht Potomac, TOP; Nothing is known of the whereabout of Churchill or Harry Hopkins, F.D.R.'s lease-lend representative, who has just returned from Moscow to London, and the chief executive has in the past expressed a desire to meet the British leader.

FLYING IN COMFORT

Among the million passengers carried by one of the leading airlines in the years 1938 through 1940, one person in 400 suffered from air sickness; one in 800 complained of lack of oxygen; one in 1,300 had ear trouble, and one in 1,400 complained of nervousness. These are the main factors of discomfort encountered on the air lines of the United States.

In order to enable medical men to determine the chief complaints of airline passengers, the stewardesses who are usually graduate nurses, turn in reports at the termination of each trip with notes on every case. There are also available records on the weather, the height, the altitude, the speed and similar matters. Thus the physicians who examine the reports are able to analise why passengers suffer.

It is impossible to eliminate airsickness entirely, because there are some persons who get motion-sick even in automobiles, buses, trains, or swings. Nevertheless, experience shows that passengers who have bene drinking are likely to be air sick quicker than those who are sober. High altitude, roughness of the air, and faulty ventilation and heat also contribute to air sickness. Sometimes an insufficient amount of fresh air or too much heat will precipitate an attack which might otherwise be avoided.

The stewardesses are provided with effervescent drinks and also with smelling salts which sometimes aid in preventing attacks if used soon enough.

In a recent report from the Harvest Fatigue Laboratory the facts about air sickness have been summarized. They show that air sickness is definitely related to the sense of balance or equilibrium. This sense is associated closely throughout the nervous system with the sense of motion and position in space, with vision, and sensations coming from the stomach and internal organs. Therefore, overloading of the stomach or foods which are gas-forming and difficult to digest will accentuate air sickness.

In passenger planes, the rapid movements of the ship up and down in rough air, rather than turning, seem to be responsible for air sickness. However, the modern airlines seldom rolls in flight.

Altitude in airplanes seldom gives rise to nausea or vomiting, whereas altitude in a railway train or motor car may do this. The reason is, of course, that the railway train and motor car must go around many curves in climbing, whereas the flying movements are chiefly up and down.

Another cause of discomfort in flying is the painful sensation in the ear. Whenever the altitude is changed there may be pains in the ears. For this reason the stewardesses are told to awaken sleeping passengers as the ship is about to descend. The passenger is instructed to swallow frequently and may be provided with chewing gum to aid that maneuver. Babies and young children canot be told to swallow, and are therefore given fluids to encourage swallowing.

The modern airplane is provided with oxygen inhalations for those passengers who need extra oxygen at high altitudes. Nervousness is an important factor, and many people become less nervous if they are reassured by the pilots or the stewardesses relative to the safety of the flight.

Tomorrow: Tonsil dangers.

Tough Going Makes Nazis Turn South

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, Aug. 8.—(AP)—The latest chapter in Hitler's amazing story of Russian armies destroyed fails to furnish convincing evidence of smashing German victories, but it may explain why the main Nazi attack has shifted southward toward the Ukraine.

It is not yet clear whether the Russians still hold the great bend of the Dnieper—the Orsha-Smolensk-Mogilev triangle. If they do, the Germans' chances of pressing on toward Moscow are not bright. It may have been tough going there that led the Germans to make a radical change in their plans and strike southward below Kiev at Russian armies holding the Black Sea flank.

The German radio has broadcast a claim that Kiev is already encircled. Intimations from Berlin that Hitler has gone to the Ukraine front southwest of Kiev, bear out his declaration that a turning movement via Bel Tserkov in an attempt to sweep the region between the Dnieper and the Dniester to the Black Sea is in progress. It also serves to throw light on the Nazis' failure to widen their boasted gains in the Smolensk area.

Bastion Still Holds

The most recent Hitler bulletin told of German advances on a wide front on both sides of the Orsha-Smolensk road. If that refers to the railroad, however, it implies that the Russians still hold the south bank of the Dnieper from Smolensk to Orsha and the east bank from Orsha to Mogilev. The railroad is north of the river between Orsha and Smolensk.

For weeks that Mogilev-Orsha-Smolensk river bastion has been the main obstacle to the German advance on Moscow. It sharply limited the strategic value to the Nazi break-through from Vitebsk to Smolensk and further east along the Moscow railroad. Red forces holding the great river bend were on the flank of the Nazis' most advanced salient.

If it has not been cleared, a successful major attack on Moscow seems impossible. If the Hitler bulletin means Russian forces in the bend have been routed or destroyed, a gateway to Moscow 100 miles wide has been opened through the Stalin Line between Vitebsk and Mogilev. If that were so the Germans would hardly forego such an opportunity of dealing new and punishing blows in the vital centre.

Panzer Unit Cut Off

Russian reports placed the most recent fighting east of Smolensk at Dorogobuj. That is half-way between Smolensk and Vyazma, the most easterly point the Germans claimed to have reached along the main route to Moscow. The panzer unit at Vyazma has been cut off or thrown back toward Smolensk if the Russian version is correct.

In any case, there is ample evidence in Hitler's report on the Smolensk battle that the Russians have massed tremendous forces before Moscow. The claim of more than 300,000 Russians captured on that narrow front alone shows that. By Nazi yardsticks that would indicate total Russian casualties of close to 1,000,000 men in the Smolensk sector fighting.

Yet obviously the Russians are still holding there in great strength, too great for the Germans to press on immediately against Moscow. And if Russian forces still hold also the Mogilev-Orsha-Smolensk triangle in the great bend of the Dnieper and have thwarted any critical break-through at Mogilev to widen the base of the Smolensk salient to 100 miles or so, it is time for Hitler to turn elsewhere for a decisive victory.

He needs urgently a quick victory of major strategic consequence. It is not yet discernible before Moscow. It could be in the making south of Kiev in the Ukraine.

We were starting to go down to the dining room for dinner, and ma said to pop, Willyum I had to ask the Hewses for dinner tomorrow night, there was really no way I could avoid it.

Never spologise for hospitality, it's the crowning grace of civilisation and a wholesome laugh in the face of selfishness, pop said, and ma said, I know Willyum, I mean of course, but I'm thinking of Nora, we've had dinner guests twice this week already and Nora is abnormally touchy on the subjects of guests, wich of course is only natural on her part because she has to bare all of the brunt of the exter work, and I certainly wouldn't want to see her leave on her high horse now of all times when the servant problem is so acute. In fact I haven't even dared tell her about the Hewses coming tomorrow she said.

Leave it to me, I'll handle the situation, pop said, and ma said, Now Willyum, please be tackful.

I'll be better than that, I'll be firm, pop said.

And when Nora brought in the lamb stew pop said, Nora, there will be two exter for dinner tomorrow.

What, again, keep us and preserve us, Nora said, and pop said, Dont interrupt please. We expect Mr. and Mrs. Hews and they're very particular, he said.

And so am I about certain things, and one of them's guests night after night like a common hotel, Nora said, and ma said, Now Willyum, really, and pop said, Let me finish, please. As I was about to remark, Nora, I am a radical capitalist, in other words I believe in exter pay for exter work, so any time we have guests from now on you may expect an additional doller, he said

The result being Nora looked surprised and happy and ma just looked surprised.

'Bake Our Bread' Campaign May Begin If B.C. Prices Rise

Vancouver, Aug. 8—(CP)—A "bake your own bread" campaign may be sponsored by the Housewives League of British Columbia if bread prices continue to increase, according to Mrs. C. Greenwood, President of the League.

"We would regret very much having to take this step," Mrs. Greenwood said, "as a back-to-the-oven movement is not our idea of progress in a modern world with all its facilities for mass production."

Two large Vancouver bakeries this week increased bread prices one cent a loaf to seven cents for plain bread and eight for fancy and sliced loaves.

TEN MORE NAZI DIVISIONS LOSE HEAVILY

Russian Air Fleet Again Starts Fires In Nazi Capital

Red Airmen Smash Heavily at Troops, Motorized Columns On East Front

RAID NAZI DROMES

London, Aug. 9 (CP).—Authoritative sources said today the Germans seemed to be making headway in attacks toward Odessa but reported they lacked confirmation of "high-sounding claims the Germans are making" of other gains in the Ukraine.

(The Nazi high command claimed last night two Russian armies and part of a third had been wiped out in Ukraine encirclements and said the Germans had pushed on east of Uman, mid-way between Kiev and Odessa.)

Regard Nazi Claims Cautiously.

Because Russian communiques have made no reference to such Berlin claims, these sources said, they should be regarded with caution since previous German reports of large-scale advances sometimes have been "conveniently forgotten" by the Nazis later.

In the Odessa drive, it was said here, the Germans probably have pushed to within [illegible] Nikolaev. It is 60 miles northeast of the big Black Sea port.

Moscow, Aug. 9 (AP).—The Red army declared today that heavy losses had been inflicted on ten more German divisions—six tank and four infantry—in a battle on the eastern front.

Red Star, the army organ, said intercepted German sanitary service messages showed the following losses among the German divisions:

111th Infantry—20 per cent.
7th Tank—30 per cent.
56th, 297th and 299th Infantry—40 per cent.
11th, 13th, 14th and 16th Tank—40 per cent.
18th Tank—Tremendous.

(On a basis of 15,000 men to a German infantry division and 12,000 men to a German tank division, the Red army figures indicate casualties of roughly 50,000 men.)

These losses, the Red Star said, are in addition to the numbers of Nazi infantry, tank and mechanized divisions previously reported routed.

Its report followed a Soviet information bureau communique which reported a static situation on the whole front with the key sectors unchanged and the German lightning war cut down to local patrol fighting in some areas.

Again naming areas which have been war theatres for days, the midday communique said fighting continued throughout the night on the Karelian Isthmus north of Leningrad, on the Estonian front, near Smolensk and in the Bel Tserkov sector of the Ukraine.

"In other directions and sectors of the front," it added, "there was patrol activity and fighting of local character."

(Berlin said Nazi drives eastward from Smolensk toward Moscow and southward through the Ukraine toward the Black Sea port of Odessa were picking up speed.

(Authoritative British sources in London conceded that the Germans seemed to be progressing toward Odessa bu were skeptical of the "high sounding claims the Germans are making".)

Germans Report Moving Down Dnieper After Destroying 25 Red Divisions

ALLEGE 200,000 LOST

Berlin, Aug. 9—(AP)—Two communiques from Hitler's headquarters claimed today destruction of trapped Soviet defenders of Roslavl, 60 miles southeast of Smolensk, the capture of 38,000 prisoners there and the seizure of the rail town of Korosten, 80 miles northwest of Kiev.

First a special communique listed the 38,000 prisoners and quantities of weapons which, it claimed, were captured below Smolensk, where the High Command three days ago reported "a new enemy power party" was partly annihilated and partly encircled in a surprise thrust.

This is on the central front some 200 miles from Moscow but south of the main route to the capital.

Next the regular communique placed the location of this reported entrapment at Roslavl.

It also reported capture of Korosten, important junction on a subsidiary railway line northwest of Kiev, and south of the Pripet marshes.

Fighting in Thick Forests

The German units which claim Korosten fought for days in thick forests and swamps, the communiqué said.

Adding these claims to last night's special announcement of a deep penetration of the lower Ukraine which by-passed Kiev to the south, the High Command had announced within about 14 hours the capture of 141,000 prisoners on two major fronts.

As if to emphasize the Ukrainian thrust announced to the people with a fanfare of trumpets last night, today's regular communique repeated the detailed claims:

Two Soviet armies and part of a third, or 25 divisions in all, destroyed; 103,000 prisoners, including the supreme commanders of the 6th and 12 Russian armies, captured, and Russian dead and wounded more than 200,000.

Battle of Uman

All this, it claimed, was accomplished in the Battle of Uman, midway between Kiev and the Black Sea port of Odessa, in a drive which apparently is aimed at turning the whole Russian left flank and cutting off Odessa and the Southwest Ukraine, with resultant entrapment of the bulk of Soviet Marshal Semeon Budyenny's armies of the Ukraine.

GERMANS REPORTED

MASS SLAUGHTER OF RIVAL ARMIES CLAIMED IN EAST

London Sources Caution Regarding German Claims

STIFF RED RESISTANCE

Mass slaughter of both German and Russian armies was reported today at the end of seven weeks of war with Hitler's High Command asserting that more than 200,000 Soviet trops had been recently killed or wounded and 141,000 captured while the Russians indicated losses of some 50,000 men were inflicted on 10 more Nazi divisions.

Six German tank divisions and four infantry divisions—about 132,000 men—were said by the Russians to have suffered losses averaging about 30 per cent in a recent action The 18th Nazi tank division's casualties were described as "enormous" while others ranged from 20 to 40 per cent.

The German high command said Nazi invasion armies had dealt two gigantic new smashes at Russian defence in the Ukraine and in the vicinity of Roslavl, 60 miles southeast of Smolensk, on the central front guarding Moscow.

The Germans also claimed the capture of Korosten, rail junction tow 80 miles northwest of Kiev, after Nazi troops had fought in thick forests and swamps for days in the dreary region of the Pripet marshes.

Authoritative quarters in London conceded that the Germans seemed to be making headway in attacks toward Odessa, key Black Sea port, but they deprecated the "high-sounding claims the Germans are making" of other gains in the Ukraine.

These quarters said Berlin claims should be regarded with caution because previous German reports of big-scale advances had sometimes been conveniently forgotten" by the Nazis later.

Information reaching foreign military observers at Berne, Switzerland, indicated the Red Army's dogged resistance has forced the German High Command to revise its time-table for a swift cleanup in Russia to a schedule calling for victory west of the Caucasus Mountains by the end of September.

The September goal, it was said, calls for German occupation of Leningrad, Moscow and the Ukraine by that date with the Germans attempting to push to the Urals later.

Hailed by the Nazi High Command as "the first great success" in the south, the vast slaughter in the Ukraine was declared to have annihilated the Soviet 6th and 12th armies and part of the 18th.

Front-line dispatches, noting the stiffened Russian resistance at Uman, about midway between Kiev and the Black Sea port of Odessa, reported that entire villages in the area were razed in the fighting.

No hint of such a major defeat was contained in the Moscow communique. The mid-day bulletin said bitter fighting raged throughout the night with key sectors unchanged.

F.B.I. Agents Make Inquiry into Cause Of Explosion on Canadian Oil Tanker

Detroit, Aug. 9 (AP)—Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and Detroit police launched an inquiry today into the cause of an explosion which turned the Canadian oil tanker Transiter into an inferno and cost the lives of two of the 17 Canadians aboard.

Five minutes after the 180-foot Diesel-powered vessel left port late yesterday laden with 750,000 gallons of gasoline bound for Canada the tanker exploded and burst into flames on River Rouge in suburban Detroit.

As police searched the waters for the bodies of Mrs. Elida Tremblay, 46, of Murray Bay, Que., wife of the Captain, and Roger Prechette, 24, a deckhand, survivors related a tale of heroism.

With flames leaping about him, Capt. Rudolph Tremblay, they said, swung the ship in a wide arc to prevent it from drifting downstream and endangering oil stocks lining the shore. It nosed in the mud near the American Agricultural Company.

Tremblay then leaped from the tanker and reached shore with 14 crew members while a fireboat forced the burning ship upstream and away from the chemical company with streams of water.

Two of Crew in Hospital

Two of the crew, Francois Deschefieau, third engineer, and Edward Bartleau, cook, are in hospital for treatment of burns. Eight others, including Mrs. Jeanne Cascault, wife of the chief engineer, were released after treatment for minor burns and injuries.

Mrs. Tremblay and Mrs. Cascault had boarded the Transiter a week ago for a vacation trip.

Once before on April 22, fire broke out in the pumphouse of the Transiter in Lake Erie. While Capt. Tremblay and an engineer remained aboard to battle the flames 13 crewmen and two women, on orders, took to lifeboats and were rescued by the package freighter City of Toronto. The Transiter was towed to Port Stanley, Ont., and recommissioned.

Save Gas Now or Walk Later

The gasoline shortage in Canada is a serious thing. While the government's appeal to the motoring public has met with some response, more and more action in gasoline conservation is needed. Britain needs gasoline. Sunday, or any other day driving, is a puny thing compared with the present vital need. Your government has asked you to do your bit in this hour of need. Britain's fighting forces must have this precious fuel if they are to carry the war through to victory. We must not and cannot turn a deaf ear to the government's appeal.

After all the issue rests with the public. If it holds a deaf ear to the appeal, and places its foot on the accelerator, then other measures may be taken. Ahead of us is the weekend. Forget the family car and that planned drive. Walk to church, or stroll in the afternoon instead of "burning up the highways." Daily mileage can be cut. It is foolish to say that it can't. Feet were given man as a method of transportation, not to jam down on accelerators. Use them more and you will be doing your country a real service. Our ancestors walked and were better men for it. Remember: "a gallon a day will keep Hitler away."

SAVE GASOLINE NOW OR WALK LATER.

JAIL GOVERNOR'S POWERFUL FIST THWARTS PLAN

Two Youths Intercepted After Locker of Cell is Smashed and They Reach Corridor at Guelph

TURNKEY AIDS

Goderich, Ont., Aug. 9—(CP)—A hard-punching jail governor thwarted by the sheer power of his fists an attempted jail break by two youthful prisoners who were awaiting hearing on a car theft charge.

The governor, J. B. Reynolds, intercepted the youths, Ralph J. Delduca and Max Glassco, after they had smashed the lock of their cell and were making their way along a corridor to freedom. Reynolds caught Glassco pointblack on the jaw with a stiff uppercut and knocked him down.

At the same time Turnkey Kip White, hearing the commotion, came rushing to the scene with drawn revolver and forced Delduca to surrender.

The governor was making his rounds when he happened upon the jail-breakers. The one blow he dealt fractured his right thumb and a bone in the back of his hand.

Officials said a piece of iron pipe was discovered tied to Delduca's leg while Glassco carried the broken padlock wrapped in a towel. The pipe, believed to have been used in smashing the lock, had been torn from the plumbing of the cell block located on the upper floor.

Glassco and Delduca are two of five Windsor youths being held here on a charge of car theft in Hensall.

Meteor Shower Due on Monday

Tears of St. Lawrence Have Not Failed to Appear for 1,110 Years Straight

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

New York, Aug. 9—(AP)— The annual August meteor shower, the tears of St. Lawrence or Perseid meteors, is due Monday night.

These are the meteors which never have failed to appear for 1,110 years straight. They probably were visible in mid-summer long before that but were recorded first in scientific records in 830 A.D.

Before midnight, look to the northeast to see them; after midnight, right overhead. They fall at a rate of about 30 an hour.

They are shaped like tear drops, which is the reason the Irish long ago named them after St. Lawrence's tears.

They are grains of dust but travelling at about 40 miles a second they flash brilliantly as they consume in the friction of the upper air. They burn at about 80 miles altitude.

These bits of dust circle the sun in an ellipse so vast that the meteors take 108 years for a single circuit. They are supposed to be a continuous stream of meteor dust whose width is estimated variously from 3,000,000 to 15,000,000 miles.

BERNE HEARS OF REVAMPING OF NAZI TIME-TABLE

Report Says Nazis Hope for Victory Over Russia by End of September

REPORTED SCHEDULE

Berne, Switzerland, Aug. 9—(AP)—Red Army resistance has forced the Nazi High Command to revamp its time-table for the Russian campaign, but the Nazis still hope for a sweeping victory by the end of September, information reaching here from foreign military observers in Berlin indicated today.

The September goal calls for occupation of Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev and an advance to the Caucasus Mountains, these observers reported. Subsequently the program was said to call in advance to the Urals and establishment of a defence line there.

Originally, Hitler's plans envisioned capture of Leningrad three weeks after the campaign began and the fall of Moscow soon after, it was said. By the end of August, the Germans and their Axis allies were to have reached Astrakhan on the Caspian Sea, 1,700 miles southeast of Berlin, the information declared.

(A dispatch from Ankara, Turkey yesterday reported German diplomats in Iran (Persia) had boasted the Nazi armies would be on Iran's Caucasian frontier by winter.)

Completion of the new schedule, the information said, would mean:

1. Germany will set up a defence line from Lake Ladoga in the north to the Volga River east of Moscow, thence south on the west bank of that river to Astrakhan.
2. Turkey will be asked in October for free passage of German troops to be sent to battle Britain in the Middle East.
3. An attack on Siberia by Japan if the United States intervenes actively in the war.

Navy Takes Heavy Toll of Axis Ships In Mediterranean

Alexandria, Aug. 9 (CP).—Claiming freedom of action in the Mediterranean, the Royal Navy and the Royal Air Force have convoyed huge quantities of war materials to the Middle East for "the next forward drive", it was announced last night.

During July the two forces took a toll of almost two axis ships a day, striking at convoys seeking to strengthen German and Italian armies in Libya.

At least 23 ships totalling 168,000 tons were sunk and 30 others damaged by bombs or torpedoes.

Martha Raye Sprains Ankle as Car Plunges 100 Feet Into Canyon

Los Angeles, Aug. 9—(AP)—Martha Raye, screen comedienne, plunged 150 feet down a canyon in her automobile last night but escaped with only a sprained ankle. Miss Raye swerved to avoid a parked car and her own machine went into Laurel Canyon.

N. J. SHIPYARD STILL IN GRIP OF C. I. O. STRIKE

Gov't Urged to Take Over Plant Without Another Hour's Delay

17,000 MEN IDLE

New York, Aug. 9 (AP). — The huge shipyards of the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock Company at Kearny, N.J., remained in the grip of a C.I.O. strike today while the Union official who announced the walkout called for the United States government to take over the plant "without anoher hour's delay".

Peter Flynn, vice-president of Local 16, Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America, urged government intervention last night a few hours after Ralph A. Bard, acting secretary of the nevy, warned that steps would be taken to get production resumed unless there was a quick settlement.

The company has $493,000,000 worth of defence orders. Seventeen thousand workers have been idle since Thursday.

"We believe," said Flynn in a statement, "the government should step in without another hour's delay. With the union's collective bargaining rights fully protected under government operation, the picket line will instantly become a marching line of American workers rushing back to pick up where they left off one of the vital jobs in the national defence program."

The union said it called the strike to back up demands for what it said was a modified union shop as recommended by the defence mediation board. The management declared a closed shop was asked and rejected the provision in a proposed work contract.

Under construction at the plant are two cruisers, six destroyers, three tankers and a number of cargo vessels. In addition the company has orders for five other cruisers, 21 additional destroyers and a number of merchant vessels.

Queen Elizabeth To Speak Over Radio Sunday at 4 P. M.

Queen Elizabeth's message of thanks to the women of America on Sunday, which originates at the BBC Empire stations in London, will be carried not only by all Toronto stations and a coast-to-coast network of Canadian stations, but also by all networks in the U.S.A.

Her Majesty's message starts at 4 p.m., Sunday, (E.D.T.), and is scheduled to last for five minutes. It will be rebroadcast in Canada by CBL and CBC at 11:15 p.m. (E.D.T.), Sunday. Short-wave stations in the United States are rebroadcasting the address Sunday to South America, and on Monday will rebroadcast it to Europe.

Retired Navy Men Doing Their Share To Help Britain Win Battle of Atlantic

By WILLIAM STEWART
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Aug. 9—(CP)—The Royal Navy stretched across the Atlantic to hold together Britain's lifeline to America, is getting a hand from its grizzled, old sea-dogs.

These old-timers have seen Britain through other dark times. They have come out of well-earned retirement stirred by the knowledge of her need in the big battle of the Atlantic, and perhaps, too, by the chafe of inaction.

Many are doing landlubbers' work at all-important maintenance bases where they put their experience behind industrious crews that keep the navy's ships in tip-top fighting trim. Others are back at sea on patrol duty and know once more the roll of a ship.

The story of their return to active duty is told coldly in navy record books.

The books tell of a 70-year-old, the chief engineer of a patrol boat. Before he retired he had been with the navy for almost 30 years—from 1892 to 1921.

During the First Great War, he served on a minesweeper. When this war broke out, he pestered the navy until he was taken back. He went aboard the patrol ship early in February last year. He has been at sea ever since.

In the books, too, is the record of another, 66 years old. From 1892 until 1901 he was with the Royal Marines. In the Royal Navy Reserve from 1911 to 1931, he served through the First Great War.

He also is a patrol ship's chief engineer, returned to duty in January last year.

Since they have been on duty, neither of the two men has had a day's sick leave.

The books tell of others. The navy has 27 men who are more than 60. There are nearly 400 between 45 and 55.

British Airmen Drop Super Bombs On Submarine Base

Fires Seen for Miles After Raid on Shipyards at Kiel During Night

HAMBURG POUNDED

London, Aug. 9 (CP)—Germany was bombed by two air forces during the night as British bombers pounded at Kiel and Hamburg and elsewhere in northwestern Germany while Russian planes bombed Berlin for the second successive night.

The Air Ministry said that enormous fires were left burning at the Nazi submarine and shipyards base at Kiel oft-bombed by the R.A.F.

Further south and under less favorable weather conditions targets at Hamburg and other points in the district we attacked.

The bombers taking part in the Kiel attack were aided by brilliant moonlight and dropped tons of super bombs on the docks and shipyards. Plane crews reported the bombing sustained and accurate and the ensuing fires lighted the skies for miles.

Four British bombers are missing from the night attacks.

Berlin Claims Refuted

The Berlin radio heard here by Reuters News Agency claimed that attacks on Berlin Friday and Thursday nights were made by British planes. The R.A.F. however said its planes did not attack Berlin on either of the last two nights.

Last night the Russians reported their planes had dropped bombs on the German capital Thursday night and started fires. Exchange Telegraph reported the second Russian attack on Berlin.

The R.A.F. Thursday night dropped its heaviest bombs on industrial targets at Essen Hamm and Dortmund in Germany's Ruhr-Westphalian region. Small forces smashed at docks at Boulogne, points in Denmark and enemy shipping of The Netherlands coast.

German aerial activity over Britain during the night was light. A few bombs were dropped in eastern England and on the northeast coast, but little damage was done and no casualties were reported.

Car Kills Little Dog And With it Some Hopes of Hay Fever Folk

Chicago, Aug. 9 (AP).—An automobile killed a little dog and with it some of science's hopes of uncovering new information on hay fever. The dog was Pat, a wire-haired terrier which suffered from the same disease that plagues humans. Doctors had hoped to breed him with another dog having similar symptoms to study hereditary aspects of the disease.

Navy Minister Angus MacDonald Arrives in Britain

London, Aug. 9 (C.P. Cable) — Canadian Navy Minister Angus Macdonald arrived in Britain today after an Atlantic bomber flight and boarded another plane for London. He was accompanied by Rear-Admiral Percy Nelles, chief of naval staff, and Capt. F. L. Houghton, director of naval plans.

The minister was welcomed by Rear-Admiral Sir Arthur Bromley of the Dominions' office and naval guard of honor.

The party landed at an airport near London where High Commissioner Vincent Massey and an admiralty representative extended a welcome. They hurried off to an hotel where they paused briefly before leaving for the country to spend a week-end resting after the tiring trip.

Mr. MacDonald, who plans to spend 10 days in London, said he had "an uneventful, pleasant trip."

"I have nothing spectacular to do," the minister added. "I plan to discuss with the British authorities our common problems and will visit naval establishments, military camps, and R.C.A.F. stations if possible."

The minister's suite is next to Massey's in a fashionable west end hotel overlooking Hyde Park.

A fellow passenger with the Canadian party was Baron Robert Silvercuys, Belgian minister to Canada, who is here to confer with leaders of the Belgian government.

47 Sentenced For Sabotaging Fascist Ships

Sentences Range From One to Four Years for Officers and Crewmen

Newark, N.J., Aug. 9 (AP)—Judge William F. Smith yesterday imposed sentences ranging from one to four years on 47 officers and crewmen convicted of sabotaging Italian freighters here before their seizure by United States coastguards last March.

The convictions of four other seamen were set aside by the Judge on the ground of insufficient evidence and new trials granted.

The longest sentence was imposed on Carlo Bonati, identified by Thorn Lord, Assistant United States Attorney, as a Captain in the Royal Italian Navy, who had been assigned to the Brennero.

The Captains of each of the five ships the government charged was sabotaged were sentenced to three years.

NFLD. UNITS WELCOMED

London, Aug. 9 —(CP Cable)—Further naval and artillery contingents from Newfoundland arrived at a west coast port recently, the Dominions Office announced today. They were welcomed by the Newfoundland Trade Commissioner in Britain, D. J. Davis.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

OUTSTANDING PROGRAM PLANNED FOR CONCERT

Once again Belleville and district music lovers will have the opportunity of enjoying a program of band music, played by one of Canada's most outstanding civilian bands, when the Belleville Municipal Band under the direction of Lieut. Fred Johson play another of their regular bi-monthly band concerts at the Agricultural Park, Sunday evening.

The concert staged by the Trenton R.C.A.F. Band, who were guest artists for the program of two weeks ago, attracted one of the largest crowds ever to attend a band concert in the city, and the hope is entertained that local residents will once again show their appreciation on Sunday evening. Augmenting the Belleville Band for the performance, AC 2 Everett, trympanist for the Trenton R.C.A.F. Band will again be heard. This is one of a series of bi-monthly concerts to be staged this summer and early autumn at the Fair Grounds.

POINT PETRE CAMP NOW BREAKING UP

The Point Petre army camp which has been the scene of great activity during the past several weeks, is breaking up, according to a news item in the Picton Times.

The camp was established for the training of anti-aircraft batteries and khaki-clad men remained there only for three days' training period. More than 3,000 have been handled since its inception this year. Four lots of 75 each were enrolled weekly, sometimes more. The mid-week peak was 300, plus a permanent instructional staff of six officers and 70 other ranks.

Men from all parts of Canada were continually coming and going from the Point Petre camp which is the southernmost point in Prince Edward County. It was a familiar sight to see six army truck loads of men go to the camp every three days, preceded and followed by motorcycles.

Directing operations at the camp was Lieut. F. K. Fludlow, M.C., V.D., commanding officer of a Kingston reserve unit. The school gave a soldier three days' intensive drill in the best answer to the bombing, straffing of warplanes. Bren guns, Vickers, Anti-tank rifle, Lee-Enfield 303 and even shot guns were swung into action during manoeuvrés, presenting a show that was very impressive.

CUCUMBER GROWS A PERFECT 'V'

The "V" for Victory campaign has now entered the vegetable domain. A Prince Edward County vendor on the city market today displayed a cucumber that has grown into the shape of a perfect "V".

Large Offering Fruit, Vegetables At Steady Prices

Prices for all lines of produce held at approximately last week's quotations on the local produce market this morning, with increased offering of cucumbers and apples being the predominating feature.

Quart boxes of gherkins retailed quite readily at 15c each while baskets of the larger variety ranged from 25c each to 75c. Cauliflowers ranged from 10c up to 30c with squash and vegetable marrows being quite prominently displayed, the latter retailing up to 25c each. Silver skin onions were 15c per quart and other onions 10c, cabbage were 5c and 10c with summer vegetables bunched in 5c lots. Potatoes declined generally to 40c per peck, corn ranged from 25c to 30c per dozen ears and tomatoes at 30c per six-quart basket.

The occasional vendor still offered raspberries of both red and blue varieties at 25c per box while huckleberries were 25c the quart. Gooseberries were 15c and red currants two boxes for 25c. Missouri currants were 15c the box. Good quality black berries were 25c the box.

Red Astrachans were at premium and retailed at 40c the half peck while Transparents were 50c and Duchess 40c the peck. Saunders plums were 50c the six-quart basket with Shiros selling at 55c. Early peaches were 15c the quart box. Muskmelons sold at 10c to 25c each.

Eggs held firm on the inside market at 35c per dozen for grade "A" with mediums and pullets selling at 33c and 30c respectively. Butter likewise held at last week's quotations with vendors asking straight 40c per pound while fowl seemed quite plentiful at prices ranging from 25c to 28c per pound with broilers being quoted from 70c to $1.25 per pair. Lovely bouquets of gladioli sold at 25c each.

Fresh lake trout sold at 25c per pound, whole, or in pieces at 30c while whitefish sold generally at 22c per pound. Only one or two vendors offered young pigs for sale at prices ranging from $5 up to $7 according to size and quality.

Swiss Prepare To Receive Sick, Wounded Soldiers

Berne, Aug. 9 (AP)—Switzerland, haven for wounded in previous wars, is making preparations to receive sick and wounded soldiers of belligerent nations in the present conflict.

Negotiations which will bring French sick from prison camps in Germany to Switzerland for hospital treatment have been under way a long while, it was learned.

An announcement by the Federal council that it had decided to apply the military penal code to all belligerent soldiers in hospitals here was interpreted by observers to mean negotiations had been completed in principle.

It also was reported that international Red Cross medical missions which have been visiting prison camps in Britain and Germany had completed negotiations for repatriation of selected wounded or ill prisoners.

British ships, it was said, will bring the German prisoners to Lisbon, where they will be exchanged for Britons brought there overland from Germany.

Belleville, Ill., Aug. 9—(AP)— John Falcetti awoke one night, suffering with four aching teeth. "I figured I'd rather get the hurtin' over with so I took a pair of pliers and pulled them out".

Cost of Living Takes Another Spurt

Ottawa, Aug. 9 (CP).—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics cost of living index for Canada advanced 1.4 between June 1 and July 2, to 111.9, the Bureau announced in a brief bulletin late today.

"As in the preceding month the increase was due in part to sensational increases in vegetables," the bureau said.

"The food group index advanced from 112.5 to 116.6 between the two dates. Vegetables, meats and eggs al recorded sharp increases."

Other advances were as follows: Fuel and light from 110.2 to 110.5, clothing from 114.9 to 115.1, and home furnishing and services from 112.1 to 113.0.

The rent index remained at 109.7 and the miscellaneous group index was unchanged at 106.6.

The jump from May 1 to June 1 was 1.1 point.

This was described at that time as an "unusual increase" by the Bureau of Statistics.

At the outbreak of the war the index stood at 100.8, thus the advance in cost of living since that time is 11.1.

The cost-of-living index now is used by the Labor Department as the basis for determining cost-of-living bonuses for workers who, dissatisfied with salaries as they relate to prices, petition for a board to investigate their complaint.

The government has ordered that bonuses, where recommended or instituted voluntarily by employers, should be on the basis of 25 cents per week per worker for every point the index rises above the level at the outbreak of the war.

THE WAR TODAY

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The German and Russian armies completed seven weeks of fighting today, with the invaders apparently easing up for the time being their drives on Leningrad and Moscow in favor of an all-out effort in the Ukraine.

Even in the Ukraine, however, the Germans have had to postpone the long-promised capture of Kiev, the capital, and turn south toward the Black Sea port of Odessa, which has ranked fourth in the list of cities the Germans hope to occupy.

With the best weeks of the campaign season steadily passing by, it is an admission of weakness for the Germans now to turn to Odessa, where the winters are mild and suitable for continued fighting. Prudence would seem to have dictated completion of operations first in the northern sector of the front, where winter closes in early.

New Nazi Time Table

A dispatch from Berne, Switzerland, today says the Nazis are believed to have revised their Russian time table to provide for victory by the end of September, which is 7 1-2 weeks away. These reports speak of the Germans hoping to reach the Caucasian oil fields, nearly 2,000 miles from Berlin, in this period.

The concern of the German public over the absence of clear-cut achievements on the eastern front was clearly manifested in the German High Command's communique of last Wednesday, which spoke of the "wrong conceptions" that had arisen in connection with the campaign.

Assurances that nearly four million Soviet troops have been put out of action will do little to allay this concern as long as the Red army continues to deny the Germans more tangible victories.

Soviet Raids on Berlin

If further evidence were needed to disprove the German boast of control of the eastern skies, it has been furnished by the Soviet bomber attacks on Berlin and the continued ability of Soviet night fighters to prevent large-scale raids on Moscow. Furthermore, the experience of previous campaigns shows no army can prevail against German tactics without a fair measure of air support.

In the Leningrad and Moscow sectors of the front it is probable that the Germans are again busy regrouping and re-equipping their forces for further heavy attacks, since any victories gained in the south cannot be fully exploited as long as Red army stands unbowed in the north.

The bearers were Messrs. William Bamford, Fred Mossman, Arthur Wynne, John Smallhorn, Thomas Simpson and James Simpson.

Believes Russia Will Hold Foe Until Wintertime

Neville Butler Says Russian Stand Insures Eventual Defeat of Germany

Montreal, Aug 9—(CP)—Neville Butler, former British minister to Washington, said in an interview yesterday he believes the Russian army will be able to hold back the Germans until the winter when the Nazi invaders will be "bogged down." The Russian stand, he said, ensures the eventual defeat of Germany.

Mr. Butler, succeeded in Washington by Sir Ronald Campbell, former British to Yugoslavia, has been appointed to a position in the American division of the Foreign Office. He left Washington today.

Questioned regarding the possibility of Britain opening up a western front in the war, Mr. Butler said it was his personal opinion that this would not happen this year "because the great accumulation of materials is only now reaching significant proportions."

Municipalities Must Bear Cost of Increased Relief Vouchers

Toronto, Aug. 9 (CP)—Ontario municipalities must bear cost of increased relief vouchers themselves, Hon. Farquhar Oliver, Minister of Welfare, said today.

"The province will continue to pay 75 per cent of existing relief costs based on the Campbell report," Mr. Oliver said. "If any municipality increases their scale, they will carry the increased costs themselves."

Adequacy of vouchers is not a point at issue at present, he added, but municipalities are in good financial positions while the government is faced with uncertain revenues including possibility of loss of revenue if gasoline is rationed.

LOCAL BOWLERS TRIUMPH OVER KINGSTON MEN

Belleville Lawn Bowlers Win Both Games in Governor General's Cup Series

Teams from the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club triumphed over two teams from the Kingston Bowling Club in the first round of the Governor General's Trophy men's rinks playdowns.

In Belleville the home rink won by a 20 to 19 score over their Kingston rivals in a 21-end match, while in a similar match played at Kingston, the Belleville team also were returned victors by a 25 to 20 score. The aggregate score of the two matches gave Belleville the tournament by a 45 to 39 score and the right to advance into the semi-finals for the Governor General's men's rinks championship trophy.

The Belleville team to triumph over Kingston at the local bowling greens was composed of Doug Row, lead, Rod Mitchell, second, "Davey" Davison, vice and Ab Wonnacott, skip. The Belleville team to win in Kingston was made up of Cliff Argue, Harvie Stewart, Johnnie Bean and Ernie Vanner, skip.

Latta Wins First Game SHL Finals

Defeat Cannifton 5-4; Losers Bunch Runs in First Two Frames

"Doc" Empson's Latta nine drew first blood in the South Hastings League finals when on the home lot Friday night they came from behind to defeat last year's champion Cannifton aggregation by a close 5-4 margin. The series will continue on the Cannifton diamond on Monday evening when a win for Latta will just about clinch the silverware.

Cannifton scored four big runs in the first two innings as they got to Garfield Hall for some solid base clouting and appeared to have the game sewn up, but the homesters jumped back into the picture in the fourth when they lessened the margin and won out in the sixth when, after two were aboard, Jack Gowe clouted one over the centre fielder's head for a triple to tie the score and who later scored on an infield out.

During the early part of the game Loucks went well for the losers but weakened toward the end as the Latta powerhouse nine went to work on his offerings. Snappy fielding by both teams held the score down and it was anybody's game until Gowe conked out his triple.

The score by innings:

Cannifton	220 000 0—4 runs
Latta	000 203 x—5 runs

Batteries: Cannifton, Loucks and Jarrell; Latta, Hall and Orr.

Umpires: Hearnes and Houston.

No Increase in Meat Rations for British

London, Aug. 9 —(CP)— Food Minister Lord Woolton, in a speech at Cheltenham, informed Britons today they could expect no increase in the meat ration as long as the war lasts.

Must Not Lose Peace After Winning War

Toronto, Aug. 9 (CP).—Dr. J. H. Vallintyne, superintendent of the Ontario School for the Blind at Brantford, Ont., told delegates to the 21st annual international convention of the associaion of Kinsmen Clubs of Canada last night that the Allies must see to it that as victors they do not win the war and lose the peace as in the first Great War.

He advocated resumption of the League of Nations with Great Britain, Canada, France, Russia, Greece, Switzerland, the Americas, China, the Union of South Africa, Australia and New Zealand as members.

Mr. Vallintyne said the league could then bring about restoration of Czecho-Slovakia and Poland, and all Germans there would be returned to their native land. Any personal loss sustained would be made good out of indemnities to be paid by Germany. France and her colonial empire would be re-established and Libya and Abyssinia could be looked after by the United States and Britain on a 25-year mandate, subject to renewal or independence.

German Thrust In the Ukraine Menaces Reds

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Unofficial German claims that Kiev, the Ukraine Capital, is already "encircled" must be taken with a large grain of salt; but the report of a new German thrust to the region of Uman, 125 miles south of Kiev, represents a grave menace to the whole Russian left flank to the Black Sea.

It is not clear from just which sector of the Ukraine front the Nazi units lashed out to reach Uman. Presumably, however, this drive is distinct from the spearhead recently pushed to Bel Tserkov, seventy-five miles closer to Kiev.

Indications are that the Germans reached Uman via the branch railroad which runs northwestward to Kozjatyn, and which connects there with the western trunk line from Kiev. It was up that trunk road that the Nazis apparently reached Bel Tserkov to begin the great turning movement southward between the Dnieper and the Dniester, now expanded to Uman.

The gravity of the situation for Russian forces still holding the right flank of the Dniester front is apparent on any map. At Uman the Germans are already far behind them and east of the northern arm of the Bug River. They threaten to turn the whole Bug line to the Black Sea before the Russians can reach it from the lower Dniester for a new stand.

Nazi Claim 30,000 Taken

The Nazis say they have captured an army commander and 30,000 men in the Uman region. This would mean a serious break at that point to confuse the vast and difficult retreat which the Russian armies in the Southern Ukraine will have to attempt if the Uman and Bel Tserkov flanking operations cannot be checked. While the thrust to Bel Tserkov seems to have made no definite progress since that junction was reached, the stab to Uman, seventy-five miles south and west of Bel Tserkov, is a far greater immediate menace to the Russians.

It now appears unquestionable that the whole force of Hitler's new offensive is being concentrated southward from the break-through toward Kiev, virtually by-passing Kiev itself. Hitler proclaimed that his aim was destruction of Russian armies between the Dnieper and Dniester to the Black Sea. At Uman the Germans are already half way from the Kiev front to the Black Sea. Unless that Nazi thrust can be promptly contained, abandonment of Odessa, Great Russian Black Sea port, cannot be long delayed in a race to reach the Dnieper before the whole Russian left flank is cut off from the rear.

South of the Kiev the Dnieper makes a huge bend southeastward, then swings back southwest to reach the Black Sea not far from the mouth of the Bug. It is a strong defensive barrier all the way from Kiev to the sea; but if the Russians take their stand on it their front will be extended enormously.

Greatest Battle Yet

While it is perhaps three hundred miles from Kiev to the mouth of the Dnieper, airline, it is double that and more around the great southern loop of the river. And escape to the Dnieper will be a difficult operation for Russian forces already apparently cut off north and west of Uman as well as those still along the Dniester southwest of that battle front.

The greatest battle of this war of monster battles seems in full swing on the southern flank. Yet there seems no reasonable foundation for the Berlin assertion that Kiev also has been "encircled". That could not be true unless the Germans have fought their way across the Dnieper both north and south of the city, and crossing the Dnieper in the Kiev area would mean major battles.

There seems no question that Russian retaliatory bombing of Berlin has begun. That challenges anew the Nazi statements that Russian air power has been shattered. Whether the Russians have sufficient long-range equipment to match the growing British air assault on Berlin and other German cities remains to be seen. There seems small doubt, however, that Berlin is due to taste something of the horrors of bombing and that Russian bombers will prove more ruthless than those of the Royal Air Force.

McKeown Family Picnic at Oak Lake

Allan Mills—The members of the 12th Line group met at the home of Mrs. K. Bain on Monday evening and plans were made to hold a lawn social on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. J. S. McKeown in aid of war work.

About one hundred members of the McKeown picnic met at Bird's Beach on Wednesday August 6th.

After dinner was served Mr. H. Wallace acted as chairman and conducted the election of officers—President, Mr. Fred McKeown; Secretary, Mrs. Bill Heath; Treasurer, Mrs. Geo. Eastwood; Sports Committee, Mr. Clarence Thomson, Mrs. G. Meiklejohn, Mrs. Reg. McKeown, Mrs. M. Fleming.

It was decided to hold a picnic next year at Bird's Beach on the first Wednesday of August.

Mrs. A. Reddick of Regina, won the prize for the one coming from the longest distance.

Newly married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Mel McKeown.

Oldest gentleman present, Mr. John Webb who is 97 years old. Youngest baby, Sandra Meiklejohn. Shoe race, Mel McKeown. Neck Tie race, Mrs. Fred McKeown. Boys' and girls' under 6, Barbara Meiklejohn; Billie McKeown, Girls' 6-10, Gwen Fleming. Kicking Shoe race, Mrs. Mel McKeown. Cracker race, Mr. Don McKeown. Object race, Mrs. Fred McKeown.

A very enjoyable afternoon was spent with friends from North Bay, Regina and Victoria Harbour and surrounding district.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert White and Rob of Oshawa, are holidaying at the home of Mrs. P. Bateman and Mrs. P. Fenn.

Miss Marian McKeown visited Miss Marjorie Brown of Harold.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Eastwood, Mr. and Mrs. S. Roblin spent the week-end camping in North Hastings.

Mrs. A. Reddick left on Thursday for her home at Regina after spending the past month with friends here.

Melrose

Melrose, Aug. 9.—On Wednesday afternoon several members of the Melrose Women's Missionary Society attended their August meeting which was held at Shannonville Parsonage. Every one enjoyed immensely the splendid program and delightful refreshments which were served by the hostess on the lawn surrounded by the beautiful flower garden and claimed Mrs. Gammon an ideal hostess.

The Women's Institute held their July meeting at the home of Mrs. W. McMeachan on Thursday afternoon with a large attendance and most interesting program.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Tripp of Flint, Mich., were guests this week of Mrs. Murney Morden.

Mrs. Fairman, Belleville, is spending a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. F. W. Jeffery.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Davis have returned home from a three weeks' visit with relatives at Peterboro, Port Hope and Madoc.

Congratulations to Miss Audrey Demille who was successful in passing with honors her recent music exam. at Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Badgley accompanied Mr. and Mrs. W. W. McCabe, Napanee, to Picton on Monday and attended the races at Prince Edward Yacht Club regatta.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Tripp and daughter Bernice of Oshawa were guests last week of Mr. and Mrs. R. Macfarlane and other relatives.

Mrs. J. C. Milligan visited her sister, Mrs. W. E. Badgley of Campbellford who is a patient at Belleville Hospital.

Mr. S. Ryckman of Grand Rapids and his sister, Mrs. F. Dingman of Picton were Saturday callers of Mr. and Mrs. C. Haight.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Demille called on Mrs. J. McCreary, Plainfield, Sunday evening.

Miss McCune of Vancouver, Mrs. Lynn of Toronto and Mrs. Morton of Detroit were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Blatherwick.

Mrs. J. Leitch of Philadelphia has returned home after a few weeks' visit with Mr. and Mrs. J. Leitch.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Milligan were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. Morden, Shannonville.

Mrs. Cole has returned after a few weeks' visit with friends at Madoc.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Hickerson, Shannonville, spent several days with Mr. J. English.

Among those from here who attended on Wednesday the funeral of the late Mr. James McCreary of Plainfield were Mr. and Mrs. C. Haight, Mrs. L. Lazier and Mrs. G. Lazier, Mr. C. Macfarlane and Mr. J. Macfarlane. Much sympathy is extended to Mrs. McCreary from her friends here in her sudden bereavement.

Friends regret to hear of the serious illness of Mr. Homer Demille and also of Mrs. R. Sparrow who is confined to her home again through illness.

SWAMP LAND TO AGRICULTURE

Norwich, England, Aug. 9 (CP).—A thousand acres of swamp land in Norfolk county which grew only reeds and weeds, will produce this season 1,000 tons of potatoes, 1,000 tons of sugar beet and 10,000 hundred-weight of oats.

FATAL TUMBLE

Osler, Sask., Aug. 9 (CP). — A tumble into a large container of boiling water proved fatal to two-year-old David Janzen. The accident occurred while the child was playing at his farm home.

Fall Wheat Yield Shows Decrease

Ottawa, Aug. 9 (CP).—Production of fall wheat in Canada for 1941 was estimated at 16,417,000 bushels compared with a 1940 crop of 22,099,000 bushels, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said in a crop bulletin today.

"The decrease was largely due to reduced acreage although the yield was below that of a year ago," the bureau said.

Fall rye production for Canada was estimated at 10,844,000 bushels, an increase of 287,000 bushels over last year's crop.

The bureau's report estimated the condition of the spring wheat crop for all Canada on July 31 at 72 per cent. of the long-time average yield, compared with 80 per cent at June 30 last and 105 per cent on July 31 a year ago.

Other condition figures for all Canada contained in the bureau's report on crops at July 31, with condition figures at June 30 last and July 31, 1940 in brackets, were:

Oats 72 (87, 88); barley 73 (89, 84); spring rye 63 (86, 85), peas 83 (86, 93); beans 86 (89, 92); buckwheat 86 (85, 95); mixed grains 84 (84, 98); flax seed 80 (87, 85); corn for husking 96 (89, 83); potatoes 89 (93, 95); turnips, etc. 89 (87, 94); hay and clover 80 (85, 98); fodder corn 89 (87, 86); sugar beets 92 (98, 94); pasture 79 (83, 99).

Feed Grains Lower.

Feed grains are below average in all provinces, and seriously so in Ontario, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

In Ontario corn is the only crop showing better condition than a year previously.

The potato crop generally is 11 per cent. below average but is close to normal in the Maritime Provinces.

Haying operations are now largely completed and a below-average crop was harvested in all provinces except Prince Edward Island and British Columbia. Pastures are relatively good in the Maritimes, Manitoba and British Columbia but are in need of rain in the other provinces.

In Ontario conditions generally are far below normal and yields are expected to be below those of 1940. Fall wheat has been harvested with an average of 26.1 bushels per acre and the quality is very good.

U-Boat Crew Seen Seeking Apples From Sunken Ship

London, Aug. 9— (CP)—Ducking for apples on the open sea is a new accomplishment for at least one German submarine crew, the captain of a lost British ship related today.

A day after his vessel, loaded with South African oranges and apples, was torpedoed, he said, he saw the U-boat return to the scene and its crew fish out floating fruit.

The captain said he was clinging to a raft a mile off but that the Germans ignored it. A plane sighted the raft the next day and a ship was sent to the rescue.

Christian Street

Christian Street — The annual Sunday School picnic was held at the Outlet on Thursday with a good attendance and a very happy day enjoyed by all present.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Werden and family and Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Werden spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dick and baby of Gilead.

Mr. Elgin Oram is home from Oshawa and employed at Mountain View airport.

Little Ross Foster of Schoharie is visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Calnan.

Miss Gladys Werden of Belleville, spent the holiday weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Werden and family.

Miss Doris Blakely of Burr's, spent a week with her aunt, Mrs. Harold Noxon and attended the Sunday School picnic with them.

Mrs. Stanley Douglas and Sheila also Joan Ellis of Belleville, spent last week with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Basil Ainsworth.

Miss Beatrice Cross, of Frankford, spent the holiday weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Cross and family.

Miss Muriel Stark has returned to her home in Picton after a visit with her cousin, Miss Beatrice Morden.

Miss Margaret Parsons spent the weekend with her mother, Mrs. H. Parsons and family of Crofton.

Mrs. Ross Burr, of Burr's, spent Monday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Werden.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Cluting and family of Picton spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cook and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Daly, of Toronto spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Roblin and other relatives in the county.

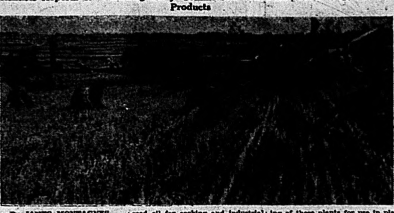
Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cross spent the tea hour on Friday with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sprague and family of Mountain View.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Morden and Norman, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Calnan, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Calnan, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Werden and family, Mr. and Mrs. Basil Ainsworth, Miss Shirley Cross, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Morden and Beatrice, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Calnan and Mr. and Mrs. George Oram and family were among those who attended Burr's ice cream social on Monday evening.

With her own long war on her hands China has sent £20,000 ($89,000) for bombed families of London and other British cities.

Chemurgy May Be Partial Solution To Problems of Canadian Farmers

Scientists Hopeful of Producing Many Commercial Products From Agricultural Products



By JAMES MONTAGNES
Central Press Canadian Writer

Recently in the United States laboratories an entire automobile was made from soybean and other agricultural products. Use of such farm crops in creating plastics, it was pointed out, would free much metal for war industries, while tests made with the plastic car showed that it could stand as much abuse, if not more, than the modern metal motor car.

That Canadian industrialists and scientists are aware of the possibilities of using agricultural crops for industrial purposes is reported in a detailed survey of Canadian research on the utilization of farm products made by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce. The survey lines up many experiments now being made for use of farm products other than as food, and lists experiments to be undertaken to use up much of our surplus farm produce, waste of agricultural products, and the use of new agricultural crops to diversify Canadian farming for industrial purposes. "Unless new uses can be found for the products of the land," states W. D. McFarlane of Ste Anne de Bellevue, Que., compiler of the survey, "there would appear to be no prospects that so large a farm population as we now have can earn a satisfactory living from agriculture."

Not to Replace Metals

While Canadian scientists are not looking for the replasement of metals by agricultural crops turned into plastics, they are working on such problems as making starch and gluten from wheat instead of imported corn, using sunflower seed oil for cooking and industrial purposes instead of importing oils, using refuse grain screenings as a source for oil and plastics, developing wider use of dehydrated fruits and vegetables finding use for dairy by-products as whey in the making of acids, increasing the growing of plants used as drugs for medicinal purposes.

Chemurgy, the science of chemistry in finding uses for agricultural products, has hopes of commercially producing motor fuels from farm materials. Wheat, most cereals, and sugar containing agricultural products can be converted into alcohol for blending with gasoline to produce high octane gasoline for use in modern motor cars. About 45 million bushels of wheat, it is estimated would be required to produce the alcohol needed to blend with the 900 million gallons of gasoline annually used in Canada. In using wheat to make power alcohol it is proposed to mill the wheat so that bran, germ and gluten can be recovered and the alcohol made from the residual starch. The gluten in turn would be used to fortify flour and make plastics wheat germ used to make oil rich in nutritive properties.

Use Farm Waste

The scientists are also working on plans to use the waste straw and husks from farm products in the manufacture of wall board and as fuel. They are working on substitutes for imported vegetable oils in the making of soap, paints, and edible oils for medical and cooking purposes, looking to the use of more soybean, flax and sunflower growing to produce oils which in 1938 cost $16,000 in imports. The growing of these plants for use in plastics is also being studied. Growing of special types of potatoes to make starch is being studied. Poultry by-products are being experimented with for use in making gelatin from waste leg tissues, for therapeutic products from endocrine glands, for making organic sulphur compounds from feathers. Insecticides from farm products are also subjects of experiments, Canada imports much canned meat, and the use of low grade beef for canning is being studied. The growing of flax for a Canadian textile industry is now being planned to compete with cotton.

In order that more work can be done along these lines many of which have value in war industries although the committee was set up before the outbreak of war, the committee recommends that more chemists be put to work on farm crops to determine their uses for industrial purposes, that industry be informed of what progress has been made to adapt agricultural products into commercial uses that small plants be opened to put on a comercial basis some of the laboratory chemurgis discoveries. Many laboratory discoveries have progressed to the stage where commercial use is possible once costs can be ascertained in such a "pilot plant."

Henry Ford and other United States industrialists have time and again pointed out that more farm products must find its way into industrial use as raw material. It is apparent from the survey made by the Canadian industrialists that chemurgic scientists here also see in this a partial solution to the problem of Canada's farmers.

"All-Out Tax Program for Defence" Advocated by Secretary Morgenthau

Washington, Aug. 9—(AP)—Advocating an "all-out tax program for defence," Treasury Secretary Morgenthau asked Congress today to tax millions of additional persons with small incomes by cutting personal income tax exemptions and to stiffen other taxes on married couples, corporations and others.

He told the Senate Finance Committee that the revenue from the House-approved Tax Bill should be increased from its present $3,206,200,000 to "at least" $3,500,000,000. He hinted strongly he would like much more.

He said his proposed new taxes on "millions of people with low incomes" should not be attempted "unless we reach in other places where ability to pay is escaping its fair share of taxes."

He explained that this applied to married couples and corporations particularly.

Morgenthau gave no figures on how deeply he thought personal exemptions should be cut Only last year, however, the exemption for heads of families was cut, from $2,500 to $2,000 and the exemption for single persons was reduced from $1,000 to $800. Suggestions have been heard recently that the new exemptions might be $1,500 for married couples and $700 for single persons.

Lower Exemptions

President Roosevelt suggested lately that the exemptions be $1,500 and $750 The House of Representatives Ways and Means Committee rejected the idea.

Morgenthau suggested that all the traditional complexities of making out an annual income tax return should be abolished for the small taxpayer.

He said complicated returns were necessary "for persons with substantial incomes who can afford high priced lawyers and accountants," but for the small taxpayer there ought to be a simple form on which would be printed a table of tax liabilities so that no computations would be necessary.

Despite the fact that just before passing the Tax Bill earlier this week, the House rejected a proposal to require all married couples to file joint income tax returns regardless of whether husbands and wives earn separate incomes, Morgenthau proposed reinstatement of this provision "with appropriate relief granted only where both husband and wife work outside the home."

2 American-Born Red Army Soldiers Would Sure Like to Get Back to U. S.

(By LOUIS P. LOCHNER)
Associated Press Staff Writer

With the Finnish Army in Russia, Aug. 9 (AP)—Two American-born Red Army soldiers now in Finnish captivity are hoping some kind of fate may take them back to the United States.

They are both of Finnish extraction—Kiejo Doyle of Pittsburgh and Allen Jenhunen, of Hoquiam, Wash.

I came upon them as we visited one of Finland's generals who had inmates of a prison camp lined up according to races. There seemed to be a sort of cross-section of Russia itself—Ukrainians, Tartars, Mongolians, White Russians, Karelian Finns and swarthy lads from the Caucasus. We approached the Finnish group.

"Who of you speaks English?" I asked.

"I do," said two lusty voices in unison.

Behind them stood a herculean figure.

"I do, a little," said the giant, more slowly and deliberately.

This tall man, it developed, was Karelian-born but had worked as a lumberjack in Canada.

"Say," asked Jenhunen, "isn't there any way you can get us out of here and back to the United States?"

I asked Doyle why he went to Russia.

"Things weren't going as they should in Pittsburgh so I decided on a go at Soviet Russia," he replied.

Kicks Bombs Loose Upon Hun Territory Six Miles Below

London, Aug. 9—(CP)—A Scottish pilot of a "flying fortress" told a story of the navigator of his great four-engined bomber who "pushed and kicked" bombs free of racks when the release gear went wrong as the fortress was flying over Germany six miles up.

The huge bomb doors were open, the release button had been pressed, but the bombs still were there. The navigator on a narrow catwalk over the gaping doors grabbed another member of the crew then gingerly lowered his foot until he could kick at the bombs.

Roslin

Roslin.—Rev. J. W. MacDonald, Mrs. MacDonald and family are spending their holidays in Montreal.

Miss Annie Stirk and Mrs. Fawns motored to Ottawa on Sunday.

Mrs. (Dr.) S. Fawns who spent the past week visiting at the home of her brother, Mr. Wm. Gillespie, returned to her home in Toronto on Wednesday.

Mrs. Thompson returned to Toronto on Monday after visiting her sister, Mrs. (Rev.) F. C. Beazer for several weeks.

Master D. Cook has returned to his home in Belleville after spending the past month with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Weir.

Rev. F. C. Beazer and Mrs. Beazer left on Monday for Quebec where they will spend their vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris of Toronto spent the holiday week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Slingerland.

Mr. and Mrs. James Ramsay and boys left on Saturday for their home in Newark, New Jersey, after spending the past two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sayers.

Mrs. McCreary and boys of Belleville spent Monday afternoon with Mrs. H. Chisholm.

Mrs. James Martin and children Rosie and Norman, of Toronto, spent the past month with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. White.

Dying Publisher Repeatedly Made 'V' Sign on Deathbed

Buenos Aires, Aug. 9 (AP) — Thousands of mourners standing in the rain, many of whom held up their fingers in a "V for Victory" symbol, paid tribute last night to Natalio Botana, vigorous anti-Axis publisher, whose body was brought here by train from the northern province of Tucuman.

The publisher of the strongly pro-democratic Buenos Aires newspaper, La Critica, died of injuries suffered in an automobile accident and his friends said he repeatedly made the "V" sign on his death bed. He was unable to speak, they said.

Tomahawk Fighters Grand for Combat

With the R.A.F. in Western Desert, Aug. 9—(CP)—PO. Stanley A. Wells of (Humberview Crescent) Weston, Ont., celebrated one of the first operational flights of the Royal Air Force Squadron equipped with American - built Tomahawk fighters by shooting down a Messerschmitt 110 into the sea off Tobruk.

"It seemed easy," he said later. "A touch of the button and down she went in flames."

BELCHER ISLES FIRST NOTICED FOR IRON ORES

Northland Now in Limelight of Murder Trials Attracted Railway Builder 25 Years Ago

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 8 (CP).—Known to white men 300 years ago, the Belcher Islands of Hudson Bay, where the murder trials of seven Eskimos will be conducted this month, were never fully explored until 1915, officials here said.

The area of the islands and their appearance would probably still be unknown were it not for a decision of the late Sir William Mackenzie, president of the Canadian Northern Railway, since merged with the Canadian National, to have an examination made of iron ore deposits indicated by outcroppings seen by the few who had been in the territory.

The examination was entrusted to R. J. Flaherty who made a number of expeditions to the islands but completed mose of his comprehensive study in 1915. The numerous islands, large and small, are estimated to cover 5,000 square miles and lie 100 miles northwest of the mouth of Great Whale river on the east coast of Hudson Bay.

Dreary Waste.

Mr. Flaherty's first glimpse of the islands showed him a low, rocky mass rising above the sea, and his subsequent explorations indicated that this dreary shoreline was typical. The islands have an extreme north and south length of 91 miles and a width of 57 miles.

Shallow lakes on the islands are a favorite breeding ground for geese, secure as they are from hunters except for the scattered bands of Eskimos believed to include not more than 150 persons.

Mr. Flaherty found the inhospitable islands surrounded by pack ice as late as August. He said the area had "more overcast skies, fogs and stronger, more consistent winds but higher temperatures than the mainland."

From October to December winds up to 50 miles an hour were almost constant and the sky was overcast. Yet the mercury did not sink below zero until Jan. 2.

The Eskimos, whose method of life has changed little during the centuries, lived on an exclusively meat diet except for a few cranberries and other small fruits they could gather during a very limited period in the summer. But Mr. Flaherty found they were skilled and determined hunters, daring canoeists who could drive their flimsy kayaks through heavy seas in pursuit of white whales.

Mr. Flaherty's examination indicated large iron ore deposits. He found four main ranges of iron-bearing rocks, 30 miles in length and about three miles apart. The longest continuous stretch of ore body was about four miles.

Sir William's interest in the ore reserve was aroused by plans for construction of a railway to Hudson Bay which would facilitate development of the Belcher mineral resources.

Since that time the Hudson Bay railway has been completed to Churchill, Man., to the west and the Temiskaming and Northrn Ontario railway runs to Moosonee at the southern end of James Bay, about 300 miles from Belcher slands.

Trial of Eskimos.

The judicial party which will conduct the trials of six Eskimo men and a woman allegedly implicated in deaths of some of the nine killed during an outburst of violence on the islands during last winter, travelled from Moosonee by boat.

Mr. Justice C. P. Plaxton of the Ontario Supreme Court, R. A. Olmstead, acting for the crown, and J. P. Madden, defence counsel, were preceded to the scene of the trial at Belcher Islands by a Royal Canadian Mounted Police party which was to complete investigations and possibly make further arrestts.

It was expected the trial would take several days. Officials said it was hoped to make clear to all the natives that the law could reach them wherever they were, if necessary.

The police party travelled by air as it did when preliminary investigations were made in March and the seven Eskimos were arrested and charged with murder.

Dog Pleads Own Case, 'Shakes Hands' With P.M.

Philadelphia, Aug. 9 (AP).—A four-year-old German Shepherd named "Ziggy" saved himself yesterday from being sentenced to death as a vicious dog by pleading his own case.

Brought before Magistrate Jacob Dogole charged with biting a neighborhood boy, Ziggy stuck his two paws on the magistrate's desk and looked at him with beseeching eyes.

Dogole hesitated, then "How about shaking hands?" Ziggy promptly stuck out a paw.

The magistrate scratched his head. "He doesn't look very vicious to me," he said and released Ziggy and his owners, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Singer for a further hearing next month.

Norma Shearer and Rosalind Russell in a scene from the uproarious comedy hit, "The Women," which is opening next at the McCarthy Theatre. Lovely Joan Crawford is another star member of the cast. In addition the program includes the new comedy drama, "The Richest Man in Town."

SLICING BREAD

Under the compulsion of war restrictions, Canadians will have to learn how to slice bread. No more will the baker's slicer perform for them.

For once those whose experience goes back into the days when much bread was baked in the homes and later when the double loaves were the style and even later than that when the individual loaf came into fashion—all without slicing, the return of the breadknife and the slicing board to a place of honor at the table is not so great a hardship. But to many it was never an art or if it was it is now a lost accomplishment.

Households will wake up Monday to find the breadknife waiting to perform its part. Oldtimers will take pleasure in cutting off pieces of bread but many won't care to continue the operation. But in time it will seem natural to do without the sliced bread from the baker as consumers grow more accustomed to bread coming into the house unsliced.

In a way it is something like going to a camp where one has to learn to do things in ways long since fallen out of custom and there will be a certain sport in learning or recovering the art. Many will not achieve any marked success and will soon leave the duties of slicing to some one else.

Fortunately for many there has been a certain amount of unsliced bread on the market and this accounts for the skill which they have retained in handling the breadknife. Some children will on Monday get their first experience of seeing bread sliced.

SOME RESULTS OF GAS RESTRICTIONS

Suggestions made during the first days of the restrictions on the use of gasoline included some very commendable ones, among them the joint use of cars.

Here is an opportunity likely to foster friendliness and the co-operative spirit. In the use of one car by three or four families in turn there would be a magnificent opportunity for the development of this spirit.

Many motorists are exceedingly courteous and pick up people they know and give rides to those they scarcely know and even to strangers. There are fine demonstrations these days when so many people will give the man in Khaki, or in the uniform of the Navy or in that of the Air Force a ride as far as the two will go together. And some will even go beyond their destination if time permits to help the travelling sailor, soldier or airman.

In fact many cars have not had to wait for days of conservation of gasoline to be employed by their owners in performing a social service for a neighborhood or even for a small town. Such generous-hearted persons will more than ever devote themselves to giving a lift to everyone possible.

The motorcar today serves a purpose in binding distant sections of a community and communities separated by distance. It goes to market and to business as well as on pleasure.

Many persons have seen more of the world than they could have seen in other days, even though they do not own a car, thanks to the neighborliness of car owners.

If a percentage of the people use their cars less, this kindly spirit will have more to do and will do it. A car owner will be one of a group of car owners glad to adopt the co-operative plan of friends or of neighbors using their cars alternately and making them render the most service on a minimum of gasoline.

Any step that people can adopt to reduce the consumption of gasoline will be a national benefit for as the Fuel Oil Controller, G. R. Cottrelle, said yesterday "everyone must get out of their minds that there are ample supplies of gasoline in Canada. They must face the fact that the inventories are short and becoming shorter. This is war and an emergency."

The New York Times, speaking of "wasted car space," remarks that the average passenger space of an automobile is four persons, but most of the time it carries one person or at most two. In times of emergency the vacant space should be utilized."

PROMISE FULFILLED

His patience spent, the Fuehrer with a nod
Let slip once more the leashes of his legions.
"Oh, get me Minsk," he said, "and Novgorod,
And take the Smolensk and the Kharkov regions.

"For I assure you, once you cross the Dnieper
You will not lack for bread and milk or meat.
Rich harvests there await the canny reaper
Who thrusts his sickle in another's wheat.

"So forward, then, across the Ukraine sweep.
You'll never want for anything again."
Now see how chuckling Mars has helped him keep
This one true word to thousands of his men.

For in the fields the shattered silent corps
Of grey-clad dead want nothing any more.

CUT IT THIN

On Monday housewives of the city will slice their bread themselves. This means the return of the old-fashioned "door-step" sandwich so popular a decade ago. The new edict is going to force hardships on Junior who heretofore could surreptitiously pinch a slice of bread from the wrappers, hide it on his person and eat it in secret. Butcher knives should be placed in the proper position in the pantry so the young hopefuls won't lose any time locating the cutlery. Iodine and bandages should be kept in a handy place, for a footstep might hurry the carving operation and cause nasty wounds on Junior's digits.

Bread-slicing classes may be started among potential pink-tea hostesses bridge-club members. Lectures could be given on "How to be a good carver" (we might take those in ourselves).

Anyway Pop should get a laugh out of the set-up for heretofore all the slicing done in the family occurred in the Saturday afternoon golf-game with dad at the controls.

TRY IT ON THE GIRL FRIEND

When you are out at the cottage and Old Jupe Pluvius has spoiled plans for the corn roast or any other outdoor high-jinks here is a parlor trick from which you can derive a lot of fun. And to "youse guys" who have had trouble in guessing the correct age of the girl-friend, it's a harmless way of finding out.

Take your house number and double it, then add 5. Multiply it by fifty, then add your age. Add the number of days in a year, subtract 615. The last two figures will somehow turn out to be your age and the others will be your house number.

DARE TO BE FREE

What better faith to teach
Than faith in God and men?
What better text to preach
Again and yet again?

What can great force bestow
That betters liberty?
Are soldiers, row by row,
Happier than toilers free?

The power of wheel and gear,
Of motor and of wing
Holds man in check by fear,
Makes him a craven thing.

Is it the finer life
To serve a tyrant's whim,
Place children, self and wife
Under the moods of him?

Hold faith in God and men
Hold fast to liberty!
Till peace shall come again
Dare to be free!

James W. Barton, M.D.

Cancer is Curable

Because the cause of cancer has not been found, many think of it as "incurable" and that the number of cases is increasing every year. As a matter of fact, cancer is curable. The number of cases is increasing only because men and women live longer today than at any precious time in history.

Some weeks ago Dr. Irwin J. Abell, Chairman of the Health and Medical Committee of the Federal Security Administration, and former President of the American College of Surgeons, in a public statement, pointed out that with early discovery of cancer and prompt destruction by surgery, X-rays or radium, the cancer comes to an end. Cure depends on early discovery and that the part of body in which cancer is found can be reached by surgery, X-rays or radium.

Because of the knowledge of preventing disease thus enabling men and women to live to an older age than ever before, there is now about 25 per cent of the population over the age of 45 years. Since 90 per cent of all cancers occur after the age of 40, it can readily be seen why cancer is apparently on the increase. It is on the increase because in former days a large number would not be alive after the age of 40 to develop cancer.

Is cancer really curable? "The recorded thousands that are now living and well from 5 to 25 years after they were treated for cancer afford indisputable proof that the disease is curable". These cures were possible because, as mentioned before, cancer was discovered early and immediate treatment, where possible, given.

The first lesson, then, for all of us is that we do not let the fact that the cause of cancer is not yet discovered make us forget that it is curable.

The second lesson is that where ever or whenever a lump, ulcer, skin defect, is precent, it should be investigated even if no discomfort or pain is present. Persistent indigestion, alteration in regularity of the monthly periods, discharge of blood from mouth, bladder or bowel demand persistent study or investigation, because we know that early cancer is curable.

Cancer "starts" at one spot. If this spot is treated by surgery, X-days, or radium, there will be no spread of the cancer cells to other parts; the cancer is cured.

Amateur at the 'Mike'

(From the magazine "London Calling")

Enid Maxwell, who runs the "Children Calling Home" programs, in which parents talk on the air to their children evacuated overseas, needs to be a resourceful woman. She has to soothe parents overcome by "mike-shyness", and the very understandable emotion of hearing their children's voices after long separation.

Often she finds herself having to cope with difficult situations at a moment's notice, perhaps with Canada or America waiting at the end of the line. The other day, a woman brought a baby with her, and the baby cried so loudly that it was impossible to record the mother's message. Time was running short; other parents were getting restive, and still the baby cried. Finally Miss Maxwell put the baby on one of the Home Guard's beds, and exerting all her charm and persuasion, managed to put it to sleep.

Accustomed to having to sympathize with the parents, encourage them, and generally make them feel at home, she sometimes finds that tactful inquiries produce disconcerting answers. One mother only spoke for twenty seconds instead of the allotted thirty. Enid Maxwell suggested she might like to add a little more. "No, thanks, Miss," said the mother emphatically. "That's all I can manage with my new teeth."

Another time she was sympathizing with a father broadcasting to his four children in Canada. "I am afraid your house must seem very quiet and lonely without them," she said kindly. "No fear," said the father, "We've four more at home."

How Belfast Looks at the War

By a Special Correspondent of the Leeds Yorkshire Post

The visitor to Belfast quickly discovers he has landed in a curious quarter of Great Britain where there are varying attitudes to the war. It is taken with deadly seriousness by many, actively opposed by a minority and completely disregarded by others.

Belfast, it is true, now bears nasty scars as the result of recent raids, and the large numbers of British troops stationed in Northern Ireland find in the city their relaxation during short leaves.

The presence of many young men walking the streets is due to the absence of conscription, but it does not take long to realize that the decision not to enforce it was wise. Mr. Churchill understated the position when he said it was not worth the trouble. In the six Northern Counties are many of the most rabid Nationalists of Ireland, and serious trouble would have followed the introduction of compulsory service.

• • •

Some improvement in recruiting followed the air raids on Belfast. A steady stream of men from the Free State across the border came to enlist. Most come by train on an excursion ticket, using the return half if pronounced unfit.

In the Great Northern Station in Belfast is a prominent notice that men wishing to join H. M. Forces may report to the R.T.O. for information. This is not displayed as an incitement to members of Eire to enlist; it is merely a means of facilitating the movement of the considerable number who arrive for this purpose. On one day 480 men from the Free State volunteered as recruits.

In towns near the border, the army recruiters, as their title badges describe them, have a busy time. Scarcely a day passes without a call from citizens of Eire, and frequently they motor to the border to pick up men who have reported to the first office of the Royal Ulster Constabulary and ask where they can enlist.

This flow of Free State recruits seems likely to increase as the economic position of Eire, recently the subject of many Government statements, depreciates and unemployment increases.

Mr. Lemass, Minister of Supplies in the Free State Government, has foreshadowed the eventual stoppage of industrial production and declared there is no hope of finding an effective substitute for petroleum. Coal is to be kept for essential purposes, and an order has been made prohibiting in 14 counties the removal of turf by rail, mechanical road transport or inland water transport.

The difficulties which confront the people of Eire may lead to a reduction in the amount of food smuggled from the Free State to Northren Ireland, which is incomparably better off in this respect. It does, however, make more attractive the smuggling of certain goods across the border to Eire.

• • •

The British rationing system obtains in Ulster, but outside Belfast it has been generally possible to secure a more liberal interpretation of allowances.

In the country districts meat and butter are almost plentiful, while eggs might well be the staple diet of Northern Ireland. The quantity of meat served in hotels and restaurants is exceedingly generous by English standards, and the well-stocked butchers' shops in the country are reminiscent of Christmas in England.

When rationing was introduced smuggling became a pastime, with the added attraction of being profitable, so that a journey across the border was regarded as a wasted opportunity if some rationed article was not brought back. The customs is an Imperial Government service, and the checks upon this illegal traffic have been increased, but it remains extensive.

Brown flour is now standard in the Free State, and a wide black market has been created for white flour and bread, for which double the Ulster price is cheerfully paid. Tea, which is very scarce, can be sold in Eire for 7s. a lb. and is easily smuggled, while sugar, which was plentiful in the South, was brought to Ulster in large quantities at one time.

• • •

A good deal of illegal traffic still passes along the unapproved roads which cross the border. Many farms contain land in both States; some villages are half in Ulster and half in Eire, and it is obviously difficult to keep check on the movement of population in these areas.

At Belleek, the boundary between Fermanagh and Donegal runs through the middle of the town, and both Ulster and Eire maintain post offices there. When the Imperial postage rate was 1 1-2d. and the Free State rate 2d the latter's post office was almost moribund. When the Imperial rate was 2 1-2d. and the Free State 2d. the Ulster Post Office almost lost its public. Since April the postage rates have been identical.

Cattle smuggling has been freely indulged in, for the subsidy paid by Northern Ireland Government for store cattle fattened in Ulster is a great attraction. Stock on farms close to the border has a mysterious way of multiplying overnight and sometimes changing its breed. This illegal traffic causes the Ulster authorities much concern, because not only is it unlawful but it really increases the risk of foot-and-mouth disease, which has been prevalent in certain districts of the Free State.

'We Are at War With Hitler'

(From the Chicago Daily News)

Few Americans would deny that Hitler is our enemy. Because of him and his menacing encirclement pact with Japan, we are engaged in a gigantic armament effort. Because of him, we are shipping arms to every nation actively opposing him.

As our own armed forces are not at present in the fight, a few might argue that, in the legal sense, the word "enemy" does not apply. But there is also the moral sense. Morally, even materially, this is already our war. We have made up our minds.

Hitler and all his works are abhorrent to us. We have "frozen" German assets. We have "black-listed" German firms. We have seized German ships. We have withdrawn our Ambassador from Berlin. We have closed German consulates here. We have tracked down and arrested German agents. We have drawn together the American nations in a defence treaty.

We are arming Britain to the utmost possible extent, and helping China and Russia. We are repairing British warships. We are maintaining with our Atlantic fleet safe and open communications with Iceland and we do not intend to let Hitler use either the Cape Verde or the Azores Islands.

We have established bases in the British West Indies and Canada. We have occupied Greenland and Iceland. We are negotiating for bases in South America.

Our Government has given us its promise that the goods we give Britain will be delivered, not sunk. We are pledged not to let Britain succumb. We are committed formally and positively, to the defeat of Hitler.

In all except manpower, we are at war with him today, and anyone who does not recognize it is simply refusing to face the facts.

SKIMBLE SKAMBLE STUFF

Ninety percent of the 16,000,000 inhabitants of Egypt are illiterate.

The fellahs of the Nile Valley, who speak the Arabic language, show traces of Hamitic decent. The Hamites, named after the second son of Noah, were the Caucasian race to which the ancient Egyptians belonged.

After Noah had been cruising in the ark for forty days he opened the window and released a raven.

This raven went forth to and fro until the waters of the great flood dried up from the earth. See Genesis 8:6 and 7.

There was a little girl
Who had a little curl
Right in the middle of her forehead,
And when she was good
She was very, very good,
But when she was bad she was horrid.

How many persons quote this little jingle without knowing that it was composed by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

It was framed by the poet one day as he walked about his garden with his little daughter in his arms. The child was the one described in "The Children's Hour" as "Edith with the golden hair."

Moscow news dispatches report that the Germans removed so much of their artillery to the Russian front that they had to leave dummy wooden cannon to face the British on the French and Belgian coast.

This is not the first time that dummy guns have been used to deceive the enemy.

Dummy cannon placed in the portholes of ships or the embrazures of forts are known as Quaker guns, from the doctrine of non-resistance taught by orthodox Quakers.

The most famous quaker guns in history were those used by the Confederate army at Centreville, in Virginia near Washington, in the fall of 1861 during the American Civil War.

General Joseph E. Johnston, the Confederate commander, was so short of artillery that he had rough wooden imitations of guns placed in the embrazures of his works, and these quaker guns fooled the Federal army for months.

Tapirs, those queer pig-like beasts native to Central and South America and the Malay Peninsula, have four toes on the front feet and only three on the hind ones.

Thompson Clan Has Picnic at Site Of Family's First Settlement Here

Stirling, Aug. 9.—On Monday afternoon (civic holiday) about 125 members of the Thompson family and the descendants of the same gathered on the property where the family first settled on the banks of the Moira river near what is now known as Fairfield's bridge. It was the fifth annual reunion and guests were present from Belleville, Tweed, Ivanhoe, Madoc, West Huntingdon, Stirling, Picton, Windsor and Detroit, Mich. Splendid weather favored the event and it was termed by many present as the most successful. The first of the Thompson family to settle in Hastings County settled on the farm now owned by Mr. Percy McDavid, president of the association, which embraces also the Demorest and Reid families.

Directly after the dinner which was served in the grove, the gathering was called to order by Mr. Percy McDavid who acted as chairman and a fine program was presented. Humor and song were contributed to the entertainment by Mr. Joe Gow who was assisted by Mr. H. M. Honeywell of Cannifton, the latter offering a group of readings. A vocal duet by the Ray sisters was well received and Miss Evelyn Fox offered a fine musical selection. A vocal duet by Marian and Donald Blackman, Detroit, also received a great hand. A solo by Mr. Bain was the final musical number on the program followed by a reading by Mrs. R. Reid.

A summary of previous activities of the organization was presented in the secretary's report given by Mrs. George Pollard of Stirling.

Fine Sports Program.

W.A. Entertained At River Valley.

The August meeting of St. Paul's W.A. was held on Tuesday afternoon at the River Valley home of Mrs. Percy Utman. Sixty-four ladies were present and thoroughly enjoyed the fine meeting for which the ladies of River Valley were entirely responsible. Mrs. R. B. Duffin, president, was in charge of the opening exercises and opened the meeting with the singing of the theme song and prayer. Mrs. Nora Wescott presented the secretary's report and read the communications. Six cards and two letters of condolence were reported sent out during the month. Mrs. Murney Hick presented the financial report. Twenty-one visiting calls were reported made and the same visiting committee was appointed for the month of August.

Ladies Provide Program.

With Mrs. M. Vandervoort presiding over the remaining portion of the program, the meeting proceeded with the singing of the National Anthem and a hymn followed by a midsummer prayer given by the leader. In keeping with the theme of the meeting "Harvest", Miss Eileen Bush read the Scripture. The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Arthur Pyear who delivered a fine address on the subject "Ability." The next number was an instrumental duet "Humoresque" offered by Miss Grace Pitman, A.L.C.M. and Miss Marjorie Bush. Mrs. R. Bush contributed a reading entitled. A vocal duet by Neil Hubble, talented young son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hubble, was greatly enjoyed, Mrs. N. Rosebush playing the accompaniment on the piano. This was climaxed with a closing prayer by the leader. During the social period that followed Miss Keitha Bush directed a musical quiz contest. Tokens were awarded to Miss Della Caldwell and Mrs. R. Girdwood as winners in a surprise contest by the hostess. Luncheon was served by the ladies of the River Valley group.

The appreciation of the ladies to the hostess and the committee in charge of the program was ably expressed in a brief address by Mrs. W. Fox.

"I Was Young Then"

By GENEVIEVE FOURNIA

I think some of the beautiful old houses have held their charm for one hundred, or one hudnred and fifty years, because of the months of careful, exact work, by conscientious craftsmen, that went into their making. Plans for such houses were discussed for perhaps a year, or years, before work began. Materials were assembled with extreme care. The finest trees were marked to be hewn, for beams, and floors and woodwork. The work of building proceeded slowly, but everything was done with an eye to permanence, proper proportion and beauty of detail. So we had graceful cornices, colonial doorways with beautiful fan-lights, beamed ceilings, doors of solid wood, and plain well - proportined mantels, above fire places. When you read nowadays of the construction of a public building, or expensive residence, almost the first thing mentioned is that the plans call for the completion of the building by a stated time; which means, usually, that the building is rushed to completion, even if cold or frost should require the postponement of plastering, or if painting might better be done at another season. We are all familiar with the unsightly cracks in the plaster of churches, and libraries, rushed to completion in recent years.

So the old houses, such as we see at Bath, with their double verandahs, hold charm for us. Their inspiration was the fine old mansions of the South, for it was Southern Loyalists, who setled in Bath, and later built these old homes.

Many sophisticated, modern young couples, are quick to utilize the beauty of the basement kitchens of these old homes. Their fireplaces blaze again, new floors are laid, and all too often a modern bar is built in one corner of them. But one has only to brush down the cobwebbs, to see the intrinsic beauty of these old kitchens with their brick bake ovens, their long black cranes, holding perhaps a huge iron teakettle with a long spout and a tap. The window sills are deep enough to cushion for window seats and the beamed ceilings are a delight.

This week I saw a lovely summer home, that owed its beauty, not to its cost, but to the care taken in building it. It took two years to complete. It was built of imitation pine logs, inside and out. These had a lovely brown satiny patina, because the logs had been painted, after the building was completed, with creosote. The effect was of some expensive waxed wood. The owner told me that the cost was not great, as the creosote comes in gallon cans at one dollar per gallon, and he applied it himself.

The fireplace was huge—seven feet wide and nine feet high. It was built of beautifully tinted rocks, that were hauled by truck from near Eldorado, in North Hastings County. The rock cost $4 or $5 per ton, and about six tons were required for the fireplace and large outside chimney. After the rocks were pointed, and set in plaster, they were given a coat of clear varnish. The effect was most beautiful and unusual. There were four bunks built in the cottage, one in each of the two bedrooms, and two in the large living room. These bunks were full bed size, four feet by six feet, and had good springs, and spring mattresses. This meant that eight could sleep comfortably. The kitchen was very handy, with counters and cupboards. The sink had a tap with water piped from the bay. Almost all the wall space in the living room was used for windows, that opened inward like doors, and were fitted outside with built-in screens. The same idea of beauty and permanence was felt here, as in the lovely old houses.

For charging a farthing a pound too much for two pounds of butter, George Woodhouse, an Ipswich tradesman, was fined £4 ($17.80).

Co-operation
THAT COUNTS

There is perhaps no better illustration of co-operation between an industry and the people it serves than that of the implement industry and farming.

Its inception was the making available to other farmers the tools which one ingenious farmer developed to lighten his own labors and enable him to accomplish more in the always-too-short seasons.

Its support by farmers to the point which has enabled the building of organizations financially strong enough and technically equipped to carry on large scale experimental engineering has increased its efficiency and usefulness to the benefit of every farmer.

In the implement engineer, the farmer has had a partner ever intent on finding easier and more profitable ways of doing the jobs he has to do. The co-operation of the implement maker, in this respect, has transformed farming and made farm life pleasanter and more profitable—a co-operation that really counts.

Weddings

KEILTY—McALPINE

An interesting wedding took place this morning at nine o'clock in the Holy Name of Mary Church, Marysville, when Agnes Lucille, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. McAlpine, Marysville, became the bride of Thomas S. Keilty, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Keilty, Thomasburg. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion.

Rev. C. F. O'Gorman, assisted by Rev. J. G. McAlpine, Houston, Texas, brother of the bride, officiated and the acolytes at the Mass were Mr. Bernard and Mr. Ambrose McAlpine, brothers of the bride. Mr. Charles and Mr. Leo McAlpine were soloists.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long gown of net with inserts of white lace. Her finger tip veil was held with a white lace halo and she carried pale pink roses and bouvardia. Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Nora McAlpine, who wore blue net, halo of blue flowers with matching shoulder veil and carried a nosegay of blue and pink flowers. Mr. Francis J. Keilty of Sudbury was groomsman for his brothers and the ushers were Mr. Andrew Keilty and Mr. Charles McAlpine.

At the reception afterward at the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. McAlpine received wearing a gown of navy printed sheer with matching hat and corsage of Talisman roses. Mrs. Keilty was attired in a beige and mauve frock of printed crepe with large beige hat and rose corsage.

On their return from a motor trip to the Maritimes the bride and groom will live in Tweed. For travelling the bride wore a dusky rose sheer frock with matching crepe redingote and navy accessories.

GRAHAM—WALLBRIDGE

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday afternoon, August 7th., 1941, at Radholm Lawn, Huff's Island, when Florence Louise, daughter of Mr and Mrs. James Wallbridge, became the bride of Mr. Archibald R. Graham, son of Mrs. Graham and the late John Graham of Inverness, Que. The Rev. Edmund N. Grant officiated at the ceremony. The home was artistically decorated with gladioli, snapdragons, asters, and zinnias. These formed a deep bank of colour in the living room, where the ceremony took place.

Mr. Fred Morton of Hillier, played "The Bridal Chorus", Lohengrin, as the bride entered the room on the arm of her father. During the signing of the register, two musical numbers were played, "I Love You Truly" and "O Perfect Love".

The bride's costume was of Churchill blue crepe with white accessories, and she carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses.

After the ceremony the guests partook of a very delicious breakfast served by the sisters of the bride. Among the guests, who were immediate relatives were Miss Zetta Caskey of Saskatoon and Dr. Ashton of Detroit, Mich.

Following the usual felicitations the bride and groom left by car for points in Quebec, and will reside on their return in Belleville.

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, August 10

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a moderately propitious and encouraging one, with the affairs of the clergy, elders, workers and students under fortunate vibrations for success. Profound reflection as well as explorations into the higher realms of thought and speculation—scientific, philosphical or occult—would be profitable, also romantic yearnings may be indulged. But in all keep alert to intrigue, duplicity, curious or unwholesome indulgence or snares.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a year of moderate success and enjoyment, under the spur of elders, relatives, of property interests or sound business enterprise. This latter may respond to factors of the new and speculative, into which advanced ideas and original propositions may hold the weight of serious study and practical bases. But in all affairs, especially in private associations, be vigilant to snares and pitfalls.

A child born on this day should be studious, practical and sound, although having unusual talents, ideas or ideals. All should combine for its success and happiness.

For Monday, August 11

Monday's astrological forecast shows unusual activity imbued with much thought and backed up by high purpose and incentive. It may lead to cultural or philosophical heights as to do with writings, speech, publicity or important promotions calling for intelligence as well as sound logic.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate an unusually active and eventful year in which importanc plans and purpose are skillfully promoted. The mind is keen, alert, sound and logical as well, to put over the ambitions, which may demand change, travel, communications, much writing or speech. This concentration of faculties should embrace public or community welfare.

A child born on this day should be greatly talented, versatile and public spirited.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was talking to Mr. Riley the hooken ladder driver around at the fire house and I started to ask him some more about old Leon the trained fire horse he used to have, saying Didn't you ever see him any more after you had to send him to the country to punish him for starting fires?

Well, I used to go out to see him every Fourth of July, Mr. Riley said. I used to take a box of fireworks with me, and old Leon certainly looked fallward to that day. And then for a while we used to let him come in for an occasional visit to the fire house. We thought he'd learned his lesson and would behave himself, he said, and I said, Well G, didn't he?

Hardly, Mr. Riley said. He used to sneek out to an alarm box and set off the signal with his teeth and then hide behind a wall or some place to watch the engines rushing by. So we had to keep him in the country. He made quite a name there for a while as a race horse. Not that he could run so fast, because old Leon was passed 20 years old, but he was so foxy he used to think up all kinds of tricks to win, and there were no laws against them in the racing rules and as fast as they'd write a law up a new one, Mr. Riley said, and I said, G, what kind of tricks?

Well for one thing when another horse would pass him he'd grab its tale in his teeth and slow it up, but the way he won the Grand Derby was really classic, Mr. Riley said. He started out with a mouthful of oats, and each time the other horses forged ahead old Leon blew a few oats to the right and left and then forged ahead himself while they were reaching for the oats. It was wonderful how he managed those oats so he still had a few left for in front of the finish line. Come and see me again, Mr. Riley said.

Meaning the end of the conversation.

Hair Turning Gray Attractive

Rose Hobart shows a becoming hair style for the matron.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Many a woman has a horror of pepper and salt hair, that transition period from dark to grey. We believe that she has the wrong idea. Hair of that character carries lights and shadows that are extremely attractive. Perfectly cared for, beautifully arranged, it makes a woman appear distinguished.

Now and then a worried lady will appeal to a beautician in the hopes that the dark threads can be whitened. Any bleach that would make the shafts snow white would be so strong it would impoverish them, make them so brittle that they would break at the touch of the comb. Anyhow, why bother? Time will take care of the job.

Careful Shampooing

Such hair requires careful shampooing so the white portions will not become discoloured. A bland soap should be used, and it should be melted. Three soapings and as many rousing rinsings are necessary. Use a bath spray with a current of water strong enough to make you dizzy; it is the only way to avoid soap deposits.

Hair that is a mixture of ebony and silver calls for a coiffure that has dignity. Loose ends, careless arrangements, and a woman looks downright blowsy.

The swirl at the back is a happy choice. Rolls offer a variety of designs and are more dignified than ringlets.

When getting a permanent wave seek the services of an operator about whose ability you are informed. There is no need of yellow streaks after the hard boiled frizz. Sometimes a bleaching agent is used while the curls are steaming hot, still on the rods.

Whether or not you have your locks blued is a matter for you to decide. We are against that beauty fad because we believe that the silver sheen is more attractive than the dead look that often comes when blueing is used in excess. However, it is a personal matter. One likes it or one doesn't.

Medicine in the News

By MORRIS FISHBEIN, M.D.

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

CAN SEXTUPLETS BE BORN AND SURVIVE?

The great Greek philosopher Aristotle said that one woman could not bring forth more than five children at a single birth. However, numerous ancient writers whose scientific accuracy is not above reproach have said that as many as twelve children have been born at one time. Periodically our newspapers print reports of such occurrences in Mexico, in the South Sea Islands or in Africa, oddly enough always at some point which makes verification difficult or impossible.

But none of our newspapers have been victimized by careless reporters to the extent perpetrated by one Polish writer who declared that a lady named Margaret, "of a noble and ancient family near Cracovia, the wfe of Count Virboslaus, brought forth thirty-six living children on January 20, 1296." There is not the slightest reason for believing that Margaret did any such thing. What the lady really had, it seems, was a type of tumor known as a hydratidiform or multiple molar pregnancy. This fact was elaborated by superstition and imagination.

There are no satisfactorily authenticated sextuplets, but Dr. Alan Guttmacher relates that there is a tablet on the front of a house at No. 3 Emmenstrasse in the German town of Hamelin commemorating the birth of septuplets, which however did not live. This happened in the town celebrated later by the story of the Pied Piper. The tablet reads:

> Here on this spot dwelt the well-known citizen, Thiele Romer, and his helpmate Anna Beyers. It came about that in the year 1600, as man reckons time, at 3 o'clock in the morning on the ninth date of January, she was delivered of two small boys and five small girls. They received the holy rites of baptism and all peacefully died by twelve o'clock on the twentieth of January. God will grant them eternal bliss which is ever prepared for all those who believe.

Today multiple births need not occur without the mother's foreknowledge. Modern methods of diagnosis and the use of the X-ray make it possible for a doctor to tell well in advance that two or three or even four babies are to be delivered to an expectant mother. Since there is only one record in all the history of medicine of five babies being born at one time and living longer than one hour, doctors have not yet diagnosed the expectation of quintuplets. One doctor in Florida did but it turned out he was mistaken.

Twins occur one time in 87 births, triplets occur once in 7,100 births, quadruplets occur one time in 757,000 births, so the chance of quintuplets is one in many millions. However, some families and in some countries twins occur more frequently than in others.

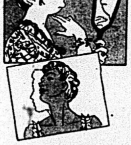
Exercise Can Bring Back 'Lost' Youth and Beauty



Double Chin Can Be Conquered

Getting old? That double chin means only that you're getting soft!

Chin and neck exercises, you know, can vanquish a double chin, just as right exercises reduce fatty hips or a bulgy tummy. When unused muscles are brought back to youthful firmness that "lost" beauty returns!

1—Turn your head sharply to the right until chin is over right shoulder. 2—Keeping chin over shoulder, tilt head backward slowly and lift face to ceiling. 3—Lower head slowly.

Repeat this 5 times, turn head to left and repeat. After a minute's rest, repeat exercise again until you've done it 20 times.

Then, if you have other figure problems, go right on with the rest of your "youthifying" program—exercises for unlovely waistline, bust, arms, hips!

Our 32-page booklet has exercise routines to correct all these figure faults, as well as poor posture, "dowager's hump," heavy legs. Also has general daily exercise routine, special exercises for relaxing tense nerves, relieving aching feet.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of SWING'S THE THING IN GOLF to The Ontario Intelligencer Home Service, 166 Front Street, Belleville, Ont. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Soon be time to think of suits and blouses. Designed for an autumn suit is a blouse of pure silk jersey in brown made with pointed shoulder yoke and amber and rhinestone buttons. Full sleeves, tight cuffs.

Always smart is the suit or frock of knitted silk. Dull yellow is used for a smart knitted silk suit with collarless jacket and easy skirt. Short sleeves, shoulder yoke, chartreuse silk blouse.

There's drama in black. A delightful evening frock is of black organza for the over-dress, posed over a sheath of black silk jersey, very clinging. High neck, sleeves, jeweled buttons down the slim bodice.

Advice to the Lovelorn

SWING STANDARDS CHANGE YET FAMILY ACHIEVES SUPREME HAPPINESS

It seems that there are such things in this world as fortunate calamities. For instance, people who could never make both ends meet when they had incomes that would have seemed lavish, have managed to do very well after they went through the depression of '29.

They had to change their entire scale of living, take their sons from college and put them to work. Their daughters, instead of having debut parties and coming out in society with a flourish of trumpets, learned to cook and keep house for the bread winners of the family.

Here's a letter from a young wife who writes she is happily married, enjoys keeping house and being thrifty for a husband who is worthwhile.

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"So many people write to you of their tragedies, with problems that seem impossible of solution, that I thought, just for a change, you might like to hear the short and simple annals of a contented family.

"We belonged to what I suppose you'd call the 'upper middle class'. We lived well, though poor mother made father and the older girls desperately unhappy trying to keep up with the Joneses. Everything we had—our car, the house in which we lived, the cottage we rented during the summer season, and the clothes mother and the girls wore — was never quite up to her standards.

"I'm afraid she nagged father a great deal about this. He had a job in a broker's office, and when he made a killing in stocks, everything was fine and dandy. When he lost, mother took it as a personal affront. Then came financial reversal. Father went broke and committed suicide. Mother couldn't stand our reduced scale of living and died within the year. My two sisters and one brother had always gone to work at the first job offered.

"I'd never been trained for anything, so I undertook to keep house for the three workers—and enjoyed it. Honestly, I like to shop, cook, keep house and economize.

"We four enjoyed the lark of scrimping along in a tiny apartment after the strain of pretending to prosperity we didn't have. Among our friends, as poor as we were, was a man, a very dear friend of my brother's, and we fell head over heels in love. We married when I was twenty.

"Now, Miss Fairfax, there isn't a happier couple on the continent. I do all the work except the washing. We've paid for all our furniture and we're constantly adding to a little nest egg in the hope of buying a home.

"We have a baby daughter a year old. I hope that she may not inherit my mother's tragic ambitions of trying to keep up with the Joneses.

"We don't bother about the Joneses, Jim and I. We have loads of friends whose incomes are about the same as ours, and all of us have lots of fun. We row up the river, take along our grill, cook our suppers in the open, and one of us takes turns in looking after all the babies. Our lives are an adventure in contentment.

"My older sisters feel much the same way as I do; that the real tragedy in life is skimping and straining to put on a false front.

"I remember, even now, the misery I used to feel when mother would demand to know all about some new playmate, what her father did, who were their relatives, how many servants they kept, what kind of a car they had. If these requirements did not come up to mother's standards, I was not allowed to play with the little girl.

"I've been wanting to send you this letter for a long time, as showing the other side of the medal—a contented family in the lower brackets.

"Yours happily, Eunice."

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A DOZEN GOOD IDEAS FOR AN EVENING BRIDAL SHOWER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My fiance's sister is planning to be married in the fall. Would it be all right for me to give her a shower? We don't go around with the same crowd very much, but we do know each other's friends to speak to. As most of the girls are employed, the party will have to be in the evening.

2. What type of invitations should I send?

3. Could you suggest a few different kinds of showers?

4. Please suggest a menu.

5. Will you let me know if it would be all right for me to invite a few of my friends, as well as hers?

6. Should I have them play cards, bingo, or could you suggest something different?

I am only eighteen and this will be the first party that I have ever handled myself.

—READER.

1. Yes, it would be all right.

2. If you have visiting cards you may correctly write this shower invitation on them, or you may write cordial notes of invitation, or you might write them on attractive special shower invitations that you can buy at your stationer's.

3. On your invitations or in your notes be sure to tell the guests what kind of shower you are to give. Linen showers are very popular, and so are kitchen showers. There are also glassware or china, bath-room accessories, handkerchief, lingerie, beauty showers (cosmetics, powders, and so forth) and buffet table accessories showers. If you want to give to low budget shower, an engaging paper shower can be planned, with gifts of self-edgings and shelf papers, paper doilies, lamp shades, decorative wrapping-papers, and a paper trousseau, consisting of letter papers and cards. A bridge shower (items for the bridge table) is also an inexpensive shower. You can give a five-and-ten-cent shower or a five-ten-and-twenty-five-cent-nothing-over shower. It would be a good idea to find out what showers have been planned for her and to avoid a duplication.

4. Your menu for the evening party might be as simple as various kinds of small sandwiches, a small cake or layer cakes or slices of cake (fruit cake, for example), hot coffee and with a cold drink, if you wish, as an alternative. If you wish to dress up this menu a bit, add something like chicken a la King, or sliced cold meats and a salad. Or you might like to have a "hot dog" menu. Frankfurters, served between long toasted rolls with relish, make a hit!

5. Yes, you might invite a few of your friends whom the bride-elect knows but the majority of the guests should, of course, be her friends.

6. Usually you don't need to plan any special entertainment for a shower, for the time is consumed with guest of honorh opening gifts, the serving of refreshments, and the "much talk". However, if you wish, you might plan bridge, bingo, or whatever games you know are favorites with your guests. Since your shower is to be given in the evening, you may, if you wish invite men to come in after the shower itself. That is, set an earlier hour for the shower, and have the opening of the presents over before the hour set for the men to arrive. Then you can have your evening develop into a bridge party or a dance.

Weekend Tussle Between Cards and Pirates May Untangle National Mix-Up

Dodgers Regain First Place by Beating Braves, as Cardinals Idle

PIRATES LOSE

A's Win as Marchildon Pitches a Seven-Hitter Against the New York Yankees

(By JUDSON BAILEY)
Associated Press Sports Writer

The tangle in which the National League pennant contenders have managed to involve themselves this week may straighten itself out to some degree during the week-end.

Brooklyn Dodgers are on top the heap by three percentage points, although tied in won-lost reckoning with St. Louis Cardinals, who play three games in two days with the third-place Pittsburgh Pirates.

Pittsburgh, making a great drive, stumbled 1-0 yesterday on a magnificent one-hit pitching performance by 23-year-old Paul Erickson, who hadn't won a game for the Chicago Cubs previously this season.

This showed the Pirates how difficult their uphill battle must be. In was their third loss in 22 games, ending a six-game winning streak. Since the first of August they have cut a game and a half off the margin of the Cardinals, but even with their remarkable surge have lost an additional half a game to the Dodgers.

The week-end series at St. Louis should make or break the Pirates.

Medwick Homers

Brooklyn came through yesterday with its seventh straight victory as Whitlow Wyatt pitched six-hit ball to bulldoze Boston Braves 6-2. Led by Joe Medwick with a home run and a double, the Dodgers rolled up a dozen hits off Jim Tobin.

An 11th.-inning home run by Babe Young brought New York Giants a 3-2 triumph over the Phillies in the only other National League game. It was Young's fourth home run in four games.

Yankees Slip

The slide of New York Yankees continued with a 5-3 defeat by the Philadelphia Athletics in a night game which Bob Johnson won with his 20th. home run with two on in the fourth inning.

This was the first victory for the A's in six games and the American League leader's sixth setback in eight contests.

The Yanks could do nothing against rookie Phil Marchildon, who came to the Athletics from Toronto Maple Leafs at the end of th International League season last season. The Canadian held them to seven hits, struck out six men and gave only three bases on balls in scoring his eighth victory against an equal number of losses.

The A's won the game with a 4-run uprising in the fifth inning that was climaxed by Johnson's homer and wiped out a 3-1 Yankee lead.

Th second-place Cleveland Indians were idle but profited by half a game.

The third-place Boston Red Sox beat Washington 16-14 and bunchd their blows for a 15-8 triumph over the Senators, who haven't won a game played in B[illegible]

CANADIAN GOLF FANS HOPE FOR HOME VICTORY

Bobby Gray is Torrid With a Five-Below-Par Score of 65

135 IN ALL

By JIM COLEMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Aug. 9 (CP).—Canadian golf followers contemplated today the possibility that a Canadian golfer actually might win the Canadian open championship for the first time in 27 years.

Not only was Bobby Gray, Jr., of Toronto, leading the pack as they went to the post today in the final 36-hole test at Lambton Golf and Country Club, but four other Canadians were included among his ten hottest pursuers. Sixty players with scores of 151 or better qualified for the final day's play.

Gray's torrid 135 total for the first 36 holes gave him a two-stroke lead over Johnny (Boo-Boo) Bulla, but even if Bobby should wilt in the final stages of the 27-hole battle such fellows as Gerard Proulx of Montreal, Archie Skinner of tS. Andrew's, N.B., Jules Huot of Quebec, and Bill Kerr of Toronto, are playing golf of the type which indicates they are capable of walking up to the rostrum when they dole out the first prize money of $1,000 tonight.

Bulla Strong.

Of course, Gray was in position of unassailable security as the field started out on the final test. Bulla showed no signs of slackening yesterday when he hooked a 69 to his first round 68 for a total of 137.

And a squat familiar figure was only one stroke behind Bulla. It was jaunty Gene Sarazen, the 42-year-old squire of Tuckahoe, N.Y. Tied with him were the sensational St. Louis amateur, Tom Draper, Jr., and Horton Smith of Pinehurst, N.C.

Defending champion Sammy Snead staggered home with a 69 which gave him a total of 139 and left him four strokes off the pace. Lloyd Mangrum of Monterey, Calif., was deadlocked with Snead.

But hot on the track of these top-flight American pros stormed a quartet of formidable Canadians. Gerard Proulx, the little Hercules from Montreal, had 140 on his first 36. He shot a pair of 70s and three more Canadians were piled up just a stroke behind Proulx. They were Jules Huot of Quebec, Archie Skinner of St. Andrew's, N.B., and Bill Kerr of Toronto.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By the Associated Press)

Babe Young, Giants—Hit home run in the 11th inning to beat Phillies.

Whitlow Wyatt, Dodgers—Stopped Braves with six-hit hurling.

Paul Erickson, Cubs — Pitched one-hit masterpiece to shutout Pirates.

Jimmy Foxx, Red Sox — Made four hits to lead assault on Senators.

Taft Wright, White Sox—Hit two home runs to lead offensive against Browns.

Phil Marchildon and Bob Johnson, Athletics—Former held Yanks to seven hits; latter smacked 20th homer with two on in fourth inning, to win 5-3.

Corbys Come From Behind To Beat Point Anne 4 to 3

Cementmen Out-Hit Winners but Halted by Bawden's Mound Effort

HURLER'S DUEL

Bawden Helps Own Cause With Home Run; Barnhardt Walks Nine, Three Scoring

Battling with their backs to the wall and trailing two games to nil in their best of seven series with Point Anne for the city championship and the right to hold the Bank of Commerce trophy, Corby's A. C. jumped right back into the running at the Flats last night when with Johnny Bawden leading the way they came from behind to eke out a close 4-3 decision.

Outhit six to four in a close hurler's duel Corby's need the punch supplied by Bawden's circuit clout in the seventh with one aboard to overcome the Point Anne advantage gained during the early part of the game. Although he gave up two more hits than Barnhardt, who was hurling for Point Anne, Bawden turned in a decisively better performance than his rival, striking out six and walking four while Barnhardt fanned but one and walked nine.

Great Defence

Sensational fielding on the part of fielders in the Point Anne outer garden robbed Corby's many times of what looked like sure hits, with Genereaux in centre having a field day as he raced miles to make six put-outs. His leaping catch of Bawden's line drive in the second inning being outstanding.

Whitehead and Whalen for the losers led all hitters of the night, being the only players to connect for more than one safety, Whitehead getting a double and single with Green conking out a brace of doubles. For the winners, Bawden with his homer and Hamilton with a double were best offensively.

Corby's came through with a fast double killing in the fourth inning to cut off a Point Anne scoring rally with both teams playing heads up ball to leave eighteen men stranded on the basepaths with honors evenly divided.

TENNIS TITLES ARE AT STAKE

Don McNeill Rallies in Defence of His Singles Crown

Rye, N.Y., Aug. 9 (AP)—One look at Don McNeill, the United States singles tennis champion, is enough to convince you that he has plenty of chin to take it on. And so far Don has been taking it.

After he won the title at Forest Hills last September, McNeill went on a long-will tour to South America. Coming on top of a big season, that almost was too much for him, and as a result he's been getting nothing much but beatings since then.

When he stepped into the semi-finals of the Eastern United States grass court tournament yesterday, McNeill went a long way toward disproving that contention and he gets another and better chance when he plays Frank Kovacs today. They're the only seeded players left in the men's singles division. Wayne Sabin and Bryan (Bitsy) Grant both former first-10 stars who weren't ranked for this tournament clash in the other semi-final.

In overwhelming young Talbert of Cincinnati 7-5 6-3, McNeill looked like a lanky Oklahoman who swept through the Nationals last fall. He trailed 1-3 in the first set at Talbert, a hard and accurate driver, nicked the baselines. Then McNeill fought back with deep drives and perfectly placed volleys that brought the match completely under his control .

The women's final today brings together Pauline Betz of Los Angeles and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke of New York, seeded first pand second. Miss Betz just managed to make it yesterday after a great struggle with Dorothy Bundy of Santa Monica Calif.

With twenty tribunals reviewing their cases, 60,000 men in Britain have registered as conscientious objectors, and about 45,000 have been dealt with.

EXTRA BASE HITS GIVE ZELLERS 16 TO 8 VICTORY

Barnett's Crew Slap Quartette of Homers to Beat Vikings in Play-off

MANY ERRORS

Extra base hits in the early stages of the game gave the Zeller gals a 16 to 8 win over the Viking lassies in the first game of the City Ladies' Softball League playdowns at the Armouries Lawn last night.

Viking errors and circuit blows by Jean Sherry "Pudgy" Donovan and Irene Douglas gave the Big-Z seven runs in the initial two frames. Mike Power's Vikings battled back strongly and ultimately out-hit the winners, but "Lofty" Colden on the hilltop for the Zeller gals, settled away to fire strong clutch ball.

Double Play

Zellers helped their own cause with a snappy double play in the eighth when Wilma Clarke took Edith Cook's line drive and doubled E. Adams off first, the latter having reached the initial sack on a walk.

Helen Garrow helped the Zellers with three singles while "Pudgy" Donovan was the swatsmith of the game with two home runs. Gwennie Bennett had a single double and triple for her team's cause as "Lofty" Colden not only pitched superb ball but had two hits scored two runs and drove in a brace of counters.

Every member of the Vikings hit safely, as Rita Rabbie helped her own pitching cause with a double and a single. Norma Maker had a brace of hits, as did Ethel Adams and S. Adams. In the other half of the league playdowns the SWACO girls meet Deacons on Tuesday night.

The lineups:

Vikings: Tummon lf; Chambers ss; S. Adams cf; M. Zebedee c; Maker 2b; E. Adams 3b; Cook 1b; Way and Zebedee rf and Rabbie p.

Zellers: Bennett 3b; Stewart 2b; Garrow ss; Douglas lf; Donovan c; Clarke rf; Sherry 1b; Hunter cf and Colden p.

NEWARK'S LEAD IS THREATENED BY MONTREAL

Royals Have Won Seven of Their Last Eight Games

LEAFS WIN

Bears Drop Both Ends of Doubleheader to Rochester

Newark's lead of 4½ games in the International Baseball League looks fairly substantial at this stage of the race, but if things keep going the way they have for the past week or so, there's a good chance the Bears will lose the top position they have held without interruption since early June.

The Bears haven't been playing like champions against the league's nothern division clubs. On the other hand, Montreal Royals, who shook off Buffalo recently in the battle for second, have won seven of their last eight engagements.

The Royals got the benefit of Kemp Wicker's expert elbowing last night when they downed Syracuse Chiefs 3-2. Wicker, chalking up his second victory since joining Montreal a week ago, gave seven hits as he busted the Chiefs' Ken Burkhart. The duel didn't end until one was out in the ninth, when Sammy Bell singled with the bases loaded.

Newark, meanwhile, took a double drubbing from Rochester Red Wings, 8-0 and 3-2. Hy Vandenburg stopped the league leaders with four hits in the opener. Tommy Byrne allowed the Wings seven hits in the nightcap but couldn't overcome a bad start.

In the night's other tilts, Buffalo Bisons took the home-run route to a 6-4 decision over Jersey City Giants and the last-place Toronto Maple Leafs allowed Baltimore to resume its losing streak, despite a six-run rally in the third, by pushing over two runs in the ninth for an 8-7 victory. Pep Young singled home the winning tally.

Between Innings

Corby's really had to make their hits count into runs as they won 4 to 3 over the Point Anne Cementmen last night. Walt Barnhardt let the Bawden-led Corby's down with exactly four safe drives, which included Johnnie Bawden's seventh inning circuit blow, with one aboard that knotted the score. The Cementmen touched Bawden for six hits in a fine pitchers' duel, but Barnhardt walked nine Corby batsmen, three of which scored as Corby's registered but four runs. The Cementmen played their usual strong defensive game and gave their pitcher splendid support, especially Whitehead, Loft and Genereaux. The Corby-Point Anne series has been productive of some fine softball, with the Cementmen enjoying an edge all of the way through. Bubby Gaulin now has "Ding" Luffman to toss in against Corby's in the fourth of a best-in-seven series on Monday, although Barnhardt fired good ball last night and Point Anne still have the odd game advantage.

Promoter Mike Jacobs announced yesterday he had decided to hold the Joe-Louis - Lou Nova fight for the heavyweight championship of the world at the Yankee Stadium on the night of Friday, Sept. 19th. Jimmie Braddock, who is slated to referee Monday night's wrestling bouts at the Hume Arena, stated in Ottawa Wednesday that Nova would be little less than a chopping block for Louis. Incidentally "Cinderellaman" Braddock says Billie Conn will beat Louis the next time out. Braddock, the former heavyweight champion, has been engaged to referee the Masked Wolf-Lee Henning bout here next Monday. Both Henning, the Iowa powerhouse, and the undefeated Masked Wolf are top-notch wrestlers and should attract a large gallery of patrons. The three-bout card is being staged by Promoter Frank Tunney of the Queensbury A.C. in Toronto, who will accompany Braddock on his tour of Ontario and to Belleville.

Do you remember when Slammin' Sammy Snead became the first American to win the Ontario Open Golf Championship when he post a four under-par 68 on the final 18 holes of Erie Downs course, Fort Erie, one year ago today? Snead carded a 71 previously to give him an aggregate of 139—four strokes better than runner-up Gordon Brydson of Toronto.

Ty Cobb was never known as a great slugger, but in 1921 he turned in a performance that was tops up to that time. Cobb hit two doubles, a triple and a homer in one game.

Using a line with a breaking strain of 54 pounds, a South Australian fisherman landed a white pointer shark weighing 1,919 pounds, 172 pounds heavier than the previous world record It was 15 feet, six inches long and had a girth of six feet, five inches.

With the Toronto C.N.E. concluding on Sept. 6th and the Belleville Fair slated to open on Sept. 8th, it is natural to suppose that some good harness horses can be expected to come to Belleville for the local harness meet. Secretary Arthur Burke says the horsemen are coming to Belleville Fair from Toronto and then will go from here to Lindsay. Harness racing was abandoned at the Belleville Fair last year when it was definitely established that harness racing and fall fairs go hand-in-hand.

Buddy Rosar, second string catcher with the pennant-bound New York Yankees, tells this one: "Joe Gallagher was with our club in spring training and we were playing our Kansas City farm team. . . . Joe was sitting next to Manager Joe McCarthy and the two of them were watching Tony DePhillips who was catching for the Kansas City club. . . . Gallagher tells McCarthy to watch the kid because he has a great arm. . . . In the next inning Gallagher goes to bat and gets himself a single. But that is as far as he gets for DePhillips nabs him off first with a snap throw. . . . Going back to the Yankee bench, Gallagher has the nerve to again park himself next to McCarthy and whisper into the ear of the Yankee boss, 'didn't I tell you that he had a great arm.'"

Viking errors coupled with their own extra base hits gave the Zellers first blood in the gals' softball playdowns last night when Chuck Barnett's Big-Z nine whipped Mike Power's Vikings 16 to 8. The score doesn't exactly indicate the play as the Vikings out-hit the winners 13 to 11. Three of the Viking infielders appeared with gloves and the induction of the padded mitt undoubtedly improved their fielding. After witnessing the holiday charity game versus the Toronto Sunday Morning Class, all of whom wore fielders' gloves with success, it is mystifying why more of the local girls' teams don't take advantage of wearing gloves. Last night Irene Douglas, "Pudgy" Donovan and Jean Sherry hit circuit blows for Zellers, while Gwennie Bennett had a single, double and triple and it was the extra base clouts that saved the Barnett-led nine.

Doc Protho, manager of the lowly Phillies, took eight days off to go on a scouting trip looking for diamond talent himself. "They just ain't to be had. I didn't see a natural ball player on my whole trip through the south. The boys who used to play baseball for fun are now caddying on the golf courses. Then of course there's the automobile," lamented Protho.

SPORT SPICE—There's many a true word said in a jest...... Take Bobby Gray's 65 five below par score in the Canadian open golf tournament at Lambton yesterday for instance...... Little did Gray think he'd shoot a sub-par 65 when he made this remark to a friend the other day—"Somebody will get hot and shoot a 65"...... And strangely enough Gray was the "hot golfer"...... The Dodgers are back on top of the National League by virtue of beating the Braves, while the Cardinals were idle...... 23-year-old Paul Erickson, of the Cubs, narrowly missed hurling a no-hiter yesterday when Bob Elliott, of the Pirates, got the only base blow given up by Erickson as the Cubs nosed the sizzling Pirates 1-0...... There are rumours of a grudge game between Reliance and Corby's A. C. with a half C note side bet...... Phil Marchildon, the Canadian lad making good with Philadelphia, pitched a seven-hitter against the Yankees and beat 'em yesterday...... So they shook for it.

Kingston Fighter Losses at Ottawa

Ottawa, August 9—(CP)—Leo (Darky) Fortier, veteran scrapper from Hull, Que., last night won a close five-round decision over rangy Ross Taylor of Kingston, Ont., before about 1,000 enthusiastic fans at the Ottawa Fire Fighters' Association's boxing show.

Taylor, from Kingston's Regiopolis Club, had a decided advantage in height and reach but Fortier fought aggressively and scored more solidly to win the nod from the judges in the 150-pound main event.

Three technical knockout wins were recorded during the eight-bout program.

F. Demers, 149, of Montreal, won by a technical knockout at 1:55 in the second round over B. Menard, 149, of Hull. Tommy Morin, 144, Montreal, at the end of the fourth, and in the semi-final Gene Ladoucer, 135-pounder from Montreal won by the same method at the end of the third over Paddy Oakley, 135, of Cornwall, Ont.

Tie at Cornwall

Cornwall, Ont., Aug. 9—(CP)—Cornwall Seniors and Montreal Canadiens battled last night to a 5-all draw in a Quebec senior lacrosse league game here.

The game was a tame affair and only a handful of spectators were on hand. Canadiens were handicapped in the game because they had only three substitute players.

Highlight of the game was the goal-tending of Cornwall's Bill Manning.

After decorating Sqdn.-Ldr. Roland Tuck with a second bar to his Distinguished Flying Cross, King George promised to tell Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose about Tuck's exploits—they had enquired.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Women"

Described as the most realistic as well as most amusing free-for-all battle between women ever to take place on a movie set is the fight between Rosalind Russell and Paulette Goddard which furnishes one of the comedy highlights of "The Women," filmization of the Clare Boothe stage success which opens next week on the McCarthy Theatre screen.

In an endeavor to make their fight scene top any female fisticuff battle ever filmed, Miss Russell and Miss Goddard spent three hours in a studio projection room watching famous female fights of the past. Included in these were the memorable battle between Polly Moran and the late Marie Dressler in "The Callahans and the Murphys," the battle engaged in by Ginger Rogers and Frances Mercer in "Vivacious Lady," and the encounter between Constance Bennett and Alice Faye in "Tailspin."

The Russell-Goddard "Battle of the Century" began on horseback and raged around a garden and through five rooms of a house, and the gals proved they could not only take it but also dish it out. The slaps, kicks, biting and hair-pulling were genuine, and the bruises displayed by the combatants at the conclusion of the sequence proved that it had not been performed by doubles. When males are in a fistic scene the atmosphere is usually pretty grim. But the women seemed to be having the time of their lives, maybe because the opportunity is such a rare one.

The fight occurs in Reno and begins with the discovery that Paulette Goddard, there for a divorce, is going to marry the man whom Miss Russell is divorcing. There's a hot exchange of words before Miss Russell yanks Miss Goddard off her horse. Then the slapping, biting, kicking and scratching match begins. They wreck a table set for luncheon and Miss Russell retreats into the house. They go from room to room, followed by Norma Shearer, Mary Boland and Joan Fontaine who try to intervene and suffer for it.

The battle finally ends in a flurry of shin-kicking and biting, after which the disheveled Miss Russell limps to get some iodine, grumbling that she'll probably develop hydrophobia. The sequence was the last to be filmed so that black eyes and sprains wouldn't hold up the production.

"The Richest Man In Town"

Said to be the "surprise" show of the season, "The Richest Man In Town," Columbia's new comedy-drama, featuring Frank Craven, Edgar Buchanan, Roger Pryor and the new Hollywood star, Eileen O'Hearn, will be presented as the second feature attraction, in addition to "The Women." Latest McCarthy-Fox News Events will also be shown at all performances. The "Glassbake" piece given out to holders of coupons for same will be the large Bread Baker.

AT THE CAPITOL

"THE FLAME OF NEW ORLEANS"

There are, according to advance notices, enough broken precedents in Universal's "The Flame of New Orleans", which opens Sunday midnight at the Capitol Theatre, to stock a dozen ordinary pictures.

It is the first American picture directed by Rene Clair, internationally famous director of "Under the Roofs of Paris", "The Ghost Goes West" and many others.

Film Was Sensation.

Clair amazed the English-speaking moving picture public several years ago by registering an historic success with his first venture into the English language—"The Ghost Goes West". In "The Flame of New Orleans" he undertook the hurdle of extending his dramatic talents to another idiom. He is said to have accepted the assignment with a calm confidence that human values and dramatic language are international.

For Marlene Dietrich, the star, it is the first time she has walked down a wedding aisle in all her dramatic career. It is also the first time she has done light comedy. Likewise it is the first time she has been given a high-style wardrobe and the first time she has ever impersonated a naive and sheltered gentlewoman.

It is the first romantic leading role for Bruce Cabot, who has invariably played villains, and the first time he has worked in a mustache.

Has First Latin Role.

For Roland Young, it is the first Latin role in all his years of acting. For a comedian whose "trademark" has been a unique dry British personality, the role means an entire change of character into spiked mustaches, florid mannerisms and a higher emotional key.

It is the first time since most picture-goers can remember that a colored maid is not large and middle-aged, in the Hattie McDaniel tradition. The maid's part is taken by tiny Theresa Harris, remembered for her comedy sequences with "Rochester" in the Jack Benny pictures.

It is Miss Dietrich's first picture with either Cabot or Young.

"The Flame of New Orleans" is the first major picture in which Louisiana has been used as a background for comedy. In such famous pictures as "The Buccaneer" and "Jezebel", New Orleans was background for historical drama.

A select group of short subjects complete this great feature—"Torrid Tempos", a musical comedy, Stranger than Fiction, Going Places with Graham MacNamee, and "Farm Frolics", a colored cartoon.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Re

Stopping up and authorizing the sale of parts of Elizabeth Street and Victoria Street in the City of Belleville.

PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given that at a regular meeting of the City Council to be held at 7.30 o'clock in the evening of Tuesday, September 2nd., 1941, or at a regular or special meeting to be held thereafter a By-law will be passed for the following purposes:

(1) To stop up and close that part of Elizabeth Street lying between Victoria Street and Lingham Street.

(2) To stop up and close that part of Victoria Street between Pine Street and the Southerly limit of the Canadian National Railway right-of-way (spur line.)

(3) To sell and convey those parts of Elizabeth and Victoria Streets so closed up (save and except that part of Victoria Street now occupied by the Board of Education) to Canada Packers Limited.

TAKE NOTICE that the proposed By-law and the plans and descriptions of the parts of said streets to be so stopped up and closed and sold have been filed in the office of the City Clerk at the City Hall, Belleville, and may be examined and inspected at any time during office hours upon application therefor.

TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that at said meeting the Council will hear in person or by his Counsel, Solicitor or Agent, any person who claims that his land will be prejudicially affected by this By-law and who applies to be heard.

DATED at Belleville this 1st. day of August, A.D. 1941.

J. WILFRED HOLMES,
A2-9-16-23 City Clerk.

AT THE BELLE

"Billy the Kid"

Riding the western ranges, Robert Taylor presents a romantic, swashbuckling figure in "Billy the Kid," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's gripping story of a western Robin Hood coming today to the Belle Theatre. Depicted in technicolor which presents picturesque locations in the pioneer west in their full beauty, the picture is a smashing adventure tale, one of the most ambitious in many a season.

The story deals with a bandit who is engaged to help a gang who are robbing and oppressing ranchers. Because of his code never to fire on an unarmed man, The Kid befriends an English settler and comes to love his sister, who is engaged to the ranch foreman, a boyhood friend.

The bandit turns on his employers, ranges himself on the side of the ranchers, and prepares to take the law into his own hands amid numerous thrilling encounters and escape from jail and other thrills. The dramatic climax, in which he gives his life for his friend, is one of the most thrilling episodes in Western literature.

Two song hits, "Viva La Vida" and "Lazy Acres" are sung in episodes of the western adventure drama. Dramatic highlights include a great cattle stampede, gun battle between "The Kid" and cattle rustlers, the jail escape and other stirring detail.

The Belle latest world events, "Rookie Bear," a cute cunning color cartoon and a Pete Smith specialty "Memory Tricks" precede the feature attraction.

Continuous shows today.

LUCKY FOR LOVE

by JANE DIXON

CHAPTER 21

Evening With Bruce.

In a man's room that matched the dignity and comfort of the study, Al Martino was at ease in a great cushioned chair with a hassock before it, which allowed him to stretch out practically at full length. He was wearing a wine-colored dressing down and brown Morocco slippers.

"Hi, Duchess," he called, as Marilyn stepped into the room. "Welcome to our humble six-room bachelor quarters. How do you like the haberdashery? He fingered the lapels of the dressing gown, wiggled his toes in the Morocco slippers. "Pretty smooth, eh? Compliments of Mr. Bruce Gordon who wears 'em when I'm not around. Say, Little One, you're looking right chi-chi yourself. Where'd you find the cute headpiece?"

"Al," tears were in Marilyn's eyes. "You're all right? You're not in—in pain?"

"Me in pain!" Al scouted the idea. "Listen, Duchess, I'm reposing on a bed of roses. I've always wondered how the upper half live. Now I know. Gordon's a right guy. He treats me like his college pal, not a lug who got mowed down in a night club."

"But Al, you look so pale. Are you sure—"

"Sure I'm sure. I'm always pale up at this time of year. Remind me to tell you the name of the textile cream I use. Gordon tells me he's staking you to dinner. As I said, he's a right guy—too right maybe. Run along now and take your truffles. Have a truf or two on me. And stop worrying about Blondie. I'll have some news for you about the late Queen of Beauty tomorrow."

Marilyn does not remember much of that first dinner with Bruce Gordon except it was of such things as dreams are made of, and that this was a dream come true. The scene was one of those small but beautifully appointed restaurants off Park avenue, specializing in choice food and string music. The cuisine was French, Marilyn's first bout with the culinary art that has made France famous the world over. A light wine, refreshing and fragrant, was served but she took only a few sips, distrusting even its fragrance after what had befallen her sister Clara who seemed to have fallen completely beneath its spell. The music was muted, tender, designed to touch the heart and the imagination.

They lingered at the table until the late supper guests began to arrive from theatres and concert, unconscious of time, of everything, except the small white island of napery between them flooded by the glow from a rose-shaded candle.

Marilyn awoke to the realization that the tables were filling again, that she had, quite involuntarily, told Bruce Gordon the entire story of how Lady Luck had come to the house of Marsh in Millville, first with the title of Queen of Beauty for Clara, then with the Clarco award for herself. Eloquently but without benefit of camouflage she had drawn for his man who had the gift of understanding, of appreciation, the picture of the shabby gray house in its brave new coat of white paint, of Mums and Dad, of young brother Bill. It was a simple picture simply sketched, filled in with colors of love, of longing, or regret.

"Mercy," Marilyn said, appalled by her own lack of restraint, "we must have been here for hours".

Bruce Gordon smiled, that slow smile that made her heart act so queerly. He said, "I don't think so. We've been here a few minutes. Would you like to go on, dance perhaps, or have a bite of supper?"

"The way I gabbled, I've probably worn you down to a nub," Marilyn said. "I've practically told you the story of my life—such a drab unimportant story too."

"A very human story. A vital story, to me. You're living it bravely. Go on living it that way."

"I don't feel brave," Marilyn confessed. "I feel sort of frightened, and helpless."

"What? So soon? Why your story has only begun. Remember, it will be no better, no worse, than you write it."

"I know. 'The Moving Finger writes; and having writ, moves on—'. Which reminds me that I'd better be movig toward a stretch of sleep if I'm to do more than take up space in the Clarco Company offices. I've been a total loss ever since Mr. Dawson employed me. I'm afraid Miss Cook thinks so too."

"Cookie's a good sort," Bruce Gordon said. "A martinet maybe, but that's her training, her temperament. Underneath she's a hundred per cent. fair, and right. Sure you wouldn't like to barge about a while longer? We haven't sampled each other's dancing yet, you know."

"My loss, I'm sure. But I really must be turning in. It's been such a perfect evening—thinks—for everything."

At her hotel Bruce Gordon paused only long enough to hold Marilyn's hand with the lingering pressure that was infinitely more thrilling than words or look could be.

"Marilyn," he asked, his voice vibrant with appeal, "your story—would you—will you write me into it? Try me for a few chapters. You can drop me out if you find I don't fit."

The next day in the Clarco offices was uneventful. Again Marilyn felt she was being scrutinized from time to time by Edna Cook from her vantage point of authority. She did not see Bruce. She found herself repeating the name in her mind—Bruce, Bruce, Bruce, such a dear name. She found, too, that the approach of an office boy bearing one of the inevitable memos caused her to suspend breathing until he had passed. Censure from Miss Cook? A message from Bruce? None of them stopped at her desk. Lull in the storm.

"Welcome home, Duchess," he said, whisking Marilyn onto the terrace and depositing her at a table. "Personally, I escaped from my mink-lined castle for the nonce and galloped here on my snow-white steed to give you a nip o' news. Don't look so disapproving. I'm oke. The doc says so. What I want to relay to you is that Blondie, the swiftly bulging Beauty Queen, is opening at the Blue Parrot tonight. She's planning to get out there and knock the populace prostrate. I had the news from one of the Metropole's first-line scouts. She's prancing into the spotlight as Blondie Fewclothes, the new hick hope for international beauty champion. Can you tie itt? Herman the Hess must have paid plenty for that spot."

Marilyn said, trying to compose herself, and failing, "Al, please tell me what you're talking about. I understand only every sixth word."

"S'cuse, Big Eyes. I was telling you that sister Clara appears in the floor show of the Blue Parrot tonight. She waves in and waves out again with a wisp or two of chiffon where they'll do the most good. It's her curves she's showing. Anyhow, she won't go short on curves."

"Al!" terrified. "I must stop her!"

"You and how many other armies?" Al Martino urged Marilyn back into her chair. "Take it easy, Little Sister. The only way you can cure that dame is to let her knock herself out."

◆

Marilyn awakened to the insistent clamor of an alarm clock.

She sat up in bed, trying valiantly to escape from sleep.

"Oh-h," Kathleen Garvan in the twin bed alongside, groaned. "Strangle that beast, ppl-e-a-s-e." She dug her head into the pillow.

"No use," Marilyn said, swinging her bare feet over the side of her bed. "In two minutes it will start yowling all over again."

"If it does I'll take steps," Kathleen muttered. Toss it a bone. It's driving me crazy."

"Not half as crazy as you'll be if you wake up an hour from now and find you're late for the office. Might as well rise and shine, Kathie. I'll start the coffee. Sugar buns and real cream for breakfast. Get going or I'll wolf them all myself."

"Oh—darn!" Kathleen struggled out of the covers. "Who ever thought up alarm clocks, anyhow? Some day I'll find the pest and strangle him with my bare hands. Lynn, I want to get back into bed and tell Mimi the maid to bring me my breakfast on a large silver tray."

"Oh yes? While you're ordering, Kathie, tell Mimi to bring me a wreath of moonbeams. I need a new tiara. Marilyn and Kathleen were sharing a two-room and kitchenette apartment in East Tenth street. "Bring your alpine sticks," Kathleen had told their friends. We're four flights up, and you have to do your own climbing."

Sharing an apartment was a convenient, economic and happy arrangement. Convenient for work, economic in that it cut living expenses in two, happy because it provided companionship both girls wanted and needed. Neither presumed to intrude on the private affairs of the other. Yet each found satisfaction, relief even, in natural confidence, mutual trust, a community of interest in their tabloid home.

"The coffee is and the sugar buns are out," Marilyn reported from the kitchenette.

"I'll squeeze the oranges," Kathleen called. "Hop into the shower and make it snappy. I'll save my shower until after I've wrestled with the oranges. That's when I need it. What's in the ice-box for supper? The way I feel now I'm coming straight home from the office, pile myself a plate of food and get bread crumbs all over my bed."

"Help yourself," Marilyn laughed. "Bruce is taking me to a place he's just discovered. Sure-nuff Southern fried chicken and waffles. We'll probably take in a movie afterward."

"Yes? Seems to me this Bruce person is a habit around our house. One can't open the front door without stumbling over him."

"Don't be silly, Kathie. Bruce—well he's sort of sorry for me. I'm alone, he's alone—his mother and father are dead, you know, he has no sisters, no brothers—only distant relatives—"

"Hey, pardner, don't tell me he wants you to be a sister to him. Men with all his money, looks and position never need to be alone. Besides, I've seen him look at you and his eyes weren't saying 'Sister'."

"If you don't stop teasing and go into action, Cookie will have plenty to say when we report late at Clarco."

Produce Prices Continue Firm

Toronto, Aug. 9.—Prices continued to hold steadily at prevailing levels in quiet trading on the Toronto open produce market yesterday. Demand was only fair in the butter and egg sections.

The egg market closed on a firm tone as light receipts were cleared well at unchanged prices. The lack of fresh supplies arriving here lately is not attributed to falling off in production as much as to the fact that more shipments to Eastern points have been going forward from producing centres rather than via the local market. Though buyers have been restricting their activities to meeting only current needs this past week, there has been a steady movement into retail channels. Shipments to the British West Indies and the Maritime Provinces were reported heavier than the previous week, with normal volume shipped to military supply depots.

Dairy produce prices held unchanged on a steady market, as receipts continued light. Though a little more enquiry was evident, trading was spotty and volume of sales was not heavy.

A PILLOW, PLEASE!

HOPKINS LEAVES MOSCOW

Harry Hopkins, who met Stalin as President Roosevelt's personal envoy to determine Soviet needs in the war with Germany, is pictured at a Moscow airport as he left for an unnamed destination. Bidding good-by to him is S. A. Lozovsky, vice-commissar of foreign affairs, whose name has become widely known throughout the world since he became official spokesman on Red Army progress, to the press of the world. Although Hopkins is lease-lend administrator, it was pointed out that the lease-lend provisions would not apply to the U.S.S.R. which would pay cash for war purchases.

LOU IS BEHIND THE BEARD

Behind that beard is Lou Nova who's training at Nicatous Lake, Me., for his September bout with Joe Louis. On hand to watch the daily grind are Mrs. Nova and their baby daughter, 27-months-old Bertha Louise.

4. Nazi Air Force destruction of Russian industrial centres east of Moscow

5. Increased pressure on France, Spain and Portugal for occupation of their Atlantic and African bases to tighten a counter-blockade of Britain.

Success against the Russians and the British in the Middle East, the sources said, would call for an Axis march in the spring on India, termed by Napoleon the keystone of the British Empire. This march would coincide with Japanese drives from Indo-China against Burma and Malaya.

Success against the Russians alone and failure to whip British forces in the Middle East would mean German peace offers to Britain, the advices added, but rejection might bring about the long-awaited Nazi attempt at invasion.

The sources reported that the slow advance of the German army had caused "visible disappointment" among the German population, which was more interested in the prospect of rapid occupation of the Ukraine than in capture of Smolensk or Leningrad.

Ukraine foods are expected to supplement German stores, but if the Ukraine is not occupied this month civilian rations will be reduced, the sources said.

RUSSIAN

The announcement that fires were started in Berlin by Russian planes on reconnaissance deep inside Germany cleared away the last of the mystery surrounding a raid on the Nazi capital Thursday night which the Germans attributed to Britain.

(London reported the Red air fleet made the 1,200-mile round trip to the German capital again last night in a second attack. Berlin radio broadcast heard in London said the raiders were beaten off and identified them tentatively as British but the Royal Air Force said it had not been near the German capital during the night.)

A mid-day Russian communique declared fighting continued throughout the night with the key sectors unchanged. Battles were reported raging on the Karelian Isthmus north of Leningrad, on the Estonian front, near Smolensk, and in the Bel Tserkov sector of the Ukraine, with patrol activity and minor local actions elsewhere.

A Moscow war bulletin on fighting yesterday named Korosten, 80 miles northwest of Kiev, as a battle centre after several days during which that area had not been mentioned by the Red army.

Elsewhere the Soviet picture of the front was the same as it has been for days: with fighting at Kakisalmi, on the Karelian Isthmus 75 miles north of Leningrad; on the Estonian front, near Smolensk on the road to Moscow, and near Bel Tserkov, center of resistance against the big Nazi push south of Kiev.

21 Nazi Planes Downed.

The Russians said their air fleet—which Nazi communiques have pictured as virtually shattered—smashed heavily at German troops and motorised columns along the front, and raided Nazi airdromes far behind the lines in addition to paying Berlin a bombing visit in return for fourteen Nazi raids on Moscow.

Twenty-one German planes were reported shot down Thursday with a loss of 14 Russian planes. The Russians said they lost no planes in the Thursday night raid on Berlin.

Red Fleet, organ of the Russian Navy, reported the Germans lost 14 submarines in the first 44 days of the war, along with more than 30 transports, 10 destroyers, 3 patrol boats, 2 monitors, 2 cutters and 2 trawlers.

GERMANS REPORT

This battle of Uman, the High Command said, was won by German troops aided by Hungarian units. Now, German troops are reported moving down the west bank of the Dnieper River in the direction of the Ukrainian industrial centre of Dnepropetrovsk.

The High Command boasted of the claim as "the first great success" in the Ukraine, and German correspondents at the front predicted that Marshal Semeon Budyenny's army of the southwest would be smashed in a great impending battle of the Dnieper plateau.

Berlin, meanwhile, experienced its second air-raid alarm in as many nights, but an announcement claimed planes attempting to attack the capital were beaten off without causing any damage.

(British sources credited last night's raid to Soviet bombers, which an announcement in Moscow said previously had made the Thursday night attack. Royal Air Force planes raided northwestern Germany last night.)

If the Nazis are able to break Soviet defences along the Dnieper and span the stream they will have forced their way into the treasury of Russian heavy industry.

The Donets basin possesses a huge wealth of coal, manganese, mercury, iron ore and other vital materials and lies on the route to the Caucasus oilfields.

Another Plant Threatened

On another defence front a non-union walkout of several hundred workmen at the Curtiss-Wright Corporation Propeller Division plant at Caldwell, N.J., threatened to stop production on defence orders exceeding $100,000,000. The plant employs 1,493.

Frank Sherwood, head of a workers' committee which asked a general 20 per cent hourly wage increase in undisclosed scales, with a base rate of 75 cents hourly, said the walkout was not a union move nor a protest against a collective bargaining election held Thursday which was won by an independent union.

The company rejected the demand, and said that Propeller Craft, the union which won the election, was the proper agency to make any requests. Officials of Propeller Craft and of the local of the American Federation of Labor International Association of Machinists, the other union in the election, said they had not sanctioned the walkout.

At Pittsburgh the McKees Rocks plant of the Pressed Steel Car Company, employing about 2,500, closed after the C.I.O. steel workers called a walkout in a jurisdictional dispute with an independent local union which has been recognized by the National Labor Relations Board as exclusive bargaining agency at the plant.

NEW O.P.P. OFFICERS AT HEADQUARTERS

Two more Provincial Police officers arrived in Belleville today to supplement the district headquarters' staff under Inspector Frank Gardner.

To fill the vacancy left when Constable McKellar obtained leave of absence as he joined the Canadian Officers' Training Corps, Motorcycle Patrolman William Milton, formerly of Provincial Headquarters staff in Toronto, reported for duty here today. Patrolman Milton will take over the detail east of Belleville on Highway No. 2, Sergeant Sid Hunter announced.

The other constable to report was J. P. LaPerriere, formerly of Ottawa, who replaces Constable W. Harnden, now stationed at Lindsay.

AIR MINISTER POWER WILL BROADCAST

Ottawa, Aug. 9 (CP)—Air Minister Power will speak to the Canadian people about his recent trip to the United Kingdom in an address over the national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation tomorrow night, the Air Ministry announced today.

The minister will speak from Ottawa at 10 p.m. to 11 p.m. E.D.T. and his address will be repeated in French over the French network immediately afterwards.

Lt.-Cmdr. Pisani, Hero of Dunkirk, Dead

Victoria, Aug. 9—(CP)—Mrs. A. R Portway of Victoria has been informed by the British Admiralty of the death of her son, Lt.-Cmdr. Neville Lionel John Pisani, D.S.O., D.S.C.

Lt. Cmdr. Pisani was awarded the D.S.O. for gallantry at Dunkirk. He received the D.S.C., in the First Great War.

Bombing Blocks Suez Canal for Brief Periods

New York, Aug. 9 (AP)—Justin P. Ramsey of McAllen, Tex., who returned with two other Americans from Cape Town in the American South African liner City of New York, today described the bombing of British ships in the Suez Canal by German and Italian aviators.

"The canal was blocked several times," said Ramsey. "The Germans and Italians sank a number of British ships in the canal; then came the job of raising them by cranes. The blockade was so effective that at one period there were 200 ships held up at the entrance."

Ramsey and his companions, Jack T. Roche of Taft, Calif., and W. C. Teutsch of Spring Hill, La., spent 2½ years drilling oil wells in Egypt along the Red Sea for the Socony Vacuum Company.

They said that despite the canal blockade the British forces in Egypt and in the Mediterranean were getting plenty of oil.

Two Motorcar Accidents Reported

Two motor accidents were reported in Belleville late Friday, both resulting in considerable property damage.

An automobile driven by Mrs. Audrey T. McDowall, 337 Front street, was in collision with another motorcar driven by Alex McLeod of Peterborough, at the intersection of Grier and Evans streets. Property damage to at least $150.00 resulted to the vehicles as the result of the impact, Traffic Officer Doug Ellis repored.

Shortly after midnight Friday at the intersection of Coleman and West Bridge streets, automobiles driven by Fred LaPalm, 263 Ann street and George McLaughlin of the R.C.A.F., were in collision. The pile-up impeded the progress of traffic for some considerable time before police untangled the wreckage. Here also extensive property damage resulted.

Robert Taylor makes his debut as a western star in "Billy the Kid," romantic outdoor action hit, with Brian Donlevy and Mary Howard topping an ace supporting cast, all in superb technicolor, now on the Belle Theatre screen.

Girl Schoolteacher With 'Foreign Sounding' Name is Dismissed

Bowmanville, Ont., Aug. 9 (CP)—Miss Mae Kozac, whose dismissal from a post as school teacher at nearby Hampton followed protests of ratepayers that her name "sounded foreign," said in an interview Friday she is negotiating with school officials near Columbus, Ont., for a post there.

Miss Kozac parents are Ukrainian by birth but she was born in Canada. She applied from a northern Ontario town for the Hampton post and was accepted. Ratepayers said her name "sounded foreign" and petitioned for her dismissal.

The school board resigned in a body over the ratepayers demand and reassumed office on condition an attempt be made to get Miss Kozac's resignation.

Miss Kozac resigned, got a month's salary and $100 expenses. Then she had an offer from the school near Columbus, about 10 miles from Hampton.

J. Claremont, Trenton, Dies of Injuries Sustained in Accident

Fifty-four-year-old Joseph Claremont of Trenton, died in the Belleville General Hospital early Friday after being rushed to the institution suffering from injuries sustained in a motor accident south of Stirling on the Frankford road last Sunday.

The driver of the car in which Claremont sustained his fatal injuries was Joseph Plumb, alias Palmer, also of Trenton. Plumb had been held in custody on a charge of reckless driving ever since the accident took place.

Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson announced Fri., there would be no inquest held, although Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., ordered a post mortem. "When criminal charges have been laid it it not necessary to hold an inquest," added Dr. Robertson.

Crown Attorney Donnan told the Ontario Intelligencer at noon he had not preferred any more serious charges against Plumb as the result of the death, but would consider the matter after the findings of the post mortem had been announced.

Police say Plumb was driving a motor car allegedly stolen in Toronto on June 30th last, when the vehicle went out of control, leaped a ditch and crashed through a farmer's fence on Highway No. 33 early Sunday morning.

Bruno Mussolini Is Buried Near His Grandparents

Predappio, Italy, Aug. 9—(AP)—Premier Mussolini buried his second-born son, Bruno, today in the little cemetery of San Cassiano in Pennio near the graves of the dictator's blacksmith father and schoolteacher mother.

The body was brought here yesterday from Pisa where the 23-year-old air captain was killed in th crash of an experimental plane Thursday.

30-Passenger Bus Added to Rawson Line

The Rawson city bus line added a new modern streamline 30-passenger bus to their fleet of motor vehicles Friday. The new bus is an air-conditioned vehicle. A Fitzjohn vehicle equipped with a 110-horse-power Hercules motor the bus is the very latest model manufactured. All of the upholstery is set in sponge rubber, making the riding qualities smooth and comfortable. The new bus brings the Rawson fleet to four, Manager Freddie Rawson announcde with the delivery of his latest streamlined bus.

830 Women To Be Enlisted For C. W. A. C.

Ottawa, (CP)—Defence Minister Ralston Friday told newspapermen the National War Services Department, at the request of the National Defence Department, would enlist 830 women for service with the Canadian Women's Army Corps, beginning Sept. 1.

Col. Ralston said Miss Elizabeth Smellie, matron-in-chief of the Canadian army nursing sisters who has been charged with original organization of the corps which was announced some time ago, would start a tour of the various military districts.

Miss Smellie will leave for Victoria early next week and during the course of the tour will meet various women's organizations already interested in the army corps work and explain to them the regulations of the new force.

1,500 Eventually Required

In announcing formation of the force last month Col. Ralston said it eventually would require 1,500 women.

The air force and the navy also have announced they soon will start women's auxiliary formations.

For the women's army corps recruits will be enlisted who are between ages of 21 and 40 and the Canadian force will follow along the lines of the similar British organization.

London, (CP Cable)—Maj.-Gen. B. W. Browne, Adjutant General of the Canadian Army, has outlined formation of the Canadian women's army corps in a long talk with Gen. Sir Ronald Adam, Britain's Adjutant General.

Gen. Browne, who came to Britain aboard a bomber two days ago, told The Canadian Press that the women will enlist for service anywhere and that, although their first duty will be in Canada, "it is within the bounds of possibility that some will come to Britain."

It is reported the Canadian General may consult Maj.-Gen. Jean Knox, chief of the British auxiliary territorial service, on the set-up of her organization.

Cattle Disease Gave Old Eire War of Its Own

Foot-and-Mouth Epidemic Has Cost Dublin Government a Million This Year; Many Animals Killed

Dublin, Aug. 9 (CP)—Eire's seven month epidemic of foot-and-mouth disease involved destruction of 19,358 cattle, cost the state £223,000 (about $1,002,500) and caused indirect loss and damage that can never be estimated, the Irish Times reports.

While agriculture department inspectors continue to battle the disease, now apparently confined to Kilkenny, Carlow and South Tipperary counties, export of cattle to Britain has been resumed. Despite shipping difficulties and British food ministry limitation of the area from which cattle may come, initial exports were 1,200 head compared with the normal 4,000.

Ireland's Worst.

Day and night since the first outbreak in Donegal last Jan. 25, inspectors and civil guards have fought this worst foot-and-mouth epidemic in Irish history. They carried out hundreds of disinfecting operations and worked hard preventing stock movement.

Prevention operations, in addition to cattle destruction, involved elimination of 5,600 sheep, 2,270 pigs and 315 goats. The fight was conducted along military lines and defence boundaries were drawn around infected counties. At its worst, the epidemic ranged over thirteen counties but now the defence line has been tightened around Kilkenny, Carlow and South Tpperary where it is hoped to exhause the virus.

Duke of Kent Visits Vancouver

Inspects Aircraft Plant and Elementary Air Training School

(By DAVID INNES)
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 9 (CP) — The Duke of Kent today started a busy round of activities which will wind up the British Columbia end of his Dominion tour.

The Duke arrived last night from Victoria and spent a quiet evening. He flew from the British Columbia capital in the Lockheed communication plane which had carried him across the country on his westward trip, but tonight he will change to train travel, leaving over Canadian National Railways lines for Jasper, Alta., on his return trip.

The Royal visitor's activities open today with a short parade through the downtown section of Vancouver, thence through picturesque Stanley Park and across the First Narrows Bridge—longest suspension span in the British Empire—to the north shore of Burrard Inlet where he will inspect the shipbuilding plants.

The Duke will return shortly before noon and proceed to an inspection of the Boeing Aircraft Plant.

Later he will inspect No. 8 Elementary Flying, Training School visit Shaughnessy Military Hospital, then go to his train where he will view a Royal Canadian Air Force guard of honor before leaving.

POLICE BLOTTER

Sneak thieves entered the verandah at 383 Bleecker Ave. and stole two valuable brass jardinieres, city police were informed today.

J. H. Blakely, Thomasburg, compalined to police he had lost $345 from his wallet while sleeping in a local hotel room. Blakely stated he had retired early, but rose about midnight last night and failed to find his money. P. C. Wright investigated.

Police found a man lying in the ditch along West Dundas St. in an intoxicated condition. The man, who was later identified as a Sidney Township farmer, was detained at the police station until this morning at which time he was released with instructions to return Monday in time for police court.

WEYGAND CONFERS WITH MARSHAL PETAIN

Vichy, France, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Gen. Maxime Weygand, Vichy's pro-consul in North Africa, conferred today with Marshal Petain, Vice-Premier Darlan and other government leaders in a round of meetings preliminary to a late afternoon Cabinet meeting.

Dog Which Begged For Nickles, Dimes In Texas, Dies

Jefferson, Tex., Aug. 9 (AP)—Bingo, the mooching pooch with a bank account, is dead.

For years Bingo begged for nickels and dimes, took them promptly to his bank—a drug store where the employees deposited the money in a box, doled it out for food, doctor and dog tax bills.

An electic animal of the capitalistic side, he would drop disdainfully in the nearest gutter a donated penny. But the nickels and dimes went quickly to his bank.

Veterinarians knew Bingo—just dog—as the pooch with tummy aches. He was a sucker for ice cream and never knew when to quit.

"Poison," said the dog doc who took care of him in his last illness. But Jefferson folk won't believe that.

HEAVY SMOKER MAYBE

London (CP) — Charles Smith, 65, was sentenced to six months in jail for shooting at a shopkeeper who told him the shop's supply of cigarets was exhausted. The bullet missed the shopkeeper.

New Fighter Planes Ready to 'Chop To Bits' Any Jap Attack on Burma Rd.

London, Aug. 9—(CP)—Reuters News Agency quoted the Singapore Ministry of Information Friday as saying that United States Fighter planes being delivered to British bases in Burma would prove "one of the answers to Japan's new strategic move in Indo-China."

These planes, the Ministry said, are ready to "chop to bits" any bombing attacks which Japan might launch against China's Burma supply road from newly-acquired Indo-China bases.

The announcement said United States aid to China is pouring in over the Burma Road and that if this flow of material were stopped it would be equivalent to "drawing the war fangs from China."

Two Axis Ships Sunk, Destroyer Damaged in Attack by R.A.F.

Cairo, Aug. 9 (AP)—Two merchant ships have been sunk and two others damaged in air attacks on an Axis convoy in the Mediterranean, the Royal Air Force Middle East headquarters announced Friday.

A destroyer guarding the convoy also may have been damaged. One of the struck merchantmen probably sank, the communique said.

(The Admiralty in London also reported an Axis supply ship sunk and an auxiliary cruiser damaged by a Netherlands submarine operating with British naval forces in an attack on a Mediterranean convoy.)

The first air blow was made Wednesday night by fleet air arm torpedo planes against six merchantmen, convoyed by an equal number of destroyers, near the Italian Island of Lampedusa, between Italy and Tunis.

They sank one merchantman of 8,000 tons and another of 6,000 the communique said, and R.A.F. Blenheim bombers followed up the next morning on the four remaining ships in the convoy, hitting and probably sinking one 8,000-ton vessel with two direct hits and heavily damaging a second, of 6,000 tons.

Massey Harris Tractors And Farm Equipment Ease Labor on Farms

In a time of national need when farmers throughout Canada are being urged as never before to increase production of food stuffs, the necessity of after-harvest cultivation to prepare his fields for the next season's crop was never more forcibly brought to the agriculturist's mind than during the past few months.

The time for after-harvest cultivation however, if it is to do the maximum of good, comes during a season when farmers are rushed with threshing operations, silo filling and a host of other seasonal occupations which demand attention and the problem is to find the time to do the work. And then again, the summer's heat has baked the land and in many cases it is next to impossible to make headway without the advantages of mechanical power.

It is in such cases that an efficient tractor with a one-way disc or a disc plow shows to advantage. Land, which is impossible to work with horse-drawn implements, works up with remarkable ease with the advantages of modern tractor power equipment.

Three Lines of Tractors

Tillage equipment and tractors manufactured by the Massey Harris Company Limited, "The Service Arm of the Canadian Farm" are well known among Canadian agriculturists as farm machinery which have given proven satisfaction. Their new line of tractors, the "81" 2-plow tractor, developing 16 horsepower on the drawbar, and the "101" Jr. and "101" Super, developing 20 and 28 horsepower respectively, fill a long-felt need in farm power.

The "81" tractor with its ease of handling and economical operation is especially popular among owners of smaller farms, while the "101" series meets admirably the requirements of larger farms. Features of the new Massey Harris tractors are controlled flexible power, self starters, muffler, modern industrial motors, automatic spark control and four speeds, while the "101" series features the six cylinder motor.

J. V. White, Local Agent

The new Massey Harris tractors, together with a full line of tillage equipment, including disc plow, double disc harrows, one way discs and mouldboard plows ranging from the one-furrow garden-sized plow to the tractor-drawn six-furrow plows may be seen at the local Massey Harris agency, operated by Mr. J. V. White, on McAnnany St., Belleville.

Mr. White has had wide experience in the implement field, being associated with farm implement manufacturers for a period of 23 years, eight of which were in the capacity of general traveller and cream separator organizer for Massey Harris. His showrooms and service shop is equipped to give the farmer the most complete service obtainable.

R.C.A.F. Momile Unit To Visit E. Ontario To Boost Recruiting

Ottawa, Aug. 9—(CP)—A Royal Canadian Air Force mobile recruiting unit under FO. R. L. Gagnier of Ottawa will visit Eastern Ontario centres next week to interview young men wishing to join the service. The unit will be in Kingston Monday and Tuesday, Brockville Wednesday, and Cornwall Thursday and Friday.

REPORT MINISTERS STAND BY FOR EMERGENCY MEETING

Adelaide, Aug. 9 (CP).—Australian cabinet ministers, it was reported today, have been advised to stand by for an emergency meeting—perhaps Monday.

Prime Minister R. G. Menzies, now touring the Commonwealth, said that calling a meeting depended upon international developments. If there is any marked change in the situation during the week-end he is expected to fly to Melbourne to confer with his ministers and heads of the armed services.

E. D. Mott Lumber Co. Carries Complete Line Of Building Supplies

A definite swing to fabricated plywood as sheathing in the construction of residential buildings has been noted in building trend in the Belleville district, according to Mr. E. D. Mott, proprietor of Mott's Lumber Company, 370 Front Street. This special plywood not only can be purchased cheaper than lumber but the ease and speed with which it can be applied to rafters and studding make it a favorite with constructional contractors.

Plywood is made from specially processed Douglas fir, huge machines shaving from the logs large even slices which are later glued together, the grain of each successive ply being placed at right angles, resulting in material capable of withstanding stress and strain better than lumber. An ordinary building nail driven into three-ply plywood, such as is commonly used for sheathing purposes, requires greater effort to draw than if driven into inch lumber, it is stated.

Huge Wartime Demand

With the demands of wartime industry making steel increasingly difficult to procure, the use of wood and wood products in the construction field is gaining in popularity. This is borne out by the fact that shipbuilders and construction engineers are turning to wood for use in projects which ordinarily would be built with steel.

The E. D. Mott Lumber Company are jobbers carrying one of the most complete lines of building materials in the city. Here it is possible to obtain every kind of lumber and for any purpose that the prospective builder may desire. Trim from the mills of one of Canada's outstanding builder's supply houses is kept in stock where it can be inspected by the purchasers. Plywood in all the standard sizes and thicknesses is one of the company's featured stocks.

Their line of builder's supplies includes asphalt roofing, by Toronto Asphalt Company, Insul Brick siding and Rolbrik siding. Rock Wool and Fiberglass insulation, while a complete line of sashes and doors and hardwood flooring is carried, also a general line of builder's hardware.

Moved to New Location

Moved recently from their established address on Station Street, the Mott Lumber Company is now situated at 370 Front Street, where a wide range of milling equipment permits lumber and trim to be turned out to the customer's order.

Prospective builders or those contemplating alterations to their present home can do no better than to consult Mott's for their lumber and building needs.

Prefers Martial Tunes By Military Bands To Popular Music

Winnipeg, Aug. 9 (CP).—A survey of military officers here yesterday revealed little enthusiasm for the prediction that military bands soon will be playing some popular pieces instead of martial tunes.

The forecast was made earlier this week in Ottawa by Capt. Eric Kinney of the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps when he took over command of recruiting stations at the capital.

Commenting on the suggestion, Bandmaster G. W. Butler of the Infantry Training Centre said. "I'm against the whole idea. I think it's silly.

"When anyone hears the 'Hut Sut' song his first reaction is to fox trot. We'd have our soldiers gyrating down the streets like jitterbugs."

Say Complete Ship Tries to Escape To Free French

London, Aug. 9—(CP)—The Daily Herald in a Lisbon dispatch quoting "dependable sources" said today that the still incomplete French battleship, the Jean Bart, has made three attempts to escape from Casablanca to join the Free French Forces.

Each time, the dispatch said, the 35,000-ton battleship was stopped because the smallness of the harbor made her manoeuvres obvious.

SOVIET DEFENCE LINES DRAW NEARER LENINGRAD

JAPAN PLACED ON FULL ECONOMIC WAR FOOTING

AreaBetweenKiev, Odessa in Ukraine New Battle Ground

Fierce Battle Also Develops Near Solsti, 120 Miles South Of Leningrad

NAZIS ATTACK MOSCOW

Moscow, Aug. 11—(AP)—The Red Army, reinforced by a rising tide of militia, was reported holding firm along the central front today but officials acknowledged that defence lines at the north and south flanks were drawn back nearer Leningrad and deeper into the Ukraine.

Fighting continued throughout last night in the long - contested Smolensk salient and at Bel Tserkov, south of Kiev, a mid-day communique said, but a new battle was intensifying in the Uman area half-way between Kiev and Odessa in the Ukraine.

The Russians also reported fighting yesterday in another sector, near Solsti, directly south of Leningrad and 70 miles east of the Estonian frontier.

(Observers in London said there was information that the Germans were making substantial progress southeast toward the Black Sea [illegible] of Odessa, and on beyond Uman in an effort to pinch off most of the Ukraine before the September rains. Some quarters in London said the German Purhs might have crossed the Dnieper River, which the Germans reported having reached beyond Uman last week.)

Reds Use Cavalry

The Red Army reported effective use of cavalry in its traditional role of lightning attack within the opposing lines.

The communique described the tactics used by one cavalry group to shatter a German regiment. As preparation for the attack one cavalry squadron was ordered to make a withdrawal.

A company of the German regiment attempted to outflank this unit, whereupon the Russians attacked in force, wiped out the entire company and split the regiment into several groups, encircling some.

Only a small portion of the regiment, identified as the 480th., was able to withdraw and approximately 500 Germans were killed and wounded and others taken prisoner, according to the Russians. Reported destroyed were 19 tanks, 8 mortars, 31 light machine guns 6 anti-tank guns; 10 automobiles and several motorcycles.

SEES VICTORY IN SIGHT

Rushville, Ind., Aug. 11 —(AP)— Wendell L. Willkie, commenting on the war, said yesterday, "for the first time I can see victory in sight, because the United States has made defence preparations."

A delegation from Hoosier organizations was calling on him to invite him to speak at a defence rally at the state fair in Indianapolis Aug.29-Sept. 5.

He said he would if he is in Indiana then. Visiting here, he will go back to New York City tomorrow or Tuesday.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Aug. 11 (CP)—Thundershowers have occurred in some sections of Saskatchewan and Manitoba with fair weather in Alberta. Thundershowers have also occurred in the Lake Superior district, while in southern and eastern Ontario the weather has been fair and moderately warm.

Germans Claim Dnieper River Bend Is Now Within Grasp Of Huns

SAY KREMLIN HIT

Berlin, Aug. 11 (AP)—Rapid progress everywhere in "pursuit of the retreating enemy in the southern Ukraine" and developments according to plan on all other sectors of the eastern front were claimed today in a communique from Hitler's headquarters.

The war bulletin thus reverted to terse generality after its voluminous claims of last week. Other German sources, however, insisted the entire Dnieper bend—embracing thousands of square miles of fertile Ukrainian plateau—was "as good as lost" to Russia.

On the northern front, DNB claimed the 180th Soviet light infantry division had been wiped out south of Lake Ilmen east of Soltsi which is about 120 miles south of Leningrad. The Russians were "completely annihilated," the agency said.

Confidence that Hitler's armies have cut solidly into the grainfields of the Ukraine followed upon claims of destructive German blows against the Red army in the southwest.

"It still is an open question how far the Soviet will be able to complete their evacuation of this area without running into annihilation of themselves," boasted the commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland.

"Great masses of the Budyenny army, it is well known, already have been destroyed," Dienst added.

While admitting things were hottest in the grain-rich Ukraine, German sources insisted that more interesting military developments there did not mean that pressure on Moscow and Leningrad in any way had let up.

DNB, Nazi propaganda and news agency, claimed that in a Saturday night air attack on Moscow a direct hit was scored on the Kremlin as nearly 100 planes strewed heavy explosives and fire bombs in the biggest raid yet upon the Soviet capital.

In its Sunday communique dealing with activity on the eastern front the high command reverted to the Brief phrase: "Operations in the east are proceeding according to plan." At the same time it cuaimed more than 10,000 Russian planes were destroyed including those on the Finnish front since the war with Russia began June 22.

Italian Magazine Says War May Last For Ten Years

Rome, Aug. 11 (AP)—The magazine Critica Fascista, edited by Minister of Education Giuseppe Bottari, said today "this war may last 10 years." It called upon Italians to prepare to meet such eventualities.

SPECIAL CABINET MEETING IS HELD AT CANBERRA

Australia Has Vital Interest in Security of Singapore-Menzies

FAR EAST CRISIS

Melbourne, Aug. 11 —(CP)—Australia has a vital interest in the security of Singapore, Prime Minister R. G. Menzies declared today as the Cabinet held a special meeting.

The meeting, reported to have followed upon consultation by the Ministers with heads of Australia's armed services, will be continued tomorrow.

The Prime Minister, who yesteray cancelled a western tour and returned east because, he declared, the Commonwealth faced problems "such as to call for the calmest and clearest judgment".

"Australia will be no party to encirclement and never has there been any such policy on the part of British countries", he said.

Concerned For Safety of Empire

"We are concerned with the security of the Empire and the things it stands for.

"One of the keypoints of that security is Singapore.

'Remembering that, one sees the full significance of decisions that will have to be taken, decisions in which not only Australia has a very lively interest but also the United States, The Netherlands East Indies and all other countries similarly placed".

Canberra, Aug. 11 — (CP) — A special meeting of the Australian Cabinet was held today and it was learned that the heads of the Australian armed services had been consulted.

Prime Minister R. G. Menzies said the problems confronting the government were "such as to call for the calmest and clearest judgment".

Mr. Menzies yesterday cancelled a western tour and returned to the capital, saying the international situation was "more full of danger than ever".

The largest number of applicants for the Australian Imperial force in any one day since recruiting was resumed several months ago presented themselves today and recruiting officials at Sydney laid the rush to the tense situation in the Pacific.

Japanese Nationals Leave Singapore

Singapore, Aug. 11 (AP)—Japanese nationals are leaving Singapore by international express to Bangkok and a request was reported today to have been made to the Japanese government for a ship to take about 300 others from Singapore.

The exodus was ascribed to the closing of Japanese businesses and cuts in the staffs of big Japanese firms as a result of British credit-freezing actions.

'Scorched Earth' Policy Carried Out Says Newsman After Visit to Smolensk

(By ALVIN STEINKOPF)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Smolensk, Russia (by telephone to Berlin.) Aug. 11 —(CP)— Smolensk, once stately Russian city on the banks of the Upper Dnieper, has taken its place among the communities wiped out by war.

I walked over its ashes, the first American newspaperman to reach this sector of the central front. The Germans claim they captured Smolensk July 16.

(The Russians, as recently as last week, declared at least some sections of the city 230 miles west of Moscow still were in Russian hands.)

The blackened chimneys of burned-out factories and homes and the shells of a few houses stood precariously amidst the devastation.

Asked how much of Smolensk was destroyed, a German officer estimated 90 per cent. He declared most of the damage was caused by Russian troops carrying out Stalin's orders to destroy everything before retreating.

Only 20,000 of 160,000 civilians who resided in Smolensk a month ago have remained.

German soldiers swarmed over the scene cleaning up.

A hundred miles of travel over this combat zone in a German military transport plane revealed that Minsk and Vitebsk, over which the plane flew low, were desolate—but not to the extent of Smolensk.

In between, however, hundreds of straw-thatched villages for the most part seemed untouched. Here and there could be seen the blackened ruins of villages. In one case a whole community of about 60 houses was burning briskly as we flew over.

The white and gold cathedral in Smolensk was almost undamaged.

Germans predicted that a railroad line, with a third rail laid to narrow the gauge to German size, would be operating to Smolensk inside a few days.

The military commander appointed a burgomaster—a Russian lawyer who was secretly an anti-Communist and now is mayor under the Germans.

Merchants Urged to Reduce Deliveries to One Daily

Toronto, Aug. 11 (CP)—The Federal Oil Controller, G. R. Cottrelle, urged today that reduction be made in the number of deliveries by merchants in every line of business. He asked merchants "to reduce delivery services to one per day."

Mr. Cottrelle further suggested that purchasers carry parcels on all possible occasions or arrange to have them delivered on the next convenient delivery of the merchant.

"I trust that all merchants will co-operate and that no one will try to take advantage of the other" Mr. Cottrelle said. He asked that new delivery arrangements be made early in August, thus avoiding "the necessity of regulations in this matter."

He added that "the time has come when Canadian citizens must forego many services such as the delivery of merchandise of any and all kinds and in all sizes of packages. I am sure that the Canadian public, realizing the necessity of our being able to supply adequate quantities of gasoline and oil to our fighting forces, will cheerfully sacrifice conveniences and services which we have until now enjoyed, so that the battle to defeat Hitlerism and to preserve democracy will be won."

$50,000 FIRE LOSS AT CHICAGO YARDS

Main Horse Barn at Union Stockyards Destroyed

Chicago, Aug. 11 —(AP)— Fire swept through the main horse barn of the Union Stockyards last night, causing damage estimated at $50,000.

Fire Commissioner Michael J. Corrigan said several horses, including a $3,500 prize stallion, were reported to hace perished in the blaze. Some 50 horses had been quartered in the block-long brick reported to have perished in the stockyards, but most of them were led to safety.

The stables are situated south of the new international amphitheatre and apart from other large buildings which were not endangered.

SIBERIA LIKELY NEXT POINT OF ATTACK BY JAPAN

Chinese Sources State Japan Mobilizing Powerful Force in Manchoukuo

THAILAND IS SIDESHOW

By J. D. White
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Aug. 11 (CP)—Reuters News Agency reported tonight from Tokyo that "important developments" were expected there shortly.

The agency did not say what was expected but linked the expectation to a return to the city of United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew and British Ambassador Sir Robert Craigie.

It was not stated where the envoys had been but it is likely that both were away from Tokyo for a long week-end.

Peiping, Aug. 11.—(AP)—Observers in this North China gate to Manchoukuo and Mongolia expressed conviction today that Japan's next theatre of action is more likely to be Siberia than Thailand—and that the blow may fall any day.

In Shanghai, foreign military sources agreed that Japan was mobilizing a powerful striking force in Manchoukuo but usually well-informed quarters still believed Japan would act only if Russia seemed about to collapse.

Informed quarters expressed belief August was the latest Japan could expect to launch a campaign into Eastern Siberia without a winter stalemate.

Reports coming in with travellers from the northeast added up to one thing: that something big was going on in Manchoukuo.

Sifting the rumors, informed quarters were convinced Japan probaby has amassed in Manchoukuo at least as many troops as the Russians they would encounter in Eastern Siberia.

The best available estimates here were that Russia still has a normal strength of 500,000 effectives in Siberia, including some mechanized units, while Japan probably has doubled the normal Kwantgung army strength of 250,000—if not trebled it as some unconfirmed reports indicated.

Hardly Likely to Challenge Britain

Close analysts of Japanese policy held that the Japanese move into French Indo-China and reported pressure on Thailand to join the East Asiatic bloc were a preliminary side-show to the main event yet to come.

Berlin Attacked By Airplanes From Northwest

Berlin, Aug. 11—(AP)—Hostile airplanes flying into Germany from the northeast attacked Berlin early today. A communique claimed "the attack was fully ineffective."

(Although the nationality of the planes was not given, the Russians attacked Berlin twice last week and the direction from which the new raid was launched indicated planes from Russia again were the attackers.)

Sirens sent the capital's population into the cellars at an early hour.

FORMER MEMBER DIES

Toronto, Aug. 11 —(CP)— George J. Smith, 71, former member of the Ontario Legislature for Toronto Greenwood, died suddenly today at his home here.

Mr. Smith, who was a Toronto alderman from 1924-27, served under Conservative governments of Hon. George S. Henry and Hon. Howard Ferguson.

Two Steps Remain Before a Break With United States

Homecoming Japanese Minister From Washington Says U. S. Prepared for Any Eventualities

JAPAN MOBILIZES

ernment put Japan on a full economic war footing today under the general mobilization act and authoritative quarters declared that only two steps remained before a possible actual break with the United States.

But strangely, amid the atmosphere of deteriorating Japanese-American relations, came the counsel of a Japanese diplomat, Kaname Wakasugi, homecoming Minister at the Washington Embassy, that "the United States is prepared and determined to meet the worst eventualities."

The two steps that would cause a complete United States break with Japan were specified by the newspaper Chugai, which speaks for big business, as a complete embargo and severance of consular relations. The consular breach would be a likely prelude to an end of diplomatic relations.

Pessimistic Tone by Paper

For Chugai this was a new, pessimistic turn in its editorial comment. For Japanese diplomacy, Wakasugi's blunt delineation of Japanese-American relations was one of the sharpest outlines by a Japanese official in recent months.

He pictured both nations as unwilling to "start anything" but declared the United States attitude was changed and that Washington was ready with a retaliatory step for every action Japan could take.

In deciding today to invoke full provisions of the general mobilization act a measure parallel in an economic sense to military molibization the Konoye government took full regulatory charge of Japanese economy. The measure especially covers control of the stock exchange an marine transportion.

The War Mobilization Act, which went into effect in May, 1938, gave the government unlimited power to draft Japan's manpower and economic resources in a war emergency.

(Eleven of the law's thirty articles and three of its 20 provisions stipulating punishments were invoked at the outset and others have been invoked from time to time.)

Chugai, a powerful industrial journal, said editorially today that United States-Japanese relations were deteriorating and only two things were left before a possible actual break: A complete embargo and severance of consular relations.

Chugai previously had not been so pessimistic about American-Japanese relations.

The newspaper Nichi Nichi talked by telephone to Los Angeles with Kaname Wakasugi, Japanese minister to the United States, who is on his way home, and said his trip related to Thailand.

It quoted the minister as referring to the Thailand question as "this delicate issue."

8 Negro Soldiers, White Civilian Driver, Die as Trucks Meet

Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., Aug. 11 (AP)—Eight Negro soldiers of the United States army and a white civilian truck driver were killed and six other Negro soldiers were injured Sunday in a truck collision west of the fort. Involved in the crash were an army truck and a transport truck. A gasoline tank exploded throwing flames over the victims.

Canadian Anti-Aircraft Gun Crew Knocks a Junkers 88 From the Skies

London, Aug. 11—(CP Cable)—A Canadian anti-aircraft gun crew knocked a Junkers 88 from the sky a few nights ago, it was revealed today by the Ministry of Information.

The gunners, from Vancouver and Victoria, spotted the big, black plane in a searchlight beam.

Gnr. Alex Watson fired three shots, the plane showered sparks, burst into flames — then plunged into the sea off the coast.

Say Germans Use 70 Divisions South of Kiev

Ankara, Turkey, Aug. 10 (Delayed) (AP)—Well-informed military sources in Ankara said today Germany was using 70 divisions in her drive south of Kiev, making more than 1,000,000 men pressing toward the Russian industrial centre of Dnepropetrovsk.

At the same time a reliable source said that the freshly-arrived German trade delegations had been told within 48 hours to suspend pressure for a new German-Turkish trade pact until the military situation in Russia is clarified.

The same source said the trade delegation had been instructed to seek an agreement covering 100,000 Turkish pounds, roughly $80,000,000 which would represent a virtual monopoly of Turkish trade.

Trade circles, however said British occupation of Syria and Lebanon had given Turkey a new outlet for her goods and made her insistent on better terms in dealing with the Nazis.

These circles said the German plan for action was based on the idea that settlement of the war with Russia would jeopardize Turkey's position and make her more amenable to supplying Germany with cotton, fruits, grain, copper, tobacco and chrome.

Queen Thanks Women of U. S.

Her Majesty Says in Broadcast 'We Shall Not Forget Your Sacrifice'

London, Aug. 11—Queen Elizabeth declared last night in a broadcast to the United States that "to my mind, at any rate, your generosity is born of your conviction that we fight to save a cause that is yours no less than ours."

Adhering to an unwritten rule of Royal broadcasts that the speaker be alone, the Queen read her own composition, her first address to the United States in more than two years, from the privacy of a rural retreat somewhere in England.

Her words were carried to the broadcasting station over special wire set up by BBC engineers last week. The King and the two Princesses heard the Queen on their own radio sets.

Returning to the air after her last broadcast of June 14, 1940, when she appealed to the women of France to stand steadfast, she said American generosity and sympathy for Britain were born likewise "of your high resolve that however great the cost and however long the struggle, justice and freedom, human dignity and kindness shall not perish from the earth."

The Queen said that "though I speak for us all in Britain in thanking all of you in America, I feel I would like to send a special message of thanks to American women."

TRAFFIC LIGHTER THAN LAST WEEKEND

Activities were quiet and serene in and around local police circles over the week-end. Acting Chief Constable Arthur Harman reported today.

While playing at baseball on Albion St., a number of boys broke a window in the building of the Tweed Milling Company, the caretaker reported.

Provincial Police reported no serious motor car accidents over the week-end, as traffic was considerably lighter than the previous holiday week-end.

BAND CONCERT WELL ATTENDED

A large and appreciative audience enjoyed another of the popular Sunday evening band concerts provided by the Belleville Municipal Band at the Exhibition Park under the direction of Lieut. Fred Jobson. The large throng and spontaneous applause proved to all present the feeling of the public towards these popular concerts. The program included several popular numbers, which added much to the evening's entertainment. The coronet duet by Master Ronnie Moorman and Mr. Jack Green drew hearty applause also.

The program given was as follows:

March, "National Emblem," Bagley.

Suite, "Atlantis," (The Lost Continent), Safranck.

March, "The Spotlight," Klohr.

Juveniles Plead Guilty to Charge

The first case of its kind to be held in Belleville Police Court since the introduction of the Federal gasoline restriction laws saw two teen-aged juveniles arraigned before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C. today charged with attempting to steal gasoline. The lads pleaded guilty and their cases were enlarged one week for judgment. A third charge had been preferred against another lad who Acting Chief Constable Arthur Harman stated now was residing in Port Colborne.

The boys attempted to steal gasoline from a motor boat, the property of Cecil Reeves, 25 Brock Street. Mr. Reeves found the trio of lads tampering with the gasoline line of his boat a week ago. Later police apprehended the lads.

Addressing one of the lads, who is at present on parole, Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., warned this particular lad of the folly of his ways. "The courts can't put up with your carryings on much longer. You are headed straight for the penitentiary, unless you behave yourself", warned Mr. Donnan as the two lads were given into the custody of their mothers today. The third charge will be disposed of in Port Colborne.

Trees Removed In Operations To Widen Street

Minus the fine old maple trees which for a number of years have provided shade for householders during the hot afternoons, Victoria Avenue, from Pinnacle Street towards Front Street, presents rather a barren appearance today. Over the weekend Department of Public Works employees completed the task of removing the trees on the north side of the street in preparation for widening Victoria Avenue at this point.

This morning a number of city employees were at work removing the boulevard and loading the refuse on trucks to be hauled away. The removal of the boulevard at this point was considered necessary to relieve traffic congestion and is part of a program to make Belleville streets safer.

Obituary

WILLIAM G. McMILLAN
(Formerly of Belleville)

William G. McMillan, former manager of the Canadian Department Store in Belleville, and of late manager of the Canadian Department Store in Sudbury, died suddenly as the result of a heart seizure on Saturday, August 9th, while on train travelling from Toronto to Sudbury.

To many residents of Belleville the announcement of the sudden death of Mr. McMillan will bring sincere feelings of regret. For eight years he was manager of the Canadian Department Store here, having assumed the position in the year 1928 and during his residence in this city he was deservedly popular with many citizens and with the employees in the store. In the regard of many friends he held a high place. In the year 1936 Mr. McMillan was transferred to Sudbury where he filled in a most satisfactory manner the position of manager of the large branch store of the same company. In Sudbury he was prominent in many activities and was highly esteemed.

The late Mr McMillan, who was in his 51st year, was born in Ireland and on coming to this country he became associated with the Winnipeg store of the T. Eaton Company. During the First Great War he served overseas and upon returning to Canada he again entered the service of the T. Eaton Company. Eventually he was appointed to the managership of the Canadian Department Store here.

Surviving to mourn his loss and to whom the sympathy of Belleville friends will be extended, are his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Hazel Taylor and one daughter, Nancy.

The funeral service will be conducted in St. Andrew's United Church, Sudbury, this Monday evening. Later the body will be forwarded to Bellevile, arriving here Tuesday, August 12th, per Canadian National Railways at 1.30 o'clock p.m. (D.S.T.) and interment will be in Belleville Cemetery.

ROBERT CARNEY
(Formerly of Roslin District)

Robert Carney died in Peterboro on Sunday afternoon, August 10th. He was in failing health for some time.

The late Mr. Carney was born near Roslin and had reached an advanced age. For many years he resided in the district where he was born and was engaged in lumbering. For some years past he lived in Peterboro. He is survived by his wife and several sons and daughters. Old friends will regret to learn of his death.

The funeral will take place in Peterboro on Tuesday afternoon, August 12th.

GEORGE HENRY SHERRY
(Thomasburg)

After an illness of three weeks' duration George Henry Sherry died at his residence in Thomasburg on Sunday, August 10th.

The late Mr. Sherry was born in Thomasburg, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Forbes Sherry. He had reached the advanced age of 82 years and one week and had resided in the Thomasburg District all his life.

For many years he was engaged as a carriage maker and was well known and highly esteemed in the district. In religion he was a member of the United Church at Thomasburg. Surviving him are his wife who prior to her marriage with Miss Margaret Isabella Young; two sons, Mr. Clarence Sherry, Toronto, and Mr. Wilbur Sherry, Thomasburg; two sisters, Mrs. Frank Craig, Tweed, and Mrs. John Fargey, Belleville; two brothers, Mr. Wilbur Sherry, and Mr. Edward Sherry, both of Belleville.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

WILLIAM ROSS BOOMHOWER

William Ross Boomhower, the one-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Oscar Boomhower, 5 Doyle's Terraces, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Saturday, August 9th.

Surviving him are his parents, one sister, Lois and one brother, Ralph, both at home; three half-sisters, Frances and Mildred, both of Orillia, and Kathaleen at home; three half-brothers, Leo of Toronto, Earl and Murray, both at home.

The funeral took place this Monday morning from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street. The service in the chapel and at the graveside in Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. Rural Dean A. Beauchamp Payne, rector of the Church of St. Thomas.

FRANCIS LAUDER WOOD
(Ameliasburg)

As the result of a heart seizure Francis Lauder Wood died suddenly at his home in Ameliasburg, Prince Edward County, on Sunday, August 10th.

The late Mr. Wood, who was in his 69th year, was born in Ameliasburg and resided there all his life. For many years he was county road foreman and was well known and highly esteemed in the community. In religion he was a member of the United Church at Ameliasburg and was a trustee of the church for many years. Fraternally he was a member of Lake Lodge, A.F. & A.M., No. 215, also of the Eastern Star Quinte Lodge, No. 69, Ameliasburg. To many friends his sudden death has brought much regret.

Surviving him are his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Mary Priscilla Adams; one son, Mr. Morley Wood, Belleville; one sister, Mrs. Maude Lont, Ameliasburg and one brother, Mr. Charles M. Wood, Ameliasburg.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

Ontario motorists are beginning to realize full well the advantage of driving their private motor cars at a moderate rate of speed. "Motorists are rapidly beginning to accept the fact there is a great savings on the consumption of gasoline by retarding the speed of their automobiles to around the forty miles per hour" is the opinion of Sergeant Sid Hunter, in charge of the Motorcycle Division of the Provincial Police for District No. 8.

"On Sunday I made a tour of No. 2 and 7 Highways and can say there was a marked decrease in the number of week-end tourists, especially Ontario drivers. What impressed most was the fact that Ontario motorists are rapidly accepting suggestion of the government to retard the speed of their vehicles to assist in the saving of gasoline. There is a marked savings in the consumption of gas, when motorists cut their driving speed down to 40 miles per hour. This test was proven by governmental scientists and is rapidly being accepted by the Canadian driving public", explained Sergeant Hunter as he reported a definite decrease in week-end motor traffic in Eastern Ontario.

"The decrease in week-end motor accidents since the introduction of the gasoline restriction laws is definite proof the driving public is retarding its speed", added Sergeant Hunter in complimenting the driving public for co-operation in the new gasoline saving measure.

Karnival Time For Kiwanis Club Fast Approaching

Front Street between Bridge and Campbell Streets will be in gala attire on the nights of August 20 and 21st, when the Kiwanis Club will hold their annual Street Karnival to be climaxed by the drawing for a 1941 Plymouth car on the last night of the Karnival. Chairman Jack McVeigh, of the Ways and Means Committee and his energetic committee chairmen have arranged a most substantial program with all the proceeds going to the War Service activities of the Kiwanis Club. The drain on the finances of the club has been very great since the start of the war but the club officers have so arranged their finances that no one project of the club has been allowed to suffer. The club has always used this means to collect funds to carry on the work and the residents of the city and district, knowing the fine work being done by the club respond generously to the annual appeal.

Frank Domenico, chairman of the Games' Committee, stated today that those attending the Karnival will have a wide choice of contests at which to have a good time, with the bingo game being especially prominent and suitable prizes will be awarded the winners. Vince Freeman, who is in charge of the special prizes, has many surprises in store and some of these will be announced before the opening date of the Karnival. Special attention is being paid to the sale of tickets for the drawing on the car and Mills Marr, Chairman of this committee, states that the sale has been satisfactory but that more is needed and an extra effort will be put in the sale during the last ten days of the competition. The car has been sent to several places during the past weeks and everyone has responded notably to the appeal being made for funds to carry on the work of the club.

The money derived from this Karnival is all spent on the projects of the club, the principal ones being the underprivileged child and the V.O.N. but such other projects as the poultry project and boys' and girls' work receive the full co-operation of the club members. The war service is paramount at this time and considerable has been donated to the various branches. The Karnival is for a worthy cause and those donating or helping is given their money's worth. The ladies of the club are also doing their bit to help the members out and the hope chest, under the direction of Mrs. James Barclay is certainly holding its own. This hope chest draw has always been an annual feature of the Kiwanis Karnival and since it has been put on display in a local window, it has attracted a great deal of attention.

MARMORA

Hold Service of Remembrance And Decoration

Marmora, August 11—The annual Service of Remembrance and Decoration service as arranged by Marmora Branch No. 237 Canadian Legion was held on Sunday afternoon. Members of the Legion and also members of units of the Canadian Active Service forces paraded at the Memorial Hall with Lt.-Col. A. V. Yates, M.C., in charge and with Past President Comrade W. Bedore, carrying the Union Jack at the head of the parade, marched to the Public School grounds where a service was conducted by Comrade W. J. Cottrell in absence through disability of Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell, honorary member of the branch with Major Rev. Merrett Price of Actinolite, being the guest speaker. Following the National Anthem, prayers were offered and the second portion of Revelations seven, read between the singing of "O God, Our Help in Ages Past", and "Fight the Good Fight". Major Price gave a very thoughtful address in which he alluded to the Russia of today having a new spirit, to the Russia of the First World War days as shown in the resistance offered to the German invaders. He pleaded that the comradeship begotten of that First World War be perpetuated now and also referred to those thoughts of remembrance which the placing of flowers upon the graves betokened. Following the closing prayer offered by the speaker, the parade wended its way to the Sacred Heart Cemetery. Here graves of departed comrades were decorated and prayers offered by Rev. Father H. J. Farrell. After the Protestant Cemetery had been visited and soldiers' graves decorated there, a return was made to the Memorial Hall where flowers were placed beneath the two honor rolls by President T. E. Pritchard and Past President W. Mumby, the former later dismissing the parade. Thirty-two graves in all were decorated in course of the parade. What will be an annual custom was inaugurated at the Protestant Cemetery. Plot holders and friends of late residents interred there, responded well to the appeal to decorate the graves in unison with the legion decoration. Registration of those attending the decoration of graves in this cemetery was also carried out under supervision of the Cemetery Board.

Included on the staff of the camp is Miss Margaret Atkinson as nurse-in-charge, Miss Myrtle Reid, teacher, O.S.D., business manager and Lloyd Perry as swimming instructor. The complete personnel of the camp, including staff and registrations is approximately forty.

PLEADS GUILTY TO 3 CHARGES

Charles Bulpit Remanded for Week as Young Man is on Parole

Pleading guilty to three charges of breaking, entering and theft, Charles Bulpit, 16-year-old Belleville youth, was remanded for sentence by Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., when the lad pleaded guilty to all three counts. His Worship assumed his customary position on the City Police Court bench today after enjoying two weeks' vacation.

Bulpit was charged with entering the premises of the Belleville Yacht Club and stealing $1.50, cigarettes and chocolate bars. Also of entering the refreshment booth at Victoria Park and stealing $2 in cash and cigarettes, as well as the residence at 141 William St. Pleas of guilty were accepted as the lad elected summary trial in each case.

"This boy is on parole from the Bowmanville Boys' Training School at the time of these crimes," informed Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C.

"Yes, and the Provincial Police hold a charge of stealing gasoline against him also," informed Acting Chief Constable Arthur Harman.

"Remand this lad for a week and notify the Bowmanville authorities of his whereabout," ordered His Worship.

George Luffman paid $5 and costs after being convicted of careless driving, while Clarence Mastin was assessed a similar amount for speeding inside the city limits. Three citizens admitted failing to procure their 1941 city dog licences and paid the costs of the court, after producing their 1941 tags. after producing their 1941 tags.

37th Anniversary Of Wedding Is Celebrated

Marmora, Aug. 11—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gray quietly celebrated the thirty-seventh anniversary of their wedding. On Sunday, August 10th, 1904, they were married at the home of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Gray, Marmora, by the late Canon C. M. Harris. Mr. Gray is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Gray, Senior, of Marmora and Mrs. Gray was formerly Mildred Davis, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Davis, Stoney Lake. Mr. Gray, who has been a member of the Orange Order for some years, is pleased to recall with his wife that the ceremony of the laying of the corner stone of the present Orange Hall occurred on the same day as the marriage.

KNOWING ROPES AVOIDS QUEUES TO GET THINGS

Britain Has Line-ups for Nearly Everything but it's Best to Know the Butcher and Grocer Yourself

By HAROLD FAIR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London (CP) — "Queueitis" — Britain's wartime affliction caused by shortage or maldistribution of commodities forcing people to stand in line for precious supplies — claims a lot of needless victims. If a person knows his way around there isn't much necessity to "queue up."

Be well-known to the butcher, the grocer, the fruiterer and greengrocer, a couple of tobacconists, a pub or two and a store selling spirits and you don't run short unless the supplies are unobtainable.

Even more fantastic than the queues is this ability to get what you want if the store-keeper knows you. This is not boasting, although the statement is based on personal experience shopping for a group of Canadian Press bachelor flat-dwellers. Friends have noted and commented on the same situation.

As to Cigarets

The current cigaret shortage brought impressive proof of this. Generally we had sufficient, thanks to the old newsdealer who delivered the papers every morning from the little store nearby. Although casual purchasers were refused cigarets, he managed to give us a pack from a drawer beneath the counter.

If cigarets were needed at night, Tom, the publican provided them surreptitiously. The devious ways Londoners obtain their cigarets now have supplanted those personal bomb experiences which became such a bore during the heavy air raids last fall.

Tom has handed over cigarets in a sealed envelope, described as a personal letter. He's passing them over the bar by hiding the pack under a bar cloth and pretending to clean the bar until the cloth is in front of you. He's even given the cigarets in the men's room because the bar was filled and he didn't want the crowd to see he had a supply.

Exchange of jokes in the butcher shop—and the odd six-penny tip to the young assistant—help make one persona grata there. It meant meat was always there when one called Saturday and often a good supply of eggs — over and above what was obtained from the grocery store.

Down on Hoarders

The grocer too does his best. If they get canned fruit, always scarce a tin is saved. This grocer, incidentally, maintains there is no need for shopping queues. He blames the situation on hoarders who travel from shop to shop to [illegible] up supplies.

"[illegible]ve had a good morning," he observed caustically one day to a woman trying to fill a basket already overloaded with tinned stuff purchased in other stores.

Greengrocers are particularly good people to know in summer when you want tomatoes and potatoes. Otherwise the tomato queues is the only resort. Prices of tomatoes and new potatoes were controlled with the result that always happened in cases of controlled food prices — the article became scarce. In early July new potatoes were so hard to obtain that the food ministry released supplies of old potatoes.

Then there's the old lady in the wine store who manages to dig up a bottle to help make you a hot weather drink. Listening to her stories about her black cat which has been bombed out of home innumerable times helps you tremendously in the get acquainted campaign.

WAGES AND LIVING

London (CP)—The Trade Union Congress rejected a Government proposal that wages should be pegged to avoid inflation. The way to stop inflation, said the congress, was to keep the cost of living down by controlling prices and profits and by rationing.

Eastern U.S. Motorists May Get Only Five Gallons Gasoline Weekly

New York, Aug. 9 — A probability that not more than five gallons of gasoline a week will be available to the average passenger car driver in the eastern United States this winter was foreseen today by statistical experts in the oil industry.

Commenting on a suggestion that eastern motorists should be limited to 15 gallons of gasoline each a week to prevent the gasoline shortage which now is threatening the Atlantic seaboard, one executive asserted:

"That limit wouldn't do any good. The average consumption in this section of the country was 15 gallons per car each week last year. There isn't going to be that much gas around this winter.

The industry was regarded as convinced that petroleum products will be delivered to the east from the southwest this winter on a priorities basis—with gasoline for automobiles in fourth place in a list of four.

Heavy industrial oils for defence factories were ranked first, heating oils second and crude oil supplies third.

Since the shortage situation was brought about by the transfer of East Coast tankers to Britain and since the tanker fleet now is supposed to be about half of its previous size, gasoline supplies, it was said, may be expected to be curtailed by at least half.

Last year the 16 eastern States, with the District of Columbia, used 36 per cent. of all gasoline consumed in the United States. That is, of 24,756,000,000 gallons used, the east used 8,508,612,000.

The east used that amount with 11,250,000 motor vehicles, making the average yearly consumption 788 gallons per vehicle.

The vehicle total includes about 1,500,000 trucks and buses, the heaviest gasoline users and, at the same time, the most commercially important. Oil men said they thought it likely the average operations of trucks and buses would constantly increase during the emergency period, paring still further the ratio available to passenger cars.

Consequently, some authorities suggested even the low figure of five gallons—or 100 miles of motoring—per week for passenger cars might be considered somewhat high.

Two large oil companies, it was learned, already have started deliveries of crude oil to their eastern refineries by motor tank trucks in an effort to supplement supplies being delivered by ocean tankers and railroad tank cars.

The cost of delivery by rail and highway, however, is running as much as 10 times ahead of ocean transportation.

Seamen Survive 900 Miles Open

Torpedo Victims 19 Days at Sea in Small Boat Reach Safety

Galway, Eire (CP) — Exhausted after a 19-day 1600-mile voyage in an open boat, 21 survivors of a torpedoed British ship were landed safely at Galway.

They had been picked up a few hours earlier off Slyne Head. The men were so weak that they had to be lifted aboard the rescue ship.

During the voyage the seamen, including 15 Britons, four Arabs and two Indians, lived mainly on sea-biscuits and rain water caught in a sail. They were removed to a Galway hospital on landing. One man was suffering from pneumonia, the result of exposure, and some others were injured.

The torpedoed ship carried a crew of 40. All aboard were rescued except the third engineer who was killed when a torpedo struck the raft into which he had jumped after the ship was struck. The captain was among the survivors brought to Galway.

How About Scotland, Ireland and Wales They Want to Know

London (CP)—Scottish members of parliament are becoming concerned about the use of the word "England" in official places.

Arthur Woodburn has put down a question to the Minister of Information, asking about a tablet erected in St. Paul's Cathedral to a United States citizen indicating that he died "that England might live."

The minister is asked to call attention to the British Broadcasting Corporation and other departments concerned with publicity "to the desirability of instructing themselves in the precise meaning of the all-inclusive term 'Britain' and of limiting the use of the terms England, Scottish, Ireland and Wales."

IN TROPIC SUN DIVIDED WATER BY SPOONSFUL

Four Airmen Rescued After 11 Days at Sea in Small Inflated Dinghy With Little Food

London (CP) — Rescued after drifting helplessly in the Mediterranean for 11 days in a small inflated dinghy, four members of the Royal Air Force are in hospital in the Middle East, hoping to return soon to their bomber squadron.

The other members of the six-man crew lost their lives, a few hours before the dinghy was sighted from the air, in an attempt to swim four miles to some British destroyers which were on patrol. The air ministry news service told the story of the plane's crash and the days that followed.

Failure of an engine forced the plane, a heavy bomber, down to sea and the crew barely had time to climb into their dinghy when it sank. For eight days they drifted, exposed to the relentless Mediterranean sun, with only 1 1-2 pints of water, which they rationed at two teaspoonfuls twice a day. Their only food was nine biscuits, 15 pieces of chewing gum and some chocolate.

Nazis and Sharks

At dusk one night they saw six aircraft. They fired a verey light but as the planes approached they were recognized as German. Then the crew members destroyed all their papers and maps, but the enemy machines passed over. On another occasion a large shark, attracted by some dye they had thrown on the water to mark their position, nosed by.

On the ninth day they were seen by an R.A.F. flying boat and their hopes were raised, but a strong current took them far from the spot where they were sighted and the destroyer sent out to rescue them failed in its search.

Two mornings later the destroyers which the two airmen who lost their lives tried to reach appeared on the horizon but they too passed by without stopping. Three hours later, however, two Dornier seaplanes at one time part of the Jugoslav fleet but now attached to the R.A.F., sighted the dinghy. One circled overhead and dropped a bottle of water, cigarettes and chocolate wrapped in a "Mae West."

The other Dornier summoned a destroyer and not long after the exhausted men were taken aboard.

Deport 'Over65's' To North America

Brighton Official Suggests They Leave Britain Unless Really Needed

Brighton, Eng., (CP)—Dr. Duncan Forbes, former Medical Officer of Health for Brighton, told the Health Planning Committee he thought all people of more than 65 should be deported unless doing work of national importance.

Explaining his views later, he said "My deportation suggestion was made rather jokingly, but I do seriously believe that, in order to conserve food supplies, people over 65, unless their work is of value to the national effort, should be invited to go to Canada or the United States."

He also urged destruction of all useless animals and prosecution of people who feed birds in parks or streets.

Malone

Malone — A number of friends and neighbours attended the shower held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kelly in honour of their daughter Helen, whose marriage took place last week to Mr. Claude Nichol of Marmora. The house was filled to capacity with friends from far and near. A large wedding cake decorated the centre of the table while the house looked nice with pink and white streamers and white bells. About midnight the gathering was called to order and an address was read to Mr. and Mrs. Nichol by Miss Ruth Jones. They were presented with a lovely studio couch from their friends in Malone. Among the other lovely gifts were a coffee table and electric lamp. Both Mr. and Mrs. Nichol graciously replied. Refreshments were then served and everyone wished the newlyweds best wishes and lots of luck.

Unfinished Battles Spell Hitler's Doom

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, Aug. 11.—(AP)—The end of the seventh week of the German-Russian war, marked by astronomical claims from the Nazis of Russian losses, happens to coincide with another date which well might have been in Hitler's mind when he advanced his claims of bloody new victories.

The Battle of Britain began by the calendar on June 18, 1940, when France fell. Actually, however, it was nearly two months later, on Aug. 8 of that year, that Hitler ordered his air force against Britain in all-out air attack.

His hope and expectation was to break British resistance within weeks at most and pave the way for invasion. He failed utterly, terrible as was the cost in British lives and grievous as was the damage wrought by ruthless Nazi attacks on London and other thickly populated cities.

A year later, the people of Germany must be fully aware of the grim significance of that first Hitler failure. Day and night, increasing numbers of British bombs are falling now on Germany itself and on German-occupied regions. There is mounting evidence, also, that at sea, July 1941, was a banner month for Britain, defensively and offensively, as compared to July, 1940.

Hitler Spoke First

Hitler could not have doubted that his arch foe, Prime Minister Churchill, would make the most of an opportunity to recapitulate for the world the events of the year since August 8, 1940, so powerfully bolstering British hopes of ultimate victory.

Mr. Churchill's deputies in Parliament took over the task in his unexplained and perhaps significant absence. They did it less colorfully than Britain's gifted war captain would have done; but they sufficiently underscored the prime factors that high-light this grim August anniversary in Britain's favor.

It seems obvious in retrospect that expectation of a thundering Churchill recounting to Parliament in part prompted the timing of the Hitler broadcast of victories in Russia. There is an implication that Der Fuehrer had detected symptoms at home, in Turkey, in Spain, in Japan, and even in France, of wavering and doubt of his final triumph.

Recent American arrivals from Germany and Austria saw little sign before they left by Nazi 'request' of open public doubting of what the end would be. They explain that, however, by detailed description of the throttling precautions Nazi police take to prevent disaffection.

Hide Nazi Wounded

Some of them agree that anything can happen in Germany — given either disastrous defeats of the Nazi Army in the field, or a more cramping food shortage in Germany than has yet developed or is apt to come within a year or two, and another factor that could prove important would be public realization of tremendous German losses in Russia with no certainty of when the slaughter will end.

There are indications that the Nazi High Command, in order to conceal from the German public the cost in life of the Russia war, is distributing German wounded in German-occupied or controlled regions. Reports have been in circulation of Nazi casualties being scattered through Rumania, Bulgaria and other Balkan States, sent to Norway, even to "neutral" Sweden, anywhere but back to Germany. Yet it is clearly impossible to prevent knowledge of the terrible losses from reaching the German public ultimately.

And coupled with it is the steady hammering of British bombers at Germany in a war-of-nerves in which for the first time Britain is on the offense, not the defense. Collect these and other factors for contemplation, and Hitler's victory outgivings from Russia sound more like defensive propaganda than anything else.

GERMANY'S IMPOSSIBLE CLAIMS

Evidence continues to mount showing that Adolf Hitler has become a writer of communiques.

He chose his course, the one which is already showing he is or will be caught in his own machine. He has tried to make captives of the people of Europe and has destroyed productivity and Europe cannot satisfy his greed. He must drive farther afield. He must attack Russia. Like the criminal everywhere Hitler has to go on and on in his crimes, his path narrowing as the weeks pass.

He has reached the stage where not even the military writers of communiques can say enough. The achievements of the Germans are not sufficient for they have failed to accomplish what he set before them to do—win a very quick victory. So he takes to writing communiques, adding to the achievements typical Hitler statements which go far afield in trying to put a better complexion on the struggle. He must do this first because he must say it to influence the people who have had to see their country bombarded by two air forces at the same time.

Seven weeks have gone and Russian resistance continues strong. Hitler boasts of gains which are not substantiated. Russia is moderate in claims as compared with the preposterous claims of Hitler. Cannot the German people see that if Hitler has done what has been claimed the war would now be farther on its way to what he desired than it is?

A criminal, a dictator of the Hitler stamp is forced to go to every subterfuge to impress his followers and to try to maintain morale.

Huge claims of the Germans fail to impress the world outside of Germany. Hitler stimulated the Germans with his blitzkrieg ways and they should wonder what is wrong with this type of war in Russia that he has not achieved the results he expected there. So he makes bold claims but lack of details does not convince the world.

BURIAL OF TECUMSEH'S BONES

The thoughts of Canadians were turned a few days ago from the present to their histories which recall the heroism of the great Indian chief Tecumseh. The Shawnee, born in 1768, the year before Napoleon Bonaparte, began in 1805 to formulate a plan for the organization of the Indians of the West into a great federation and about the year 1811 he collected a large force on the banks of the Wabash River. The defeat of his brother by General Harrison of the United States army, disturbed Tecumseh's plans and on the outbreak of the war of 1812 he came to Canada to aid the British. He had not long to serve for he fell in battle at Moraviantown on October 5, 1813. His body was carried away by his braves and hidden.

Many have claimed to know the spot but the claim of Walpole Island is given most credence. In October, 1910, under a layer of grass and marsh hay the bones believed to be Tecumseh's were found on Walpole Island. There was the complete human form which shows the one broken leg bone which has been one way of identifying the bones.

For over thirty years these bones have been guarded secretly by the Indians of the island and on Saturday of next week they are to be placed in the bottom of the shaft in a cairn and covered with concrete on the shore of the St. Clair River.

The cairn is twelve feet high and has a base ten feet by ten feet. The base of the memorial was given by Gar Wood and the masonry furnished by the Department of Indian Affairs of Canada, the County of Lambton and the Walpole Island Indian Club.

Tecumseh was no mean figure. He held Indian names of Canadian history and boys and girls cannot fail to recall the prominence given this figure by historians. Tecumseh was no mean figure for he held the commission of a brigadier in the British army.

'Know thyself' means this, that you get acquainted with what you know, and what you can do.—Menander.

HITLER'S BROKEN PLEDGES

In order to appreciate fully these coat-turnings by Herr Hitler, it is necessary to recall what was in his mind since the beginning. Here is the story:

The Beginning:

In 1890 (when Hitler was six years old) a pamphlet was published by the Pan German League, entitled "Greater Germany and Central Europe About 1950." It showed this ambitious picture: Within the frontiers of the New Reich were Germany proper, the territories of the Austro-Hungarian Empire, Switzerland, Northern Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg. The Balkans, an enlarged Poland, and the Baltic States were to be tributary States.

In 1937

Hitler merged this Pan German plan with Rosenberg's, and the Nazis decided that Austria and Czechoslovakia were to become German by 1938; Hungary and Poland by 1939; Roumania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria by 1940; Holland, Belgium Northern France, Switzerland and the Ukraine by 1941, and Great Britain, Scandinavia and Portugal by 1948. This would complete the conquest in two years ahead of the 1895 schedule.

October 6, 1939

German war aims demanded only the retention of Poland and Czechoslovakia, and the return of the former German colonies.

November 8, 1939

Hitler (at Munich) defined the German aims as the exclusive right to exploit the whole of Eastern and Southeastern Europe as a field of influence and operation.

January 1, 1940

Hitler (in his New Year message) dropped the mask still farther. He proclaimed Germany heir to the Napoleonic mission of unifying Europe against Great Britain, as the arch-enemy of the continent. "The forces of a crumbling world must be rejuvenated and forced into accepting a new European order."

("What Germany Wants," 1940)

October 7, 1940

Hitler: "We have practically all Europe at our disposal, and I can assure you that I am making use of it."

To His Own People

October, 1922

Hitler told the Minister of the Interior for Bavaria: "I give you my word of honour that I will never in my life make a 'Putsch.'"

November 9, 1923

Hitler and Ludendorff led the Beer-Hall Putsch. At the trial, a witness said he had reproached Hitler for breaking his promise, and Hitler replied: "Yes, I have done that. Forgive me. I did it in the interests of the Fatherland."

("Proceedings of the Hitler Trial," quoted in K.Herden: "One Man Against Europe"—Penguin—Page 208).

To His Own Friends

January, 1934

Hitler wrote Ernest Rohm: "I am moved to thank you for the imperishable services you have rendered......and to assure you how thankful I am to Providence that I may describe such a man as my friend and comrade."

June, 1934

Hitler drove out to Rohm's villa, roughly awakened him, and had him shot without pretense of trial.

(Rudolf Olden: "Hitler the Pawn," P. 355).

More than sixty of the oldest and most trusted leaders of the Nazi movement shared his fate......and then

February 12, 1936

Hitler: "I most solemnly here state that on the road followed by our movement there has been not one single adversary murdered, nor one single attempted murder."

(Speech at the funeral of Gustlov).

To His Trusting Followers

September 14, 1936

Hitler: "We must regard Bolshevism as our enemy......I cannot make a pact with a regime whose first act is the liberation, not of the workers, but of the inmates of gaols."

(Speech at Nuremberg, Manchester Guardian, Sept. 15).

MEN AND NATURAL THINGS

Far away from city street
Clover holds an incense sweet.
Far away from pavements cold
Very bright is marigold,
And in fields from cities far
Gayer brown-eyed Susans are!

Far away from building blocks
Wild and lovely grows the phlox,
And for miles the Queen Anne's lace
Edges winding roads with grace.
Far away from noise and rush
Sing the oriole and thrush.
Far away from "sell and buy"
